

A HARMONY OR SYNOPTICAL ARRANGEMENT OF THE GOSPELS:
FOUNDED UPON THE MOST ANCIENT OPINION RESPECTING THE DURATION OF OUR SAVIOUR'S MINISTRY.
AND EXHIBITING THE SUCCESSION OF EVENTS IN CLOSE ACCORDANCE WITH THE ORDER OF
THE TWO APOSTOLICAL EVANGELISTS.
WITH DISSERTATIONS, NOTES, AND TABLES.

BY LANT CARPENTER, LL.D.
MINISTER OF THE GOSPEL.

BRISTOL:
WILLIAM BROWNE, 29, CLARE STREET.

1835.

THIS volume contains the result of investigations commenced thirty years ago, and pursued, at intervals, to the present time. The first sheet of the Harmony was sent to the press last September twelvemonth ; and since that period, the execution of the work has been the leading object of my study and labour. The convictions and sentiments with which I have brought it to a conclusion, I have stated in p. cxxiv of the Preliminary Dissertations ; and I do not repeat the expression of them here. With perfect comfort, and with great hopefulness, I desire for my Arrangement the severest scrutiny that faithful equity and the love of truth can exercise : I have sought for nothing but conformity with reality ; and if my belief that I have attained at least a much greater approximation to it than any preceding Harmonist has attained, should not abide such scrutiny, I shall cherish the expectation that my errors will assist future inquirers in approaching the truth. Till then, my Arrangement may assist others, as it enables me, to retrace with readiness, and in a clear and simple succession, the most important occurrences in the records of the human race.

In one respect alone do I seek for some indulgence ; which those will most readily give, who best know the difficulties of the case : I refer to the translation. My first intention was, to alter the common version in those cases only where the purposes of a Harmony required it, which I have found much more numerous than I expected ; viz. in corresponding passages, where the same words in the Greek are rendered differently in the English, and where different words have the same rendering. It appeared desirable not to add to the associations which would check the reception of my views as to the Duration of our Saviour's Ministry and the Succession of Events in it. But it was suggested, when commencing the printing, that, as the ultimate object was to aid in the private study of the Scriptures, it would be desirable to depart from the public version, wherever I believed that the sense of the original is not closely or clearly given, or is not expressed according to the present usages of our language ; and I undertook what will, I trust, increase the usefulness of the volume, but has increased tenfold the labour required. This, however, has been amply rewarded by a more definite apprehension, in various parts, of the import of the all-important records, and by the perception of numberless indications of authenticity, which, but for such examination, I might have passed by.—All I desire respecting the translation is, that it shall be tried by no other tests than those of close fidelity to the original Greek, and of increased uniformity of rendering. And I would solicit a reference to the last number of the Appendix, where I have given such observations and corrections as have hitherto occurred to me ; together with remarks on the position of certain Sections in the Harmony.

In the technical arrangements, by which some of the main objects of a Harmony are so obviously promoted, I have been greatly aided by my Printer ; and I am also indebted to him for various suggestions in the progress of the work.—Some incuriæ we have ourselves discovered, and more will doubtless be observed hereafter ; but those who have been concerned in the execution of the work, have done every thing which I could desire in order to carry my plans into effect ; and these were often necessarily varied by varying circumstances. We have all done what we could.

On the Preliminary Dissertations is is not requisite that I should offer any remarks, except that the Third, in particular, has extended far beyond my expectations. Those readers who find the preceding Dissertations too full of critical investigation,—though there is little in them which requires an acquaintance with the original language,—may, in the Third, and in the latter part of the Fourth, find much which will aid in the purposes of the volume.

The Notes are only such as the narration or the rendering required ; and they present the compressed results of critical examinations, which to have detailed would have required volumes. I have often given the opinions of others as my authority ; but, in no instance, without having made them my own ; and it is not through negligence or disregard that I have seldom stated the reasons on which I rest conclusions that are different from those of various scriptural critics whose writings I thankfully value. I am happy in referring the student to Kuinoel's Commentarius in Libros Novi Testamenti Historicos, which was reprinted in London some years ago, with Griesbach's Text annexed, and which may now be had at a very reasonable price. The work is tinged occasionally by anti-supernatural explanations ; but it presents almost every thing that can be desired, in connection with Schleusner's Lexicon, and Schmid's Greek Concordance.

The completion of this work may now enable me to proceed with others which have long been postponed for it. Of these the first will probably be a Monotessaron for the use of the young and uninformed. At some future period I hope to publish a similar work, for more general use, with explanatory observations and practical reflections ; but in the mean time I should be glad to lead the attention of my readers to the valuable Exposition of the late Rev. Timothy Kenrick of Exeter, which ought to be more known and employed than I believe it is. A second Edition was published in 1821, by his son, the Classical Tutor at Manchester College, York.

During the spring of the present year, the Rev. R. B. Aspland, my esteemed Colleague in the pastoral office, proposed to me to publish this work by subscription, in order that the circulation of it might be made more speedy, and that I might be secured from loss ; and by his exertions, and the aid of other valued Friends, here and in other places, the whole of the present impression, consisting of five hundred copies, is required for Subscribers to the work,—though I must reserve a few, to be submitted to the examination of some able Critics in this country, out of my own religious connection, and of some of my Brethren in Boston. This result is much beyond my first expectations ; and I am very thankful to my Friends for the service they have rendered me. Through the unexpected extension of my Dissertations, more than reimbursement for actual expenditure has become entirely out of the question. I am happy in presenting my labour to those who have contributed to prevent pecuniary loss ; and I shall indeed be thankful if it promote among us the study of the work and the character of him before whose tribunal we shall all stand, for acceptance, or for condemnation.

Dec. 15, 1835.

CONTENTS.

PRELIMINARY DISSERTATIONS.

	Page
Diss. I. ON THE DURATION OF OUR SAVIOUR'S MINISTRY.
Sect. I. Various Opinions respecting it	ix
— II. View of the Opinions of the Early Christian Writers	xiii
— III. General Considerations respecting the direct Scriptural Evidence on the Subject	xvi
— IV. On the Quadripaschal Hypothesis —that the Ministry of Christ included Four Passovers	xix
— V. On the Tripaschal Hypothesis —that the Ministry of Christ included Three Passovers only	xxvi
[On the Structure of St. JOHN'S Gospel p. xxxi—xxxv]
— VI. The Ministry of Christ included 'Two Passovers only	xxxviii
Diss. II. ON THE STRUCTURE OF THE FIRST THREE GOSPELS IN RELATION TO THE SUCCESSION OF EVENTS IN OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.
Sect. I. View of St. MATTHEW'S Gospel	xli
— II. View of St. MARK'S Gospel	xliv
— III. Order in which the Gospels were composed	xlvii
— IV. View of St. LUKE'S Gospel	xlix
— V. On the General Preferableness of St. Matthew's Order in the Chronological Arrangement of Events.....	lvi
— VI. On the Extent to which the Order of St. Luke's Gospel is Chronological.....	lxi
Diss. III. ON THE POLITICAL AND GEOGRAPHICAL STATE OF PALESTINE AT THE PERIOD OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY: giving a DESCRIPTIVE SURVEY of the Districts in which he resided or journeyed.
Boundaries and Divisions of Palestine	lxv
Political State of Palestine in these several Divisions.....	lxviii
General Face of Palestine	lxix
Country NORTH-WEST of Jerusalem	lxx
— SOUTH of Jerusalem	lxxi
Route through SAMARIA from Judæa to Cana of Galilee.....	lxxiii
Divisions of GALILEE.....	lxxvi

CONTENTS OF THE PRELIMINARY DISSERTATIONS.

	Page
Diss. III. View of the WESTERN part of Galilee	lxxvii
Continued. ——— Nazareth	lxxix
———— Mount Tabor	lxxx
Region of Mount Carmel	lxxxi
Plain of Esdraelon	lxxxiii
View of the LAKE OF GALILEE from the south-west	lxxxiv
Route from Nazareth towards the Lake	lxxxv
Intense heat in July and August	lxxxvi
View of the Lake from the heights near Bethsaida of Galilee . .	lxxxvii
Extent of the Lake and Account of Tiberias	lxxxviii
Magdala, Land of Gennesareth, and Capernaum	lxxxix
On the Mountain-scenery surrounding the Lake	xc
Route northwards, from the Vale of Doves, by Saphet	xc i
Jacob's Bridge and the Region of Bethsaida Philippi	xcii
Course along the west of the Jordan to Cæsarea Philippi	xciii
Region of Tyre and Sidon	xciv
The Jordan after issuing from the Lake of Galilee	xciv
Scythopolis and Ænon with the district westward	xcv
Desert of Judæa, and Plain of the Jordan	xcvi
Ford of the Jordan at Bethabara, and REGION EAST OF THE JORDAN	xcvii
Account of Peræa by Josephus	xcviii
Route from Jerusalem to Jericho	xcix
Jericho and the Fountain of Elisha	c
The Region of the DEAD SEA	ci
Bethany and the Mount of Olives	ciii
The Hills of Jerusalem and the Valley of Hinnom	civ
(Mr. Catherwood's Plan of Jerusalem)	cv
Valley of the Kedron and the Garden of Gethsemane	cvi
Extent of Jerusalem, and places within it	cviii
Description of the Temple, according to Josephus	cix
LIST OF ENGRAVINGS illustrating the foregoing Descriptive Survey of Palesttne	cxiv
Diss. IV. ON THE SUCCESSION OF EVENTS RECORDED IN THE GOSPELS ; GIVING AN OUTLINE VIEW OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.
Fundamental Positions regarded by the Author as established . .	cxv
Mode of arranging the Occurrences between the Festivals during our Lord's Ministry	cxvi
Examination of the Objection to this Arrangement, arising from the position in the Gospels of the record respecting the Walk through the Corn-fields	cxviii
The Author's Conclusion on the Subject	cxix
Division of the Gospel Records	cxxv
OUTLINE VIEW OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY, arranged in Ten Parts corresponding to those in the ensuing Harmony	cxxv

N. B. The foregoing Dissertations, with A, C, and D of the Appendix, and a Tabular View of the Synoptical Arrangement, may be had separately from this volume, at Mr. Rowland Hunter's, St. Paul's Church Yard, London.

H A R M O N Y

OR SYNOPTICAL ARRANGEMENT OF THE GOSPELS.

Page

INTRODUCTION.

CIRCUMSTANCES CONNECTED WITH THE BIRTH AND CHILDHOOD OF JOHN THE BAPTIST AND OF JESUS CHRIST	1
--	---

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART	I. THE PREACHING OF JOHN THE BAPTIST; AND THE MINISTRY OF CHRIST TO HIS FIRST MIRACLE	13
—	II. FROM THE FIRST PASSOVER, INCLUSIVELY, TO THE APPROACH OF THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES	23
—	III. TRANSACTIONS CONNECTED WITH THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES ..	39
—	IV. CHRIST'S PUBLIC PREACHING IN GALILEE—IN THE INTERVAL BETWEEN THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES AND THAT OF DEDICATION—UNTIL THE MISSION OF THE TWELVE	49
	Identity of the Discourse in the vith chapter of Luke, with the Sermon on the Mount in Matthew	64
	On the Diversity in the Narratives of the Cure of the Centurion's Servant	66
	Circumstances of the Cure of the Paralytic	74
—	V. TRANSACTIONS OF CHRIST AFTER SENDING FORTH THE APOSTLES, SHORTLY BEFORE THE FEAST OF DEDICATION, TILL ALL OF THEM HAD COLLECTED TO HIM AFTER THE DEATH OF THE BAPTIST...	89
—	VI. FROM THE RETURN OF THE TWELVE—FOLLOWING THE DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST, AND SUCCEEDED BY THE MIRACLE OF THE FIVE THOUSAND—TO OUR LORD'S DEPARTURE FROM GALILEE...	133
—	VII. OUR LORD'S FINAL JOURNEY FROM GALILEE, THROUGH THE PERÆA, TO HIS ARRIVAL AT BETHANY SHORTLY BEFORE THE PASSOVER .	167
	On the Diversities in the Narratives respecting the Cure of the Blind Men near Jericho	188
—	VIII. FROM OUR LORD'S ARRIVAL AT BETHANY, TILL THE DAY ON WHICH HE ATE THE PASSOVER.....	191
	On the Time when the Jews ate the Passover in the week of our Lord's Crucifixion	225
	Events of the 14th of Nisan ; that is, from Sunset on Thursday to Sunset on Friday	226
—	IX. THE LAST DAY OF THE SAVIOUR'S MORTAL LIFE	227
	Order of the Occurrences in the Garden of Gethsemane	247
	Summary of the Occurrences in the Palace of Caiaphas	250
	Succession of Events preceding the Condemnation of Christ	261
	On the Denials of Peter	272
—	X. FROM THE BURIAL OF OUR LORD IN THE TOMB OF JOSEPH, TO HIS ASCENSION INTO HEAVEN.....	275
	Succession of Events on the Morning of the Resurrection.....	276
	Scheme of the Visits to the Sepulchre	285
	St. Luke's Narrative, in the Acts, of CHRIST'S ASCENSION	295

A P P E N D I X

(A)

CHRONOLOGY OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

	Page
INTRODUCTORY OBSERVATIONS. On the Year of our Lord's Baptism—Time of the Death of Herod—The Fifteenth Year of Tiberius—The Decree of Augustus	(i)
CALENDAR OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY	(vii)

(B)

Tabular View of the Contents of the Gospels, from the Baptism of our Lord till his Arrival at Bethany, Six Days before the Passover ; designed to show in what degree the arrangement in each Gospel has been maintained	(x)
--	-----

(C)

Analysis of the Part of Luke's Gospel which respects the Ministry of Christ in Galilee	(xiii)
--	--------

(D)

Analysis of Luke's GNOMOLOGY	(xvi)
------------------------------------	-------

(E)

Observations respecting the Greek Text and the Translation of the foregoing Harmony, including some Corrections and Emendations ; together with additional Remarks on the position of certain Sections in the Harmony	(xix)
---	-------

Through deferring it for a place which does not prove suited to my purpose, I have omitted to advert to two facts which have been singularly interesting to me ;—that in 1831 the Rev. Dr. PALFREY, now Professor of Biblical Literature in the University of Cambridge, New England, published a Harmony of the Gospels founded on my arrangement, with a valuable Preface ; and that the Rev. HENRY WARE, Professor of Pastoral Theology in the Divinity College of that University, has made that arrangement the foundation of his interesting and instructive Life of the Saviour, which has been reprinted in this Country. I beg these, my much-respected friends—with the latter of whom alone I have had the advantage of personal intimacy—to accept my best desires for their usefulness in their very important stations for Christian service.

DISSERTATION I.

ON THE DURATION OF OUR SAVIOUR'S MINISTRY.

SECT. I. Various Opinions respecting it.

By the Ministry of Christ is understood the period between his Baptism and his Crucifixion. It may sometimes be convenient to designate the opinion that it included two Passovers only, the bipaschal system; that it included three only, the tripaschal; and that it included four, the quadripaschal.

The opinion which has been prevalent ever since the time of Eusebius, is, that the Ministry of Christ included four Passovers, or between three and four years; but this, to use the words of Mr. Benson, "was totally unknown to the Christian Fathers of the first three centuries." * Upon this hypothesis is founded the very valuable Harmony of Archbishop NEWCOME, which was itself much framed upon that of LE CLERC; together with Dr. DODDRIDGE's, (though Doddridge obviously received it with hesitation,) Mr. GRESWELL's, and various others.† The excellent Diatessaron by Professor WHITE, which was drawn up by aid of Newcome's Harmony, and others in Latin and English derived from White's, are of course arranged on the quadripaschal system.

WHISTON and MACKNIGHT framed their respective Harmonies upon the supposition that the Ministry of Christ included five Passovers. SCALIGER, Sir ISAAC NEWTON, STILLINGFLEET, and others, adopted the same opinion:

* See p. 254 of "The Chronology of our Saviour's Life, or, An Inquiry into the true time of the Birth, Baptism, and Crucifixion, of Jesus Christ; by the Rev. C. Benson, M. A., of Trinity College, Cambridge:"—a work well deserving the attentive perusal of the critical student.

† Newcome's Harmony, and Mr. Greswell's, are in Greek: an English Harmony has been founded on each of them.

but the tendency of the critical scripturalists of the present day, is to shorten, not extend, the period assigned by the prevalent hypothesis.*

BENGELIUS constructed his Harmony upon the principle that our Lord was crucified at the third Passover after his Baptism; and that consequently the Ministry of Christ included between two and three years. On this (the tripaschal) hypothesis, is founded the Harmony of the Four Gospels† by SAMUEL LIEBERKÜHN, A. M., first published in German, and afterwards in English; and also the Life of Christ framed on the arrangement of the Rev. NEWCOME CAPPE, by his late excellent widow. This opinion was entertained by Dr. LARDNER, and Dr. BENSON; and it has recently been advocated, with great ability and research, by the Rev. C. BENSON, in the work already cited. It was also held by several intelligent writers in the third and fourth centuries; and, if the Gospel of John were our only means of judgment, this opinion, though not without serious difficulties, as will be shown hereafter, would be that in which the scripturalist—discarding the common opinion as founded on “late and scanty” tradition, and “obscure and inconclusive reasoning”—would ultimately rest.—(See Benson, p. 258.)

The prevalent opinion, during the first three centuries, was—whatever its foundation—that the Ministry of Christ lasted not more than a year and a few months. Influenced by this consideration, and by the examination of the first three Gospels, Dr. BENTLEY adopted the bipaschal system. From him it was communicated to Dr. HARE; and by him to Mr. MANN, afterwards Master of the Charter House, who defended it “with much learning and sagacity,” in his work on the True Years of the Birth and Death of Christ, first published in English in 1733, and afterwards in Latin in 1742.‡ Upon this principle, MANN constructed a Chronological Arrangement of the Gospel History; and Dr. PRIESTLEY formed a Harmony upon it, which he published in Greek and in English, prefixing a Letter on the subject,

* Dr. Burton, Regius Professor of Divinity at Oxford, in his Lectures on the Ecclesiastical History of the First Century (1831), is inclined to adopt the opinion “that our Saviour’s Ministry occupied part of three years; i. e. one whole year and part of two others.” With this explanation, his view appears to accord with the bipaschal opinion, as there could be only two Passovers in one whole year and part of two others,—unless indeed he meant Julian, instead of Jewish years. If my interpretation of Professor Burton’s view is correct, we have three learned clergymen taking each a different opinion: Mr. Greswell being for four Passovers, Mr. Benson for three, and Dr. Burton for two.

† This work, being a single narrative constructed from the four Gospels, would more properly be termed a Monotessaron, or Diatessaron.

‡ See Biographica Britannica, Vol. I. 2d Ed. p. 345, quoted in Newcome’s First Reply, p. 119.

addressed to Dr. Newcome, then Bishop of Waterford, together with Observations in defence and illustration of his arrangement. Dr. Newcome replied in 1780, and Dr. Priestley soon published a Second Letter, to which he prefixed the former one. In 1781, Dr. Newcome published his reply to Dr. Priestley's Second Letter; and Dr. Priestley addressed to him a Third Letter, which closed this controversy—a controversy marked by that urbanity and candour which the love of truth, united with the Christian temper, cannot but produce. The Bishop's Reply to Dr. Priestley's Second Letter, is peculiarly valuable, as it respects the "Testimony of the Christian Fathers", for the judiciousness of his views, and for the information which it contains.

To support the bipaschal system, Mr. Mann and Dr. Priestley, besides transposing the vith and vth chapters of St. John's Gospel, deemed it necessary to maintain that το πασχα, the passover, in John vi. 4, was not in the original Gospel. Bishop Pearce, in his Commentary, from considering the position of the vith chapter, between the vth relating he thinks to the Pentecost, and the viith relating to the Tabernacles, argues that the whole verse is spurious.

It cannot but be regarded as a serious objection against these conjectural emendations, that the whole verse, as we have it in the received text, is found in all known Manuscripts containing the passage, and in all existing Versions; and that there is no direct evidence to support the opinion that the early Christian Writers were without the words το πασχα in their copies of the Gospel. In the present advanced period of textual criticism, such an emendation could scarcely have been proposed by the eminent persons above-mentioned.

The arguments in favour of the omission of το πασχα, the passover, in John vi. 4, are, 1. That none of the early Fathers could have held the opinion that our Lord's Ministry did not include more than two Passovers, if they had had those words in their copies of St. John's Gospel; and that their copies were much more ancient than any at present existing; and, 2. That Irenæus, who advocated the strange theory that our Lord's Ministry lasted twenty years, does not appeal to this verse in support of it—anxious as he naturally was to discover indications of the occurrence of Passovers. Newcome and Benson combat this second argument by showing that Irenæus "only proposed to mention how often, at the season of the Passover, our Lord, after his Baptism, went up to Jerusalem." With respect to the former, there are two views of the matter: either, that the early Writers did not notice the supposed inconsistency between the mention of a Passover in John vi. 4, and their own opinion; or, that they regarded the approaching Passover, there spoken of, as that at which our Lord was crucified.

Dr. Newcome supplies the same supposition in relation to Irenæus. Indeed those who dwelt principally on the Gospel of Luke for their chronology, could scarcely avoid the conclusion that the Passover mentioned in John vi. 4, as approaching when the miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought, was the last Passover, since that Evangelist records the miracle in the same portion of his Gospel (ch. ix) in which he says (ver. 51) that the time was come for Jesus to be received up. The supposition that the Fathers in question entertained this opinion, (even if the opinion itself could be shown to be critically untenable,) is greatly to be preferred to the position that the words το πασχα are spurious, if not the whole verse, though found in every known authority of every class.

Resting on the prevalence, during the first three centuries, of the belief that our Lord's Ministry did not extend beyond about one year, in connexion with the fact that there is no record of transactions at more than two Festivals that were certainly Passovers, GERARD JOHN VOSSIUS came to the conclusion, as highly probable, that the Passover referred to in John vi. 4, was that at which our Lord was crucified. To this conclusion the Author of the present work had come by his own examination, and had attained a strong conviction of its solid foundation, before he had become aware that the opinion had been entertained by any other.* The grounds of this conviction will be given, in some detail, in a subsequent part of this Dissertation; but it may be stated here to be at least a presumption in its favour, that, without any alteration in the text, it accords with what some of the most learned chronologists—Scaliger, in particular, though he himself rejected it—have pronounced to be the most ancient opinion respecting the Duration of our Lord's Ministry.†

* The Author's mind had been so much impressed with the representations of Mann and Priestley, who claimed G. J. Vossius as an advocate for the omission of το πασχα, that Newcome's rectification of the error (into which even Marsh has fallen) was unnoticed by him when he first attended to the subject in 1800; and from that time, for twenty years probably, he had no opportunity of recurring to Newcome's Reply to Priestley, nor for a much longer period to Vossius's own work. This last he now possesses, through the kindness of his Friend and former Pupil the Rev. B. Mardon, M. A. of London, whose pursuits have led him to enter with much earnestness and success into the critical study of the Scriptures.

† After citing various early Authors in favour of it, Mr. Mann (p. 154) says "the great Scaliger acknowledges Vetustissima est Opinio (Can. Isog. p. 309): And Petavius, Neque paucorum neque plebeiorum Scriptorum fuit hæc sententia, sed doctrinâ et autoritate prestantium, et sane vetustissimorum."

SECT. II. View of the Opinions of the Early Christian Writers.

The opinions of the early Christian Writers have been examined, with great earnestness, both by those who have advocated, and by those who have opposed, the short duration of our Lord's Ministry. The question is not to be decided by those opinions; but whatever weight is to be assigned to them, it certainly is in favour of the bipaschal system. It is not required by the purpose of this Dissertation, to enter, in detail, into the examination of the evidence respecting them; but the following appears to be a just representation of the state of the case.*

1. There could have been no authorized steady tradition, handed down from the apostolic times, that the Ministry of Christ extended through more than three years; otherwise the early Fathers could not have rested, as, with the exception of Irenæus, they obviously did rest, in the opinion that it lasted less, or a little more, than a year. On the other hand, as is argued by Benson, the Valentinians and Clemens Alexandrinus could not have rested their opinion, as they did,† on the prophetic declaration respecting “the acceptable YEAR of the Lord,” if there had been any distinct authorized tradition to that effect.

2. Several of the early Writers, Tertullian, Julius Africanus, Lactantius, &c., speak of our Lord's death as taking place in the 15th year of Tiberius, when the two Gemini were Consuls, that is in the year 29. These are rightly regarded as holding the short duration of our Lord's ministry, for, since St. Luke gives the same date to the commencement of the preaching of the Baptist, they must have regarded the whole as occurring within one year. How they reconciled the opinion with the Gospel of John, does not appear.—Those who dwelt on the Gospel of Luke, alone, or even in connexion with the two preceding Gospels, would naturally fall into this opinion, because that Evangelist has assigned one date only, and records no festival before the Passover at which our Lord was crucified. Nevertheless, as the 15th year of Tiberius began August the 19th, in the year 28, and as our Lord was crucified at the Passover, even the Gospel of Luke alone would scarcely allow the considerate to assign so short a period, as the interval between those events, for the whole of the ministry both of the Baptist and of our Lord. And, indeed, Clemens Alexandrinus states that some who accurately weighed matters, referred the death of Christ to the 16th year of Tiberius. Those who took into account the Gospel of John, could not do otherwise than place the Crucifixion in the 16th year of Tiberius, viz. in the year 30. But whether they placed the death of Christ in the 15th or the 16th year, they must have regarded his Ministry as not including more than two Passovers.*

* The Author of this work has, with little exception, been unable to examine the original authorities; but the critical student may see the subject amply discussed in the Correspondence between Newcome and Priestley, Marsh's Notes on Michaelis, (Vol. III. p. 56—67,) Benson's Chronology of our Saviour's Life, p. 241—292, and Greswell's Dissertations upon the Principles and Arrangement of a Harmony of the Gospels, Vol. I. p. 421—442.

† Mr. Greswell (p. 422) opposes this view; but his argument does not appear satisfactory. He afterwards (p. 441) quotes a passage from Chrysostom, in which that eloquent Father assigns as a reason for our Lord's preaching for three years, that “the triad is every where honoured”—πανταχου γαρ τιμια ἡ τριας.

3. There was a class who adopted the opinion that the Ministry of Christ lasted only about a year, as already intimated, under the influence of the words of prophecy by Isaiah, repeated by our Lord himself. The Valentinians, and Clemens Alexandrinus, rested their opinion on this basis, as decisive. The ancient Christians of this class may or may not have taken the Gospel of John into account. The Alogi, who rejected that Gospel, could have no difficulty: those who received and examined it, must have regarded the approaching Passover in John vi. 4, as that at which our Lord was crucified—an opinion which, though it supposes the vith chapter to be out of chronological order, perfectly agrees with the narratives of the other three Gospels.

4. When considering those questions which depend upon the express comparison of the four Gospels, or at least upon a full acquaintance with them, it is proper to bear in mind that, during the first century at least after they were written, the possession of all four would be very rare; and that the facility of comparison, in manuscripts not divided into chapters and verses, would be vastly less than it is at present. As the knowledge of St. John's Gospel extended, in connexion with the other three, it seems to have wrought some change in the opinion of the Fathers; for several, during the third and following centuries, regarded the Ministry of Christ as including three Passovers. Among these were the Author of the Harmony attributed to Tatian,† Jerome, Cyril, Epiphanius, and Apollinarius.‡ As the first of these

* Tertullian placed it in the 15th of Tiberius: but, in one passage, he is supposed to have declared that our Lord was revealed in the twelfth year of Tiberius. There is, however, much reason to believe that the discrepancy arises from some transcriber writing XVI instead of XV, the next mistaking XV so written for XII. So Dr. Priestley conjectures, with much probability, in his Second Letter, p. 36.

† Tatian himself is said to have followed the then prevalent opinion of two Passovers only.

‡ To these Mr. Benson (p. 281) would add Origen:—founding his decision principally on a passage of that able and judicious Father's Reply to Celsus, where he supposed the feast in the vth chapter of John, (when our Lord healed the infirm man at the Pool of Bethesda,) to be the Pentecost, he must have taken the Passover mentioned in John vi. 4, to precede the Crucifixion-Passover: but it appears nearly certain that those of the early Christian Writers who considered our Lord's Ministry as including more than two Passovers, still regarded the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke as relating the events of one year only, between the imprisonment of the Baptist and the last Passover. (See Marsh's Notes on Michaelis, Vol. III. pp. 57 and 64.) If they were consistent, therefore, they must have considered the words of John, in ch. vi. 4, as referring to the last Passover; and this reference accords better than the opinion of Mr. Benson and others who adopt the tripaschal hypothesis, with the narrative in the first three Gospels, and with the fact that these have no record of any Passover except the last.*

5. Eusebius (who wrote in the early part of the 4th century) was the first who represented the Ministry of Christ as including four Passovers. The considerations which led him to this opinion, he has himself stated. They were, in the first place, an unsound conclusion, from untenable premises, respecting the succession of the Jewish high-priests; and, in the second place, an interpretation of the half-week in the prophecy of Daniel, ch. ix. 27, which interpretation is, to say the least, attended with too much uncertainty to rest such an inference upon. (See Benson, p. 256—258.) Bishop Marsh informs us, in his Notes on Michaelis (p. 65), that even the opinion of Epiphanius, that our Lord's Ministry lasted somewhat more than two years, was not generally received at the end of the 4th century; and that Augustin, whose name alone was of great authority, still retained the ancient opinion, speaks of Judas as not having been three years with Christ, οὐδὲ τρία ἔτη. There is no doubt that in his earlier writings Origen held the bipaschal doctrine, distinctly declaring that our Lord preached about a year and a few months. In the Latin translation of his work upon St. Matthew, however, (Benson, p. 280,) he is represented as making the preaching of Christ almost three years. If this be correct, it may explain the above cited expression respecting Judas; but of itself this is insufficient, since Origen might have considered the Ministry of Christ as including one whole year and part of two others: Aristotle attended Plato, he says, twenty years; but Judas was with Christ not even three years.

* Mr. Benson (p. 287) quotes a passage from Epiphanius, from which it appears that he placed the Feast of Tabernacles (John vii. &c.) in the first year after Christ's Baptism: now if he, with others, regarded the three first Gospels as recording the transactions of one year, and that the year before the Crucifixion, then it follows that this Father regarded the vith chapter of John as recording what occurred in the second year, and, of course, out of its chronological order.—Through some oversight, Mr. Benson renders τὸν μὲν πρῶτον ἐνιαυτον, "the first feast" (instead of year): but his inference, which entirely differs from the above, is not affected by the error.

viz. that it included two Passovers only. The hypothesis of Eusebius, however, (as the same eminent critic states,) prevailed at last over all other opinions. “ During the middle ages, no further inquiries appear to have “ been made on this subject; and even after the Reformation, all the “ Harmonists of the 16th and 17th centuries have taken for granted that “ Christ's Ministry lasted between three and four years.* But Bengel, in his “ Harmony of the Gospels published at Tübingen in 1736, reduced it to two “ years. And a short time before this Harmony was published, Mr. Mann “ revived the ancient opinion that it lasted one year, which he has defended
 “ with great learning and ingenuity.”

6. Upon a review of the evidence afforded by the early Christian Writers, the Author of this work, though originally led to adopt his present opinion as to the duration of our Lord's Ministry by what he still regards as the decided preponderance of that evidence in its favour, is less than ever disposed to lay any considerable stress upon it. “ I am content ” says the excellent and judicious Newcome, “ to differ from the ancients, provided I agree with the Gospels ”: in that sentiment the Author heartily accords; and as, at last, the appeal must be made to the facts of the Gospels, it might be as well to leave every thing out of view but what we derive from, or can support by, the statements of the Evangelists themselves.—See also Benson, p. 243.

SECT. III. General Considerations respecting the direct Scriptural Evidence on the Subject.

1. No one of the Evangelists has specified the time between the Baptism and the Death of Christ; and, from the nature of the case, the decision of the question is left to be made on considerations which are alike open to the learned and to the unlearned.

2. Nothing can be derived from the first three Gospels, either separately or conjointly, which authorizes to conclude, that after the Baptism of our Lord, there were more than one Passover before that at which he was crucified. Matthew, Mark, and Luke speak only of one Passover, viz. the last: nevertheless, since the Walk through the Cornfields (see Harm. p. 32) must have occurred in the part of the year after a Passover, and since the Crucifixion could not therefore have occurred at the Passover in the 15th year of Tiberius, it follows that there must have been two Passovers in the

* Gerson, Chancellor of the University of Paris in the 14th and 15th century, published a Monotessaron, in which he is said to have followed Augustin. See Marsh's Notes, p. 40.

Ministry of Christ after his Baptism. Hence those of the Ancients who placed the Crucifixion in the 15th year of Tiberius, i. e. at the Passover in A. D. 29, must have been in error; and those showed more exactness who placed it in the 16th, i. e. in A. D. 30.

3. By means of St. John's Gospel we are able to say with certainty, that there were at least two Passovers in our Lord's Ministry; for that Evangelist records his transactions at a Passover which occurred shortly after his First Miracle, at Cana, and before the Imprisonment of John.

4. After comparing John iv. 1, with ch. iii. 24, (see Harm. pp. 25, 26,) there can be no doubt that we are to place all the events recorded in at least the first four chapters of that Gospel, before the Imprisonment of the Baptist, and consequently between the 11th and 12th verses of the ivth chapter of Matthew.

5. Considering the silence of the first three Evangelists as to the remarkable circumstances in that portion of St. John's Gospel, especially of what occurred at the Passover, it must be regarded as their main object to record the Public Preaching of Christ after the Imprisonment of John; and in reference to Matthew and Mark in particular, to record the occurrences in Galilee from that event to the period of his finally leaving it.

6. The three great national Festivals were the Passover, the Pentecost, and the Tabernacles. The Passover took place at that full moon which occurred at the vernal equinox, or first after it, or to the extent perhaps of two or three days before it: the Pentecost occurred seven weeks after the Passover: the Tabernacles on the fifteenth day of the seventh month of the Jewish year;—the year commencing at the new moon before the Passover. Besides these, there was another considerable Festival, the Feast of Dedication, held near the end of the ninth month, in commemoration of the purification of the Temple by Judas Maccabæus: but this was in no way obligatory; and as it usually occurred in December, it is not likely that it would be frequented by the inhabitants of Galilee. Compare Matt. xxiv. 20.

The Passover, the Pentecost, and the Tabernacles, were of divine appointment. The Passover, or Feast of Unleavened Bread, was designed to commemorate the preservation of the Israelites from the destruction which overwhelmed the first-born of the Egyptians; and at this the first-fruits of the barley-harvest were offered. At the Pentecost, or Feast of Weeks, the first-fruits of the wheat-harvest were offered; and it became, by the event, the commemoration of the giving of the Law. The Tabernacles occurred in that part of the year, when the produce of the fields and vineyards had been gathered in: it was appointed in commemoration of the Israelites' abode in the Desert, and the divine protection during it; but with it was connected a thanksgiving for the blessings of the year; and some of the ceremonies in the later times appear to have had a peculiar reference to the expectation of the Messiah. This festival was observed with great solemnity, connected with extravagant festivity and rejoicing.

At each of these three festivals, every adult Jew, at least if dwelling in the land, was under an imperative obligation to attend. The divine command is very express. Exod. xxiii. 14. 'Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord thy God.' And again in ch. xxxiv. 23. 'Thrice in the year shall all your menchildren appear before the Lord God, the God of Israel.' So also in Deut. xvi. 16. 'Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the Lord thy God in the place which he shall choose; in the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and in the Feast of Weeks, and in the Feast of Tabernacles.'

7. In investigating the preliminary question—What was the Duration of our Lord's Ministry?—it is requisite to leave out of view, in the first instance, all inferences deducible only from particular arrangements of the facts of the Gospels, or from calculations founded upon them; and to confine ourselves to the information which we derive from the Gospels alone. If such can be found that establishes any system, all other facts, correctly ascertained, will prove capable of satisfactory reference to it. Nevertheless, if we find the facts of the Gospels, when fairly considered in detail, inconsistent with that system, we must, for the same reason, retrace our steps, and try some other hypothesis.

8. No inferences from expressions capable of a satisfactory explanation upon any other hypothesis, can be admitted as proof of that for which they are adduced: nevertheless, by the accumulation of such inferences, legitimately drawn, the presumption in favour of it may be greatly increased.

Agreeably to this principle, we should do wrong to rest, as some of the Ancients did, upon the prophetic expression—'The acceptable year of the Lord'—in proof of the bipaschal system; because, if it really denote a definite period of time, it may well mean the remarkable year of our Lord's Preaching in Galilee, whether or not this were the first year of his Ministry. In like manner no decisive inference can be justly derived for the quadri-paschal system, from the parable of the Barren Fig-Tree, (p. 180,) in which the master says, 'Three years I come seeking fruit and finding none': for, (1) The nature of parabolic language forbids us to strain expressions of this kind too closely; again, (2) If we interpret the expression as referring to the years of Christ's Ministry, the following words—'Let it alone this year also'—best agree with the opinion of Sir Isaac Newton, Macknight, &c., that it included five Passovers; and (3) On the bipaschal theory, it is capable of a perfectly close reference to the three National Festivals at which our Lord had already visited Jerusalem and wrought miracles there, the fourth being the approaching Passover when the Jews decided their doom by rejecting and crucifying him: those Festivals were THEIR fruit-seasons.

SECT. IV. On the Quadripaschal Hypothesis—that the Ministry of Christ included Four Passovers.

In the last paragraph of the preceding Section, sufficient notice has been taken of the only expression which can be considered as intimating the length of our Lord's Ministry: and though it is sometimes adduced in support of the quadripaschal system, it is obvious that it yields no proof of it. It deserves further to be observed that it is recorded by St. Luke alone, who, though very particular in his notes of time in relation to the commencement of the Baptist's Ministry, gives no reason (see Sect. iii. 2.) to suppose that, in the period which his Gospel records from that era to the Crucifixion of Christ, there were more than one Passover.

There is no other expression which appears capable of presenting any direct evidence in favour of the quadripaschal system.

Taking the Gospels alone as our guide, the opinion that our Lord's Ministry lasted above three years, so as to include four Passovers, depends upon the two following positions conjointly: 1. That the Feast (John v. 1.) at which the miracle was wrought at the Pool of Bethesda, was a Passover; and, 2. That the Passover spoken of, in John vi. 4, as approaching when the miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought, occurred the year before that at which our Lord was crucified.

The second of these arguments it has in common with the only form in which the tripaschal system is now held—though not, there is reason to think, so held in the ancient times, (see Sect. ii. 4); and this will be considered hereafter.

The first position may possibly be the fact; but it cannot be admitted to prove the quadripaschal hypothesis, when the belief that it is the fact has no other solid support than the hypothesis which it is adduced to prove. The presumption is strongly against it. For, (1) Coming as it does after a Passover, with no more events intervening than might well have occurred before the ensuing Pentecost, it may reasonably be regarded as the Pentecost, unless some strong reason to the contrary could be shown; and, (2) The absence of the definite article in ch. v. 1—'After this there was a feast of the Jews,' where we find την ἑορτήν, not την ἡ ἑορτήν—is almost conclusive against the supposition that it was a Passover.

With respect to the first reason, it is obvious (see Sect. iii. 2.) that it would not be allowable to support the hypothesis of a longer interval between the First Passover and the next mentioned Festival, by any inferences from transactions which took place after the Imprisonment of John; because, in those Gospels which speak of that event as preceding our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee, there certainly is nothing that implies that the visit to Jerusalem at that Festival took place after it.—Suppose it were an established fact that our Lord's Ministry included four Passovers,—suppose, for instance, the Apostle John had stated this,—then it might have been allowable, (for the purpose of expanding the records over as large a space as possible, in order to make those records accord with the supposed fact,) to represent the Festival in the vth of John as a second Passover. Nevertheless, the Ancients, as it appears universally, (not excepting those in the 4th century who adopted the quadripaschal system,) ascribed the events following the Imprisonment of John to the year which preceded the only Passover that is recorded by the first three Evangelists; and those, consequently, who regarded the Festival in the vth of John as a Passover, must have placed it before that event.

With respect to the second reason—the absence of the article before ἑορτή, feast,—this really seems next to decisive on the subject; and the need of the article if the festival were the Passover, is the probable cause of the introduction of it in MSS. which were copied under the influence of the opinion, (which after the fourth century prevailed,) that there were four Passovers in the Ministry of Christ.—“Josephus, I believe,” says Mr. Benson, “as well as the sacred writers, always distinguishes the Paschal from the “other feasts by the use of the definite article.”*

It may, however, be requisite to advert to what has been regarded as an intimation of time, and as best suiting the supposition that the Festival in the vth of John was a Passover. When the men of Sychar were coming out to our Lord, in consequence of the report of the Samaritan woman, our Lord said to his disciples, (John iv. 35) ‘Say not ye, ‘There are yet four months and then cometh harvest?’ It has been hence inferred that this was four months before harvest time, viz. at the end of the year, or very early in the spring,—the wheat-harvest usually being in May. (See the Calendar in the Appendix.) Mr. Benson has entered fully into the consideration of this passage; and he thinks (p. 247) that our Lord's assertion which follows the above "Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest"—"has much more the appearance of " being derived from the contemplation of the actual face of the country, as " it was then spread before him, than the one before mentioned, and would " almost seem to determine the period at which it was made to have been in " the midst of the harvest, instead of four months before it."* It does not appear necessary to suppose, that the period was "in the midst of harvest"; or even, as Mr. Benson afterwards says, (see the foregoing Note,) when the fields were "ripe and ready for the reapers' labours." It is sufficient, for the application of his just remarks, if the grain were ripening for harvest. The contrast appears best maintained thus: The usual four months from seed time have not elapsed; and the corn around is not yet ready for the reaper; but, from the seed which I have only just now sown, the harvest is already arrived—the fields (presenting numerous companies coming from the city) are white already for harvest. (See Harm. p. 28.)—It cannot be denied that the passage will bear the interpretation given to it by those who are of opinion that the Festival in the 7th of John was a Passover; but the passage in no way proves that opinion; for the interpretation rests upon the opinion, and not the opinion upon the interpretation.†

* See Chronology of our Saviour's Life, p. 252, to which work, (p. 249–254) the reader may be referred for a judicious and conclusive defence of the received reading—without the article; and also of the position above stated in relation to the interpretation of it. Mr. Benson (p. 250) adverts to the only supposed exception to the position that ἑορτή is never used absolutely, without the article, to denote the Passover—viz. Matt. xxvii. 15, and the corresponding passages (see Harm. p. 259–261,) where it is said, ‘Now at the Feast, κατὰ δὲ ἑορτήν, it was the custom of the Roman Governor, to release to the people one prisoner whom they chose.’ Here καθ’ ἑορτήν obviously has the same import with καθ’ ἡμέραν, every day, or κατ’ ἔτος, every year: and it either denotes “at this feast” i. e. every Passover, or “every Feast,” i. e. at each of the National Festivals. The former is the interpretation given in this volume; which is established by John xviii. 39, ἐν τῷ πάσχα, ‘at the Passover.’

* "Certainly," continues this judicious critic, "it is to be allowed that in these words " our Saviour's principal reference was to the spiritual harvest which his disciples " might gather into the garner of their Lord from the ready-minded and believing " Samaritans; but it is also equally natural to suppose that our Saviour was led to the " use of this peculiar metaphor by the existing appearances of Nature around him, " which, throughout his Ministry, were the general source of his language and instruc- " tion. Now had this incident occurred four months before the harvest, that is in the " middle of Winter, the desolation of the surrounding scene could scarcely have recalled " to his mind the beauties and the riches of the fields, ripe and ready for the reapers' " labours. Such an allusion would have surely been unnatural at such a season, and " therefore contrary to the simplicity of our Lord, who seldom strayed to a distance " for his illustrations, but drew them in the fullness of his wisdom from the most " appropriate and immediate objects which presented themselves to his view, knowing " that by this means he would render himself most intelligible to his hearers, and " produce the deepest impression both upon their hearts and memories."—I have quoted the passage as capable of extensive application to our Saviour's mode of teaching.

† Mr. Greswell adopts the same view with Mr. Benson, referring the visit at Sychar to May, while Newcome places it in the winter months. See Greswell's Diss. vol. II. p. 209–215. Even this passage, however, manifests some of those peculiarities in reasoning which are so striking in various parts of his work, and which render it an unsafe guide to the theological student, although it furnishes a great mass of learned data for those who can employ them in their own investigations, and presents them with many interesting speculations and valuable hints, displaying great independence and

There is, then, no adequate proof that the Festival in the vth of John was a Passover; nor, consequently, any adequate proof, from the Gospels alone, that there were four Passovers in the Ministry of Christ.

There are, however, two arguments of a different nature, on which much stress is sometimes laid by the advocates of the quadripaschal hypothesis, and which must be noticed. The first is that by which Eusebius supported the hypothesis, derived from Daniel's prophecy of the Seventy Weeks, ch. ix. 24—27. In the 27th verse the Prophet says, 'He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week; and in the midst of the week, he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease.' The midst of the week (of years) is supposed, by those who rest on this argument, to refer to the period of our Lord's death; and to imply that his Ministry had previously lasted three years and a half. If the fact had been previously established, this reference might have been admissible: but it is not allowable to explain a prophecy by a fact which rests upon that prophecy for the evidence of its reality. Dr. Priestley interprets the week to denote the period from the commencement of the Jewish War in A.D. 66, to its final termination in 73, in the middle of which period the termination of sacrifices took place by the destruction of the Temple in September A.D. 70. Mr. Faber (with I think more probability) makes the week terminate with that event, and so begin about the end of 63 or the beginning of 64. It is observable that at this time the declarations of Christ were brought to the view of the believers in Palestine by the publication of the Gospel of Matthew, which called their attention to the approaching signs of the predicted desolation; and the war by which the final termination of sacrifices and offerings was brought about, commenced in the middle of that period, from which time there must have been a great interruption, if not a general cessation, of the voluntary offerings and legal sacrifices of individuals, ending, before the actual taking of Jerusalem, in the total relinquishment of the daily sacrifices. This reference best suits the close of the verse, which, however rendered, obviously has in view the destruction of the city by the Romans.

The second argument is derived from the words of the Jews to our Lord, at the First Passover, John ii. 13, τεσσαρακοντα και εξ ετεσιν ωκοδομηθη ο ναος ούτος, rendered in the Common Version, 'Forty and six years was this temple in building'. Without taking notice of what has been advanced originality of inquiry. Indefatigable, ardent, sincere, and ingenious, this learned writer clearly is; but the work in question does not present him as one who is select in the choice, and methodical in the arrangement, of his premises, or cautious and sound in his conclusions.

by Mr. Benson, to show that this passage “cannot be made subservient to the establishment or refutation of any system of chronology with regard to our Saviour’s life,”—Mr. Greswell (Diss. IV. and V.) gives a different rendering of the original, as being required by it, and then represents the passage, so interpreted, as affording a decisive proof that the Passover occurred in the 13th year of Tiberius, A. D. 27.

Even if this point were established, however, it would not prove that our Lord’s Ministry lasted longer than to include three (or even two) Passovers; because the last Passover might have been in A.D. 29 or 28. But Mr. Greswell elsewhere argues (p. 422) that “uniform historical tradition, either grounded upon, or supported by, the Acts of Pilate, had fixed the close of our Saviour’s Ministry to the 16th” of Tiberius, i. e. to the Passover in A.D. 30. If, therefore, the First Passover were in A.D. 27, of course the Passover in A.D. 30 must have been the Fourth.—That the Crucifixion of our Lord took place in A.D. 30, is the conclusion to which the Author of this work has for many years arrived; but he rests it on the conviction that the 15th year of the government of Tiberius, assigned by Luke (ch. iii. 1.) to the commencement of the Baptist’s Ministry, was dated from the death of Augustus, Aug. 19. A.D. 14; and consequently that the 15th year of Tiberius began Aug. 19. A.D. 28.—This point is briefly considered in the observations prefixed to the Calendar in the Appendix to this volume.

The argument of Mr. Greswell (p. 188—229) from John ii. 13, is, in substance, as follows. The words recorded by the Evangelist must, he says, be rendered “For forty and six years hath this temple been building”; and they directly imply that, at the time they were uttered, forty-six years had elapsed since Herod began to rebuild it.* Now Josephus says (Ant. XV. xi. 1.) that Herod began this work in the 18th year of his reign; and Mr. Greswell adds that, in such cases, he always dates the commencement of Herod’s reign from the capture of Antigonus, which took place A.U. 717. He calculates therefore that Herod began the renovating of the temple at the Passover in A.U. 730. Reckoning 46 years from this date, brings us to the Passover in A.U. 780, i. e. A.D. 27.

If any conclusion can be drawn from the words of the Jews as they are interpreted by Mr. Greswell, it is, that they were uttered in the year 24 or 25, which was before Pontius Pilate came to the government of Judea. In the Antiquities, indeed, Josephus does assign the 18th year of Herod, as the period of his commencing the temple; but in the Jewish War, (I. xxi. 1), he assigns the 15th. The two accounts agree, if we date the former from the appointment of Herod by the Senate, A.U. 714, and the latter from the overthrow of Antigonos, A.U. 717. Supposing Josephus therefore to be consistent, (and if not we lose all ground of calculation,) Herod commenced his work on the Temple in A.U. 731 or 732. The Passover in question must therefore, on Mr. Greswell's rendering, have been in A.U. 777 or 778, i. e. in A.D. 24 or 25, as before stated.

* Yet, in reference to John x. 22, Mr. Greswell himself speaks of did take place, the import of the verb ἐγένετο, as “its simple, historical, and natural sense.” Diss. Vol. II. p. 443.

But the foundation of Mr. Greswell's computations is untenable. To say the least, his rendering is not required by the original: on the contrary, it is much more in accordance with the force of the aorist ᾠκοδομηθη, if not required by it, to render it as in the Common Version, denoting that, when finished, it had occupied forty-six years. This is also Mr. Benson's judgment: indeed he goes so far as to say (p. 232), that the rendering which Mr. Greswell has since maintained, is "a translation to which the tense and meaning of ᾠκοδομηθη is directly adverse."—Whether, therefore, we refer the words of the Jews, as Mr. Benson does, to the original building of the Second Temple, or, which seems more probable, to the restoration of it by Herod, (which, in parts, was a complete rebuilding,) together with additions afterwards made, we come to the conclusion of that judicious critic, already stated, that nothing can be decided from this passage as to the date of the First Passover. Such, also, is the judgment of Kuinoel.*

After what has been stated in this Section, the following positions may be considered as established.

1. There is no declaration in the Gospels which authorizes the hypothesis that there were four Passovers in our Lord's Ministry. And

2. There is no incidental statement which in any degree requires the admission of this hypothesis.

It has been before shown that this hypothesis was not known till the fourth century.—Being thus entirely destitute of proof, it should be quite sufficient if a reasonable hypothesis can be framed involving a shorter duration of our Lord's Ministry. But for those who, without having examined the grounds of the opinion that our Lord's Ministry included four Passovers, are accustomed to think of it as a matter of fact, it may be desirable to point out some objections which, taken together, press so strongly against it, that nothing but direct and unequivocal evidence could render it tenable.

* Herod completed what he thought necessary to be done in ten years; but we learn from Josephus that additions and alterations were made up to the time of the Jewish War. His expressions, however, do not imply that these works were never interrupted.—It perhaps deserves consideration, whether the Jews did not refer to the time occupied in the original building, in connexion with that by Herod himself; but an expression of hasty wrath need not be scanned too minutely.

1. If we suppose our Lord's Ministry to have included four Passovers, we are then without information as to his transactions at a great proportion of the Festivals which occurred in it; and even without intimation that he was present at any of which we have no record. (See Sect. iii. Obs. 6.) Upon the quadripaschal hypothesis, the Passover occurred four times in our Lord's Ministry, the Pentecost three times, and the Tabernacles three times: and of these Festivals, six are altogether without record. Now, when it is considered that the divine Law by Moses strictly enjoined the attendance of all the males at Jerusalem three times in each year; and that our Lord declared (to the Baptist) that it became him to fulfil all righteousness, and (to his disciples) that he came not to destroy the Law or the Prophets, but to fulfil them, and that he who broke one of the least commandments would be least in the kingdom of heaven; it seems inconceivable that he should absent himself from all of these six Festivals: and when it is further considered that St. John's Gospel is obviously of a supplementary nature, it seems inconceivable that, if our Lord had been present at all or several of them, he should have taken no notice whatever of those at which he was present.

2. Upon the hypothesis of four Passovers, there must have been many long intervals of which we have no record. If the hypothesis were established by satisfactory proof,—if, for instance, St. Luke, who has so distinctly dated the commencement of the Baptist's Ministry, had spoken of the Passover at which our Lord was crucified as the fourth from his Baptism, or had said that he was crucified in the 18th year of Tiberius,—then, knowing the truth, we might readily reconcile our mind to circumstances which, without such support, appear inexplicable. But since the hypothesis rests upon such perfectly insufficient foundation, the above consideration, and others like it, must be allowed great weight in the investigation. Out of the three years and several months, we have not occurrences recorded which require the larger part of a year for the satisfactory arrangement of them.

3. The hypothesis of four Passovers is peculiarly inconsistent with the first three Gospels, which record no Festivals, nor even intimate any journey to Jerusalem, between our Lord's Baptism and his finally leaving Galilee, to go to the Passover at which he was crucified: yet, upon this hypothesis, nine great national Festivals took place in that interval. (See the 1st Objection.) This difficulty derives its greatest force from the nature of St Luke's Gospel, who obviously knew nothing of the Gospels by Matthew and Mark, and who undertook an independent record of the all-important transactions which he knew of, for the sake of his noble friend Théophilus, purposing to make it as complete as his means of knowledge enabled him. If this invaluable historian had known that the Ministry of Christ continued above three years, it is not admissible that he should give no information as to the fact—accurately dating as he has done, the commencement of the great æra: nor is it admissible that he should have been entirely ignorant of the fact, if it had been according to the common opinion.

4. The supposed long duration of our Lord's Ministry, taken in connexion with the small extent of the districts in which it was exercised (see Diss. III.), presents great difficulties, when we consider the small effect actually produced by his personal instructions and miracles, i. e. during the period before his Ascension into heaven. The main purpose of Christ's personal Ministry was to prepare for the preaching of the Gospel by his fully-empowered disciples after that event; and it was through them that the knowledge of it was effectually diffused. Many more converts were made, there is reason to believe, soon after his communication of the Spirit to them on the day of Pentecost, than had been made in the whole period of his personal Ministry.

SECT. V. On the Tripaschal Hypothesis—that the Ministry of Christ included Three Passovers only.

The foundation of this hypothesis, though narrower, is apparently firmer than that of the quadripaschal; and the difficulties which rest upon it are less forcible than those which overwhelm the latter.

The system of two Passovers only, having been viewed as dependent on an alteration in the text which is opposed by the soundest principles of criticism, it was very natural for an intelligent scripturalist, impressed with the deficiency of evidence for the system of four Passovers and the extreme difficulties attending it, to adopt that of three Passovers only. Yet is this attended with difficulties by far too great for the degree of evidence by which it is supported.

There are two leading forms in which the hypothesis of three Passovers has been held.

I. The ancient one maintained that the Festival in the vth of John was a Passover, and that all the events recorded in the three first Gospels, (respecting the Preaching of Christ in Galilee after the Imprisonment of John,) took place in the year preceding the Crucifixion.* This, of course, requires us to admit that the Passover referred to in John vi. 4, as approaching, was the last Passover.

II. The modern form, adopted I presume by Bengelius,† and since by

* See Marsh's Notes on Michaelis, Vol. III. p. 57—59.

† Not having access to Bengelius, and finding in the Preface to Lieberkühn that the latter has mainly followed Bengelius, I have deemed it allowable, for my present purpose, to consider the Harmony by Lieberkühn as a representative of that by Bengelius.

Mr. Benson, regards the Festival in the vth of John as the Pentecost, and the Passover mentioned in John vi. 4, as a second, not the last, Passover.

By Mr. Benson's own successful refutation of the opinion that the Festival in the vth of John is a Passover, the examination of the hypothesis of three Passovers is greatly narrowed. In his form of it, (in which alone it is received in the present day,) it rests solely on the position that the Passover described by St. John as approaching when the miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought, was not that at which our Lord was crucified, but the preceding one. To maintain this position, it must be proved that the chapter containing the record of that miracle, is in its chronological situation. As this could in no way be inferred from the previous Gospels, especially from St. Luke's, there should be some strong arguments to prove it. I will do my best to represent Mr. Benson's in their full force; and I know of no other.

1. St. John wrote, as one object, (Mr. Benson says, p. 241,) to supply "the omissions of his precursors." Now the three first Gospels, he urges, are peculiarly obscure in relation to "the dates of the events which they have recorded in the Ministry of our Lord, and the order in which those events have succeeded each other." On the other hand, there is nothing in which St. John is "more clear and precise than the orderly succession of the circumstances which he relates: he seems to have made it his peculiar care to elucidate the darkness of the other Evangelists upon this subject, by giving an account of the actions of Jesus in a regular series." Now this Evangelist has distinctly noticed three several Passovers, without hinting that he has left any Passover unnoticed. "It would seem therefore to have been the opinion of St. John, and his opinion ought to be held decisive, that our Saviour's Ministry, reckoning its duration from the period of his baptism to his death, did not continue quite three years."

I quite agree with Mr. Benson that St. John's "opinion ought to be held decisive": I would rather say, however, his knowledge, for to him it could not be a matter of opinion. If St. John had stated that there were three Passovers in our Saviour's Ministry, there would have been no room for discussion, except to decide where they were to fall in the other Gospels.

I also allow that it was St. John's peculiar object to record occurrences and discourses which the other Evangelists had not recorded; that, in short, his is a supplementary Gospel.

But I cannot go on to allow that St. John "made it his peculiar care to elucidate the darkness of the other Evangelists," in relation to the time and succession of events, "by giving an account of the actions of Jesus in a regular series." For, (1) Throughout the whole course of our Lord's Ministry previous to the last Passover, he has recorded no fact in common with any one of the other Evangelists, except the Miracle of the Five Thousand ; so that, if this case be not an exception, he has not given any means of correcting them, in point of actual time or of relative succession : and (2) Of those events which he has recorded, he has not given any direction for the insertion of his own records in their appropriate situation, in one or other of the remaining Gospels.

Nor can I allow that St. John “ has distinctly noticed three several Passovers.” He alone has recorded the occurrences at the First Passover ; he has spoken of a Passover approaching ; and he has given important details of many of the events at the last Passover : but that the Passover approaching was distinct from the last, is a point which cannot be assumed, and which requires more proof than Mr. Benson has presented ; for on it, as before observed, rests entirely the whole of his system. This able critic repeatedly speaks of the Passover in John vi. 4, as the second Passover, in distinction from that of the Crucifixion ; but, separate from the presumption arising from the situation of the record in St. John's Gospel, which might be sufficient proof if there were no countervailing considerations, he does not adduce any reasons in support of the position that it was a different one from the last.

In fact he seems to have scarcely thought the question worth examination ; and he pronounces a very summary judgment upon the opinion of G. J. Vossius on the subject, which was, that the Passover approaching when the miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought, was the Last Passover. Mr. Benson says (p. 268) that Vossius's “ proof is very weak, and the interpretation so forced, that it certainly reflects but little credit upon his “ critical acumen to have advanced or defended it.” Vossius's proof rests on the comparison of the ixth chapter of Luke, and in particular of ver. 51, with the vith chapter of John ; showing that, in reality, our Lord wrought the miracle in question not long before the time arrived when he was to be received up, and when he stedfastly directed his face towards Jerusalem : and without adverting to other corresponding and corroborative considerations, which (as well as the difficulties attending the opinion) will hereafter be stated, I do not hesitate in saying that this proof is as complete as the circumstances of the case allow : indeed, taking into account the exactness with which St. Luke has given a commencing date, his specification of other dates where Matthew and Mark have assigned none, and his faithful accuracy of research, I deem it an inadmissible supposition, that, if he knew the miracle to have been wrought a year before the time had arrived when the Lord was to be received up, he could have placed it in such close connexion with that time ; or that he could have been ignorant that more than a year intervened between that miracle and the Last Passover. I came, independently, and by reference to the Gospel of Matthew, to the same conclusion with Vossius, now thirty ago; and after submitting it to every test which I know of, and repeatedly reviewing the arrangement to which it led, I am satisfied that it declares the fact.

To obviate the objection made by Bishop Pearce and others to the genuineness of John vi. 4—that it is a merely parenthetical note of time—Mr. Benson (p. 270) refers to Acts xii. 4, to show that it is not without parallel: and he urges that the former is introduced for the same purpose with the latter, viz. “to mark the date and the time of the year at which the transaction occurred.” In this I perfectly agree: but, in the application of it, I entirely differ from him. It proves that it was before a Passover, but it does not prove that this Passover was one preceding the Last Passover. However, as Mr. Benson has himself given the application in a passage which displays the leading positions of his hypothesis, I will cite it in his own words, (p. 270.)

“In St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke, the transactions of the last Passover are fully detailed. The first Passover after our Saviour’s baptism seems also to have been distinctly alluded to by all three, when relating the incident of the disciples plucking the ears of corn on the sabbath-day; but there is not in any of them, when separately perused, any thing to mark the period at which the second Passover in our Lord’s ministry occurred. St. John has supplied this omission. He has taken the trouble, as I conceive, for this very purpose, to recount a fourth time a miracle,—the feeding of the five thousand, which had already been sufficiently related by the three former Evangelists, and as if to show the end he had in view, he inserts in the very middle of his relation a parenthetical note of time, an allusion to a Passover, thus teaching us to infer that the place at which this second Passover in our Lord’s Ministry is to be added in the narratives of St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke, is about that part in which they are treating of the miraculous feeding of the five thousand. Suppose St. John to have seen the other Gospels, and marked their want of chronological intimations, and nothing can more clearly account for his introduction of this verse, and also for the very place and manner of its introduction. It is a note of time inserted as a guide to us in our perusal of the other Gospels; and in drawing up a harmony of the Evangelists, upon the hypothesis of three Passovers in the Ministry of our Lord, I have found it of the greatest use and importance.”

I also can say what is last said, after altering the numeral three to two: I cannot further say, however, that I think it “inserted as a guide to us in our perusal of the other Gospels;” for if such had been the purpose of the Evangelist, he would surely have done it in other cases needing it at least as much;—for instance, to show what event preceded the feast of Tabernacles (supposed by Mr. Benson to have been seven or eight months after this miracle); when it was that our Lord finally left Galilee; whereabout, in relation to his recorded Festivals, the Imprisonment of the Baptist occurred, &c. &c.

Still less can I say, as Mr. Benson has done, (surely without due consideration,) that St. John “has taken the trouble” “to recount a fourth time a miracle” “which had already been sufficiently related by the three former Evangelists,” “for the very purpose” of marking “the period at which the second Passover in our Lord's Ministry occurred.” For (1) St. John does not intimate that it was the second Passover, as distinguished from a third; nor does he any where speak of a second Passover, or a third: for the purpose supposed, therefore, he marks the date very insufficiently. If we possessed the Gospel of that other Evangelist alone who, like himself was an Apostle and eye-witness, we could not but infer that the miracle was wrought not very long, say a few weeks, before the Passover at which our Lord was crucified: if St. John had meant to correct such an inference, and set St. Matthew right in point of chronology, he would surely have said, as Mr. Benson has done, the second Passover was nigh. If it be said that the position of the record in the Gospel supplies the SECOND, it will at least be allowed that the reader of the two Gospels might have said, without any unreasonableness, that the position of the record in the Gospel of Matthew shows that it was the Crucifixion-Passover which was approaching, and that St. John says nothing to the contrary. If this Evangelist related the miracle on purpose to correct St. Matthew's order, surely he would not have left this essential point to inference, when a distinct expression would have set the matter at rest.—(2) The main cause, surely, of St. John's retracing the miracle is to be found in its having given rise to the remarkable discourse in the synagogue at Capernaum, which he alone has recorded,—remarkable both in itself, and in its effects on the worldly-minded among the disciples. And (3) There was yet another reason. St. John alone has transmitted the remarkable fact that the people were, in consequence of this miracle, about to take our Lord by force and make him a king. There is no similar circumstance related in the Gospels; and the recording of this was of much more importance than any merely chronological reason could be.

Why then did the Apostle mention the date? I answer, that it was according to his custom to do so, as we see in various instances respecting hours or days or festivals: if therefore he had no particular reason for it in this individual case, still he would be likely, from his habitual tendency, to specify the time. But, from the position of the record in his Gospel, the specification of the date was really requisite, lest the position should perplex the readers of the other Gospels. The date being assigned, perplexity was prevented : and, accordingly, those of the Christian Writers of the first four centuries who regarded the Ministry of Christ as including more than two Passovers, and even Eusebius, who began, in the fourth, the system of four Passovers, and whose mind was habituated to historical method, included the events following the imprisonment of John, and consequently the miracle of the Five Thousand, in the year preceding the Crucifixion. (See p. xxvi.)

But can any probable reason be assigned, (may reasonably be asked,) for the Apostle's insertion of the record of this miracle, with the subsequent discourse, so much out of chronological order ? I admit that this is the only case of the kind : and if it could be shown, by any express statement of the Evangelist, or by any necessary inference from his words, that it was his intention to write, throughout, in chronological order,—however unable I should be to account for the position of the miracle in the narrative of his fellow Apostle, himself an eye-witness in this period of our Saviour's Ministry,—I should unhesitatingly receive the testimony of St. John. But when the inquiry as to the arrangement of his records is to be decided by inferences, we must not confine ourselves to one side of the question. The difficulties attending the supposition that the record actually stands in chronological order, will soon be stated : at present we may confine ourselves to some observations on the structure of this Gospel which may lessen the influence of the opinion that might naturally be derived from a general survey of it, unattended by a comparison with the succession of events in the other Gospels.

On the Structure of St. John's Gospel.

1. It was not the Apostle's object to give a general connected view of our Lord's Ministry. He, more than any other, must have been qualified to do this, from his having been acquainted with the whole of the period from the Baptism to the Ascension of Christ, and from the personal friendship with which his Master honoured him. To show, however, that it was not his purpose, it is sufficient to mention the following occurrences, recorded in the other Gospels, but altogether unnoticed by him :—the Baptism and Temptation of our Lord ; his own Call, and the Public Progress through Galilee which followed it ; the Sermon on the Mount ; the remarkable circumstances which succeeded—such as the cure of the Gadarene Demoniacs, and that of the Paralytic at Capernaum, the raising of the daughter of Jaīrus, &c. ; the Appointment and Mission of the Twelve, and of the Seventy ; the Imprisonment and Death of the Baptist ; the Transfiguration ; the circumstances connected with our Lord's leaving Galilee, and with his Last Journey to Jerusalem : his last Discourses in the Temple, and those on the Mount of Olives ; the institution of the Lord's Supper ; his Agony in Gethsemane ; and his Ascension into heaven.

2. What this Evangelist does record, authorizes us to regard his Gospel as, intentionally, supplementary to one or more of the other Gospels.* It principally consists of the details, partly of discourses and conferences, and partly of single miracles and other facts, of which some did not come within the scope of the other Gospels, and others might not have been known to the writers of them. It has few narrations in common with the other Gospels ; and these are obviously introduced only when he had to record circumstances in them which are not recorded elsewhere, or to connect with them discourses which he alone records.

3. Previously to the Crucifixion-Passover, the preceding Evangelists have not recorded occurrences at any Feast of the Jews : St. John records the transactions of Christ at a previous Passover, a Festival which we have reason to regard as the Pentecost, a Feast of Tabernacles, and a Feast of Dedication. If his Ministry included only two Passovers, then he has recorded transactions at every Festival.

4. On considering the occurrences actually recorded by St. John, we are enabled to say that his leading object was, to record the Ministry of Christ in Judea, particularly at the Festivals ; showing, in an especial degree, the means which had been afforded to the Jewish Rulers and Chief Priests, of knowing the authority of Jesus. The first part of his Gospel (ch. i.—v.), which is a connected series of events prior to our Lord's preaching in Galilee, appears to have had peculiarly in view to display the testimony given to Jesus by the Baptist, whose follower St. John had been : and to record events connected with the commencement of Christ's Ministry, with which this Evangelist had been peculiarly conversant as an early disciple. After the narration of his Master's first miracle, all that he records, respects our Lord's Ministry in Judea, (at the Passover and afterwards, and at the Pentecost,) or circumstances associated with his leaving that country. (See ch. iv. especially ver. 1—4, 43—45, and 54.) There is, next, one isolated portion (ch. vi. vii. 1), respecting Galilee alone, the purpose of recording which has already been considered, (p. xxx.); and at the close of the whole there is a supplementary chapter (ch. xxi.), peculiarly respecting the Evangelist's personal history and that of Peter, the scene of which is in Galilee. The whole of the intervening part (ch. vii.—xx.), records the transactions of our Lord at or near Jerusalem.

* Some internal considerations, but especially the greater scope and general purpose of St. Luke's Gospel, designed as it was for the instruction of an illustrious convert, residing probably in Greece or Asia Minor, would lead one to fix upon this as in the view of the Apostle John when he composed his own. On this conjecture, however, no stress is here laid.

5. The very nature of St. John's Gospel—giving, as it does, detailed accounts of particular periods of our Lord's Ministry, and not recording the intervening events by which, in point of time or locality, they were connected,—might lead us to expect that it would be found to consist of independent Parts, the subordinate sections of which would again be marked with greater or less degrees of independence. In point of fact, the Gospel does consist of four such Parts, two of which are capable of distinct subdivisions into sections. This division may be specified as follows:

PART I. The Early Part of the Ministry of Christ as far as the Feast of Pentecost inclusive.

§. 1. The Introduction : ch. i. 1—18.

§. 2. Testimonies given by the Baptist ; and their Effect on some of his Disciples : ch. i. 19—51.

§. 3. Our Lord's First Miracle : ch. ii. 1—12.

§. 4. His Transactions at the First Passover : ch. ii. 13—iii. 21.

§. 5. The Ministry of Christ in Judea ; with the consequent Testimony of the Baptist : ch. iii. 22—36.

§. 6. The Ministry of Christ in Samaria, on his way from Judea to Galilee : ch. iv. 1—42.

§. 7. Our Lord's Second Miracle in Galilee : ch. iv. 43—54.

§. 8. Miracle and Discourse at the Pentecost : ch. v.*

PART II. An insulated Record of the Miracle of the Five Thousand, in Philip's Dominions, with the consequent Discourse in the Synagogue at Capernaum,—when a Passover was approaching : ch. vi. 1—vii. 1.

PART III. A connected Series of Records, respecting the Transactions of Christ, in Jerusalem, or its immediate Neighbourhood, beginning with the Feast of Tabernacles, and ending with the Evening of the Resurrection.

§. 1. Transactions connected with the Feast of Tabernacles : ch. vii. 2—x. 21.

§. 2. Occurrences at the Feast of Dedication : ch. x. 22—42.

§. 3. The Resurrection of Lazarus at Bethany ; the Determination of the Sanhedrim in consequence ; the Visit of Christ at Bethany, when he went to the Passover ; and the concourse of the People thither, to see him and Lazarus, leading the Sanhedrim to desire to put Lazarus also to death : ch. xi. 1—xii. 11.

* It is observable that St. John merely says at the beginning of the vth chapter, ' a feast of the Jews ; ' and he obviously says so much to show why ' Jesus went up to Jerusalem.' It is not improbable that this chapter was originally a separate record, committed to writing on account of the transcendently important discourse which it contains ; and afterwards introduced, in its proper place, into the series of records of which the Gospel is composed. But whether this conjecture is well founded, or whether the record did not exist till the Gospel was written, it is quite clear that the Evangelist had not the purpose which has been attributed to him, of correcting the inference which might be derived from the other Gospels, taken alone, as to the interval between our Lord's Baptism and his Crucifixion ; for otherwise he would have specified what Festival it was, as in each of the other Festivals of which he takes notice. His silence may, too, be regarded as a proof that chronological notation and arrangement were not specifically in his view.

- §. 4. The Entry of Christ into Jerusalem, followed by the Voice in the Temple :
ch. xii. 12—50.
-

- §. 5. The Occurrences in the Paschal Chamber : ch. xiii.—xvii.
§. 6. From the Apprehension to the Interment of Christ : ch. xviii. xix.
§. 7. The Day of the Resurrection : ch. xx.

PART IV. Personal Record respecting the Meeting of Christ with John and Peter and others at the Lake of Galilee : ch. xxi.

6. The third Part of the Gospel, according to the foregoing analysis, consists of two leading divisions : the second of these (§. 5—7, ch. xiii—xx.) commences with the last day of our Lord's mortal life, (see p. 225) : the first division (§. 1—4, ch. vii. 2—xii. 50) consists of a very remarkable series of transactions which are connected by locality, and still more intimately by subject ; peculiarly disclosing the evidence which our Lord afforded of his Messiahship to the Chief Priests and Rulers, in the later part of his Ministry ; and unfolding their malignant opposition against him, the attempts which they made to kill him, and their official decision, in consequence of the resurrection of Lazarus, to take away his life by public authority. The third of these four sections, (including ch. xi. and the first eleven verses of ch. xii.), details the resurrection of Lazarus and the circumstances which arose out of it, extending to the determination of the Pharisees to put Lazarus also to death. The connexion of subject, of cause and effect, is so strongly marked in this portion of the Gospel, that no one intimately acquainted with its contents would willingly interrupt that connexion by the insertion of circumstances which we know must have occurred during it ;— (I refer especially to those recorded by St. Luke in the portion beginning with the 4th verse of the xviith chapter, and going on to the 28th verse of the xixth ; which portion, in a strictly chronological arrangement, must be inserted between our Lord's sojourn in Ephraim after the resurrection of Lazarus, and the near approach of the Passover, that is, between the 54th and 55th verses of the xith chapter.) Why then should St. John have interrupted that connexion, in order to introduce an isolated record, of a very important nature indeed, but entirely unconnected by locality and by subject, respecting occurrences on the north of the Lake of Galilee ?

7. We have no means of judging what were the intentions of St. John in composing his Gospel, except what are afforded by the Gospel itself. And after often-repeated and careful examination of it, with this particular view, I feel myself justified in the two following conclusions. First, that we have no reason to think that he followed the order of time in writing his Gospel, (or in arranging the records of which it is composed,) with any intention to correct chronological errors, or supply chronological difficulties, in the other Gospels ; or for any other purpose than what his subject, and the course of events, would naturally suggest to a mind obviously characterized by method, clearness, and definiteness. Secondly, that there is nothing in the purpose or the system of his Gospel which should oblige him to maintain the order of occurrence, in the arrangement of his records, when, by so doing, he would interrupt the connexion, and disturb the order, arising from locality, from subject, or from the connexion of cause and effect.

8. From the foregoing considerations I derive the following conclusion,—that since the inserting of the insulated record contained in the vith chapter, in its chronological position, (as ascertained by the date in the 4th verse compared with the narratives in the other Gospels,) would have interrupted the intimate connexion of that portion of the Gospel to which, in point of time, it belongs, it was natural and proper for the Evangelist to place that record where he has placed it, with a chronological notification to determine its position in relation to the time of its occurrence.

Since the Tripaschal Theory depends, solely, upon an inference from the position of the record respecting the miracle of the Five Thousand in the Gospel of St. John, I am now authorized in saying that the inference is not conclusive in itself ; and I proceed to state some of the difficulties which it involves, and which, in my judgment, would overthrow the inference, even were it more stable than can now appear to the reader who has entered upon the investigation without prepossession.

1. The hypothesis of three Passovers in our Lord's Ministry presents no record of the feasts of Tabernacles and Dedication in the first year, nor of the Passover and the Pentecost in the second. Now it is allowed on all hands that the reference of our Lord, when at the Tabernacles, to the miracle at Bethesda, (see John vii. 19—23), plainly shows that he had not been at Jerusalem since that miracle : * we have therefore the Tabernacles, the Passover, and the Pentecost, in succession, (to pass by the feast of Dedication,) at which, on this hypothesis, our Lord did not go up to Jerusalem. This fact seems to me sufficient to decide against the hypothesis in question, since an inference from the position of the vith chapter in the Gospel of John is all that supports that hypothesis. To be absent from the three great national festivals of a whole year, was not to fulfil the Law, or to teach men so.—See p. xxv. Obj. 1.

* No one can state this more distinctly, or allow the inference more readily, than Mr. Greswell does : see Diss. VIII. Vol. II. p. 235.

As respects the Passover, this objection would be allowed to be peculiarly strong ; but it is urged in reply (Benson, p. 272) that John vii. 1, (which clearly belongs to the record in the preceding chapter,) assigns the reason why our Lord, after the miracle of the Five Thousand, continued in Galilee, viz. that the Jews were seeking to kill him. It assigns, however, no reason for his not going up to the Passover, or to the following Pentecost ; nor for his not having gone to the preceding Tabernacles. He went at the following Tabernacles ; with caution, it is true, for he went up unattended, and at the middle of the Festival ; but he did go up. Nay, though, at the Tabernacles, the Jews, under the impulse of sudden indignation, had taken up stones to stone him, he went again at the following Dedication, when few but the people of Jerusalem would be on the spot. In fact, the presence of the Roman Governor at the Festivals, rendered them the proper periods for our Lord to exercise his mission at Jerusalem ; and, on the bipaschal hypothesis, we know that he went to each which occurred during his Ministry.

2. The opinion that John vi. 4, refers to a Passover preceding that at which our Lord was crucified, involves the supposition that all the transactions which are recorded as following the miracle of the Five Thousand, in the Gospels of Matthew and Mark at least, occurred before those which are recorded in the viith and following chapters of John. Now

(1) This renders it impossible to account for the silence of Matthew respecting the feast of Tabernacles which we know that our Lord actually attended ; nor can I discover any subsequent place in his Gospel where so remarkable a visit could have occurred.—It may be thought that his silence respecting the first Passover, which all must place between the 11th and 12th verses of the ivth chapter of his Gospel, so far corresponds as to lessen this difficulty ; but it is obvious that, as respects the exercise of our Lord's Ministry, St. Matthew and St. Mark commence their records with what took place after the Imprisonment of the Baptist ; for which, indeed, our Lord himself waited before he began his proclamation in Galilee of the approach of the kingdom of heaven, and his public call to repentance. The Apostle's silence as to what took place before that era, affords no reason for his silence as to the remarkable transactions at the Feast of Tabernacles, and even as to our Lord's going to Jerusalem to attend it, which, on the tri-paschal hypothesis, occurred while he was regularly attending our Lord's Ministry, and at a period in which his records have every appearance of being a connected series. And

(2) This supposition requires us to admit that the events recorded in the former part of the ixth chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, occurred twelve months before our Lord's setting out for Jerusalem to complete his great work, as recorded in the 51st verse of the same chapter; and that, of course, three great festivals occurred in the interval.—See Diss. II. §. 4.

3. We have in the viith of John &c. a full record of the transactions at the feast of Tabernacles. According to the tripaschal hypothesis, this feast occurred in the second year of our Lord's Ministry, and after all the great events which had succeeded the Imprisonment of John, onwards to, at least, the miracle of the Five Thousand; after, therefore, the appointment and mission of the Twelve, and the most public part of our Lord's Ministry in Galilee. In the course of this period, we know, that multitudes had flocked around our Lord, from Jerusalem and Judæa among other parts, (Matt. iv. 25); that Pharisees and Doctors of the Law attended him, from every town of Judæa and from Jerusalem, (Luke v. 17); that, at a later period, shortly after the miracle of the Five Thousand, there came to watch him, Pharisees and Scribes from Jerusalem, (Matt. xv. 1); and that, soon after, (ver. 30) great multitudes came together to our Lord, when he again miraculously fed the people, to the number of four thousand men besides women and children. After all the stupendous works, public and striking, of which a brief record is given by the first three Evangelists, the tripaschal hypothesis requires us to suppose (1) That our Lord himself refers the Chief Priests and Rulers (John vii. 23) to a single miracle which he had wrought a year and half before at Jerusalem; and, still more, (2) That his brethren urged him to go into Judæa, that his disciples also might see his miracles, on the plea that he had been doing things in secret and had not shown himself to the world. Certainly we must not rest too much on expressions arising from the captious feelings of unreasonable unbelief; but even unbelief itself, not urged on by personal malignity, could scarcely have been thus perverse and absurd.

I might offer several other considerations which present to my mind weighty objections against the hypothesis of three Passovers: but as they respect a particular arrangement of the records—that of Lieberkühn—which might not be deemed essential to it, I will not adduce them; though a change on that arrangement would involve other and perhaps greater difficulties. I must not, however, omit one consideration, which depends solely upon the reference of the miracle of the Five Thousand to a period of at least thirteen months previous to our Lord's Crucifixion. It appears to me a forcible one; but requires for the perception of its force the habit of observing the phraseology of the Gospels, and the gradual development of our Lord's Messiahship. If those who follow this investigation do not perceive its force, they may pass it by. It is as follows:

4. The tenor of one part of our Lord's discourse in the synagogue at Capernaum, which he delivered the day after the miracle of the Five Thousand, (recorded by St. John alone, ch. vi.), and also certain expressions in it, much better suit the time when his death was approaching, than they do a period when a large proportion of his Ministry still remained—a period preceding by seven or eight months even the Feast of Tabernacles recorded in John's Gospel. The passage I refer to is in ver. 43—59, in which the correspondence is peculiarly strong with the words employed by our Lord in instituting the rite commemorative of his death, the night before his Crucifixion; and must surely be allowed to suit best the period when his death was near at hand. The same suitableness appears to me clear, in relation to the remaining part of the chapter following the above; and especially to ver. 70 and 71, where the treachery of Judas is distinctly adverted to by our Lord, and it is added by the Evangelist, that he 'was about to deliver him up', εμελλεν παραδιδοναι αυτον. If it be supposed that John might have used this expression, even if above half of the Ministry of Christ yet remained, can it be further supposed that our Lord would thus address the Twelve—'And one of you is a false accuser',—at a period when thirteen months still remained for Judas to associate freely with him and the Apostles, in public and in private, in the scenes of labour, and in the hours of retirement and rest?—If I had not the guidance of the words in John vi. 4, yet, considering the train of events as recorded by the other Gospels, and the internal evidence of the chapter itself, I should place the record near the period of the Crucifixion. With that guidance, I can place it no where else.

SECT. VI. The Ministry of Christ included Two Passovers only.

As one Passover certainly intervened between the Baptism of our Lord and the Imprisonment of John, and the Crucifixion occurred at another; and as it has now been shown that the hypothesis of three Passovers in our Lord's Ministry is untenable, as had before been shown respecting the hypothesis of four Passovers; it may now be considered as established that there were only two Passovers in the Ministry of Christ.

In maintaining this—the bipaschal hypothesis—I hold it in that form which receives the established reading of John vi. 4; and of course refer the miracle of the Five Thousand to the period when our Lord's death was near at hand. Whatever arrangement—whether that of Mr. Mann, or that of Dr. Priestley, or any other which may be deemed preferable to theirs—requires that miracle to be, in chronological position, before the Feast of Tabernacles, (recorded in John vii.), and of course to change the text in John vi. 4, I regard it as liable to the most serious of the objections against the tripaschal hypothesis, and, on account of the alteration it requires in the text of John vi. 4, as decidedly less tenable than the tripaschal.

Though, as already stated, I came to the conclusion which Vossius advocated, altogether independently of the argument and opinion of that learned and judicious critic, and framed my arrangement solely on the evidence of the Gospels themselves, I have great satisfaction in the accordance of his reasoning and conclusion with my own. (See p. xxviii.) It also is reasonable to conclude that it accords with the view of those of the Ancient Writers of the first four centuries who considered the Gospel of John in connexion with one or more of the others, and who, whatever the duration they assigned to the Ministry of Christ, referred the events following the Imprisonment of John to the year preceding the Crucifixion.—See p. xxvi.

It has been shown that the prophecy of Daniel respecting the Seventy Weeks, presents no obstacle to the bipaschal hypothesis.—See p. xxii.

Also that the assertion of the Jews respecting the building of the Temple presents no obstacle to it.—See p. xxiii.

Nor does the Parable of the Barren Fig-tree.—See p. xviii.

It has further been shown that St. John's record respecting the miracle of the Five Thousand and our Lord's subsequent discourse, is in the most suitable position in his Gospel, though not in its chronological position, as decided by reference to the other Evangelists, and by the date which he has himself assigned to the record.—See p. xxv.—xxxi.

There is therefore no obstacle to the full force of the following considerations.

1. Admitting that our Lord's Ministry included two Passovers only, we have records of his attendance, for the all-important purposes of it, at each of the Festivals which occurred during it. This is surely a capital advantage.—See pp. xvii. xxv.

2. The bipaschal duration of our Lord's Ministry could alone be derived from the records of St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke.—See p. xvi. 2.

3. It has been shown to be strictly accordant with the Gospel of St. John.—See p. xxxv.

4. It was certainly the opinion of those who lived nearest to the time of Christ, which at least proves that there was no authentic tradition opposing it.—See Sect. II.

I hope it is not presumptuous, after the foregoing statements, to say that it is now proved that our Lord's Ministry included two Passovers only—the Miracle of the Five Thousand being wrought when the Second was approaching.

It is a great advantage to go to the arrangement of the Gospel records with a distinct conviction of some leading points. The two on which I rest are,

1. That we have records of every Festival that occurred in the Ministry of Christ : and

2. That the miracle of the Five Thousand occurred when the time of his Crucifixion was not far distant.

Some other data, however, are required to determine the due position of many of the recorded facts of this most important period of human history ; and when these data have been stated, in the Second Dissertation, and some explanatory circumstances presented in the Third, the reasons of the subordinate arrangements will be given, and the objections which lie against them will be considered, in the Fourth Dissertation.

DISSERTATION II.

ON THE STRUCTURE OF THE FIRST THREE GOSPELS, IN RELATION TO THE SUCCESSION OF EVENTS IN OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

SECT. I. View of St. Matthew's Gospel.

ST. Matthew was a Publican, or Collector of tribute, at Capernaum ; and there is no room to doubt that he was a native of Galilee. While he was sitting at 'the receipt of custom', our Lord called him to be his follower ; and not long after, he was appointed to be one of the Apostles.—This Evangelist had abundant opportunities for gaining a full acquaintance with the transactions of our Lord while he was in Galilee, and after he left it to go to the Passover : and, sharing with his fellow Apostles in our Lord's promise (John xiv. 26) that the Holy Spirit should bring to their remembrance all things which he had said to them, his records of the Discourses of Christ, like those of the Apostle John, must be regarded as of peculiar authority.

Like Mark and Luke, St. Matthew records none of the facts which occurred at the Jewish Festivals—the Last Passover excepted ; and there is no evidence that he was present with our Lord, at Jerusalem, on those occasions to which St. John's Gospel peculiarly relates. That he was fully acquainted with his transactions in Galilee, is clear from the distinct though summary view he presents of them ; and, whether or not he accompanied our Lord in his First Progress, which is recorded at the close of the ivth chapter, there is no reason to doubt that he was one of those who heard his all-important Discourse at the termination of it, and was thus enabled, by divine appointment, to be the faithful recorder of it for the benefit of the followers of Christ in all ages.

The Gospel of Matthew, as far as his record of the Last Journey to Jerusalem, is essentially Galilean. Before that period he gives no intimation of occurrences in any part of Palestine, but Galilee and its borders. We know from St. John, that our Lord exercised his Ministry in Judea after, as well as before, the Imprisonment of the Baptist : but St. Matthew gives no record of any thing that occurred in that region till the Last Passover. We know, too, that he taught and made many disciples in the Perea ; (see John x. 40—42) ; but, previously to the Last Journey, when he passed through the Perea in his way to Jerusalem, St. Matthew does not advert to his having been any where south of the Lake of Galilee.

It is the uniform testimony of the early Christian Writers, that St. Matthew wrote his Gospel for the Hebrews and in Hebrew ;* in other words, he wrote for the Jewish natives of Palestine, and I think particularly for his countrymen of Galilee, in the then language of Palestine, (now generally termed the Syro-Chaldaic,) from which the Hebrew differed sufficiently to require interpretation. If we had his original Gospel, we should often possess the very words of the heavenly Teacher ; as it is, we have only the representation of them in Greek, without doubt faithfully and correctly made, yet still a translation, not the words themselves. But the same is the case with respect to the records of the Evangelists Mark and Luke, and those of the Apostle John. There is abundant reason to believe that we have, in the Gospels, ‘the words of the Lord Jesus’ essentially represented ; but the characteristics of the representation must of course depend upon the peculiarities of the respective writers. As to the Greek Translator of St Matthew’s Gospel, he must, in various parts, have taken the Gospel of Mark as his guide ; and when that failed him, the Gospel of Luke. This is the opinion of Bishop Marsh and others ; indeed, no competent judge can doubt it, who has compared the Gospels in the original ; but while engaged on the following work, I observed several instances, in which, after following, for some clauses or sentences, the representation of the words of Christ in St. Mark’s Gospel, the Translator of Matthew left this, in single words or phrases, in order, as it appeared, to follow his own original exactly.†

To leave the Translator, however, and confine ourselves to the Evangelist :—Great brevity in the relation of facts, and detail in the record of discourses, are two of the characteristics of St. Matthew’s Gospel. His manner is calmly earnest throughout ; and it has the impress of deep conviction and certain knowledge. He gives a clear but compressed summary of the transactions which he relates ; entering but little into the circumstances of each ; yet tracing the main fact distinctly and forcibly. For this style of composition, his official duties had, it is probable, peculiarly qualified him : that it is his style, is not to be disputed. An attentive inspection of the following Harmony will show many proofs of it.

* I am not unmindful of the opposing arguments of the judicious and cautious Lardner : but his conclusion appears to me quite untenable ; and I do not know of any critics of the present day who follow him in it.

† I much regret that I did not note these instances as I proceeded ; and I cannot at present point out the passages which led me to this opinion : but I state it, because I observed what I thought good grounds for it, as a suggestion to the critical student.

Taking this Gospel singly as our guide, there is nothing which would lead one to doubt whether or not the Apostle commonly wrote in chronological order. The doubts which have arisen from comparing it with those of Mark and Luke, leading many to the rejection of his arrangement of facts, will be considered as we proceed ; but, in itself considered, the Gospel presents nothing but regularity. The reader may follow the Evangelist in the periods which he actually records, without any feeling of embarrassment as to the succession of the events, or even as to their locality.

Commencing, (as St. Mark does,) with the beginning of the Baptist's Ministry, we may divide the Gospel of Matthew into the six following Parts :

PART I. The Ministry of the Baptist ; with the Baptism and Temptation of Christ : ch. iii. 1—iv. 11.

PART II. The Public Preaching of Christ in Galilee, after the Imprisonment of the Baptist, until the Mission of the Twelve : ch. iv. 12—xi. 1.

PART III. Occurrences succeeding the Mission of the Twelve, till the Death of the Baptist, which caused all who were still absent to return to their Lord : ch. xi. 2—xiii. 58.

PART IV. Transactions from the Return of the Twelve, till the Termination of our Lord's Residence in Galilee : ch. xiv.—xviii.

PART V. Occurrences during the Last Journey : ch. xix. xx.

PART VI. Occurrences from our Lord's Entry into Jerusalem, until his Interview with the Eleven Apostles on the Mountain in Galilee, with which the Gospel closes : ch. xxi. to the end.

In Part I. the Apostle appears to have mainly followed a record which was possessed also by St. Luke.

In Parts II. and IV. St. Matthew clearly had his own personal records ; some of which appear to have been also possessed by St. Mark. He must have been present at all which he relates, except the Transfiguration.

Part III. may, more than any other, consist of records derived from other witnesses, and, more or less, possessed by one or both of the other two Evangelists. All, however, are connected with Galilee ; and even, with little exception, with Capernaum or the neighbourhood.

In Part V. there is little that is peculiar to St. Matthew's Gospel, except the Parable of the Labourers in the Vineyard, ch. xx. 1—16 ; yet the whole obviously consists of his own records.

Of Part VI., some portions, particularly the Discourses of Christ on the Mount of Olives, the Agony in the Garden, and the Occurrences in the Palace of Caiphas, must have been derived from the narrations of others ; but several other portions, especially the Discourses on the last day in the Temple, we thankfully refer to that witness, as the original source, to whom we are indebted for the record of the Sermon on the Mount.

It is in the Second and Third Parts alone that any great diversity occurs in the order of events, as given by St. Matthew on the one hand, and by St. Mark and St. Luke on the other : in the Fourth Part, Mark's order accords exactly with Matthew's ; and so also does St. Luke's, in the brief corresponding record contained in ch. ix. *

SECT. II. View of St. Mark's Gospel.

It may be regarded as certain, that the Mark to whom all antiquity ascribed the second Gospel, was John whose surname was Mark ; mentioned in Acts xii. 12. He was the son of Mary, (a pious woman of Jerusalem who was an early believer in Christ,) and the nephew of Barnabas, the fellow-labourer of Paul, himself a Levite ; and it is evident, from the book of Acts and the Epistles, that Mark was intimately acquainted with Paul and with Peter. He undoubtedly was acquainted with others of the Apostles ; but—to leave out of view St. Paul's first apostolical journey—Mark obviously spent some time with that Apostle during his imprisonment at Rome ; and he was there with Peter also, when this Apostle wrote his first Epistle, in which (ch. v. 13) he uses the expression ' Marcus my son'. Indeed it fully accords with internal evidence, and it was the uniform statement of the early Christian Writers, that this Evangelist composed his Gospel at Rome, with the knowledge and aid of the Apostle Peter.

From his residence in Jerusalem, and from the particularity of his relation of the circumstances attending our Lord's last visit to Jerusalem—specifying much more distinctly than either Matthew's or Luke's the events of each day—it may reasonably be inferred, that this Evangelist was an observant eye-witness of our Lord's public transactions, and a hearer of his public discourses, at that remarkable period. There is no adequate reason to believe that he attended his Ministry at any other time: nevertheless, he had abundant sources of accurate knowledge in those written records of particular periods which he obviously possessed, some in common with St. Luke, and others in common with St. Matthew; in the information he would often receive, from Apostles and others, at the house of his mother, where it is evident that the early believers often resorted; and, with all, in the detailed communications of Peter, concerning those things which the aged Apostle personally knew, as an eye and ear witness of 'the Lord Jesus Christ.'

* In the Appendix to this Volume will be found a Tabular View of the Contents of the First Three Gospels, from the Baptism of our Lord to his Entry into Jerusalem before the Last Passover ; by which may be seen, at once, the succession of events in each, and what portions are peculiar to the respective Gospels.

The Gospel of Mark was, of course, written for the use of believers from among the Hellenists and the Gentiles. His style is unpolished, peculiarly idiomatic, and sometimes abrupt in its construction. His Gospel displays much less of literary culture than that of Luke, and of general talent for composition than that of Matthew. Sometimes, (as is justly stated and exemplified by Kuinoel in his Prolegomena §. 3,) under the influence of the desire to give a detailed view of facts and circumstances, he employs a somewhat diffuse style of writing, and has even superfluous additions; but, for the most part, his narration is concise, and in some cases obscure from its brevity.*

The inartificial character of this Gospel, and the resources which the Evangelist had for composing it, render it very valuable as an additional record, and especially in relating those details which strengthen the feeling of reality.† It is peculiarly valuable as recording circumstances which the Apostle John alone of the other Evangelists could have recorded on personal knowledge, and which did not fall within the scope of his Gospel: these Mark evidently derived from the Apostle Peter. He relates the fall of his teacher and friend with much more particularity than the other Evangelists do; and though he does not state several things, which one or other of them

* Kuinoel also notices this Evangelist's very frequent use of ευθεως, immediately, which recurs, he says, more than once, in almost every page; and his employment of the pronoun αυτος, he, and its plural, without any assigned antecedent. This last is so common a characteristic of the writers of the New Testament, that I had not noticed it as a peculiarity of St. Mark; the former must have been observed by every attentive reader of the original Gospel. In the attempt to give a uniform rendering of the same original word, whenever practical, I have rendered ευθεως, straightway, (as I often found it rendered,) and παραχρημα, immediately. By the aid of Schmid I find that Mark employs the former forty times, and the latter not once; while Luke uses ευθεως only eight times, and seems to employ it and παραχρημα indifferently, both in the Gospel and in the Acts.

† As a specimen, taken accidentally, we may refer to the narrative in the vth chapter, respecting the cure of the disordered woman, and the raising of the daughter of Jairus: see Harm. pp. 77, 78.

records, that redounded to the honour of the Apostle, yet, on the other hand, he specifies some which the others do not. *

It will probably be agreed by every attentive reader of this Gospel, that Mark's manner of writing indicates great earnestness and strength of conviction: and I may add that, at times, it manifests even a kind of eagerness of sentiment, such as would be natural to an ingenuous, simple-hearted man like this Evangelist—long acquainted with many things respecting him 'in whom believing he rejoiced with joy unspeakable'—on being informed, for the first time, of other deeply interesting circumstances, by one whose heart must have been always full of humble love and glowing gratitude and exulting reverence towards his Lord and Saviour, and whose memory, (we know,) so vividly recalled, during the very period when the Evangelist was the companion of his imprisonment, the great and glorious scene of the transfiguration;—when he and the two other favoured Apostles of Christ 'were eye-witnesses of his majesty,' when 'he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.' As the aged servant of the Lord Jesus, when in the certain approach of martyrdom for his sake, thus himself wrote to his distant brethren, (not improbably to those of Palestine,) we cannot doubt that he would also thus speak to his 'son Mark,' when about to give them, through him, such records as would enable them, 'after his decease, to have always in remembrance' those things which he could affirm, with the confidence of truth and certainty, were 'not cunningly-devised fables.' (See 2 Pet. i. 12—18.)

St. Mark's Gospel may, for comparison with that of Matthew, be divided into the following Parts:

PART I. A brief Record of the Ministry of the Baptist, with the Baptism and Temptation of Christ: ch. i. 1—13.

PARTS II. and III. The Public Preaching of Christ in Galilee: ch. i. 14—vi. 6.

PART IV. Transactions from the Return of the Twelve till the Close of our Lord's Residence in Galilee: ch. vi. 7.—ix. 50.—This Part is commenced in Mark, as the corresponding record is in Luke, with a summary View of the Mission of the Apostles.

PART V. Occurrences during the Last Journey: ch. x.

PART VI. Events from our Lord's Entry into Jerusalem till his Ascension: ch. xi. to the end of the Gospel.

* See Lardner's Supplement to the Credibility. The instances which Lardner gives of the last-mentioned class, are found in ch. i. 36. xiv. 33. xvi. 7. These he follows by an enumeration of thirty-two other instances in which facts or circumstances are recorded by Mark which are not to be found in the other Gospels; which, Lardner intimates, do not exhaust the induction.

The long and important portion of Mark's Gospel in Part IV, has so great an agreement, in substance and succession of events, with the same part in Matthew (p. xliii.), that this Evangelist must have had apostolic information respecting that very striking period; but it contains much that is not recorded by Matthew.

SECT. III. Order in which the Gospels were composed.

The evidence of Irenæus would lead us to place the composition of St. Matthew's Gospel about A. D. 64; for he says that the Apostle published it while Peter and Paul were preaching at Rome; and this must of course have been during the Apostle Paul's second imprisonment, terminating in martyrdom, which Peter also underwent at Rome, about the same time. This date accords with all the indications of time in the Gospel itself, and with all other known circumstances; and, notwithstanding the opinions of some learned critics leading to a much earlier period, I am satisfied by the arguments of Lardner, that the date here assigned is the true one.*

St. Mark's Gospel must have been composed about 64 or 65. There is no evidence, external or internal, to support the supposition that he had seen St. Matthew's Gospel, or St. Luke's, before he wrote his own. This matter has been fully examined by Lardner, in the xth chapter of his Supplement—"The Question considered, whether any of the first three Evangelists had seen the Gospels of the others, before he wrote"; and he decides it in the negative.†

* See Supplement to the Credibility, ch. v. The following passage is very important. "At the year 64, or thereabout, the gospel had been propagated in many gentile countries, the times were troublesome in Judea, and the war was coming on: several of the apostles were dead, others of them, who survived, were gone, or going abroad, and many of the Jewish believers were about to seek shelter elsewhere: now was a proper time to write a history of Christ and his miracles. Moreover in this gospel are recorded divers plain predictions of the miseries and desolations of Jerusalem, and the overthrow of the temple and the Jewish state, beside many other figurative intimations of the same things in many of our Lord's discourses and parables. Which could not be well published to all the world in writing, till about this time. The suitableness of St. Matthew's gospel to the state of the christian religion, and of the Jewish people, about the year 64, or 65, leads to that time. And however unwillingly, from private apprehensions and prejudices, we may admit the thought of protracting so long the writing of the history of our Lord's ministry; the circumstances of things will constrain us to acquiesce in this season as the most likely." Lardner's Works, (Kippis's Ed.) vol. VI. p. 56.

† I should have supposed that every critical inquirer who had studied, in comparison, the phenomena of the Gospels, must have been led by them, independently of external considerations, to the same conclusion with Lardner. Mr. Greswell, however, has, in

The question as it respects St. Luke's Gospel is still more easy of decision. It is not a tenable position that this Evangelist could have known of St. Matthew's Gospel when he wrote his own. If his introduction were not utterly inconsistent with this opinion, the contents of the Gospel itself, examined with any minuteness, would decide against it. One obvious fact seems sufficient. St. Luke has given a record of a discourse which, for the reasons stated in the Note in p. 64,* must be the same as the Sermon on the Mount in the 5th and two following chapters of Matthew: if so, he could not possibly, possessing the knowledge of St. Matthew's Gospel, have placed that after St. Matthew's appointment as an Apostle, which St. Matthew himself has placed before even his call to be a follower of Jesus; nor could he have given an incomplete account of that all-important Discourse, when he had in his possession the record of it by an Apostle, to say the least much fuller, and of course more authoritative.—But St. Luke's his Dissertations, advanced and maintained a very different opinion; viz. that the Gospels were written in the order in which they stand in the Canon, and that Mark's Gospel was designed by its Author as supplementary to Matthew's, and Luke's, by its Author, to both: he even speaks (Vol. I. p. 34) of St. Mark as rectifying the transpositions of Matthew, and supplying his historical deficiencies. The nature of this work does not require an examination of these opinions; and indeed it is scarcely conceivable that Mr. Greswell himself could retain them after the comparison which the subsequent printing of his Harmony must have led him to make of the Gospels of Matthew and Mark. That Mark would have composed his Gospel, if he had known of the publication of Matthew's, is extremely improbable; that, supposing him to have possessed that Gospel, which first existed only in Syro-Chaldaic, and to have purposed to give a briefer one in Greek, he—not himself a personal witness—should have so much departed from the order of Matthew, and that (while he recorded the Parables of Christ) he should have altogether passed by the Sermon on the Mount, is to me utterly inconceivable. In some instances, from his personal intimacy with Peter, he would be likely to give circumstances which Matthew has not given; and, in a few others, to record events in a different order from that of Matthew,—as in his first chapter, where he places the cure of Peter's Wife's Mother on the sabbath after Peter's Call, whereas Matthew, less conversant at that period with the transactions of Christ, places it after the first progress through Galilee closed by the Sermon on the Mount, but still before his own Call, and in the same local connexion. This advantage, however, would not be likely to lead to an order so entirely different, in the early part of his Gospel, from that of Matthew, with which, indeed, his own cannot be made to coalesce. The then aged Peter was much more likely to furnish vivid impressions of particular transactions (see p. xlv.) than a series, chronologically correct, of the whole period; and he would scarcely, at that distance of time, have advised the abandonment of the digested arrangement already formed by a fellow Apostle.

* In the enumeration, showing the order of the separate parts in Luke as compared with that in Matthew, the close should have been stated "43—49", instead of "43, 45—49".

introduction is quite inconsistent with the opinion that he had knowledge of the Gospel of Matthew, or even of Mark's, when he wrote his own. His words to Theophilus clearly imply, that those who had previously undertaken the work which he executed, had not such means of information as he himself possessed, and that their narratives were not authoritative like his own. He could not have thought thus of a Gospel written by an Apostle; nor of that by a companion of Apostles, who must himself have seen the Lord.

It does not, indeed, necessarily follow, that St. Luke composed his Gospel before the publication of the two which precede it in our canon: if one of these were published in Galilee, and the other in Rome, although the Christians would of course multiply copies as fast as they could, yet months, if not years, might elapse before any of these reached the region, say in Greece, or in Proconsular Asia, where we suppose him to have written. It is, nevertheless, decidedly probable, indeed next to certain, that he wrote it at an earlier period than those Gospels were written, as Lardner has shown in his Supplement. The book of Acts was, we know, from the commencement of it, written after the Gospel—'the former treatise'; and as this gives a summary notice of St. Paul's confinement at Rome, but says nothing of his course after it was ended, it must have been finished about the time when the Apostle was released. This probably was in the spring of 63. We may, therefore, with much confidence, place the Evangelist's transmission of his Gospel to Theophilus in 62 or 63; but as it was designed for an individual, and a man of rank, it would not of course be so speedily known to the Christians at large as the others.

SECT. IV. View of St. Luke's Gospel.

The Author of this invaluable record was obviously a man of intellectual refinement and literary acquirements, of a calm discriminating judgment, and of an earnest love of truth: it is alike clear that he was imbued with the spirit of piety, with a devoted attachment to the cause of Christ, and with a high appreciation of the spirit of his religion. He had been the companion and friend of St. Paul; and his relation of the Apostle's labours and discourses shows that he was able to form a just estimate of the elevated excellencies of his character, and of the value of the testimony which he bore to faith in Christ.

The uniform voice of antiquity ascribes the book of Acts, and this Gospel which was composed before it, to a person of the name of Luke. The Author of these books nowhere gives his own name; but there is no reason to doubt that he was that Lucas (or Luke) whom St. Paul speaks of as among his 'fellow-labourers' when writing to Philemon of Colossæ (ver. 24), and in his Epistle to the Colossians (ch. iv. 14) as 'the beloved physician': indeed this last designation perfectly suits the characteristics of the Evangelist's mind, and his literary qualifications, as disclosed by his writings. There is much reason to think that he was of Gentile extraction; but more, that he had, from an early period, embraced the principles of the Jewish religion: and we know that he had become a follower of Christ many years before he composed his Gospel; for he first joined Paul at Troas, (see Acts xvi. 10), on the second apostolical journey. Eusebius, Jerome, and others of the ancients, speak of him as a native of Antioch; but this appears to have arisen from the supposition that he was that Lucius who is spoken of in Acts xiii. 1.* Considering the place of his joining St. Paul, and the peculiar mention of him in the Epistles written by that Apostle to inhabitants of Colossæ, it seems more probable that he was a native, at least a resident, of that city, or of one of the neighbouring cities of Hierapolis and Laodicea. The Hellenistic character of his style, (which may, however, be in part attributed to the documents he employed,) and his intimate acquaintance with the institutions of the Jewish religion, suit well the supposition that he had long been attached to it; but all competent judges, ancient and modern, agree in regarding his style as by far more polished than that of any of the other Evangelists, and his Greek as approaching even to classic elegance. Such is certainly the case with those portions of his Gospel which are more peculiarly his own composition; in these he may be compared to Xenophon, both in respect to language, and to his general style.

A cursory examination of the following Harmony, or even an inspection of the Tables in the Appendix, already referred to, will show how rich the Gospel of St. Luke is; not only in matter which it has, more or less, in common with Matthew's; but also in important facts, and especially in interesting parables, contained by it exclusively. To pass by the former class of its materials, which, as it is common to Mark also, must have been more

* They appear to have supposed that Lucius was called a Cyrenæan, not as being a native of Cyrene, but as belonging to the synagogue of the Cyrenæans at Jerusalem. See Kuinoel's Prolegomena, §. 1.—In the next section, Kuinoel advocates the opinion of Bolten, that Luke was born of Gentile parents, but had himself early become a Jew. The latter position he supports by a reference to the Hellenisms of the Evangelist, and his intimate acquaintance with the Jewish religion; and also to the circumstances recorded in Acts xxi. 28—31, in which he is not mentioned (ver. 29) though Trophimus is, and though Luke was with Paul at Jerusalem. This last fact only proves that Luke was not known as a Gentile: the former does not prove that he had become a Jew, and indeed the supposition is inconsistent with the argument which well supports the opinion that he was a Gentile by birth, viz. that the Apostle Paul speaks of him with Epaphras and Demas (Col. iv. 10—14) separately from those 'of the circumcision.' On the whole, it is most probable that Luke was one of 'the devout Gentiles.'

generally known—when we advert to the records which he has given of the rejection of Christ at Nazareth (p. 33), the raising of the Widow's Son at Nain (p. 68), the circumstances at the house of Simon the Pharisee (p. 91), the parable of the Good Samaritan and our Lord's Visit to Mary and Martha (p. 95), the discourses in the xiiith chapter (p. 180), and in the xivth (p. 98), and the inestimable parables in the xvth, with those in the xvth (p. 100),—not to enumerate various expressions and circumstances which are eminently characteristic of the piety and tender sensibility of our Lord, and which are peculiar to the Gospel of Luke—we ourselves must feel grateful to him for that diligent and well-prepared inquiry by which he obtained the knowledge of these precious memorials of 'the words of the Lord Jesus', and may easily enter into the thankful and devout delight which the admirable historian must have experienced, when these heavenly treasures were, one after another, disclosed to his view.

St. Luke obviously had a wider range of information than was taken by either St. Matthew or St. Mark. Their Gospels, between the commencement of our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee and his Last Journey to Jerusalem, are confined to Galilee and the region east of it, not even referring to any transactions in the eastern half of the Tetrarch's dominions: whereas Luke's inquiries would naturally extend into the Peræa, where our Lord spent several weeks during (we may reasonably suppose) the absence of the Twelve; and we have abundant reason to believe that they did, from his exclusive account of the Mission of the Seventy, which could not therefore have been exercised in Galilee, and was not likely to have been directed to the scene of the Apostles' service.—Besides this, it is reasonable to believe that St. Luke, from his profession and education, would have access to a class in society superior to that of the Fishermen and Publicans of Galilee. To the latter cause may be attributed his knowledge of various occurrences at the houses of the rich, which are not recorded by St. Matthew or St. Mark; and also of those connected with the household or with the jurisdiction of Herod: to the former, his knowledge of discourses, parables, &c., which were delivered in the Peræa, or at least recorded by believers who resided there, and probably but little known in Galilee. It is not likely that St. Luke would have much access to Apostles, most of whom must have left Judæa, and of whom one alone is mentioned in the later part of St. Paul's history (Acts xxi. 18): but many of the Seventy must have been still living; and from their recollections, as well as from those records, which either from personal knowledge, or from the preachings of the Apostles, would be early drawn up, of our Lord's transactions or discourses in particular portions of his Ministry, he must have had sources of information beyond what any single Apostle could have supplied.

Commencing, as in the case of Matthew's Gospel, (p. xliii.), at the Ministry of the Baptist, the Gospel by Luke may be divided into the five following Parts, which, to avoid confusion, may be designated by letters :

PART A. The Ministry of the Baptist, with the Baptism and Temptation of Christ : ch. iii. 1—iv. 13.

PART B. The Ministry of Christ in Galilee : ch. iv. 14—ix. 62.

PART C. A Miscellaneous Collection of Discourses and other Occurrences, which may have been principally connected with the Peræa, either by their locality, or by the sources of the Evangelist's information : ch. x. 1—xvii. 10.

PART D. Occurrences during the Last Journey : ch. xvii. 11—xix. 28.

PART E. Occurrences from our Lord's Entry into Jerusalem until his Ascension : ch. xix. 29—xxiv. 53.

Part A. so completely corresponds with Part I. of Matthew, that the two Evangelists must have had corresponding documents before them. St. Matthew's occupations would of course prevent his being a personal attendant on the Ministry of John, though he may have been baptized by him.

Part B. does not commence specifically, as Part II. does both in Matthew and in Mark, with the statement of John's imprisonment. This may be owing to St. Luke's having recorded the fact at the end of his view of the Ministry of the Baptist. Nevertheless this circumstance leaves it uncertain whether he may not have recorded some of the occurrences preceding the Imprisonment of John ; immediately after which event, as Matthew and Mark concur in stating, our Lord commenced his Public Preaching : and in the following Harmony, some of his narratives are so arranged.—The whole that St. Luke specifically records, as occurring between the Mission of the Twelve and the commencement of our Lord's finally setting out for Jerusalem, is contained in the ixth chapter; in which he narrates, with great brevity, the Mission of the Twelve, the anxiety of Herod the Tetrarch on hearing of Christ, the Return of the Apostles, the miracle of the Five Thousand, the avowal of Peter, the Transfiguration, the cure of the Epileptic Child, and some declarations of Christ before he left Galilee. This chapter (the first six verses excepted) contains the whole of St. Luke's record of the period which in Matthew and Mark occupies Part IV. In the account of the Transfiguration, he relates that Moses and Elijah spake to Christ (ver. 31) respecting 'his departure, ἔξοδος, which he was about to fulfil, ἣν ἐμελλε πλῆρουν, at Jerusalem'. In ver. 51, the Evangelist also states, that 'the days being now fulfilled for his being received up, Jesus steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem'; and he records his purposing to go into a village of the Samaritans, where, however, they would not receive him. The chapter closes with circumstances which occurred 'as they were journeying', but which St. Matthew records in a different part of the History. See Harm. p. 69.

Part D. appears to take up the narrative where Part B. left it; first relating that our Lord, as he was going to Jerusalem, passed between Samaria and Galilee, (i. e. along the confines of the two countries, Harm. p. 168, and there cured the Lepers. The remainder of this Part corresponds with Part V. of Matthew and Mark—recording occurrences on the Last Journey, in the Peræa, and till our Lord approached Jerusalem, several of which are common to the three Evangelists.

Between Part B. and Part D. the Evangelist has inserted a very remarkable Collection of Discourses and other transactions, of which some obviously occurred on the Last Journey, and others may have so occurred; but several of which cannot, with any probability, be referred to a period when we know, from the preceding Gospels, that the Apostles were with our Lord, and when the Evangelist himself represents him as traveling steadfastly towards Jerusalem. This representation precludes the supposition that our Lord now made a circuitous progress, or a long sojourn, in the Peræa. His direct course through it would not much exceed forty miles; and two or three days would be abundantly sufficient for this part of his journey. During it he might work many miracles, and extensively communicate his heavenly instructions to the multitudes, and to his disciples; but there is nothing in the general train of circumstances, or in the records of the other Evangelists, which allows us to suppose that, after our Lord had set his face steadfastly to go to Jerusalem to finish his great work, the Seventy were sent forth by him, executed their mission, and returned to him.*

St. Luke alone records the Mission of the Seventy; and, taking into account the entire silence of the Apostle Matthew, and of Mark the companion of the Apostle Peter, respecting not only this fact in our Lord's

* When we consider the strong representation given by St. Luke respecting the purpose of dispatch and directness with which our Lord undertook his Last Journey, (intending, as he did, to go even through Samaria,) it is not conceivable that the Evangelist should have designed to represent him as, after that, sending the Seventy on their Mission: this new division of his Gospel, however, thus begins—Μετα δὲ ταῦτα, 'Now after these things'. If we take μετα, in its ordinary sense with an accusative, to denote after, we must suppose that Luke referred, generally, to the occurrences which he had already recorded; and, particularly, to the Mission of the Twelve, to which he obviously refers when he says 'the Lord appointed Seventy others also.' (Harm. p. 92, note.) Such is perhaps, on the whole, the most probable view of the matter; it would, however, be borne out by the Hellenistic use of μετα, to render the clause in question 'Now in the midst of these events.' See Harm. p. 224, note.

Ministry, but also all occurrences in the Perea previous to his Last Journey through it to Jerusalem, two inferences may be reasonably drawn, against which there are no opposing considerations: first, that the Mission of the Seventy occurred during the absence of the Twelve on their Mission; and secondly, that if the Seventy were not all inhabitants of Peræa, (the region where the Baptist executed much of his Ministry,) they were sent thither in execution of their service, and there prepared for a future residence of Christ: the Evangelist says (ch. x. 1) that the Lord sent these Seventy, two by two, 'into every city and place whither he himself was about to come' (Harm. p. 92); and such residence did take place after the Feast of Dedication. See John x. 39—42.

With these views, the Gnomology, or Collection of Discourses and Occurrences, in the xth and following chapters of St. Luke's Gospel, may be represented as consisting of records derived originally from some or other of the Seventy, inhabitants of the Peræa; and as having been obtained, by the diligent search of the Evangelist in that part of Palestine, partly from oral communication with such of those disciples as still survived, and partly from written memorials that could scarcely fail to have been made of various Discourses and Parables, by some or other of the hearers of our Lord's heavenly instructions. We need not, however, burden ourselves with the supposition, that none of the Discourses &c. in the Collection were delivered in Galilee: the disciples from whom the Seventy were selected by our Lord,—who appear to have been designated by St. Mark (ch. iv. 10) as 'those who were around him with the Twelve,' οἱ περὶ αὐτοῦ συν τοῖς δώδεκα,—would, of course, be his hearers in Galilee also, even if they were, personally, most connected with the Peræa. Some of those contained in the Collection are, in fact, found in the Gospel of Matthew which is so essentially Galilean, as well as in Mark's also; and, most probably, they are to be referred to some period of our Lord's abode in Galilee.

The materials of this Collection having, then, been principally, if not exclusively, derived from the Seventy, the Evangelist introduces it with an account of their Mission. (Harm. p. 92). To this he subjoins a record of their Return; which seems to present one instance of that system of method or orderly arrangement which he had marked out for himself, and to which the tendencies of his mind inclined: so he also says, in connection, all that he thinks necessary respecting the Ministry of the Baptist,* and respecting the Mission and the Return of the Twelve. As to the other records contained in the Collection, it is a matter of mere conjecture, whether particular portions were received in their connected state by the Evangelist, or whether he received accounts of all the separate occurrences independently of each other, and arranged them together. Particular portions, however, of the Collection appear to have some closer bond of connection than others have: for instance, the xivth, xvth, and xviith chapters, (which are all peculiar to Luke,) mainly consist of Parables; and they form one division of the Collection, which no Harmonist would willingly separate. (See Harm. p. 98, note.) In like manner the xiith and xiiiith chapters, seem to form another connected division; and it appears probable that it was received by St. Luke in its present form. (See Harm. p. 176, note.) Parts of this last must be referred to the Last Journey, and other parts best suit that period; but if the Evangelist received the whole as one record, he would not be disposed, (any more than the modern Harmonist,) to separate these from the connected passages.* The xth and xith chapters present less of obvious connection among the documents of which they are composed: but, though there is nothing in the contents of them which opposes the opinion that they originated in some or other of the Seventy, they appear to be entirely connected with Galilee.†

* It is somewhat remarkable that his Gospel gives no account of the death of the Baptist, and only makes allusion to it, in connection with the return of the Twelve.

Such is a summary analysis of the Collection which Luke has inserted after relating the commencement of our Lord's setting out on the Last Journey, when he had been rejected by the Samaritan village. When the Evangelist returns again to the regular narrative of that Journey, we find

* Nothing that St. Luke has recorded after ch. xvii. 11, till our Lord's arrival at Jericho, has any indication of locality: and we could not have certainly known that these occurrences took place in the Peræa, but for the Gospels of Matthew and Mark. Distinct indications of locality, as elsewhere observed, are not frequent in his Gospel; though local connexion must have guided in the arrangement of the memorials which he collected. It will hereafter appear, that, except in leading periods, it was scarcely possible for him to have obtained any certain knowledge of the exact succession of events: at any rate, minute chronological accuracy was of vastly less moment than accuracy in fact.—Mr. Greswell considers the Gospels generally as having much more of an anecdotal character than I do; but as respects St. Luke's, this is almost a necessary feature.

† For the knowledge of the general nature of this portion of St. Luke's Gospel, I was originally indebted to Bishop Marsh's "Dissertation on the Origin and Composition of our First Three Canonical Gospels"; but those who are acquainted with the view stated in the Dissertation, as to the origin and the extent of this portion, will readily perceive that the conclusions to which I have come considerably differ from it. As to the latter, I consider it as commencing with the xth chapter, and ending with the 10th verse of the xviith. The Dissertation makes it include from ch. ix. 51, to xviii. 14; but this extent was defined by the supposed source of it.—In another respect I differ essentially from that acute and profound critic, who thinks that St. Matthew has a great part of the matter contained in Luke ix. 51—xviii. 14. That this opinion is erroneous, will readily be seen by inspection of the Tables in the Appendix.

our Lord (ch. xvii. 11) passing along the confines of Samaria and Galilee ; and we know from the other Gospels that he crossed over into the Peræa. What could be a fitter place to introduce a Miscellaneous Collection, several parts of which seemed to be connected with the Last Journey, as others were with the Peræa, and all of which occurred before our Lord's arrival at Jerusalem ? Our Lord has directed his face to the closing scene of his Ministry ; and the Evangelist now introduces a series of memorials which he had no means of assigning to their chronological position, but which, even with the possession of the other Gospels, we feel to be an invaluable portion of the whole.

SECT. V. On the General Preferableness of St. Matthew's Order, in the Chronological Arrangement of Events.

It must be evident to every attentive reader of the Gospel history, and will be obvious on inspection of the Tables in the Appendix to which reference has already been made, that the arrangement of events by Matthew, and the arrangement by Luke, cannot both be in the order of time ; that from the Miracle of the Five Thousand, the arrangement and the substance of Mark's Gospel accords with Matthew's ; and that before that period, the arrangement of events in Mark closely accords with that in Luke, while, nearly in the same degree with Luke's, it leaves that of Matthew. We have nothing but internal evidence, and the consideration of the respective circumstances of the Evangelists, to guide us in the choice of our general authority for determining the succession of events.

Partly from the expression employed by St. Luke in his Introduction, declaring his purpose to write to Theophilus 'in order,' καθεξῆς, and partly from the exclusive accordance of St. Mark's arrangement of events with his, in the portion of the history preceding the miracle of the Five Thousand, many Harmonists have fixed upon St. Luke's arrangement as their basis.*

* Others, however, have, with great decision, followed St. Matthew's order. "In this Harmony," says Lieberkühn, "we have made the Evangelist Matthew our rule as to the order of time, and we have herein chiefly followed the late Dr. Bengelius and his just Harmony of the four Evangelists ; and he had many learned men who were his forerunners in this method"—Bishop Marsh also mentions Bertling, Eichorn, Sir Isaac Newton, and Bishop Pearce, as adopting the same opinion : his own is alike decided. Eichorn says "that the facts recorded in the former part of St. Matthew's Gospel, were re-arranged by St. Matthew, according to the exact order of time, as it would be easy to show by an analysis of the several sections of which that part is composed." See Marsh's Michaelis, vol. III. Translator's Notes, pp. 9, 10, 16. Bishop Pearce cites Hammond and Grotius as advocates for the same general view ; and Campbell agrees with them.

It is readily admitted that the expression 'in order' would be a reasonable ground for adhering strictly to his arrangement, if we had no other authority; for the caution, skill, and accuracy which are displayed in his other admirable history, would afford a presumption that one possessed of such advantages as he had for knowing the reality of things, and endowed with such abilities and judgment, would employ that arrangement which was best adapted for his purpose: but we might not have seen reason for the assured belief that the order which he proposed to follow was the order of time, or that in the circumstances in which he compiled his Gospel, he could always have attained it.

We might, à priori, reasonably expect the greatest accordance with the order of time, in that Evangelist who was a personal witness of the history he records. "St. Matthew" (says Sir Isaac Newton) "was an eye-witness of what he relates, and so tells all things in due order of time, which St. Mark and St. Luke do not."* More complete and detailed examination might have led our great philosopher to make a less unqualified statement; but the general principle is a solid one, and it deserves our adherence, unless cause can be shown to the contrary. It might have been the fact, as Mr. Veysie maintains,† that St. Matthew intentionally departed from the order of time, with a view to give his Gospel a more forcible bearing on the great purpose of it; but admitting the possibility of this, there is abundant reason to conclude that, in some cases where his arrangement entirely differs from that of Mark and Luke, he did not knowingly depart from that order. For instance—he could not, merely for the sake of argument, have placed the cure of the Leper (Harm. p. 65) immediately after the Sermon on the Mount, when he knew that it occurred at a different period, and at the same time have so connected it with the descent from the mountain and the entrance into Capernaum, that no reader of his Gospel alone could come to any other conclusion than that it took place between those occurrences: nor could he have connected the application of Jairus (p. 77) with the Feast at his own house, if he knew that it occurred, as St. Luke has placed it, at a very different time, viz. after the Message of John, and the Parable of the Sower, &c. The supposed system of arrangement might be well adapted to his object; but he could not have carried it so far as to sacrifice historical truth to it.

* See Marsh's Michaelis, as above cited.

† In pp. 74—78 of his "Examination of Mr. Marsh's Hypothesis respecting the Origin of our three first Canonical Gospels." This able treatise has not publicly undergone the critical scrutiny of the Bishop of Peterborough; but Mr. Veysie has given him abundant reason either for refuting his arguments or for abandoning his own Hypothesis; for he has shown that it neglects various opposing phenomena.

Where the relation of subject-matter, or the real connection of events with others not in close succession with them, or the want of connection with those exactly contemporaneous, or uncertainty as to the actual time of occurrence, rendered arrangement by the order of time less convenient, or less useful, than by some other principle, there was nothing to prevent a faithful and accurately informed historian of our Lord's Ministry from departing from the order of time, provided he did not professedly unite the events together as occurring in close succession.

The constantly occupied period which St. Matthew records in the portion that begins with ch. iv. 12, and ends with ch. xi. 1,—including the chief discrepancies in the order of time,—probably occupied (as will be shown in Diss. IV.) less than the interval between the Tabernacles and the Dedication, which was about nine weeks. Now, how extremely difficult must it have been, if not impossible, for any one who was not a continual eye-witness, to have given a narrative of such a period, in strict chronological order, at the distance of thirty years from its occurrence, and after so many other interesting events: nay, how difficult would it have been for even an eye-witness to have done this, unless he had made some records at an earlier period, or satisfied himself with a few prominent facts. It must be recollected, too, when appreciating the resources of the Evangelists, that they had no maps, or public chronicles, to refer to; that, in the period peculiarly in our view, the whole series, though crowded with the most wonderful occurrences, could have, in the mind of the general observer of it, little necessary connection, in its several parts, with time and place; and that this little connection would be likely to fade from the memory of the witnesses, (if they made no written records,) as the distance of time made the facts themselves alone of moment.

Those who adopt the hypothesis that one common document formed the basis of the narrative part of the first three Gospels—whether in the refined form of it given by Bishop Marsh, or in any more satisfactory one, if such there be—can scarcely avoid his conclusion, that the accordance between Mark and Luke in connection with their discrepancy from Matthew, so far from being an objection to the chronological accuracy of Matthew, favours the supposition that he alone followed the order of time: for why should not he, as well as Mark and Luke, have adopted the order of their common document, except from his knowledge, as a personal witness, that it was not chronologically correct? If it were replied that he departed from it for another purpose, such as Mr. Veysie supposed, we might repeat the remarks already offered against his supposition.

That in forming a chronological arrangement of the events in our Lord's Ministry, the order of those recorded in St. Matthew's Gospel should have a general preference over that in St. Luke's, depends for its support on the following considerations.

1. He lived in the very district where, and at the time when, those events occurred respecting which there is the main diversity of arrangement; he was personally acquainted with many of them, had an adequate knowledge of all, and knew all the circumstances of locality, &c.

2. With fewer details respecting the facts which he has recorded than we often find in St. Luke's Gospel, St. Matthew commonly gives more definite indications of time and place. Throughout the whole of his Gospel, excepting in his record of the first days in Jerusalem at the Last Passover, and that of the period following the Mission of the Apostles, there is no difficulty in tracing the course of events on a map and by a calendar, without the aid of the other Gospels.* On the other hand, — though St. Luke sometimes supplies a more distinct specification than the other two Gospels give, and shows, by chronological particularity where it was attainable by him, (as in ch. iii. 1, 2. vi. 1. ix. 28, 37, 51), that he made it an object of inquiry, — yet the attentive reader may find several indications of his not possessing all the information as to time and place which we can derive from the other Gospels: for instance, he does not advert to the special commencement of our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee as taking place immediately after the Imprisonment of the Baptist; and though, from St. Matthew we know that the cure of the Paralytic (Harm. p. 73) took place at Capernaum, on our Lord's return from the country of the Gadarenes, and just before he called Matthew himself to attend his Ministry, yet Luke, though he mentions circumstances which Matthew does not, speaks of it (ch. v. 17) as being 'on one of the days', and gives no clue to the place where it was wrought. †

3. Though the conviction of the preferableness of St. Matthew's order over that of St. Luke, must, as far as respects the phenomena of the Gospels themselves, depend more upon an accumulation of numerous indications, often differently appreciated by different judges, rather than upon any single

* Dr. Priestley, in his Observations on the Harmony of the Evangelists, p. 75, says that he pays "but little regard to the order of St. Matthew's Gospel, before the history of his own call to attend upon Jesus": yet the only transposition which he makes is of four verses (ch. viii. 14-17) which, from considering the place in the Gospel of Peter's friend, I also transpose. See Harm. p. 51.

† In the Note †, p. 74, I have said "Luke's record is that of one who had seen the house itself, and to whom the account was given by a resident in it." When I wrote that note, I thought it probable that Luke himself had so seen the house and received the account from a resident: but the absence of specification of place renders that improbable. The record itself must, however, have been first made by one possessed of such advantages.

consideration, yet there is one that is sufficiently decisive, and which has already been adverted to,—viz. that founded upon the connection of the application of Jäirus with Matthew's Feast, (Harm. p. 76), which succeeded, at a short interval, his Call to be a constant follower of Christ. That period must have been very impressive to Matthew; and his narrative, (ch. viii. 18—ix. 26), though commonly very succinct, is too closely connected in its various parts to allow of the supposition that it essentially departs from the real succession of events. After recording (p. 70) the stilling of the storm, and the cure of the Gadarene dæmoniac, he gives (p. 73), as immediately succeeding the latter, a brief account of the cure of the paralytic at Capernaum, and connects with it, in close succession, the circumstances of his own Call. He then (p. 76) speaks of our Lord's being at his table, with various other persons; and he represents Jäirus as making application to him for his daughter, while engaged there in conversation with the disciples of John, and records our Lord's following Jäirus, and, on the way to his house, restoring the health of the disordered woman. What considerations can authorize the separation of this application of Jäirus from our Lord's visit to Matthew, by those who knew what Matthew himself has recorded? Mark and Luke could not have known this. In their Gospels, the stilling of the storm, the cure of the Gadarene dæmoniacs, the restoration of the woman, and the raising of Jäirus's daughter, are placed in uninterrupted succession, after the selection of the Apostles; and the cure of the paralytic, with the call of Levi, (i. e. Matthew,) and the conversation of our Lord at his table, are entirely separated from the former series, and placed before the selection of the Apostles. If no probable reason could be assigned for this remarkable agreement with each other, while these Gospels are inconsistent, as to the succession of events, with St. Matthew's, still would the difficulty present no adequate reason to relinquish the express testimony of Matthew concerning what took place at his own table.*

To vindicate the general preference of St. Matthew's order over St. Luke's, in that portion of the history where alone there is real disagreement, it seems sufficient to show, what has now been done, that the latter, in a striking series of occurrences, is directly opposed to the former; and that, from the circumstances of the case, the succession of events, as given by Matthew, must be that of actual occurrence.

* An analysis which will be found in the Appendix, of that leading division of St. Luke's Gospel which respects the Ministry of Christ in Galilee, in correspondence with St. Mark's, may assist in accounting for the order of events actually adopted in that division; but my conviction of the general preferableness of St. Matthew's succession of events, does not depend upon it.

The diversity between St. Mark's order and that of Matthew, would, of itself, cause no difficulty in selecting the latter as the basis. The succession of events, (without reference to omissions,) is, in some parts, accordant with that of Matthew. This is the case in ch. i. 16—ii. 22 (with the exception the cure of Peter's Wife's Mother); in ch. iv. 35—v. 43; and in the portion onward from vi. 14. But in the portion preceding the death of John and the return of the Apostles, taken as a whole, there is an obvious want of coherent successiveness; and, except where St. Mark expressly connects events together, by notes of time or place, I should feel no hesitation in leaving his order for that of Matthew, though the reasons for adopting the latter were much less weighty than it has been shown that they are.

SECT. VI. On the Extent to which the Order of St. Luke's Gospel is Chronological.

In the following Harmony (p. 1) St. Luke's Introduction is given as found in the common translation, except in the employment of the personal relative for that which is now used only impersonally. The declaration with which the Evangelist begins his inestimable Record, has never been lost sight of through the whole of this Dissertation; and it is now the time to state its import, in relation to the succession of events. Closely rendered, it may be represented as follows:

' SINCE many have undertaken to compose a narration concerning the transactions which are received among us with full confidence, ² according as those have delivered them to us who were themselves eye-witnesses from the beginning and became ministers of the word, ³ I also, most excellent Theophilus, having accurately traced all things from the first, have thought it well to relate them to thee in a regular series, ⁴ in order that thou mayst be fully assured of the certainty of those things respecting which thou hast been informed.'

The only expression respecting the force of which there can be any material doubt, is κατ'εξῆς. The common rendering 'in order', in connexion with the regularly historical character of the book of Acts, and impressions derived from the statements of Beza, Le Clerc, and others, gives to most general readers the idea that St. Luke has drawn up his Gospel in the exact order in which events occurred. There can be no doubt that he would arrange his materials in the order of time, in proportion as he could ascertain it, and unless the connexion of subject rendered a departure from it expedient. Indeed, when we observe that, after his general introduction, the Evangelist first relates what he had learnt of the birth and early history of the Baptist and of Christ; that he then (p. lii.) gives a general view of the Baptist's Ministry, next of Christ's Ministry first in Galilee, and then in the Peræa ; that he then records the occurrences on the road to the Passover, and lastly the transactions at Jerusalem from our Lord's arrival there to his Ascension ;—we cannot hesitate in saying that he has given an orderly arrangement to his invaluable memorials of the life of Christ.

This is all which his declaration implies. He alone, in the New Testament, uses the word καθεξης. In the Gospel, he employs it in ch. viii. 1 ; and in the Acts in ch. iii. 24. xi. 4. xviii. 23. In the last instance, it refers to the order of place : Paul ‘ went over the country of Galatia and Phrygia IN ORDER, καθεξης, strengthening all the disciples’.—The root of the word, viz. ἐξης, is several times employed by him, in connexion with εν τη (ἡμερα und.) ; and then it is rendered after, as in Luke vii. 11 (p. 68), in reference to our Lord's going to Nain. In this case, however, Griesbach gives, as a reading of great authority, εν τω ἐξης, following which we should render afterward, or in the course of events.

Grotius, as quoted by Bishop Pearce, gives it as his opinion that, in the whole of this history, Luke has attended more to the order of subject, than to that of occurrence. Wynne, with whose translation of the passage my own essentially agrees, renders καθεξης σοι γραψαι ‘ to write to thee an orderly account’ ; and in his note he explains the words, “ to write a regular narration of the principal facts in their due series”. Dr. Campbell renders the words καθεξης γραψαι ‘ to write a particular account’ : “ the proper import of καθεξης (he says in his note) is distinctly, particularly, as opposed to confusedly, generally” : and still more according to the just force of the words, Dr. Doddridge, after rendering the clause ‘ to write an orderly Account of them’, subjoins “ it is evident, this Evangelist might, with great propriety, be said to have given an orderly Account of the History of Christ, as the leading Facts are in their due Series, though some Particulars are transposed.” Once more, Archbishop Newcome, though he did not regard the order of St. Matthew as his basis, explains the expression ‘ in order’—“ not in the strict order of annals, but observing the series of leading facts.”

Nothing but a necessity in the force of the word καθεξης which does not exist, would justify the belief that St. Luke has in all particulars written in the exact order of time. It is quite clear that he purposed to give to his noble friend a regularly-arranged narrative of all that he had learnt, respecting the words and actions of Christ, through his acquaintance with personal witnesses, and by his own diligent inquiries in Galilee and the Peræa ; and he has done so, as I have shown. His arrangement would be mainly guided by the succession of events, as far as he had the opportunity of ascertaining it ; and as he gives definite notes of time in some cases, it is reasonable to conclude that, when he uses indefinite expressions, it was for want of information as to the precise date. This indefiniteness in the notes of time presents itself in various parts; (see ch. v. 1, 12, 17. vi. 6, 12. viii. 1, 4, 22. ix. 18. xi. 1. xii. 1. xiv. 1. xx. 1. xxiv. 33—53); and his Gospel presents, (as has been already noticed,) even in the historical portions of it, fewer means of deciding the locality of events than St. Matthew's does. Even if St. Luke had considered the order of time as of paramount importance, he must often have been obliged to rest satisfied with other principles of connection; but it is evident, from the composition of his Gospel, that he did not so regard it: indeed, the succession of events, excepting for its influence on credibility, and for support to the memory, is of vastly less importance than the knowledge of the events themselves. Not unfrequently, too, as respects the words of Christ, he could only have possessed some of those precious records which the disciples must, in various places, have made of sayings that, at different times, they had heard from the lips of the Lord himself, or which they had heard retraced together, though not originally so delivered, in the discourses of the Apostles or of the Seventy.

Those who have considered the circumstances of that part of our Lord's Ministry which immediately followed the Imprisonment of the Baptist,—so crowded with occurrences, and these so constantly changing in their locality,—will have no difficulty in perceiving, that nothing but personal attendance, and even contemporaneous records, could enable a person to retrace a comprehensive view of that period in the exact order of events. Of short portions, such a view might be given by persons residing where the occurrences took place, or who had attended our Lord in particular parts of his progresses; and, through diligent inquiry, some general idea might be formed of the train of events, by a person not present, which would serve as a guide in framing an orderly narrative. St. Luke obviously possessed records of such portions; and all that could then be learnt as to the succession of events, he would undoubtedly learn, in order to frame his narrative. But for this purpose he had not such advantages as he possessed for his subsequent 'treatise'. In the latter, the series of events extended over a space of many years, and the events themselves often occurred at far distant places and intervals of time: what is still more important, he was himself a personal witness during a large portion of his history. But in retracing the occurrences of a few months,—commonly unconnected with each other, except in their effects on the bodies or the souls of those who were the objects of them, and, in some instances, occurring in the same places, after short intervals in which our Lord had been absent from them,—he must often, when framing his narrative, have had no other guidance than the connection of place, or of subject, or of cause and effect. This invaluable historian followed, in every instance, there can be no doubt, the best system of arrangement which the circumstances of the case permitted: and though, being in the possession of St. John's Gospel and St. Matthew's, we have advantages which this Evangelist did not possess, for framing a chronological arrangement of the whole of our Lord's Ministry, and even of that period of it which he peculiarly records; yet one very important result has followed from his not having closely bound himself to order of time, viz. he has recorded many discourses and sayings of our Lord, of the most impressive character, the precise date of which he must have found unascertainable, but which, from his wider range of knowledge, he alone had the power to record.

That the views which have now been given, accord not only with the actual phenomena of the Gospel by St. Luke, but also with the circumstances in which we have historical reason to believe he did actually compile his Gospel, is a corroborative evidence for its genuineness, and, consequently, for its credibility. No person, not circumstanced as we have abundant reason from the introduction to the Gospel, and from the book of Acts, to suppose that St. Luke was, could have framed a Record like that which we owe, under the blessing of God, to his faithful, intelligent, and zealous inquiries.

PALESTINE,

During the MINISTRY OF CHRIST.

5 10 20 35
English Miles

Drawn and Engraved for D^r Carpenter's Harmony by J. & C. Walker.

DISSERTATION III.

ON THE POLITICAL AND GEOGRAPHICAL STATE OF PALESTINE, AT THE PERIOD OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

PALESTINE is usually considered as extending, along the coast of the Mediterranean, from a little north of Sidon to some distance south of Gaza. Beginning at the former point, the boundary goes inland, across the chains of Libanus and Antilibanus, above the sources of the Jordan, and onwards to the east of Hermon, which is a mountain-range branching off southerly from Antilibanus. It then bends southwards, till it arrives at the Arnon, which forms the southern boundary on the east. It thus divides Palestine from SYRIA on the north and north-east, and from ARABIA DESERTA on the east. The Dead Sea completes the eastern boundary ; and from the southern part of this, an undefined boundary runs across to the Mediterranean between Palestine and ARABIA PETRÆA.

It is, however, clear from Josephus (Bell. Jud. III. iii. 1.) that, at the period of the Gospel-history, the region along the northern part of the coast, beginning from the south of Mount Carmel, belonged to PHŒNICE ; and this fact is of considerable importance in determining the extent of the chief scene of our Lord's public labours, since it shows that GALILÆE did not extend to the shores of the Mediterranean. With this modification, the boundaries may be taken as already stated ; and as far as our present imperfect knowledge of the exact position of places enables us to judge, we may consider Palestine as extending from about $33\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ N. Lat. to about 31° , and from about $34\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ E. Long. to somewhat more than 36° ; making its length about 160 miles, and its average breadth between 60 and 70. Its extent may therefore be compared to that of Wales with Shropshire, Herefordshire, and Monmouthshire.

The great natural feature of the country is the Jordan, which has its rise in the neighbourhood of Antilibanus, passes through the marshy Lake of Samochonitis (the Waters of Merom), and, after having received numerous mountain-streams, enters the Lake of Galilee. It then takes a winding course southwards and enters into the Dead Sea. Other particulars will be given hereafter ; but these are stated for the sake, of geographical arrangement.—For brevity, the Jordan before it enters the Lake of Galilee may be termed North Jordan ; and afterwards, South Jordan.

When the Israelites first obtained possession of the Land of Caanan, Joshua divided it among the Tribes—that of LEVI excepted, which was left without territorial possessions. Ephraim and Manasseh, the two sons of Joseph, being taken in place of their father, there were still reckoned Twelve Tribes. Of these, Manasseh had two portions, one on each side of the Jordan. On the east of the Jordan, beginning at the Arnon, were REUBEN, and then GAD, southwards of the Lake of Galilee, and East MANASSEH, along the Lake and North Jordan. On the west, along North Jordan, lay NEPHTHALIM ; and south of it, westwards from the Lake, lay ZABULON : ASHER extended along the coast, to the west of these. South of Zabulon, from South Jordan to the Mediterranean, lay ISSACHAR, then West MANASSEH, then EPHRAIM. Below Ephraim along the Mediterranean lay DAN, and then SIMEON ; east of Dan and Simeon, extending to the Dead Sea, lay JUDAH, and between Judah and Ephraim, along the Jordan, lay BENJAMIN.—This general view of the situation of the Tribes is sufficient for our purpose. Indeed the division was entirely lost after the Babylonish Captivity ; and two only of the Tribes, ZABULON and NEPHTHALIM, are mentioned in the New Testament, viz. by St. Matthew in citing the prophecy of Isaiah. (Harm. p. 49.)

The territory of the four southern Tribes, Judah, Benjamin, Dan, and Simeon, corresponded with Judæa ; but from the representations of Josephus (Bell. Jud. III. iii. 5) we may conclude that Judæa extended northwards along the Mediterranean, to the territory of Ptolemais.* The southern part was denominated IDUMÆA, as was also the district lying below it, in Arabia.

Northwards of the inland part of Judæa, lay SAMARIA, which extended as far as Ginæa, on the south side of the Plain of Esdraelon, and along the Jordan to near Scythopolis,—much corresponding with Ephraim and West Manasseh ; but its southern limit is not ascertainable, since the site of Anuath which Josephus mentions as the boundary is not known.

Northwards of Samaria, to the limits of Palestine, lay GALILEE, having the Jordan and the Lake on the east, and Phœnice on the west. The northern part of this, between North Jordan and Phœnice, principally corresponding to Nephthalim, was termed GALILEE OF THE GENTILES : the southern part, west of the Lake and South Jordan, was peculiarly termed GALILEE, and is the district which is denoted by that appellation in the Gospels. Commencing with the populous part lying northwards of the Plain of Esdraelon, the whole of this district cannot have exceeded Worcestershire in extent.

* Josephus says μεχρι Πτολεμαϊδος, as far as Ptolemais ; but as he had said before that the Phœnicians had the territory along the Mediterranean to below Mount Carmel, I presume he meant the territory of Ptolemais.

Opposite Galilee, east of the Lake and North Jordan, lay several districts, having, as it appears, different appellations, and being incapable of specific division, but much corresponding with the eastern territory of Manasseh. St. Luke appears to have included the whole under the denomination of ITURÆA and TRACHONITIS, the latter referring particularly to the mountainous region east of the sources of the Jordan. St. Matthew and St. Mark designate the country of which they speak, lying east of North Jordan and the Lake, by the appellation DECAPOLIS, so called from the combination of ten cities most of which lay in that region. Josephus calls that same region GAULONITIS. The country east of it, he terms BATANÆA—the ancient Bashan ; and eastward of that was AURANITIS, now the Haouran, little of which appears to have been within the limits of Palestine. Batanæa seems to have been sometimes considered as extending to the Lake, so as to include Gaulonitis ; and the Ituræa of St. Luke corresponds with Batanæa in this more extended sense, together with such portion of Auranitis as came within the tetrarchy of Philip. Trachonitis is used, both by Josephus and St. Luke, to denote the north-eastern part of Philip's dominions, together, probably, with the adjoining region.

In the Gospels, ' the Country beyond the Jordan ' sometimes denotes all the part of Palestine which lay eastwards of the Jordan : and in like manner Josephus occasionally employs the appellation Peræa with the same extensiveness, as when he speaks of Gadara as the metropolis of the Peræa. But the region peculiarly termed PERÆA by Josephus, and the COUNTRY BEYOND THE JORDAN by the Evangelists, extended only to above Pella in the north, and to beyond Philadelphia in the east, corresponding to Gad and Reuben.—See Bell. Jud. III. iii. 3.

St. Luke further mentions ABILENE as a tetrarchy distinct from Ituræa and Trachonitis ; and this is usually placed, as in the Map, (and as rather best suits the words of Josephus,) out of Palestine on the north-east : but the total want of connection between this district and the events of the Gospel history, rather leads to suppose that it was a district lying between Ituræa and Peræa proper, where, in fact, there was a town termed Abila, which still exists.

Herod the Great reigned over the whole of Palestine as an independent king ; yet he was greatly under the power of the Romans, Pompey having in the year 63 B.C. made the country tributary to them. Herod made a distribution of his dominions by will, which was afterwards ratified by the Roman Emperor: by this, Archelaus had Judæa and Samaria; Herod Antipas had Galilee with Peræa; and Philip the Tetrarch, Ituræa and Trachonitis. About ten years after the death of Herod, Archelaus was banished for his cruelty; and his territory, consisting of Judæa and Samaria, was made a Roman Province under Procurators who were subordinate to the Presidents of Syria. The enrolment which had been decreed by Augustus, and which occasioned the birth of our Saviour to take place at Bethlehem, the city of David, was now carried into effect by Cyrenius the Governor of Syria. The power of life and death was taken out of the hands of the Jews; taxes were paid directly to the Roman Emperor; and justice was administered in his name, and by the laws of Rome. In matters of religion, however, the laws of the Jews, and the power of the Sanhedrim, were continued to them.

The Sanhedrim, whose power was of course confined to Judæa, consisted of seventy members, under the High Priest as President, with a Vice President: such were Caiaphas, and Annas, his father-in-law. There were three classes of members—Chief Priests, the chiefs of the twenty-four courses of Priests; Elders, the heads of families; and Scribes, some of the class of persons so called who were especially employed in studying, copying, and explaining the Scriptures. The members of the Sanhedrim were generally of the sect of the Pharisees; and the Pharisees sometimes stands for the Sanhedrim: the Chief Priests and Elders, or the Scribes and Elders, are other synonymes.

Judæa and Samaria were under the government now described, during our Lord's Ministry—Pontius Pilate being the fifth of the Roman Governors: Herod Antipas reigned over Galilee and Peræa; and Philip, who was a mild and equitable prince, was the Tetrarch of the territory east of the Lake and North Jordan. This political division was of the greatest importance for the first preaching of the Gospel. When our Lord was in Samaria, (as after the raising of Lazarus,) the Sanhedrim had no power over him; nor when he was in Galilee, or in any part of the Country east of the Jordan. When he was in the dominions of Philip, he was also out of the reach of the cruel and crafty Herod. When Herod was resident at the royal fortress of Machærus, in the south of the Peræa, where he held his court, and which was the scene of the imprisonment and execution of the Baptist, then Galilee was open for the public and extensive exercise of our Lord's Ministry. When Herod returned to Galilee, after the death of John, and took up his residence at Tiberias, near the south of the Lake, then the northern parts of that country, the territories of Tyre and Sidon, and the dominions of Philip, afforded our Saviour security from the purposes of the despot who had now begun to hear of his mighty works; and he was thus enabled to proceed in the discharge of his all-important duty, till 'the days were fulfilled when he was to be received up.'—In this respect, as in a variety of others, we see that it was in the 'fullness of times' that 'God sent forth his Son.'

The whole region of Palestine may be described as very hilly, with some extensive plains, (those of Saron and Esdracdon especially,) and numerous small valleys. Several districts are very mountainous, particularly the country east of the Jordan, and some parts of Judæa. The two great chains which branch off from the mountains of Syria, to which the common appellation of Lebanon is given in the Scriptures, run for a considerable way parallel to one another in a south-westerly direction; and the country between them forms the Cæle-Syria (Hollow Syria) of geographers, now called El Bekaa. The plain itself is quite flat, very highly cultivated, but with very few trees. It is several days' journey in length,* and about six or eight miles broad.† From these chains another proceeds southwards, the Hermion of the Scriptures. These mountains, as well as those of Syria in general, are composed of a calcareous rock, whitish, hard, and ringing when struck. The granite scarcely begins to make its appearance till we come to the neighbourhood of Mount Sinai and the Red Sea. (Maltebrun, p. 128.)

The object of this Dissertation is not to present a geographical detail of all that is stated, as to places and districts, by the ancients, or by modern travelers; but to give such a view of Palestine itself, as may enable those readers of the Gospels who cannot themselves examine the works of those writers, to form an impressive view of the country in which our Saviour lived, and especially of those districts over which he journeyed. For this purpose, the requisite information will sometimes be given in the very words of the authors on whom we have to depend; and out of the materials which have been collected with the present object in view, such portions will be presented to the reader as, whether or not they respect the exact localities

* For loose reckoning, we may estimate a day's journey at about twenty miles; and the hour, by which the travelers in Palestine continually reckon distances, at three miles. The great diversity observable in the latter, depends much on the extent and nature of the traveling party,—whether consisting of a few individuals, or forming a caravan,—and also upon the season of the year: the inferences from Dr. Richardson's estimates of distances must, for the former reason, vary from Maundrell's or from Buckingham's.

† See Dr. Morehead's "Tour of the Holy Land": Appendix p. 280. The Tour itself is imaginary; but the Extracts from a MS. Journal of a Traveler in Syria in the Spring of 1828, of which the Appendix consists, are, in general, singularly valuable, from the distinctness and obvious accuracy of its information.

referred to by the Evangelists, may assist in realizing those scenes and circumstances on which the chastened imagination, the understanding, and the affections, may be alike engaged.*

We have no reason to suppose that our Saviour ever journeyed in the south-western part of Palestine; but the following representation of that region is too applicable to the districts more immediately in view, to be passed by. The traveler was proceeding, at the end of February, from Joppa (Jaffa).

“Feb. 25. On issuing into the country, the difference between this and Egypt was most striking. Here the view is made up of green hillocks, and enclosures here and there, and gardens in the hollows. Palms are common, but intermixed with other trees: the prickly pear, of great size, is the commonest hedge.” “The garden of the English Consul is an orchard filled with almonds, peaches, apricots, oranges, lemons, &c., mixed with mulberries, sycamores, and other trees: like every thing about this place, it gives a wonderful idea of the fertility of Syria:—yet the sandhills were in sight to the north, and still more to the south, where, on looking from the ship, there seemed almost a sandy desert extending by Ekron and Ashdod, towards Ascalon and Gaza.”—Feb. 26. “On quitting the gardens, a country quite different from any we had ever seen was opened to us; smooth green swells, succeeding each other with little variety but the greater or less degree in which they approached to a plain. The view, from a distance, was very pleasing; and nearer, the green was diversified in the most delightful manner by the numbers of beautiful flowers intermixed with the grass. The most common was a yellow flower, like a dandelion or small marigold, but in clusters; as common, but less conspicuous, was a low lilac flower; to these were added a profusion of red anemones, sometimes scattered in small numbers, and sometimes making whole banks glow with their deep scarlet. There are other flowers also, particularly a white one of the lily kind; and towards evening I saw many purple and white anemones, besides red ones. These flowers and the vivid green are sufficient to make the undulations of this plain beautiful, but there is no other variety. A few woods of olive-trees near villages are the only trees.—While we passed along, during this day, we observed ploughing in progress, though some fields were full of young wheat or barley, and some of lupins or beans, both in flower.” Morehead, p. 245.

About ten miles south-east from Jaffa is Ramla, situated on a high hill, and anciently of great importance. Some suppose this to have been the Arimathæa (or Ramah) mentioned in the Gospels (p. 270); but it is more probable that Joseph came from a place of the same name a few miles north of Jerusalem, and eastward of Emmaus, the village to which our Lord went on the day of his resurrection.—The traveler passing from Ramla towards Jerusalem, soon enters the mountain-district of Judæa.

* It would be injustice to the Author of “The Modern Traveller” not to mention that in his little volume on Palestine, published in 1824, most of the information given by previous writers respecting that country, is ably embodied. Those who have not access to the original volumes will be glad of their reference.

“ For some time before we reached the mountains (says Dr. Richardson*) we kept looking up at their dusky sides, as they rose, in towering grandeur, to the height of about 1000 or 1500 feet above our heads, covered with a sun-burnt grass; [this was early in April;] here and there disclosing stripes of bare horizontal rock, and diversified with a few bushy trees that stood at very unfriendly and forlorn distances from each other. Having entered the mountain defiles, we moved along a deep and most uncomfortable track, covered with big sharp stones, sometimes down a steep and almost precipitous descent, which obliged us to alight and lead our mules; at other times along the dry stony bed of a winter torrent.—The hills, from the commencement of the mountain scenery, are all of a round handsome shape, meeting in the base, and separated at the tops—like the gradual retiring of two round balls, placed in juxtaposition. Their sides are partially covered with earth which nourishes a feeble sprinkling of withered grass, with here and there a dwarf tree or solitary shrub.”—These general features continued till the party arrived in sight of Jerusalem, about half a mile from the walls. The city presented itself (Dr. R. continues) in the midst of a barren mountain track. The Mount of Olives is seen on the left. The end of a lofty and contiguous mountain bounds the view beyond the city on the south. An insulated rock peaks up upon the right; and a broad, flat-topped mountain, furrowed by the plough, slopes down on the left.” Of Jerusalem “not an ancient tower, or gate, or wall, or hardly a stone remains. The foundations are not only broken up, but every fragment of which they were composed, is swept away.—The Mount of Olives still retains a languishing verdure, and nourishes a few of those trees from which it derives its name: but all round about Jerusalem, the general aspect is blighted and barren, the grass is withered, the bare rock looks through the scanty sward, and the green itself, like the starving progeny of famine, seems in doubt whether to come to maturity or die in the ear.”

The contrast between Dr. Richardson's representations of the places he visited, and Mr. Carne's, in his Letters in the East, (which will soon be employed,) is very striking: the statements of the former will be most resorted to for accurate and definite information; but Carne's Letters abound in local delineations so vivid that even the sluggish imagination may represent the scenery which he describes, and enter into his associations with it. Some of them will hereafter be presented to the reader.

Sandys (p. 155) describes the site of Jerusalem, as “a rocky mountain, every way to be ascended (except a little on the north) with steep descents, and deep valleys naturally fortified, for the most part embosomed by other not far removed mountains, as if placed in the midst of an amphitheatre.”

We shall hereafter revert to Jerusalem and the country east of it, including the plain of Jericho. The region south of Jerusalem appears to have much the same general characters as have been already described. It is not, however, to be inferred that these mountainous tracts were formerly as destitute of cultivation as, under the government of the Porte, they have generally been. Numerous fertile valleys are still found in many districts; and the hills which now are so barren, were commonly, as many still are, terraced for the vine and the olive which the country produced in great abundance. Some passages from the beautifully decorated "Three Weeks in Palestine and Lebanon," will illustrate this remark. The journey from Joppa to Jerusalem began on the 31st of March, 1831. When they were about ten miles from the latter, after a "siesta beneath the shade of an olive-tree, which was very grateful, the heat being oppressive," the travelers descended into a narrow valley.

* Travels along the Mediterranean and the parts adjacent, 1816—1818.

"In this valley was a small village, surrounded with pear, cherry, and fig-trees, pomegranates and vines, some of whose stems were of a size too large to be spanned by both hands. Naked, stony, and desolate, as are the hills through which we have wound our way, they exhibit indisputable signs of ancient and very extensive cultivation. The marks of terraces, such as are seen on the maritime road between Nice and Genoa, are evident to their very summits: that it is a soil in which the vine would flourish luxuriantly, the stems we saw bore ample proof. Had the Genoese and Sardinian territories above mentioned, rich and smiling as they now are, been subjected to a ruthless and continuous tyranny of eighteen centuries, such as has pressed its withering arm upon these vineyards of Ephraim, I have no doubt they would present the same sterile and desolate appearance." P. 23.

The only two towns south of Jerusalem which the present object leads to mention, are Bethlehem, the city of David, where our Lord was born; and Hebron, about fourteen miles further south, the burial-place of Patriarchs, the royal residence of David, and the abode of Zechariah and Elizabeth, the parents of John the Baptist.—Along the sea-coast was Cæsarea, which was erected into splendour by Herod the Great, but is now entirely uninhabited; often spoken of in the book of Acts, and the place where the Gospel was first preached to the Gentiles; but no further connected with the Ministry of Christ, than because it was the general residence of Pilate and other Governors of Judæa, except when they came up to Jerusalem, at the time of the Jewish Festivals.

Dr. Morehead's anonymous traveler thus speaks of Bethlehem and the region to the north-west of it, in which, about six miles from it, is the convent of St. John.

"Feb. 29. Bethlehem soon after came in sight—a fine village, surrounded with fig-trees and olives: there is a deep valley below, and half way down, on the top of a hill, is a green plain, the only one we have seen in Judæa."—In proceeding to the convent, "we went on among stony hills with thin grass, where David, no doubt, used to feed his father's sheep. The rest of the road was over most sterile hills and the worst possible roads. Most species of trees being out of leaf, must at present increase the barren appearance of the land; but the olives, which are by far the most numerous, are always green. The next commonest are the fig-trees, and all about the convent of St. John the common cultivation is that of vines, which are allowed to run along the ground without any care. Anemones are common even in these barren regions, but not in the profusion remarked in the Plain of Sharon: near the convent the fields were green and rich, and there were many almond and apricot trees in blossom, which was a refreshing sight after so much desolation. There were likewise little kitchen-gardens, chiefly of cauliflowers, which are numerous and excellent in all parts of the country." Morehead, p. 252.

Lamartine, whose delineations we shall follow hereafter, gives a generally-corresponding account of this district, which he visited in October. The village of St. John, he says, stands upon an insulated hill, surrounded on all sides by deep and sombre valleys, themselves bounded by grey rocks which are hollowed out by nature into deep caverns. "Where the declivities are not quite precipitous, some plantations of vines may be seen, climbing up the trunks of little fig-trees, or falling back upon the rock. This is the aspect of all these solitudes. A grey tint, spotted with yellow green, covers all the landscape.

We may now take the route from Judæa, which we know that our Lord once took, through SAMARIA.

Josephus (Bell. Jud. III. iii. 4) describes this country as agreeing in general features with Judæa; both consisting of hills and valleys, well adapted for the labours of the husbandman and very fertile, well stocked with trees, and abounding in fruits both wild and cultivated. These regions, he adds, have few rivers, but they are well watered by rain; and the brooks are exceedingly sweet, so that there is excellent pasturage, and the cattle yield a peculiar abundance of milk. He states also that both countries were very populous.

The general features of the route through Samaria, correspond much with those north-west of Jerusalem. We have various descriptions of it, by Dr. Richardson, and the Rev. Spence Hardy (1832), traveling from Jerusalem, and by Maundrell, Clarke, and Buckingham, from Galilee. On entering Samaria, the country presents little but naked rocks, mountains, and precipices, and the general aspect is peculiarly wild and barren; but in ancient times these hills, as in other parts, were terraced, and bore corn, melons, and cucumbers, and the parts which were still more rocky served for the culture of the vine and the olive. The traveler finds the face of the country improve as he advances; and he passes many fertile valleys. Maundrell speaks of one of these, (near Leban, about parallel with Joppa,) as a "delicious vale". The road, winding with the valley, proceeds in a northerly direction through a well-cultivated tract: but then continues over a mountainous district from which, however, it descends into an extensive and fertile valley, about five or six miles from Sychar. Richardson (May 9) found the reapers cutting down an excellent crop of barley; and Hardy, who passed it (April 24) about the same time of the year that our Lord probably did, describes it as covered "with the green corn moving in graceful waves from end to end when agitated by the gentle breeze. At noon (Mr. Hardy continues) we were upon an extensive bed of limestone; and the white ground reflected the rays of the sun so strongly as to render our eyes almost useless. Well wearied with our ride—we entered the pass that separates Mount Gerizim from Mount Ebal.” These hills are so near each other, that though the valley between would easily contain the hosts of Israel, yet a voice from either side might “be heard distinctly on a calm day throughout the whole assembly.” See Joshua viii. 33, 34. Gerizim lies to the south, and Ebal to the north; and at the foot of Gerizim, which is the more pleasant and fertile of the two, and full of springs, is Sychar, anciently called Shechem or Sechem, by the Romans Neapolis, and by the present inhabitants Nablous. It is magnificently depicted by the Hon. Capt. Fitzmaurice, in Finden's Landscape Illustrations of the Bible, No. 11; and this beautiful engraving gives an impressive idea not only of the particular scene of our Lord's conversation with the Woman of Samaria, but also of the mountain-features in various other parts of Palestine. The valley between the hills is very beautiful and highly-cultivated; Mr. Buckingham, early in February, found the corn green; and describes the prospect in glowing terms, which are fully borne out by all contemporary travelers, though in Maundrell's time the town at least little accorded with its present or its ancient appearance.

Jacob's Well is about a mile from the present site of Sychar; but Maundrell conjectures, from the remains of a very thick wall, that the city may have extended further towards the well; Buckingham, however, says that he saw ancient sepulchres, which must have been out of the city, nearer to Sychar. The mouth of the well itself is covered with a broad flat stone, and the whole with an old stone-vault. The breadth of the well, Maundrell says, is about three yards, and the depth thirty-five; of which he found five yards full of water.* Here the narrow valley of Sychem ends, opening into a wide field, which is watered with a fresh stream rising between it and Sychem, and giving it great fertility and beauty. Maundrell (Mar. 24) was traveling towards Jerusalem; and he says that from Jacob's well the road went southward, along a very spacious and fertile valley.—As the great features of nature in Palestine remain, though numberless structures of the human hand are no longer to be traced, we can say, with confidence, that up that valley, and along the foot of Mount Gerizim, our Saviour himself passed ; and that he preached his heavenly word at the place where Joshua gave his dying admonitions to the Tribes of Israel, and where the bones of that other servant of God were interred, who, though he died in Egypt, looked in faith to the land promised to Abraham. (Gen. xii. 6.) A place so full of solemn recollections, was well adapted for the communication of the words of everlasting life.

* After the above was in type, I saw the 18th number of Finden, in which is a beautiful engraving of the scenery about Jacob's Well, from a sketch (1834) by Mrs. Bracebridge. It accords with Maundrell's description, except that there is no stone-vault over the wall. The direct road from Jerusalem to Galilee leaves Sychar a little on the right near Jacob's Well, where a road branches off to the town. On Gerizim are the ruins of the ancient Samaritan temple, which were explored and measured by Mr. Bracebridge.

The country north of Sychar, to the entrance of the Plain of Esdraelon, Mr. Buckingham describes as composed of hills, abrupt and rugged, but well clothed to the summits ; and he says that the valleys which they inclose, present (Feb. 16) scenes of unbroken verdure in almost every direction, the whole prospect being enriched by the clusters of olives and other trees, and by the rills and torrents which give luxuriance to the vegetation. — Samaria lies west of the direct road to Galilee. Mr. Hardy says that his party (Apr. 25) passed several mills on the stream of water produced by the springs near Sychar. From his interesting account of their visit to Samaria, (Sebaste now Sebastie), and their subsequent route, the following particulars are extracted. After passing a ruined aqueduct of twelve arches, they began to ascend the hills to the west ; and an hour's ride brought them within sight of Samaria. The town stands upon a rounded hill of moderate and gentle ascent, itself in the centre of a cultivated valley, surrounded, at a few miles' distance, by mountains of considerable elevation. "We have here (says Hardy) another of those places near which we can stand as upon vantage ground, and look back upon the men and deeds of other times with an absolute certainty" ; and he gives a spirited application of this remark, to the facts recorded in the Scriptures respecting Samaria. Its connection with the history of Elijah, and its vicinity to the direct road from Nazareth to Jerusalem, renders it next to certain, that, in the period preceding the great work for which he came, our Lord not unfrequently visited the place so noted in the days of old. At present it is almost depopulated, and its inhabitants miserably poor. From the range of hills lying north of the town, there is a view of the Mediterranean ; and the travelers saw also "on the left" a sheet of water of considerable extent. They proceeded northwards over many hills, through passes of different elevations, and along plains gradually increasing in extent, in one of which they counted forty ploughs at work. The villages are numerous, and are situated on the brows of the hills. As it was too late to attempt to cross Esdraelon, they turned off toward Jennin (the Ginca of Josephus), and spread their clothes for the night under a very large mulberry tree. Hardy says that this town is supposed, with some plausibility, to be the Jezreel of Scripture. Buckingham speaks of it as situated at the southern edge of a small but fine plain, cut off from that of Esdraelon by a stony ridge; and that behind it, as seen from the north, is a low range of grey hills, while in front some woods of olive give relief to the picture.* Josephus mentions it (Bell. Jud. II. xii.) as the scene of a battle between the Samaritans of the town and the Galileans who were going up to the Feast of Tabernacles; and it may reasonably be regarded as the place where our Lord was refused reception because his face was directed to Jerusalem at the time of the Passover. Harm. p. 162.

Such was the country through which our Lord journeyed in his way from Judæa. On entering Galilee, he had then to cross the Plain of Esdraelon, which will be spoken of hereafter; and passing near Nain, where he afterwards raised the Widow's Son, and then by Mount Tabor, (both which he probably left on the east,) and purposely avoiding Nazareth which lies towards the west, he went on to Cana, the birth place of the guileless Nathanael, where he had wrought his first miracle, and which was now again the scene of his benevolent power. It appears to be about six miles to the north-east of Nazareth, between which and Cana the road lies through some fine valleys, surrounded by hills of limestone. Cana is situated on a gentle eminence in the midst of one such valley (see Finden's No. 19); and a short way from the village, close to the road towards Nazareth, is a spring (says Dr. Clarke) of delicious limpid water, from which the town is supplied. Travelers speak of large water-pots, carried by the women, as corresponding with those spoken of in the Gospel; but these do not at all correspond with the account of St. John. (Harm. p. 21.) Mr Buckingham saw two sarcophagi between Cana and Nazareth, used as water-troughs; and these (which possibly may have originally been cisterns) are much more suited to the circumstances of the miracle.

GALILEE, it has been already stated, had two divisions: the northern part, beginning about the parallel of the entrance of the Jordan into the Lake of Galilee, was the more mountainous, and was less suited to a dense population; and in part from its situation, many of its inhabitants were of Gentile extraction. From these causes it was termed UPPER GALILEE, or GALILEE OF THE GENTILES: the more level and cultivated part was called LOWER GALILLE, or GALILEE simply. Josephus, in the place so often cited, specifies the boundaries of each; but the places which he mentions are now unknown. He describes the population of both Galilees as being very numerous, brave, and enured to war. Their soil, he says, was universally rich and fruitful; and they were full of plantations of trees of all sorts. The whole territory was, he states, well cultivated; and there were many cities and villages, (that is walled and unwalled towns,) so fully peopled that the least of them had from more than five to ten thousand inhabitants. The Peræa, he allows, was more extensive than the whole of Galilee; but he says that it was inferior to it in population and culture, as well as in the general fertility of the soil.—Of the numerous cities and villages, few only are mentioned by name in the Gospels; and there are not many more of which there are any clear traces to decide their locality.

* In Mr. Buckingham's 4to edition, p. 521, there is an interesting view, among the hills of Samaria, of the approach to the castle of Sanhoor, south of Jennin.

The traveler in the northern part of the Holy Land so often sets out from Ptolemais, that the plan of this Dissertation renders it expedient to do the same, in the survey of Galilee.

Ptolemais, more anciently Accho, now Acre, is on the north side of a semicircular bay, about three leagues in circuit, the south of which is formed by Mount Carmel. (The bay is beautifully figured in No. 4 of the Landscape Illustrations.) The river Kishon empties itself into it, at the centre of its shore, after traversing the Plain of Esdraelon, in the east of which it rises. Ptolemais has the best harbour on the coast; but few traces remain of its former grandeur. Proceeding eastwards, the traveler crosses the beautiful and fertile Plain of Zabulon, which, even in July, when Dr. Clarke visited it, appeared to be every where covered with spontaneous vegetation, flourishing in the wildest luxuriance. "The variety and beauty of the different species of Carduus or thistle in this country, (says Dr. Clarke,) are well worth notice; a never-failing indication of rich soil in any land. We observed one in particular whose purple head covered all the inland parts of Palestine with its gorgeous hues." Pococke passed this plain on the 8th of May, and says it was covered with corn not then cut.

Lamartine and his companions visited this part of Palestine in the autumn of 1832, approaching it from the northern coasts. His first impression at the sight of the Holy Land was "great, delightful, and profound"; and he contrasts with what he saw, the representations of those who have merely traveled the rocky route, under a burning sun, from Jaffa to Jerusalem. Having the Plain of Zabulon in sight, he thus describes the view before him.

"On the right and left, the sides of the hills are shaded, here and there, at the distance of ten paces, with tufts of evergreen shrubs. At a greater distance, rise trees with knotty trunks, interlaced branches, and a sombre and motionless foliage. They are principally green oaks, of a peculiar species, the stem of which is more slight and stately than those of Europe, and whose velvet surfaced leaves are round and not indented like those of the common oak of Europe. The carob tree, the mulberry, and more rarely the plane tree and the sycamore, assist to form the clothing of these hills. There are, besides, many other trees whose names I do not know; some of them have leaves like the fir or the cedar, and others, which are most beautiful, resemble immense willows by the colour of their bark, and the tender yellow hues of their foliage. Be. tween the spaces left by these trees, on the sides of the hills, are seen masses of a whitish or blue-grey rock, which have pierced the soil, and are devoid of vegetation; but between these blocks of rock, is found a deep, light, and black vegetable soil, which would produce plentiful crops of wheat or barley, with the slightest care of the husbandman. Other spots are covered with a prickly underwood, wild pomegranate trees, rose trees of Jericho, and enormous thistles, the stem of which is as high as the head of the camel.—One of these hills, thus described—you see them all nearly in their actual forms; and the imagination may represent to itself their effect, when cited in sketching the landscape of the Holy Land.”

It was for this purpose that the passage has been extracted; since the description, while picturesque, and apparently true to nature, respects a season of the year when Palestine is seldom visited, and during which our Lord was journeying through the populous districts of Galilee.

About ten miles from the sea, the Plain of Zabulon is bounded by a series of limestone hills, over which the direct road to Nazareth lies. Mr. Buckingham gives a detailed account of his route thither (Jan. 11), which often presented one unbroken scene of sterility as far as the eye could reach. He left the sands of Acre at eleven o'clock, and reached Nazareth about six in the evening, having hastened by Sepphoury. Lamartine also says that on leaving the Plain “they ascended little hills, each more barren than the former, to the village of Saphora:” but his picturesque delineation of the hill-scenery at the commencement of the route, in the early morning, must be quoted; for such must often have been witnessed, in various parts of Galilee, during ‘the acceptable year of the Lord.’

“The first hills gradually ascend from the Plain, bearing, like grey or black spots on their sides, groups of olive trees and green oaks. Between these hills, and the more elevated and sombre mountains to which they serve as bases, and which command them majestically, a bluish white mist extends, and partially conceals, (throwing them completely into the background,) the second line of mountains under this transparent curtain, which was here and there pierced by the rays of morning. More distant, and still higher, a third chain of acclivities, completely dark, displayed their round but unequal summits, and gave to the landscape that tint of majesty and gravity which must necessarily be found in all that is sublime, either as an element or a contrast. From distance to distance there are breaks in this third chain, through which the prospect extends, bounded by a pale silvery sky tinted with rosy clouds; and behind this magnificent amphitheatre, aspire two or three peaks of the distant Lebanon, rising like promontories in the sky, and receiving the luminous shower of the first solar rays suspended above them: they indeed seem so transparent, that we might fancy we saw through them the trembling light that they had hidden from us. Add to this spectacle, the serene and warm vault of the firmament, the limped colour of the twilight, the depth of the shadows which characterize an Asiatic atmosphere,” with other features of the present age. “Combine these accessories, and you have a most exact and faithful picture of the delicious plains of Zabulon, of Nazareth, of Saphora, and Tabor. Such a country, repeopled by a new Jewish nation, cultivated and watered by intelligent hands,—would again become the land of promise, if Providence restored to it a people with the political elements of repose and liberty.”

Scpphoris (anc. Zippor) was the largest city in Palestine next to Jerusalem, in the time of Herod Agrippa. Being naturally fortified by its elevated and abrupt position, it became the bulwark of Galilee : at present it is a poor village. Tradition represents it, and without improbability, as the residence of Joachim and Anna, the parents of Mary our Lord's mother.—On approaching Sepphoris (July 3) Dr. Clarke says, “ We found the sun's rays, even at this early hour in the morning, [apparently between six and seven] almost insupportable : if we had not adopted the precaution of carrying umbrellas, it would have been impossible to continue the journey. The Cactus Ficus-Indicus, or prickly pear, which grows to a prodigious size in the Holy Land, as in Egypt, where it is used as a fence for the hedges and inclosures, sprouts luxuriantly among the rocks, displaying its gaudy blossoms among thorns, defying all human approach.” When in Sepphoris, they went amidst the ruins of the church erected over the residence of Anna. “ Here, protected by the stone roof of the building from the scorching rays of the sun, all our party assembled and breakfasted.” Then, eager to see a place so memorable as Nazareth, they “ once more encountered a Galilean sun.”

The ruins of the ancient city, Lamartine states, extended as far as a mile from Saphora ; and there he stopped to halt in the middle of the day. “ A fountain of excellent and inexhaustible water flows herefrom, (says the traveler,) for the use of the inhabitants of two or three valleys. It is surrounded by some orchards of fig and pomegranate trees, under the shade of which we seated ourselves, and waited more than an hour before we could water our caravan,—so numerous were the herds of cows and camels which the Arabian shepherds brought from all parts of the valley. Innumerable files of cattle and black goats wound across the plain, and the sides of the hills leading to Nazareth.” This fountain must have existed in the days of our Lord ; and here, we cannot doubt, he often rested in his solitary wanderings.—Nazareth is about six miles from Sepphoris. The engraving of it in Finden (No. 2), if compared with Mr. Hardy's sketch, (making all due allowance for the baldness of the latter,) appears too highly wrought, with a view to effect.—The approach to Nazareth, and the situation of the town, are well described by Buckingham.

“ From the mountains above it, we had again the prospect of Mount Carmel, and the Bay of Accho ; and reaching the summit of this lofty eminence, the valley and the town opened suddenly upon us. The hill was so steep and rugged, that we were obliged to descend it on foot ; and if it were the precipice from which the men of Nazareth threatened to cast our Saviour headlong, it was a station well adapted for the execution of this work of death.”

“ Nazareth is situated in a deep valley, not at the top of a high hill, but rather on the side of a hill, nearer its base than its summit, facing the south-east, and having above it the rocky eminence which we had passed over in approaching it. The valley in which it stands is round and concave, as Maundrell has described it, and is itself the hollow of a high range of hills. [Richardson says 'it seems as if fifteen mountains met to form an inclosure for this delightful spot.'] The north-western of these hills separate it from the Plain of Zabulon, and the south-western from the Plain of Esdraelon; while on the north-east are the lands of Galilee, and on the south-west [rather south,] those of Samaria."

"All round this valley or basin of Nazareth (says Lamartine) were small clumps of the high thorny nopal, fig-trees deprived of their autumnal leaves, with green and yellow light-leaved pomegranates; the whole giving a freshness and a grace to the landscape." From his description of the neighbourhood of Cana, we may add "oaks and olive-trees and palms" to his enumeration of trees in the valley of Nazareth.

The Monks of Nazareth, who specify the locality of every thing by which they can interest travelers, show a place southward of the town, a high and perpendicular rock, from which they say the people purposed to precipitate our Lord; but it is more than a mile from the site of the synagogue, and on the other side of the basin, and does not agree with the representation of the Evangelist. It is indeed very rarely that the statements of the Monks, whether traditionary or not, need be taken into account when we have other means of judgment.

"Of far higher interest (says Mr. Carne) than traditions and relics, is the scenery around Nazareth. It is of the kind in which one would imagine the Saviour of mankind delighted to wander, and to withdraw himself when meditating on his great mission;—deep and secluded dells, covered with a wild verdure; silent and solemn paths, where overhanging rocks shut out all intrusion. No one can walk round Nazareth (he beautifully continues) without feeling thoughts like these enter his mind, while gazing often on many a sweet spot, traced perhaps by the Redeemer's footsteps, and embalmed by his prayers." Letters, vol. I. p. 290.

From this spot, the residence of our Lord till his great work commenced, we may well follow the information of travelers as to the places which we cannot doubt he would sometimes visit during that period. Is it possible, for instance, that he would not often ascend Mount Tabor, and sometimes also go to the commanding heights of Mount Carmel, hallowed by the sacrifice of Elijah? the one was in his immediate neighbourhood, and the other only a day's journey from Nazareth. The route to Carmel is delineated by the poetic pencil of Lamartine; for the nearer mountain we shall first follow the more geographical account of Buckingham.

"It was nine o'clock (13 Jan.) when we left the foot of the hill to cross the valley, passing by some wells there; and in less than half an hour we ascended the hills on the south-east. Having reached the summit of these rocky and barren eminences, we began to descend on the other side of them. Arriving at their feet, we passed through a narrow defile, leading easterly between two steep hills; and again going up a rocky ascent, we reached its summit at eleven, having the high round eminence of Mount Tabor before us, rearing itself abruptly from the Plain of Esdraelon."

This mountain, according to Mr. Buckingham, does not exceed 1500 feet in height; but its insulated appearance, on an extensive plain, makes it a very striking object, both when seen near and at a distance. There is a characteristic representation of it in Finden's No. 10, by Capt. Fitzmaurice. It is conical till it reaches the summit, on which is an oval plain of about two furlongs across: the circumference of the base is about four miles. The sides are rugged and precipitous, but beautifully adorned with oaks and shrubs. In the time of Josephus it was strongly fortified. During the greater part of the summer, it is covered in the morning with thick clouds, which disperse towards mid-day. A strong wind blows the whole of the day; and in the night, dews fall more copious than are usually known in Syria.—This mountain is noted in early Jewish history; and tradition represents it as the scene of Christ's transfiguration; this however is not accordant with the narrative in the Gospels. (Harm. p. 153.) The view from it is grand and extensive.

"Placing my compass before me," says Mr. Buckingham, "we had on the north-west a view of the Mediterranean Sea, whose blue surface filled up an open space left by a downward bend in the outline of the western hills: to the west-north-west, a smaller portion of its waters were seen; and on the west again, the slender line of its distant horizon was just perceptible over the range of land near the sea-coast. From the west to the south the Plain of Esdrælon extended over a vast space, bounded on the south by Mount Hermon—From the south-east to the east, is the plain of Galilee, [approaching Scythopolis] being almost a continuation of Esdrælon, and like it appearing to be highly cultivated, being now ploughed for seed throughout.—The range which bounds the eastern view, is thought to be the mountains of Gilboa. 1 Sam. xxxi. —The Sea of Tiberias, or Lake of Gennesareth, is seen on the north-east, filling the hollow of a deep valley; and contrasting its light blue waters with the dark brown shades of the barren hills by which it is hemmed around.—The whole view north-eastwards is bounded by the high range of Gebel el-Telj, or the mountain of snow, [part of the chain of Lebanon] whose summit was at this moment clothed with one white sheet, without a perceptible breach or dark spot in it.—Saphet was pointed out in the same direction. [Pocock says it is north-west of the Lake on a lofty mountain.] —To the north were the stony hills over which we had journeyed hither: and these completed this truly grand and interesting panoramic view." *

We return to Nazareth, and accompany Lamartine in his picturesque tour to Mount Carmel, in aid of which the reader may consult the view of the Kishon and of part of Carmel, in Finden's No. 6, by Captain Fitzmaurice, whose pencil, like the pen of Lamartine, displays the power of genius. Lamartine visited the scene in Oct. 1832; Fitzmaurice in March 1833, when, he says, "the river was much swollen, in consequence of the mountain rains, and came tumbling down through the rocks like distant thunder." His account confirms the glowing representations of the French poet respecting the woody clothing of Carmel; (others have described its barren appearance from the sea;) and he adds, "wild boars, gazelles, and hares find shelter in the underwood; and all the streams swarm with every species of water-fowl."

* Here and elsewhere, in passages thus quoted, there are commonly omissions of parts not needed for the present object.

"On quitting Nazareth," says Lamartine—I generally employ the spirited translation, in which great justice is done to the Author—"our road wound round a mountain clothed with fig-trees and nopals—the plant to which the cochineal adheres. To the left opened a green and shady valley. After two hours march we reached a succession of little valleys, gracefully interspersed between hills that are covered with beautiful forests of green oaks.—Mount Carmel, an elevated chain of hills which terminate in a peak on the sea, begins to show itself on our left; its dark green outline detaching itself from the deep blue sky, all undulated with vapours warm as those which issue from a furnace. Its sides are strewn with luxuriant and hardy vegetation; and its entire surface is thickly clothed with shrubs, contrasted at distances by the majestic height of the oaks whose heads tower above them. Masses of grey rock, chiseled by nature into grotesque and colossal forms, pierce the verdure here and there, and reflect the brilliant rays of the sun.—Such is the prospect which extended as far as the eye could reach to our left. At our feet, the valleys we were traversing fell in gentle slopes, and began to open on the beautiful vale of Kaïpha. [This seems to be an extension of the Plain of Zabulon to the south-east, running on to that of Esdraclon.] We climbed the last of the mounts which separated us from it; and only lost sight of it one moment to recover it the next. These little elevations, situated between Palestine and maritime Syria, form one of those sights at once the most soothing and solemn we had contemplated. Here and there the forests of oak, confined exclusively to that species of vegetation, form extensive glades, covered with a carpet of verdure as rich as in our meadows of the west. Behind, the summit of Mount Tabor rises, like a majestic altar covered with green garlands, in a sky of flame. Still further, the blue tops of Mount Gilboa, and the hills of Samaria, tremble in the vagueness of the horizon. Mount Carmel throws his dark curtain on one of the sides of the scene; and the eye in following him, reaches to the sea which closes all, as the sky does in a lovely landscape."

Lamartine goes on to speak of such places as being well suited to an agricultural settlement; enumerating among the advantages "the beauties of the different spots, the lovely climate, the prodigious fertility of the soil, the variety of tropical productions one might there demand from the bounteous earth," and "the neighbourhood of two immense plains, well-watered and fruitful, though now uncultivated."

Such are some of the scenes near Nazareth. It is not to be supposed that they were never visited by our Lord in the days of his youth and early manhood; and the belief that they were, sheds over them a glowing richness of sentiment, which makes us thankful that they have been so delineated. The descriptions of Lamartine would be full of beauty to the eye of imagination, if their originals had been without such associations: but when we can assure ourselves that here our Saviour (perhaps often) wandered, in the period of preparation and obscurity ; that here his eye contemplated the works of his Heavenly Father ; that here he meditated on the faithful duty of the servants of the Lord in former days, and on his own great work in prospect ; the natural impressions from such scenes become blended with solemn and elevated emotion, and we feel that we tread on holy ground. With similar trains of sentiment, Lamartine says that he felt, on first entering the region of Galilee, “ what one feels on going from the street into the temple—something that inspires meditation, a calm internal peace, tender and consolatory, which we do not perceive elsewhere.”—One more delineation must be given of the characters of this sublime region.

“ We were overtaken by a storm (Oct. 20) in the middle of the day. I have witnessed few so terrible. The clouds rose perpendicularly, like towers, above Mount Carmel, and soon covered all the length of the summit of this chain of hills. The mountain, just now so brilliant and serene, was plunged by degrees in rolling waves of darkness, split here and there with trains of fire. All the horizon sank in a few moments, and seemed to close around us. The thunder did not burst in claps ; it threw out one single majestic rolling, continual and deafening, like the waves on the shore of the sea during a tempest. The lightning might be truly said to rush like torrents of fire from heaven, on the black flanks of Carmel. The oaks on the mountain, and on the hill on which we were journeying, bent like young plants. The winds which rushed from the caverns, and from between the hills, must have swept us from our horses, if we had not speedily alighted, and found a little shelter behind a fragment of a rock in the dry bed of a torrent. The withered leaves, upraised in masses by the storm, were carried above our heads like clouds ; and the slender broken branches of the trees showered around us.”

“ Having rested a short time about half-way between Nazareth and Kaïpha we continued our route along the foot of Carmel, the mountain on our left, and a vast plain, watered by a river, on our right. Mount Carmel, which we traced in this way during a march of about four hours, presented every where the same severe and solemn aspect. It is a gigantic wall, rising almost perpendicularly, and every where covered by a bed of shrubs and odoriferous herbs. The rock is seldom entirely naked. Some broken fragments of the mountain have rolled down into the plain.—Kaïpha rises at the foot of Mount Carmel, on a shore of white sand close to the sea ; and over its cultivated plain, Mount Carmel throws its mighty shadow. At the back of Kaïpha is a forest of thriving olive-trees. Still further on, is a road cut in the rock and leading to the summit of Mount Carmel : below which, immense caverns are hellowed in the granite of the mountain.”

Lamartine afterwards proceeded southward along the coast as far as Jaffa. Our object leads us to survey other parts of Galilee.

From the bay between Ptolemais and Carmel, in a south-easterly direction, lies the Plain of Esdraelon. This extensive level tract appears to be between thirty and forty miles in length, and from six or eight to fifteen or even twenty in breadth. It may be described as extending from the Mediterranean on the north-west, to the mountains of Gilboa on the east ; lying between the southern hills of Galilee and Mount Tabor on the north, and the range of Carmel and the hills of Samaria on the south-west and south. Travelers represent it, (the central part especially,) as every where cultivated, very thinly populated, but having a few small villages in different parts of it. Dr. Clarke describes it as one vast meadow, covered with the richest pasturage. Dr. Morehead's anonymous traveler says that there are in it neither rocks nor trees. Mr. Hardy states that the soil is in some places more than six feet thick, and exceedingly rich. This traveler crossed it on the 26th of April : when the party arrived at Nazareth, they "halted a few hours during the heat of the day ;" and the same night "slept under a fig-tree."

Lamartine had gone from Nazareth to the Lake of Galilee, along the northern part of this Plain ; and as his narrative presents some features of the Lake which those travelers do not give who went to it by the northern road from Nazareth to Tiberias, his route will be followed first.

"After having passed along, for the space of six hours, this yellow, rocky, yet fertile plain, [this was on the northern and north-eastern part,] we perceived the land slope suddenly before us, and discovered the immense valley of the Jordan, and the first azure reflections of the beautiful Lake of Gennesareth, or the Sea of Galilee, as the ancients and the Evangelists call it. It soon spread entirely before us, surrounded on all sides, except at the south, with high grey or black mountains." "The Caravan (Oct 14) ascended on the western side of the Lake, at a few paces from its waves, upon a rocky and sandy shore, with here and there tufts of rose-laurel, and some shrubs with slightly indented leaves, bearing a flower similar to our lilac. On our left, a chain of peaked hills, black, barren, hollowed in profound ravines, and spotted, at various distances, by immense isolated volcanic stones, extended the whole length of the western coast [i. e. till it expands to the west] ; and advancing in a sombre and naked promontory to nearly the middle of the sea, hid from us the city Tiberias." Here Lamartine describes, in glowing terms, the sentiments which rose within him in contemplating these scenes, as having often been witnessed and traversed by Christ ;—terminating thus : "With his mortal eyes, he saw this sea, these hills, these rocks ; or rather, this sea, these hills, these rocks saw him. He trode, a hundred times, that path on which I now respectfully walk." "He sailed in the barks of the fishermen of the Lake of Galilee. He calmed its tempests. He walked upon its waves, and gave his hand to the Apostle, like myself, of little faith,—that celestial hand, of which I have more need than he, in the more terrible tempest of opinions "

"The Sea of Galilee is about a league broad at its southern extremity where we approached it. It then widens insensibly to Emmaus placed at the extremity of that promontory which concealed Tiberias from us. The mountains, which had confined it thus far, suddenly open into large gulphs on both sides, and form a vast and nearly circular basin, in which its waters expand themselves in a bed from thirty to forty miles in circuit. This basin is not regular in its form. The mountains do not every where descend to its waters. Sometimes they separate and open, to give entrance to the blue waves, in the inlets excavated at their feet and darkened by their shade." "On the east, they form, from the summits of Gilboa, which are perceived on the south, to the summits of Lebanon which display themselves on the north, a confined but undulating and winding chain. They are not terminated at their summits by sharp points and rugged inequalities ; but present a waving outline of rounded hills, of steep or gentle ascent, some clothed with oaks, and others with verdant shrubs ; others naked, but fertile and displaying various traces of cultivation ; others, again, merely borrowing and reflecting the various tints of morning and evening, by shades of pale yellow, blue, and violet, in richer hues than ever painter's pallet produced. Their sides, though they present no proper valleys, do not form a regular rampart, but are split, in various parts, into deep ravines, sometimes luminous, but more frequently dark with shade. Lower down from the summit of the range, they lessen in size, and as they approach the Lake present a number of small round hills, which form a gentle transition from the greatest heights, to the water which reflects them. Scarcely any where, on the eastern side, does the rock pierce the thick bed of vegetation with which it is covered ; and this Arcadia of Palestine, therefore, always unites, with the majesty and gravity of mountainous countries, the smiling image of fertility, and a varied abundance of productions."

"To return to the western side. The volcanic hills already described, uniformly continue as far as Tiberias. Avalanches of black stones, hurled from the still-open craters of a hundred extinguished volcanoes, continually obstruct the path on this dark and gloomy coast. The road presented no variety, except in the strange forms and colours of the lofty masses of hardened lava which surrounded us on every side, and the fragments of walls and columns which our horses struck at every step, the wrecks of cities long destroyed."

We now again commence from Nazareth our survey of this region of the Gospel—the land of Zabulon ; in order to follow another route towards the Lake, and then northwards along its western shores. This will present views of Galilee more accordant with the representations of Josephus than the district on the south-west of the Lake ; and at the same time will delineate a tract of country which must have been often trodden by Christ and his first disciples. Pococke, Clarke, and Buckingham will be our chief guides.

The road to the middle of the western shore, and towards Capernaum also, first passes the hills that embosom the secluded vale of Nazareth, and then descends into some fine and well-cultivated valleys, conducting to Cana, already spoken of. (See p. lxxvi.) Two or three miles further on, a village presents itself now called Turan. Between these places are observed basaltic phenomena, and from this district, the country appears to descend, by successive steps, to the Lake of Galilee. After passing Turan the earth was covered, says Dr. Clarke, with a variety of thistles : one kind of these "grew to such a size, that some of its blossoms were near three inches in diameter, forming a sphere equal in bulk to the largest fruit of the pomegranate. Its leaves and stems, while living, exhibited a dark but vivid sky-blue colour.

"The heat of this day (July 5) was greater" says this traveler "than any to which we had yet been exposed in the Levant ; nor did we afterwards experience any thing so powerful. The mercury in a gloomy recess under ground, perfectly shaded, while the scale was placed so as not to touch the rock, remained at 100°. As to making any observations in the sun's rays, it was impossible."—On each of the four following days, however, the heat was exceedingly intense. He and his companions had set out early, hoping to visit Tabor ; but he says, " All the pleasure of traveling, at this season of the year, in the Holy Land, is suspended by the excessive heat of the sun. A traveler, wearied and spiritless, is often more subdued at the beginning than at the end of his day's journey. All nature seems to droop ; every animal seeks for shade, which it is extremely difficult to find. But the chameleon, the lizard, the serpent, and all sorts of beetles, basking, even at noon, upon rocks and in sandy places, exposed to the most scorching rays, seem to rejoice in the greatest heat wherein it is possible to exist." July the 9th, on the road from Sychar to Jerusalem, he says that as the day dawned, " a cloudless sky foretold the excessive heat we should have to encounter in this day's journey ; and before noon, the mercury, in the most shaded situation we could find, stood 100° Fahr." The Simoom, too, was blowing at that period : " its parching influence pervaded all places alike, and coming as from a furnace, it seemed to threaten us all with suffocation."

Similar statements respecting the summer heat of Palestine are made by other travelers. Burckhardt, in the latter part of June, speaks of the sun at noon, as intensely hot ; and Joliffe, on the 10th of August, 1817, says " The intensity of the heat making it almost impossible to travel during the day, we set off from Acre a little before sunset." Indeed, from a table given by Dr. Clarke of the temperatures which he observed in his journey through Palestine, compared with those on the same day in London, it appears that the mean excess of the former, on the 5th of July and seven following days, was nearly 25°. On the 5th, the greatest height in London was 30° below that in Galilee.

But to pursue the route towards the Lake. " As we advanced, our journey lay through an open champaign country, until upon our right our guides showed us the Mount of Beatitudes." They mean the hill where Christ delivered the Sermon on the Mount ; but this was certainly near Capernaum. " We left our route to visit this elevated spot ; and having attained the highest point of it, a view was presented which, for its grandeur, independently of the interest excited by the different objects contained in it, has no parallel in the Holy Land."

From Pococke we learn that this eminence is twelve miles north-east from Nazareth, and ten miles north of Tabor. Viewed from the plain on the south, it appears like a long low hill, with a mount at the east and west extremity ; and hence it appears to have been termed Kern-el-Hutin, (the horns of Hutin), since the village now called Hutin, famous for gardens of lemon and orange trees, lies below this hilly range. " From this eminence, (says Mr. Joliffe,) the Sea of Galilee appears spread out in the distant vale, a beautiful expanse of living water. No object can be imagined better calculated to administer refreshment to the eye or the spirits in a climate like this. The view also comprehends a very magnificent prospect of the mountains, as they rise from the eastern shore of the Lake, and stretch out in a northerly and southerly direction. Their extreme heights are (Aug. 11) covered with snow, which the reflection of a burning sun renders insufferably dazzling." Buckingham, describing the same magnificent prospect, says, "The lofty summit of Libanus, covered with an unbroken sheet of snow, was still a conspicuous part in the picture; and it is seen, indeed, from almost every point of view, excepting near the northern edge of the Lake. From this edge, a series of hills rises one over the other, until the highest point of the third or fourth range forms the foundation of the basis of the Gebel-el-Thelji, or Mountain of Snow."

Pococke states that about two miles north-east of Hutin, is a narrow pass, called the Valley of Doves, forming the descent between two rocky mountains into the Plain of Gennesareth, which lies westward of the Lake, beginning at the centre of its shore. Through this vale, undoubtedly, our Saviour often passed in his way from the south-west of Galilee, to the neighbourhood of Capernaum: and every definite representation of a district so frequently traversed by him when 'he went about doing good,' presents a new field of interest to the mind. We not only contemplate him pursuing his labours of love, but can picture the very scenes in which he exercised them.—South of this pass, in the plain of Hutin, about two miles west of the Lake, and three miles west-north-west of Tiberias, are the ruins of a town now called Baitsida, which (says Pococke) "must have been the ancient Bethsaida of Galilee."

From the lofty eminence above Hutin, Dr. Clarke saw that the plain over which they had been riding was itself very elevated; and far beneath appeared other plains, one lower than the other, in regular gradation, and extending the surface of the Lake of Galilee. He thus proceeds:

"This immense Lake, almost equal, in the grandeur of appearance, to that of Geneva, spread its waters over all the lower territory. Its eastern shores present a sublime scene of mountains, extending towards the north and south, and seeming to close it in at either extremity. The cultivated plains reaching to its borders, which we beheld at an amazing depth below our view, resembled, by the various hues their different produce exhibited, the motley pattern of a vast carpet. To the north appeared snowy summits, towering, beyond a series of intervening mountains, with unspeakable greatness. The principal summit was so lofty that the snow entirely covered the upper part of it; not lying in patches, but investing all the higher part with that perfect white and smooth velvet-like appearance, which snow only exhibits when it is very deep;—a striking spectacle in such a climate, when the beholder, seeking protection from a burning sun, almost considers the firmament to be on fire." The Thermometer at this time, in the most shady situation they could find, indicated $102\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$.

"By a steep, devious, and difficult track, following our horses on foot, we descended from this place to the village of Hatti, the Hutin of Pococke, situated at one extremity of the cultivated plain we had surveyed from the heights." In riding from this village southwards towards the town of Tiberias, the Lake continued in view upon the left. "It may be described as longer and finer than any of our Cumberland and Westmoreland Lakes, although perhaps it yields in majesty to the stupendous features of Loch Lomond in Scotland.—It is inferior in magnitude, and, perhaps, in the height of its surrounding mountains, to the Lake Asphaltites ; but its broad and extended surface, covering the bottom of a profound valley, environed by lofty and precipitous eminences, added to the impression of a certain reverential awe under which every Christian pilgrim approaches it, gives it a character of dignity unparalleled by any similar scenery.”

After they reached the end of the elevated plain, a long and steep declivity of two miles yet remained to Tiberias. Here they had a commanding view of the town, with its castle and fortifications. Beyond it appeared buildings erected over the warm mineral baths of Ammaus. Along the borders of the Lake may still be seen the remains of ancient tombs hewn by the inhabitants of Galilee in the rocks which face the water.

“ In all the descent towards Tiberias the soil is black, and seems to have resulted from the decomposition of rocks, which have a volcanic appearance.” “ We observed plantations of tobacco then in bloom, of Indian corn, of millet which was still green ; of melons, pumpkins, and cucumbers. The harvest of wheat and barley ended in June ; but the oats were still standing.” The whole of this region is very full of wild animals. “ Antelopes (says Dr. Clarke) are in great numbers. We had the pleasure of seeing these beautiful quadrupeds in their natural state, feeding among the thistles and tall herbage, and bounding by us occasionally as we disturbed them.”

On arriving at the Lake, Dr. Clarke, like other travelers, found the water clear as the purest crystal, sweet, cool, and most refreshing to the taste. Josephus gives the same character of it. On his authority we may represent the Lake as between seventeen and eighteen miles in length ; its greatest breadth appears to exceed six miles. Madox, in his Excursions to the Holy Land, &c., says that when he visited it (Mar. 8) it was much higher than usual, the shrubs on its margin being half under water. “ All the way along the margin of the Lake”, he says on his second visit, “ fine oleanders in full blossom (May 15) were growing, most of them in the water. The corn on the plain was ripe and being cut.”

In the time of our Lord, Tiberias was the residence of Herod, when in Galilee. It is situated close to the Lake. This city was built by the Tetrarch himself, in honour of the Emperor Tiberius ; and Josephus (Ant. XVIII. ii. 3) informs us that its population was composed of strangers and Galileans, of persons who came voluntarily and others who were forced to reside there, of poor collected from all quarters, and even of bondmen. To this mixed population, Herod gave great immunities ; he also assigned them lands, and built for them houses, that they might become attached to the place ; for this residence obliged them to violate the Law, since many sepulchres had been there, which were now destroyed. This account at once explains why we never hear of our Lord going thither.—Herod obviously fixed upon the spot, on account of its vicinity to the hot mineral baths of Ammaus.

Proceeding northwards along the shore of the Lake, the first place we find is Magdol or Migdal, which there is good reason to regard as the Magdala from which Mary came. It is about six miles north of Tiberias; and it is seated near the edge of the Lake, beneath a range of high cliffs, in which small grottoes are seen. Here the hills retire westward from the Lake, and the fertile Land of Gennesareth commences. The peculiar fertility of this district, is noticed by all travelers. Josephus (Bell. Jud. III. ix. 8) speaks of its extraordinary adaptation, both in climate and in soil, to the production of all kinds of fruits and vegetables; so that plants requiring elsewhere a difference of temperature, thrive here, he says, as if the seasons were in competition which should contribute most. Hence nuts, and palms, and olives abound there. Figs and grapes continue in season during ten months out of twelve; and other fruits throughout the whole year. The Jewish historian says that Gennesareth is thirty stadia from north to south, and twenty from east to west. Beyond the middle of the plain, towards the north, there is a very fine fountain about a hundred feet in diameter, inclosed by a circular wall, and hence called by travelers the Round Fountain: the water runs off in a stream through the plain to the Lake. Seetzen speaking of this district says, "The valley in the midst of which is the Lake, assists, by the concentration of heat, the vegetation of dates, citrons, oranges, indigo, &c.; while the higher land in the neighbourhood is capable of furnishing the produce of temperate climates. But, in the present state of things, we can only find a few traces of fruits of the solar regions on the edge of the Lake." Burckhardt says that the pastures of this district are proverbial for their richness among the inhabitants of the neighbouring countries; and he speaks of several springs as occasioning a very luxuriant herbage along the borders of the Lake. Besides all this, travelers mention some warm springs in this part of the vicinity to the Lake; and considering the volcanic character of other parts, there is little doubt that much of the peculiar and varied productiveness of Gennesaret was owing to subterranean heat.

Proceeding further along the Lake, at the eastern foot of the hills which lie north of the Land of Gennesareth, and where the coast bends easterly, there are extensive ruins, which (though much diversity of opinion exists) appear certainly to mark the position of Capernaum, now Tal-hewn. Buckingham gives the most satisfactory information respecting it; and he states that it is seated close to the edge of the Lake, having Tiberias south-south-west of it, apparently from nine to twelve miles distance, the entrance of the Jordan lying east-north-east, about four or five miles from it. "The appearance of the Lake as seen from this point of view, is still grand. The barren aspect of the mountains on each side, and the total absence of wood, give, however, a cast of dulness to the picture ; and this is increased to melancholy, by the dead calm of its waters, and the silence which reigns throughout its whole extent, where not a boat or vessel of any kind is to be found."

There is one boat to be found, viz. at Tiberias. Recollecting that in the days of our Saviour there were great numbers of fishing-barks on the Lake, and that it still abounds, as all travelers declare, in excellent fish of various kinds, the present desertion of it manifests the sad state into which this fine country has fallen. Under a good government it must rise again.

In comparing Buckingham's account of the mountain-scenery surrounding the Lake, with Clarke's and Lamartine's, we might be apprehensive of the influence of a fervid or a poetic imagination on the latter. Even as viewed from the south, where the Lake is seen most advantageously, because the snow-clad heights of Lebanon are strikingly visible, Mr. Buckingham speaks of "the bare and yellow mountains of the eastern shore" ; and though he represents the scenery around the Lake as possessed of "many features of grandeur", yet he also says that it is "destitute of wood and verdure". It must, however, be observed, that he traveled in this region after a very unusual and long-continued drought. His visit to the Lake was before the middle of February ; and in his preceding route he had repeatedly spoken of the complete want of rain. In January he had stated that the drought had continued, with scarcely any intermission, from October ; though "the heavy rains, he says, are generally in December ; and in January the country is verdant throughout". In the southern route from Nazareth to the Lake, passing (Feb. 12) about two miles to the north of Mount Tabor, he speaks of a vale where the country was woody, but the oaks were bare ; and states that they halted in the shade, the heat being oppressive, (the thermometer being at 92° ,) and the whole country parched by the long drought". Farther on, they found "the whole surface cracked by excessive drought" ; and at a place still nearer to the Lake, (where they saw flocks of Ghazelles,) "the whole country was burnt up by the unseasonable heat and want of rain."

When the north of Palestine shall be as much the object of attention to intelligent travelers, as at present the region of Jerusalem is ; and when persons capable of appreciating the scenery of the Lake, with the sentiment of religion in their hearts, and the faithful pencil of truth to nature in their hands, remain for weeks in the region around it ; we shall have abundance to delight the imagination, as well as to inform the understanding. The elements of distinct conception are, however, afforded us already ; and in addition to the somewhat conflicting accounts which have been presented to the reader, it may be well to give those of two other travelers. The account of Mr. Hardy, who visited the Lake at the end of April 1833, conveys what would, perhaps, most accord with the general impression of those beholders who have, as he had, clothed the appearance of the Lake with “beautiful imaginations”, and who, like himself, only spent a few hours on one part of its coast, and that where the coast is volcanic. “I could have wished, (says Mr. Hardy,) to see more wood upon its shores, less ruggedness in the aspect of its mountains, and a greater softness and warmth in its general features. The mountains in some places come close to the water; and towards the north we could discover a far higher chain, their dark sides, and still darker bases, presenting a fine contrast to the robe of snow in which their lofty summits were invested.” Dr. Morehead’s anonymous traveler (Mar. 13) first came in sight of the Lake where he could see only the northern half, and he says “its size disappointed us: but the blue still water, the green hills around, and the high snowy ridge of Jubbul el Shaikh, made a very delightful landscape.” “Before it was dark, (he afterwards says,) we had a very fine view of the Lake; at the southern part it is narrow, and the sides bold. The sun threw a deep shade on this side, and on the water, while it marked the hills and valleys on the opposite side, with strong light and shade. The northern part is much wider and tamer; but the hills are still high and green; and the lofty snowy mountain of Jubbul Shaikh, rising over them, gives great dignity to the landscape. This mountain was very striking, late in the evening, as retaining the sun’s rays, after every thing around us was in darkness. In all respects it is the greatest ornament of the Lake.”—Here we have a calm delineation of reality; and the mind is satisfied.

In order to complete our survey of Galilee, and from the Land of Zabulon proceed to that of Nephthalim, we must set out from the mountain (p. lxxxvii.) from which that magnificent view is seen, which so often was, undoubtedly, in sight of the beloved Son of God. We have, however, no longer the glowing delineations of Lamartine, or of Clarke, to present to the reader; and we must be satisfied with a statement of the leading objects which have been observed in the course which we follow.

If those who were traveling in Galilee, had to go from Nazareth or Cana to Capernaum, they would leave the route to Tiberias at the vale of Hutin, go through the Pass of Doves, and then traverse the populous, fertile, and well-watered region of Gennesaret, already described, at the north-eastern extremity of which the town of Capernaum was situated.—If they had to visit the remarkable city seen from the heights of Hutin, they would bend north-westwards toward the mountain on which Saphet (now Saffad) stands. This town is not mentioned in the Gospels; but it assuredly was the place referred to by our Lord, when he said, ‘A city placed on a hill cannot be hid’. It was held in much estimation among the Jews; for several doctors of the law, before the destruction of Jerusalem, were buried there. It was strongly fortified, and ruins of its citadel yet remain ; as also a large dome and colonnade of massive structure. Van Egmont and Heyman say that, from the dome, there is the finest prospect that can be imagined, extending over the city of Saphet and the circumjacent places, which are very numerous, all the sides of the mountains being full of villages and hamlets. The adjacent country is every where well cultivated. Towards the south the view is very delightful over the Lake of Galilee. The panorama includes also Mount Tabor, the hills beyond the Plain of Esdraelon, Mount Carmel, and the chains of Lebanon ; and even the Mediterranean may sometimes be discerned. "The air of Saphet, from its high situation, is very pure and healthy, and at the same time so fresh and cool, that the heats, which during the summer are very great in the adjacent country, are here hardly felt, a gentle breeze continually refreshing the air. The fruits also are remarkably good, especially the grapes and figs. Here are also great numbers of lemon-trees ; for at the foot of the mountains are several fertile valleys laid out into gardens ; and the whole country is naturally fertile, and abounds with springs." (Mod. Trav. p. 339.) Captain Mangles, too, was struck with the extreme beauty of the situation ; and says that the country abounds with olives, vines, and almond-trees, which were then (May 26) in full blossom.

From the plain northwards of Saphet, the road descends to the western banks of the valley of Jordan, which it reaches near Jacob's Bridge, so called from the Jordan's having been crossed there by Jacob when he came from Padan Aram. Seetzen, who visited this place in February 1806, says that the bridge is built of fragments of basalt, and is well preserved ; and that the river in that place is about thirty-five paces in breadth. We follow him thence, on the east of the river, towards the Lake of Galilee.

"The country that we passed through was wild, mountainous, and entirely composed of basalt ; it was the western part of the district of Jaulân," obviously the 'Golan in Bashan' of the Old Testament. "From the high ground that we traveled over, we had a very fine view of the Lake of Tiberias. We afterwards passed through the little village of 'Tallanihié [Pococke's Tellony], probably the ancient Julias, and situated at the edge of a small fertile plain, which extends as far as the Lake, and seems to owe its origin to the Jordan. In the village I saw a great number of aloes which grow there in the open air—a circumstance which I had not remarked before."

It is probable that the plain which Seetzen mentions, was the solitude or desert near Bethsaida, where our Lord wrought the miracle of the Five Thousand. Pococke speaks of this plain as about two miles along the Jordan ; and he says that there is a hill where the Jordan enters that plain ; this may have been the mountain up which Jesus went before the miracle and to which he afterwards returned from the multitude.—Julias was the name given to this Bethsaida, by Philip the Tetrarch, in honour of the daughter of Augustus. It was not the Bethsaida of Peter, Andrew, and Philip; for their birth-place was in Galilee. Julias may have been also called Chorazin, according to the opinion of D'Anville. Chorazin is commonly placed in Galilee; but nothing certain is known respecting its situation.

Returning to Jacob's Bridge, and pursuing our course northwards (chiefly with Dr. Richardson) on the west of the Jordan, we find the river sometimes concealed by shady trees, chiefly of the platanus kind, which grow on each side of it; sometimes passing the hills and rocks as a torrent, but calm in other parts of its course. The mountains on the east are bold, and continue with little interruption the whole way. On the west, they commonly recede from the river, leaving a fine undulating and fertile plain, about four or five furlongs broad; at other times interrupted by beautiful defiles, irrigated by small streams of water. The plain is very fertile, and bears excellent crops of wheat and barley. As we approach the head of the Vale of Jordan, high mountains still continue to bound it on both sides, and the still loftier Busia (Gibl Sheikh) with its snow-clad summit unites them at its termination; Richardson says that the view of it was delightful, "as the mists retired from the mountain-tops, and the morning sun lighted up the scene, fresh from the dews of night." About half-way between its source and the Lake of Galilee, the Jordan passes through Lake Samochonitis, more anciently the Waters of Merom, now called Bahr el Hoolya, (denoting its formation by the confluence of innumerable mountain streams,) surrounded by meadows, plains, and hills. These streams are formed by the rain or the melting of the snow upon the mountains. Gibl Sheikh is the chief of the whole range. Near its base, are the remains of Paneas, which was named Cæsarea, by Philip the Tetrarch, in honour of Tiberius Cæsar; and was termed Cæsarea Philippi to distinguish it from the Cæsarea on the Mediterranean. The present town of Baneas is small; but there are distinct traces of the more ancient city; and it is conjectured a temple built by Herod the Great may have stood on a projecting summit, high up the side of the mountain, and commanding a grand view of the whole plain of Jordan, where now are the ruins of an ancient fortress. "Having finished our view of this interesting spot", says Dr. Richardson, "we descended again to enjoy the shade under the venerable oaks." This was on the 17th of May: he had before spoken of "the rays of a scorching sun."—One of the sources of the Jordan is near this town. "It is somewhat in the shape of a half-moon", says Madox, "and the water bubbles out in various places beautifully clear, forming a small pool in the front of a cavern, which also contains water, smooth and still; from which it rushes forwards in two principal streams." It used to issue from the cavern itself; but part of the rock had been thrown down by an earthquake, and this disturbed the fountain.

It was to this region that our Saviour retired, a short time before he finally left Galilee, still to avoid the crafty and cruel Herod, who had been seeking to get him into his power; and there is little room to doubt, that it was on one of the lofty hills in this neighbourhood, that the glorious scene of his Transfiguration occurred.

He had previously withdrawn to the Region of Tyre and Sidon, beyond the north-western borders of Galilee. Sidon lies on the Mediterranean, nearly in the same parallel with Damascus, about forty or fifty miles from Capernaum. It was the most ancient of the two Phœnician cities; and was very early celebrated for its ship-building and its merchandize. More than twenty miles southwards from it was Tyre, the ancient emporium of the world, a place of immense commerce and navigation, and the subject of the most remarkable prophecy. The ancient city was on the continent. When old Tyre was destroyed by Nechuchadnezzar, the inhabitants built a new city on an adjoining island. This was taken by Alexander, by means of a mound from the continent, and most of the inhabitants were slain or sold into slavery. It soon revived again; and in the days of our Lord, it was populous and flourishing. Its port is now choked with sand and rubbish; and only a miserable village is found, where proud Tyre once stood.—As we approach Tyre from the south, the wide expanse of the Mediterranean, and the snowy chains of Lebanon, form a magnificent view. On proceeding onwards along the coast, much nearer to Sidon than to Tyre, are some traces of Sarepta, the city of the widow to whom Elijah was sent.

We now return to the Lake of Galilee, to take a brief survey of the country to the south-east of the Lake, with the course of the Jordan.

The river issues from the Lake, where it is not more than two miles broad, in three currents, which, however, soon unite. Soon after this there are seen ruined arches of a bridge of Roman architecture; and there was another bridge not far below the confluence of the Hieromax or Jarmuck, which is a considerable stream approaching the Lake from the north-east, and entering the Jordan some miles south of it.—Lamartine thus describes the Jordan on its leaving the Lake.

“Although at the end of a dry autumn, it rolls gently in its bed, about a hundred feet wide, presenting a sheet of water from two to three feet deep, clear, limpid, and transparent, (so that pebbles may be counted at the bottom,) and of that beautiful colour which enables water to reflect the deep blue firmament of Asia. At from twenty to thirty paces from the river, the shore, which is now dry, is covered with rolling stones, reeds, and a few tufts of rose-laurel which are still in flower. This shore is about five or six feet below the level of the plain; and shows what must be the size of the river when at its height.—The spot where we contemplated it, is one of the four fords which the Jordan furnishes in its course.”

The beautiful Plain of the Jordan greatly resembles that between the two chains of Lebanon. It is, however, little cultivated, and there are now no villages in it. The river flows in a valley which is considerably lower than the rest of the plain; and this is covered with high trees and a luxuriant verdure which affords a striking contrast with the sandy slopes that border it on both sides. The great number of rivulets which descend from the mountains on the east and the west, form (says Burckhardt) numerous pools of stagnant water, and produce in many places a pleasing verdure, and a luxuriant growth of wild herbage and grass; but the greater part of the ground is a parched desert, of which a few spots only are cultivated. Burckhardt passed it below Scythopolis, in the midst of summer, and found it there about eighty paces broad and about three feet deep. In the winter it inundates the valley in the bottom of the plain; but it never rises to the level of the plain itself, which is at least forty feet above the level of the river.—Dr. Morehead's anonymous traveler crossed it in the direction from Gerasa to Sychem, after having visited the magnificent remains of that city. In his route westwards from Gerasa, he passed through picturesque mountains, where the rocks and woods were mixed with fine effect; among extensive olive plantations; and through a green and pastoral district. Where he saw the valley of the Jordan, it was "a narrow green plain, separated by the white ravines on the river. These, however, were almost close to the western hills; while on the east side the plain was three miles broad. The hills beyond seemed in two ranges, a low one close to the river, and the high hills behind." Having passed over the plain, they forded the Jordan on horseback, with some difficulty, on account of the force of the stream, though the water was not above half-way up their horses' bodies: this is a third ford. The heat was excessive from the time they entered the Plain of Jordan.

Scythopolis, (now Bisan, more anciently Bethsan,) is a few miles from the course of the Jordan, on the west side. It is not spoken of, or referred to, by the Evangelists; but Ænon and Salim, two places which are mentioned by St. John, (Harm. p. 25), were not far distant from it. Jerome says that Ænon was eight miles to the south of Scythopolis, near the Jordan; all that is known respecting Salim, is that it was near Ænon. Both places were on the west of the Jordan, and probably within Samaria. This may have led the Evangelist to assign the reason why John was baptizing there, viz. that there was abundance of water at that place. It was some time after the Passover.—Josephus represents Scythopolis as in Galilee; but Lightfoot says (vol. II. p. 493) that it was within the limits of Samaria, and in the jurisdiction of the Gentiles. It probably was a Gentile city, as well as some of the cities east of the Jordan, and we have no reason to believe that our Lord ever visited it. He must, however, have passed near it, when, having been rejected at Ginæa (p. lxxvi), he came along the borders of Samaria and Galilee in his way into the Peræa ; and he probably crossed the Jordan at the bridge northwards of it. Dr. Richardson pursued the same route as far as Scythopolis, crossing the south-eastern part of the Plain of Esdraelon, and passing near the sources of the Kishon. When his party came near Scythopolis, (which they found to be a small village consisting of mere hovels,) the Valley of the Jordan was in view, with the mountains beyond it. They found the weather much hotter than they had done in any other part of Palestine : the vegetation (May 11) was quite burnt up, and the grain over-ripe. Masses of ejected lava lay scattered around the village ; and the adjacent hills had much the appearance of extinguished volcanoes. Mount Gilboa, rising to the height of eight hundred or a thousand feet, comes close to Scythopolis, and bounds the road up the river-side. It is a lengthened ridge, rising up in peaks. It bears a little withered grass, and a few scanty shrubs scattered here and there. The plain of the Jordan opposite this range, Richardson found extremely beautiful, well watered, well cultivated, with rich crops of barley, most of which was over-ripe. On the east, the Jordan is bounded by a high range of hills which forms part of Mount Gilead, retreating from it by a hilly foreground, so that the prospect is extremely interesting. About seven or eight miles up the river there is a large stone bridge over the Jordan, and at this place the river has a considerable depth of water which it rolls over a stony bed, between thirty and forty feet wide. There appears to have been no bridge between this and the Dead Sea.

The passage of the Jordan which was crossed by Mr. Buckingham, was about six miles above Jericho ; and we may conveniently follow his course from that town, round by Gerasa and Gadara, so far as to give, in connection with the particulars already stated, a general view of the Country beyond the Jordan.

After leaving Jericho, he and his companions proceeded northwards, having on the west a lofty peak of the range of hills which border the plain of Jordan on that side, and end, in this direction, the mountains of Judæa. Nothing can, he says, be more forbidding than the aspect of these hills, which are barren and desolate ; but Maundrell says that the view from them is delightful. (They are well represented in the view of Jericho given in the Landscape Illustrations, No. 12.) This part of the Desert of Judæa is regarded, without improbability, as the scene of our Lord's abode for forty days after his Baptism.—Proceeding further to the north, they opened on a beautiful valley, now highly cultivated, and spread over with a carpet of the freshest verdure, apparently of young corn. They soon came near the passage of the Jordan. Here the plain was unfruitful, the soil being in many places incrustated with salt, and having small heaps of a white powder like sulphur, scattered at short intervals over its surface. The whole of the plain from the mountains of Judæa on the west, to those of the Peræa on the east, may be called the vale of Jordan; but in the centre of the plain, which is here at least ten miles broad, the Jordan runs into another still lower valley, perhaps a mile broad in some of its widest parts, and a furlong in the narrowest. Through the middle of this the Jordan flows, between banks which were at this period fourteen or fifteen feet high, while the river was at its lowest ebb. There are close thickets all along the edge of the stream, as well as upon this lower plain, which would afford ample shelter for wild beasts.—At the passage, the river appeared to be little more than twenty-five yards in breadth; and it was so shallow as to be easily fordable by the horses. (This, it will be remembered, was after a long drought.) The banks were thickly lined with tall rushes, oleanders, and a few willows; the stream was exceedingly rapid; and the water was pure and sweet to the taste, and tolerably clear from its flowing over a bed of pebbles.

The situation of Bethabara, the house of passage, (more anciently Bethany beyond the Jordan), is a matter of great uncertainty. It might have been at any one of the fords of the Jordan. On the whole, I deem it most probable that it was at this above Jericho. Its vicinity to Jerusalem suits well the place for John's Baptism, and also the circumstances respecting the deputation from the Sanhedrim, and the message of the sisters of Lazarus.—A very instructive view of the ford is given in Landsc. Illustr. No. 4.

The eastern range of hills is succeeded by another of less elevation; and then there is a high table-land of extraordinary richness, abounding with beautiful prospects, clothed with thick forests, (among which the oak was often seen,) varied with verdant slopes, and possessing extensive plains of a rich soil, (now covered with thistles,) and yielding in nothing to the plains of Zabulon and Esdraelon.

In proceeding northwards, the travelers came to the Jabbock—the river over which Jacob passed when about to meet his brother Esau. “The banks of this stream (says Buckingham) were so thickly wooded with oleander and plane trees, wild olives, and wild almonds in blossom, pink and white sickleyman flowers, and others, the names of which were unknown to us, with tall and waving reeds at least fifteen feet in height, that we did not perceive the waters through them from above; though the presence of these luxuriant borders marked the winding of its course, and the murmuring of its flow was echoed through its long deep channel, so as to be distinctly heard from afar.” Where they crossed, this river was not more than ten yards wide; but it was deeper than the Jordan above Jericho, and nearly as rapid.

While proceeding to the north-east, through the region of Gilead and Bashan, the country presented much of cultivation. There had been gentle showers on these mountains, while all the country west of the Jordan was parched with drought ; and the young blades of corn were (early in February) appearing above the earth. The general face of this region improved as the travelers advanced ; and every new direction of their route opened upon them views which surprised and delighted them by their grandeur and their beauty. When, however, after visiting the magnificent ruins of Gerasa, they again came to the neighbourhood of the Jordan, and of the Hieromax which flows into it through a bed of basalt, the country appeared like that in the midst of which Jerusalem stands, consisting of black stony mountains, with scanty soil, and presenting few spots even capable of cultivation. The dark masses of rock over which the river winds its course, resemble cooled lava, when contrasted with the lighter soil by which it is edged on both sides. The stones of its bed are porous ; and small patches appear on the ground in many places. There are also hot springs to the north of it. These and similar phenomena in different parts, are among the evidences of volcanic agency, which present themselves throughout the course of the Jordan, from its source, to the termination of the Asphaltic Lake.

Near the Hieromax at Om Keis, are some extensive ruins, which Buckingham supposes to be those of Gamala ; but Seetzen, (whose opinion is commonly followed by geographers,) considers them as the remains of Gadara, one of the cities of Decapolis, spoken of by Josephus as the capital of the Peræa. See p. lxvii.—It was formerly a large and opulent town ; but it has no further connection with the Gospels, than as giving appellation, (according to the common text,) to the country south-east of the Lake, in which our Lord cured the demoniacs.

The survey which we have taken of the region called by the Evangelists the Country beyond the Jordan, enables us to appreciate the account given of it by Josephus. He describes the Peræa as more extensive than Galilee, though inferior to it in other advantages and in population. The greater part of it, including the south-east, is rough and desolate ; and unsuited to the finer kinds of fruit. Nevertheless the soil, where it is good, is very productive. The plains abound in trees of various kinds, though the olive, the vine, and the palm are the most common ; and they are abundantly watered with torrents from the neighbouring mountains, and by springs that never fail, even when the torrents are dried up by the summer heat.—The Plain of Jordan, he says, is greatly burnt up in the summer ; and owing to the extreme heat, (to which he might have added its narrow breadth and the nature of its soil,) the atmosphere becomes unwholesome and even pestiferous. Every part is destitute of moisture, except the borders of the Jordan ; and there the palms are more flourishing and productive than those at some distance from its banks. From the length which Josephus assigns to the Plain, viz. thirty miles, he probably referred almost exclusively to that part of the valley of the Jordan which begins so far north of the Asphaltic Lake; and the baneful character of the air during the heat of summer, sufficiently explains the reason why, though in itself attractive, it was so destitute of population.

We now proceed to the Region of the Dead Sea; and as travelers approach it from Jerusalem, it is most suitable to our present object to follow the same course, and 'go down from Jerusalem to Jericho.'

From the eastern side of the Mount of Olives, the mountains east of the Jordan, are in full sight, extending southwards to Mount Pisgah, whence Moses surveyed the promised land. "The river is discerned" says Buckingham "winding its course through a deep valley, until it discharges itself through the Dead Sea to the southwards; and the eastern view is bounded by an even range of high and woodless mountains, stretching, as far as the eye can reach, in a north and south direction." From the hills in the Peræa, whither we have before followed his route, "the west shore of the Dead Sea, like its east, as seen from the Mount of Olives, presented the appearance of bold and rocky cliffs and precipices, of considerable elevation, and abrupt descent." On descending eastwards, from the Mount of Olives, by a steep rocky path, the traveler reaches a fountain, at which tradition says, with probability, that the Apostles rested when journeying between Jerusalem and Jericho. "It is situated in the gorge of a long narrow valley, which exhibited the last signs of vegetation in a few stripes of corn; beyond it, not a blade of grass is to be seen. After leaving this valley, we wound our way among parched and barren hills, of one uniform whitish-brown colour, bearing not the semblance of any green thing to relieve the eye". After this they entered "a very narrow defile, with high precipitous sides", where Sir Frederick Henniker had been attacked and wounded. Of this defile there is a striking picture in the Three Weeks in Palestine; from which the foregoing extract is made; and there is scarcely room for doubt that this is the spot which our Lord had in view in the Parable of the good Samaritan.—If this be the defile which Mr. Buckingham mentions as about twelve miles from Jerusalem, he and his companions, after passing it, thus pursued their course:

"We descended again into deeper valleys, traveling sometimes on the edges of cliffs and precipices, which threatened destruction on the slightest false step. The scenery all around us was grand and awful, notwithstanding the forbidding aspect of the barren rocks that every where meet our view; but it was that sort of grandeur which excited fear and terror rather than admiration. The whole of this road from Jerusalem to the Jordan is held to be the most dangerous about Palestine; and indeed in this portion of it, the very aspect of the scenery is sufficient, on the one hand to tempt to robbery and murder, and on the other to occasion a dread of it in those who pass that way." The shouts sent by some armed banditti from hill to hill "were re-echoed through all the valleys ; while the bold projecting crags of rock, the dark shadows in which every thing lay buried below, the towering heights of the cliffs above, and the forbidding desolation which every where reigned around, presented a picture that was quite in harmony throughout all its parts."

"After a succession of these wild hills", says Dr. Morehead's traveler, "with others still more white and bare to the left, we came to a height from whence we saw the Dead Sea and the Plain of Jordan. There was a haze, through which the dark grey water, and the dim hills beyond, looked melancholy and forlorn. The Jordan was marked by a green line in the midst of a white and grey plain, six or eight miles broad ; beyond which were other high mountains,—those over against Jericho."

This route was so often traversed by our Lord, and is from its associations so interesting, that the reader may be glad of one more delineation from the pen of Lamartine. After having described the early part of his journey, which he began to the south of the Mount of Olives, and spoken of a broad artificial road on the sides of the mountains, the formation of which he attributes to Solomon, this picturesque writer thus continues :

"There is now no longer a dwelling or cultivated spot to be seen. The mountains are completely destitute of vegetation, being indeed barren rocks, or covered with a blackish rocky cinder. They have, from time to time, split into narrow abysses, where no pathway is found. All the heights have a volcanic appearance. The masses which have been rolled down their sides, and on the road, by the torrents of winter, resemble blocks of lava, hardened and cracked by the progress of ages. When the summit of one height is attained, and the horizon momentarily expands, as far as the eye can reach, it rests on nothing but a black chain of hills, whose truncated peaks are heaped upon one another, and present a savage outline relieved by the dark blue of the firmament. Thus it is a boundless labyrinth of rocky avenues of every form, torn, split, and jagged, into gigantic heaps, and divided at intervals into deep ravines, where you hear not even the rushing of a torrent. After proceeding for an hour in the hollow of a ravine, the traveler comes again to the rugged steep of a new chain of mountains ; on passing which he comes to an open desert, from which are seen the Dead Sea and the blue mountains of Arabia Petræa. In the environs of Jericho, are found well-cultivated fields of maize and of dourra, with gardens of orange-trees and pomegranates ; and fine palm-trees (?) encircle the houses. Then succeeds the Desert, which is an extensive plain disposed in numerous sections, that descend progressively to the banks of the Jordan, by regular steps. The soil consists of a hard white sand, covered by a concrete saline crust."

Jericho, as is stated by Josephus, was nearly nineteen miles from Jerusalem, and above seven from the Jordan, i. e. from the ford, probably. He describes it as in a plain, but over-hung by a mountain forming part of a chain which begins near Scythopolis, and continues on to the southern limit of the Asphaltic Lake. Mr. Buckingham has shown good reason to regard the village of Rihhah, generally supposed to be Jericho, as not on the site of the ancient city, the ruins of which he says are three or four miles nearer Jerusalem. The modern village consists of about fifty mean houses, surrounded with a fence of the prickly pear. A fine brook flows near it, emptying itself into the Jordan, the nearest point of which is about three miles distant; and the neighbouring ground, thus fertilized, bears dourra, Indian corn, rice, and onions.—In the time of our Lord, Jericho was inferior only to Jerusalem in the number and splendour of its public edifices. It was one of the cities appropriated for the residence of the Priests and Levites, of whom it is said that twelve thousand dwelt there at the period of the Gospel history. The territory round Jericho was deemed the most fertile part of Palestine, and abounded in palms and in roses: it yielded, too, great quantities of the opobalsamum—the balsam or balm of Gilead, which was so rare and so much valued in ancient times, that it sold for double its weight in silver. The trees that produced it, Justin says, resembled the fir, though they were lower, and were cultivated in the same manner as the vine. At present there is not a tree of any description, and scarcely any verdure around the spot. To the northward of the city, as it appears, is a celebrated fountain named from Elisha (2 Kings ii. 19—22), of which a beautiful engraving is given in No. 3 of the Landscape Illustrations. The waters of this fountain “are at present received in a basin, about nine or ten paces long, and five or six broad; whence, issuing out in a copious stream, they divide themselves into several small streams, dispersing their refreshment to the land as far as Jericho, and render it exceedingly fruitful. Noble trees grow close by this fountain the spreading boughs of which afford a grateful shade to the traveler.” It must often have been visited by our Lord.

A few miles from Jericho, the Jordan enters the Dead Sea, or Lake Asphaltites. Of the scenery at this spot, an interesting engraving will be found in the first number of the Landscape Illustrations. This Lake is termed Asphaltites from the abundance of asphaltum, a species of bitumen often found floating on it: and it is called the Dead Sea, because it was believed that its waters were fatal to animal life. Before the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrhah, the valley now covered by the Asphaltic Lake, was a peculiarly fertile region, watered by the Jordan, which continued its course onwards to the Red Sea, and fell into the eastern branch of it. Besides Sodom and Gomorrhah, there were three other cities on the Plain, which were destroyed with them, or in consequence of the formation of the Lake. There is nothing in the Mosaic account of this catastrophe, which interferes with the supposition of Dr. Daubeny, that it was occasioned by a volcanic eruption, and that the course of the Jordan being interrupted by a current of lava, the Lake was formed in consequence. That the whole region is volcanic appears from the character of the rocks on the south-eastern side; from the hot springs and gulleys on the south-west; from the quantities of asphaltum floating upon the surface of the water; and from the large proportion, nearly one fourth, of muriatic salts found in its water. The Roman road in the south-east is formed of pieces of lava ; and as it has been already observed, there are indications of volcanic action, in various parts, along the whole course of the Jordan, from its source in the north of Palestine.

The length of the Asphaltic Lake is stated by Josephus at about seventy miles, and its breadth eighteen. Some recent travelers represent it as very much shorter ; but their estimate may have arisen in part from the period of the year when their observations were made. It is very shallow near the shores ; and the intense heat in summer, with the small supply of water at that season, would greatly lessen the extent of the surface. At the southern extremity, it is nearly separated into two parts ; and in summer one may walk across the division. The part so detached is of an oval figure, surrounded with plains and hills of salt. Owing to the extreme degree of salt which the water contains, it is exceedingly buoyant, and at the same time it presents great resistance to bodies moving in it. From the same cause, it is not easily agitated by the winds ; though, like the Lake of Galilee, it is liable to the effect of sudden gusts and hurricanes, occasioned by the mountains which form its basin. It is likewise to be attributed to the acrid saltiness of the water, that no fish are found in it ; and even on its dreary shores, a few snail-shells are all the traces of animal life.

The shores at the northern extremity of the Dead Sea are very flat, and the Jordan before it enters the Lake passes through an extensive alluvial tract, formed of a greyish sandy clay. Pococke describes the stream, at the end of March, as deep, rapid, and turbid, and about as wide as the Thames at Windsor.—The mountains on the side of Judæa, which form the western boundary of the Lake, are less elevated than those on the east. The extremity of the latter is said to consist of dark granite, of various colours. The precipices in general descend abruptly into the Lake ; and the height of the mountain boundaries, with the extent, the solitude, and the general calmness of the Lake, present the combined features of majesty and of desolation. Mr. Hardy arrived with the pilgrims at their resting-place after night-fall. “ It was a beautiful star-light night, without a cloud. The sky was one clear blue, and rested on all sides upon mountains that presented their forms in rugged outline and of the darkest possible shade, the circle of which was only broken towards the south by an expanse of still water forming the Dead Sea.” The Author of Three Weeks in Palestine gives a morning view. “ At the first dawning, the tints of the rising sun, purple and gold, with the deep shadows concealing the nakedness of the land, gave beauty to the landscape. The mountains encircling the Lake, which lay sleeping and motionless beneath them, reflecting their images, supplied a noble outline : but the full glare of day displayed the wilderness in its true colouring of awful desolation. The mountains assumed one uniform dusty-brown livery, unrelieved by even a passing shadow ; for not a cloud was visible in the blazing heavens : the sea was of a dull, heavy, leaden hue, unlike the fresh transparent purple which the living waters of a mountain lake usually display. The ground over which we rode, riven into chasms and ravines, showed not a blade of verdure : the few stunted shrubs that had struggled into life, were masses of thorns, with scarcely a leaf upon them, and wore the brown garb of the desert."

The region west of the Dead Sea towards the south, not only partakes of the general hilly character of the south of Judæa, but abounds in extensive caverns. This is particularly the case in the wilderness of Engeddi, in which is the Convent of Santa Saba, an erection of the sixth century, with many grottoes around it. (Landsc. Illustr. No. 6.) This remarkable structure is situated on the summit of a ravine, several hundred feet deep, through which the Kedron takes its course to the Dead Sea, sometimes swelled by heavy rains to an impetuous torrent, but often with little or no water in its channel. The hills in this desert region are intersected by deep and narrow ravines, filled with wild verdure, in the sides of which are several caverns.

We now return to Bethany to proceed thence to Jerusalem.—This village is situated on the east side of the Mount of Olives. There is still shown a tomb, sunk in the rock, which may have been the burying-place of Lazarus. It is thus described by Mr. Buckingham. "We descended into it by a flight of narrow steps, to the number of about twenty-five, and first reached a small square apartment. Below this, on the left, we descended, by three or four steps, into a vaulted room about eight or ten feet square ; and of sufficient height to allow of our standing upright."—Sandys speaks of Bethphage, as being on the north of the road to Jerusalem ; there appears to be no other authority respecting its situation. The Mount of Olives has three summits, as represented by a rough figure in Sandys ; and the road from Bethany at present lies north of the middle one. From the part of the road where it begins to descend to the south-west, there is a full view of Jerusalem which is seen on an inclined plane lying from the south-west towards the north-east ; and there can be no hesitation in representing this as the spot where, in the midst of the exultation of his disciples, our Saviour wept over the city. Nor is there any room for doubt that it was on the middle summit, which was the highest, and overlooked the Temple, that he uttered the awful prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem, and the all-important declarations respecting the transactions of the more awful day, when 'before him will be gathered all nations', to receive their doom. Harm. p. 214—223. Tradition places the spot whence he ascended into heaven, on the west side of the hill ; but it was certainly on the other side (p. 295) close to Bethany. The Mount of Olives is separated from the city by a kind of ravine, of somewhat irregular curvature, but generally from north to south, through which the Kedron runs, which rises in the flat district north of the city, and, as already stated, winds between rugged and desolate hills, into the Dead Sea. During nine months of the year, this brook has but little water and in the summer, it is quite dry ; but there are bridges over it ; and as it sometimes becomes a torrent, there must have been one, at least, in the days of Christ. The chief bridge is at the northern foot of Mount Moriah, on which the Temple stood, and on which the grand Turkish Mosque now stands. The gate conducting to the city is called St. Stephen's Gate, as being near the place where, it is said, the martyr Stephen was stoned : to the south of this is the Golden Gate leading from the Mosque ; and there was, in like manner, a gate from the Temple towards the Mount of Olives, the highest summit of which, is less than half a mile from it.

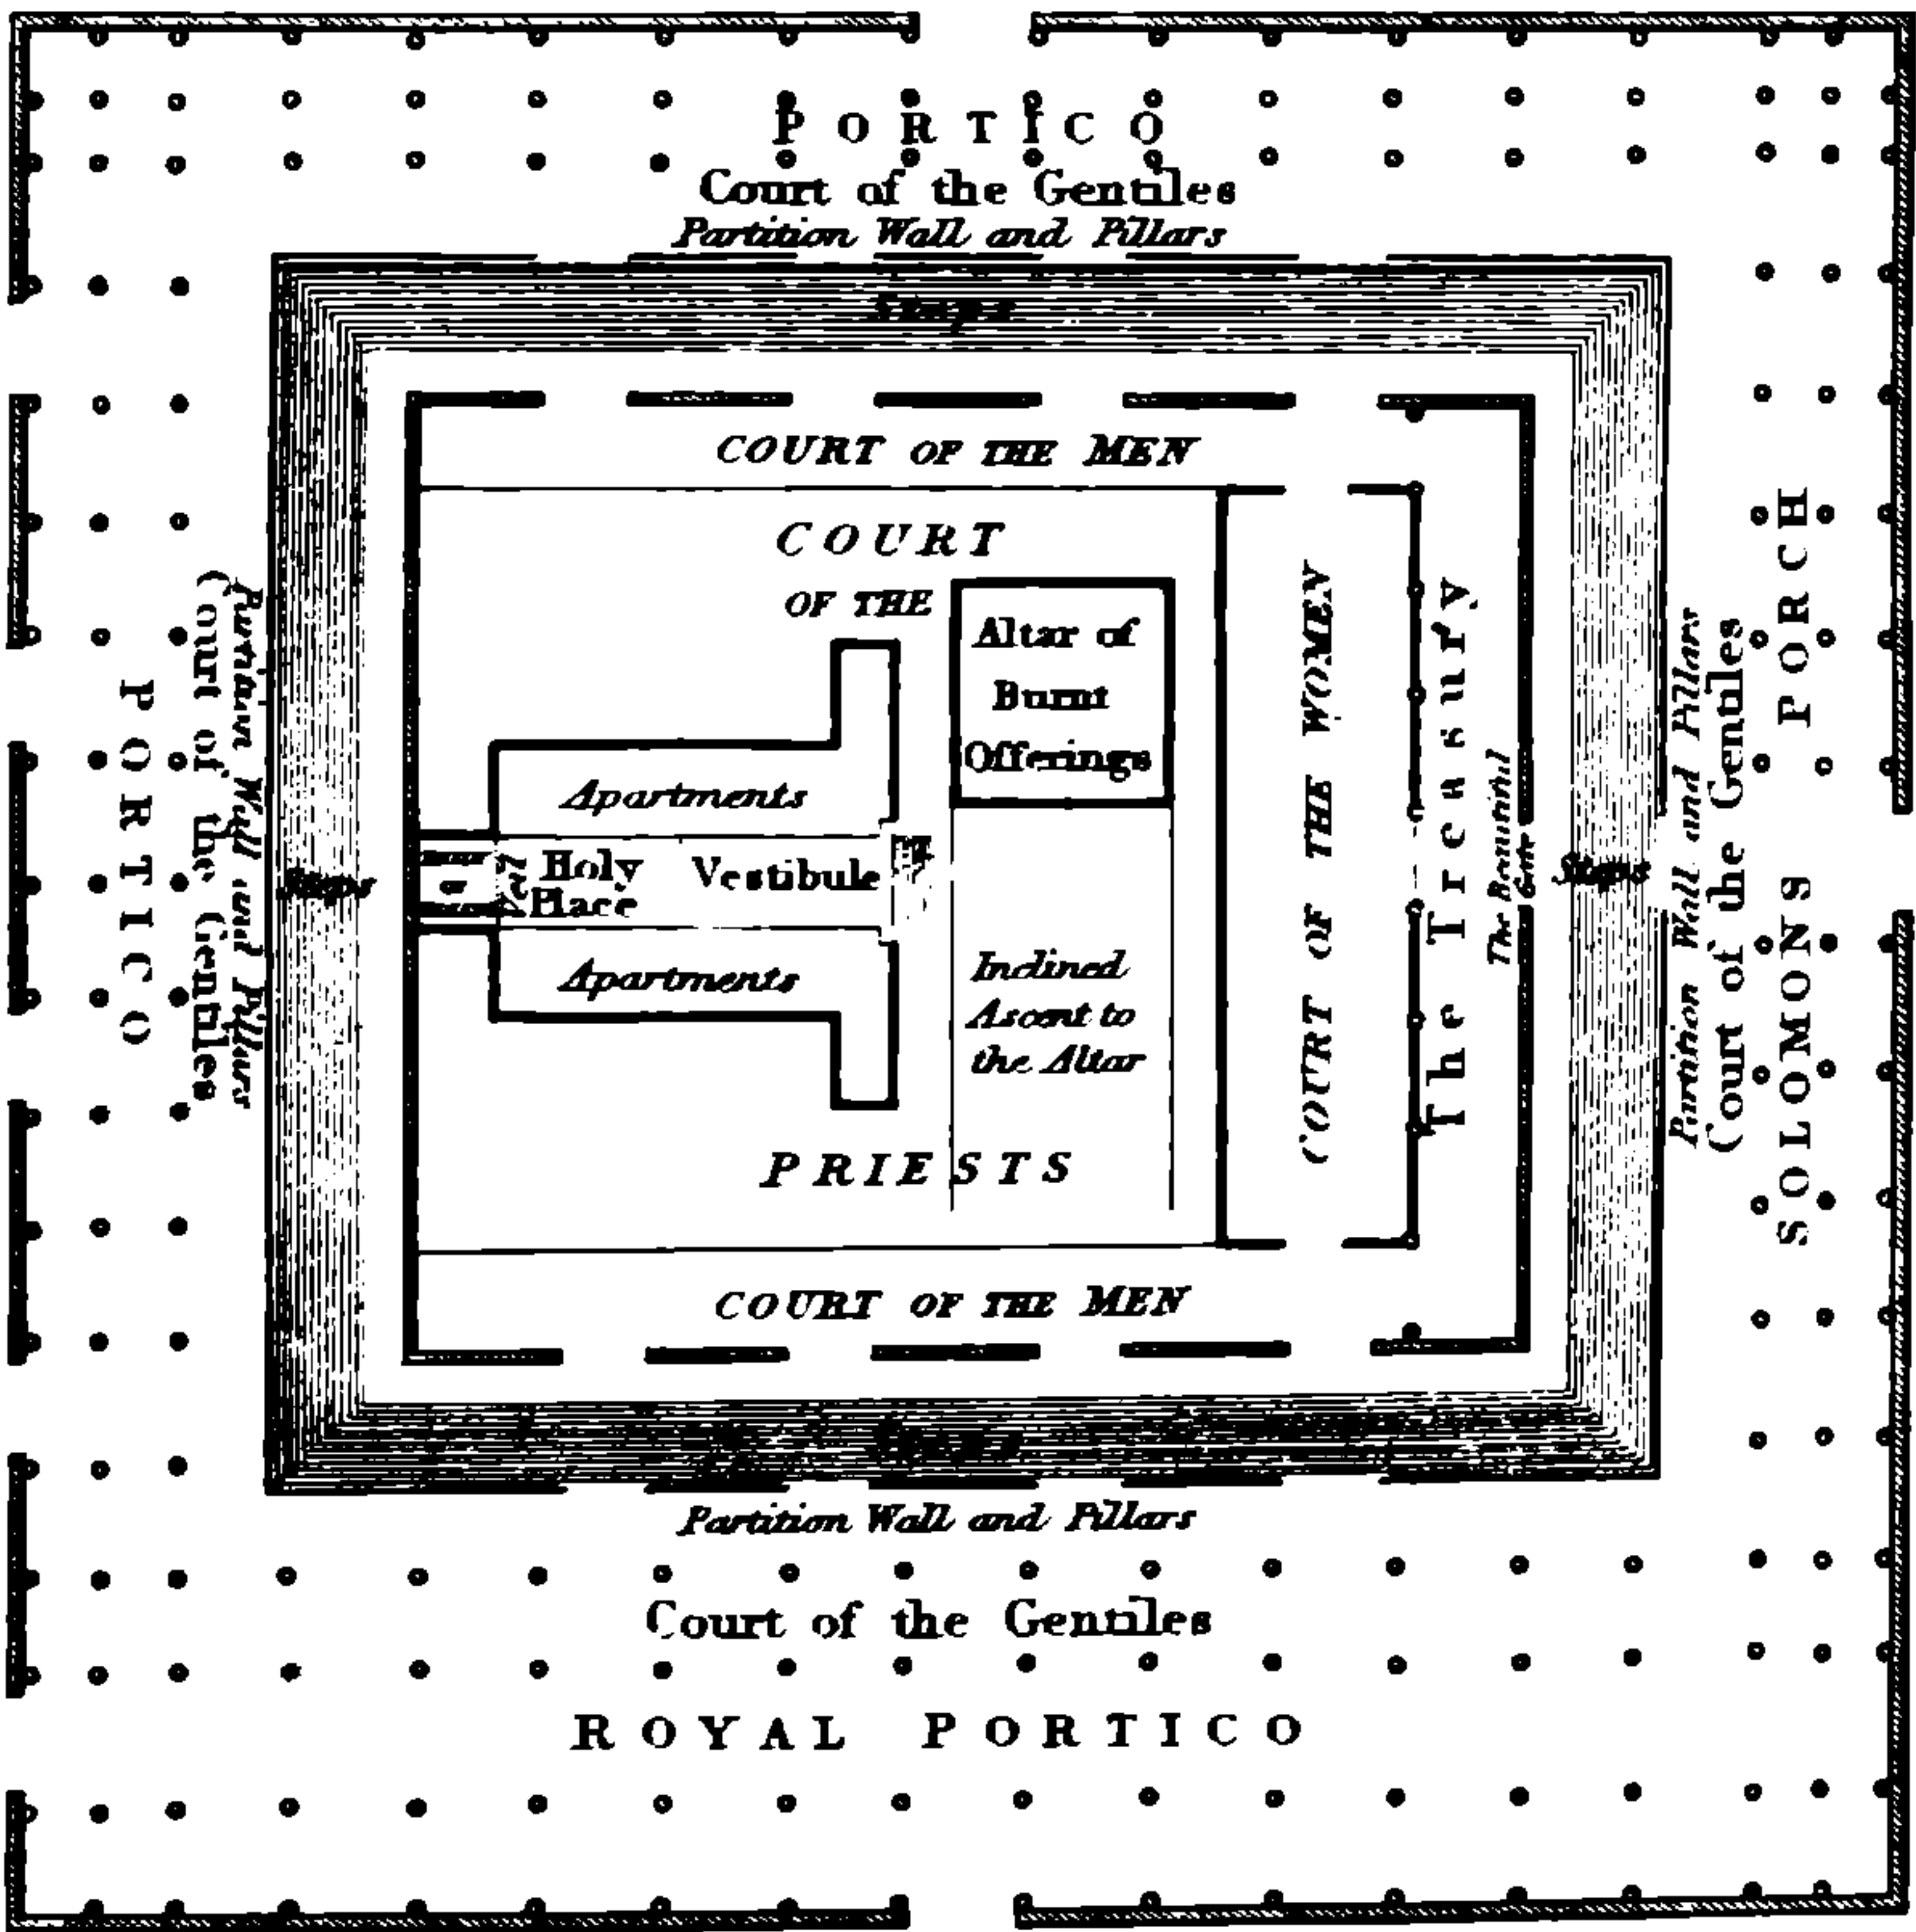

Nothing of the ancient city remains ; but much may be learnt from an accurate survey of its hills. The plan given in this work, is taken from D'Anville, founded on a sketch of modern Jerusalem by Deshayes. The supposed course of the present walls is marked by a dotted line ; but the Plan by Catherwood had not then been seen, which is delineated from actual measurement : it is, however, sufficiently near for our present purpose, which respects only the state of Jerusalem in the time of our Lord. In describing this, D'Anville's Dissertation, given in the Appendix to Chateaubriand's Travels, will be much employed, with Mr. Hardy's recent account ; great aid being derived from Mr. Catherwood's Plan of Jerusalem.

Josephus gives us a general idea of Jerusalem when he says (Bell. Jud. VI. vi.) that it is seated on two hills facing one another, and separated by a valley. That which was called the Upper City, occupied Mount Sion, the most extensive as well as the most elevated of these hills ; the other, Mount Acra, was the site of the Lower City. The most remarkable declivity of Sion is on the west and the south sides, sinking into a deep ravine, through which flows a brook called Gihon, proceeding from pools which also are so named, the upper of which is at the foot of Mount Gihon, situated westwards of Acra. The west and south-west part of this ravine was called the Valley of Gihon or Rephaim ; the southern part was called Gehenna, or the Valley of Hinnom. Near where this valley joins that of the Kedron, the Jews, in the period of the Kings, placed an image of Moloch, and sacrificed to it even their own children. To prevent the cries of the victims being heard, drums were beaten ; and hence this valley was called Tophet, from toph, a drum. After this abominable worship had been ended, the ravine was employed as the receptacle of the filth of the city, and even the carcasses of criminals were thrown there. To consume these impure substances, fires were kept continually burning ; and from this circumstance, and the fact that worms

PLAN OF JERUSALEM.

GROUND PLAN OF THE TEMPLE.

Drawn and Engraved for Dr. Carpenter's Harmony by J. & C. Walker.

were always feeding on the refuse, Gehenna supplied the imagery, by which, in the time of our Lord, the punishments of a future life were denoted. The southern part of the Valley of Hinnom enters, on the east, into the valley of Kedron; and thus the extent of Mount Sion is defined. The modern city occupies very little of it.

Acra rose to the north of Sion; its east side looking towards Mount Moriah, on which the Temple was situated, and from which it was separated only by a valley; and this the Maccabees had partly filled up, by lowering the summit of Acra, because Antiochus Epiphanes had erected a fortress upon it, to overawe the city and annoy the Temple.

Mount Moriah was at first only an irregular hill; and to give sufficient space on it for the area of the Temple, its sides were supported by immense works. The east side bordered on the valley of the Kedron, which was very deep. (See Finden, Nos. 1 and 10.) The south side, overlooking a very low spot, was faced from top to bottom with a very strong wall, of about 150 yards in height; and for its connection with Sion, a bridge or terrace was erected across the intervening space. On the north, an artificial trench separated the Temple from a hill named Bezetha, which was afterwards joined to the city by an extension of its area.

Golgotha, or Calvary, the place of execution for criminals, was not, of course, within the walls: and if the site of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre corresponds with that of Calvary, the wall of the city could not have extended far to the west of the Temple. Modern travelers are much divided in their opinion on this point: after considering all the reasonings I have met with, I accord with the judgment of those who hold that Calvary was where tradition has placed it. D'Anville states, on the authority of Epiphanius, that Jews who had been converted to Christianity took up their abode in the ruins of the city, after its destruction by Titus; and it is most improbable that the spot should have been then, or before, unknown, where the solemnly-affecting scene of the crucifixion took place. There may have been difficulty in discovering the tomb of Christ, when the Empress Helena erected the Church of the Holy Sepulchre; but there could surely be none in discovering the spot where he was crucified.—In considering this matter, it is always to be recollected, that before Herod Agrippa, the northern limit of the city did not extend beyond Fort Antonia; and we have only to suppose that the wall inclined thence a little to the south, and we exclude the elevated spot called Calvary;—Bezetha, the new City, having no share in deciding the direction of the western course of the wall.* If we know the site of

* Since the above was written, I have obtained the Plan of Jerusalem referred to in p. ciii., by Mr. Catherwood, Architect of Hoxton, which was published at the beginning Calvary, we know the general locality of the sepulchre ; and whether or not the form and size of it were what they are described to be in the time of Maundrell, we are quite certain, from the description of the Evangelist, that it was a cave hewn out in the side of a rock ; and we may reasonably believe, therefore, that the front of it was artificial, so as to contract the opening into it.

At the head of the western ravine, there was a gate which formed the entrance to the city from Joppa, Bethlehem, &c. A short way to the northwards of this gate, was the hill of Calvary, at some distance to the west of which was Mount Gihon. From this place the ground gradually rises, Mr. Hardy says, till it reaches the north-west corner of the present wall, where the gate of Damascus is ; from which it declines as far as the north-east corner, when it becomes more level. About a mile from the wall, on the right hand of the Damascus road, are those sepulchral caverns of the kings which are mentioned by Josephus, and fully described by Hardy and other modern travelers ; and which, as they are on the route to Galilee through Samaria, our Lord may have sometimes visited.* Northwards of the city, the country is level for some distance ; and it is from this side that the best view of modern Jerusalem is obtained. After passing the north-eastern corner of the city, we come into the valley of the Kedron, which, near the site of the Temple, between the city and the Mount of Olives, becomes much deeper and narrower, and there is termed the Valley of Jehoshaphat.

Opposite St. Stephen's Gate, above the north-east part of the Temple, close to the bridge and the road to Bethany, was the Garden of Gethsemane, the present state of which, with Moriah in the back ground, is depicted, just as one would desire to see it, in No. 20 of the Landscape Illustrations. " When Mr. Catherwood was here in 1834", says the Rev. T. W. Horne, of August last. It is very beautiful and valuable ; yet is charged only one shilling. The various hills, valleys, &c., with the walls, streets, and buildings of the modern city, are all distinctly marked ; and this Plan gives great information respecting the extent both of the ancient and of the modern city. It decidedly accords with the opinion above expressed, as to the situation of Calvary.—The reader will please to regard the Plan in this volume as only an approximation to the truth ; yet sufficient to give an adequate idea of the relative position of places connected with the eventful week after our Lord's arrival at Bethany, on the Sunday before the Passover. In the description of the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, I shall, however, henceforwards avail myself of the information, presuming that I may rest on the faithfulness and accuracy, of Mr. Catherwood.

* Catherwood supposes the ancient wall of Bezetha to have extended so as to enclose even the Tombs of the Kings, in which he surely must be in error : I do myself perceive nothing else to correct. He has rendered great service to all who feel the importance of scriptural topography.

in his description of the engraving, "taking the drawings for his beautiful panorama of Jerusalem, it was planted with olive, almond, and fig trees. Eight of the olive trees are so large that they are said to have been in existence ever since the time of Jesus Christ. Although we are informed by Josephus that Titus cut down all the trees within one hundred furlongs of the city, yet it is not improbable that these trees (which are unquestionably of very remote antiquity) may have arisen from the roots of the ancient trees; because the olive is very long-lived, and possesses the peculiar property of shooting up again, however frequently it may be cut down. The trees, now standing in the Garden of Gethsemane, are of the species known to botanists as the Olea Europæa: they are wild olives, and appear pollarded from extreme age, and their stems are very rough and knarled." The sketch from which the drawing of this most interesting spot has been prepared, was made by Mrs. Bracebridge, to whom many must feel under deep obligations for it. —From the bridge, it appears, a foot-path to Bethany branches off to the south-east of the main road; and this we may reasonably suppose to have been the course which was taken by the women on their way back to Bethany, after the resurrection, and in which they saw the Lord. Harm. p. 277. From the commencement of the ravine of the Kedron, to the end, Hardy says, with the exception of the slopes under the Temple, the sides are perforated with sepulchres hewn out in the rock; some having only one room, and others eight or ten. They are of all sizes, from two yards square to twenty: some of them lofty; and in general high enough for a man to walk upright in them. Farther down the valley, is another bridge over the Kedron; and on the east side of it are some ancient sepulchral monuments, two of which, with their columns and ornaments, have been cut out of the rock where they stand. One of these, which is figured in different works, is called the pillar of Absalom; but Hardy shows that the designation is unfounded, though the monument may have been erected in the time of the Maccabees. About and above these sepulchres, are the graves of modern Jews, in countless numbers. They believe that the last judgment will take place in the Valley of Jehoshaphat; and it is the most earnest desire of the pious Israelite, that his bones should be laid there. After passing the Temple, we come to the village of Siloam, in the steep sides of the hill opposite Mount Sion; most of the houses having been tombs, the village cannot have existed in the period of the Gospel history. Opposite to it, near the southern side of the Temple, is the Pool of Siloam; and at the south-western corner of the ancient wall of Sion, is another pool so designated, above which was the Tower of Siloam.—On this side of the city—the region of Mount Sion—the descent was perpendicular, with a strong wall from top to bottom, and immense outworks; but "so many ruins, says Hardy, have been thrown down it, that it may now be ascended without much difficulty. The valley is occupied by gardens, watered from the stream that supplies the pool, the whole of which is soon lost in the numerous little rills into which it is divided." The royal gardens are believed to have been situated here, which brings us back to the period of the Gospels; and near them, by this lower pool of Siloam, tradition places the tomb of Isaiah.—The southern summit of the Mount of Olives is over the village of Siloam; and the caravan road to Jericho, pursued by Lamartine, winds to the south of it.

D'Anville's Plan of Jerusalem is peculiarly framed on the account given by Josephus, respecting the extent and direction of its walls, in connection with the information derived from Deshayes, as to the extent of its hills. It is not necessary for our purpose to follow his details; and all that we add from him as to this outer survey, is that, according to Josephus, at the time of its greatest extent, the circumference of the city did not exceed thirty-two stadia, that is four miles. Mr. Catherwood's Plan, conjectural as to the northern boundary of Bezetha, very closely accords with this. At the south-eastern corner of the ancient city, the valley of the Kedron enters into that of Hinnom, already described (p. civ); and on entering the latter, south of the Gihon, is a spot which tradition says is Akeldama, the field purchased with the price of Judas's treachery. Opposite Mount Sion, is a hill called the Hill of Evil Counsel; round which, on the east, run the aqueducts that bring water from near Bethlehem; and on which, tradition says, was the country-house of Caiaphas, at which the faction of the High-Priest formed their malignant purpose against our Lord. Few only of the almost numberless traditions connected with Jerusalem, are worthy of notice; and none will be stated which are in themselves frivolous, or are entirely destitute of probability: but some, if held as resting on tradition only, may serve to give a probable locality to known facts. For this purpose we may mention the following. About the central part of Mount Sion, is placed the Palace of Caiaphas; and near it, towards the Temple, the House of Annas. Southwards of the former, is placed the house of Mary, the mother of Mark; and still further the house of the Last Supper. There is no improbability in any of these. More securely, however, we may say that the Palace of Herod the Tetrarch lay a few hundred yards northwards from the north-west corner of the Temple: Mr. Catherwood makes Acra extend so far; but Herod's Palace is usually placed on Bezetha. We know certainly that at the north-west corner of the Temple, was the fortress of Antonia, which protected the Outer Court of the Temple; and that to this it had access by a flight of steps. This fortress served as the residence of the Roman Governor when he came to Jerusalem at the festivals, and it thus became the Prætorium. To enable the Jews to bring their causes before the Governor, without entering the abode of a Gentile, there was, in front of it, a raised pavement called Gab-batha, on which his tribunal was set. At the north-east corner of the Temple wall, was the Pool of Bethesda, where animals were washed that were designed for sacrifices.

The foregoing are all the places which are of interest, in connection with the narratives of the Evangelists, either within or without the city, the Temple excepted, with an account of which this survey will be concluded.

The magnificent structure called the Temple, included not only the edifice appropriated to divine worship, with its peculiar courts, but also the surrounding court and porticoes. The whole formed a square which was nearly half a mile in circuit; and the sides of it faced the north, south, east, and west respectively. This is the statement of Josephus respecting the extent of the Temple; but it is supposed by D'Anville to be much less than the reality. The Mosque on the site of it extends further in length than what Josephus assigns to the outer wall of the Temple: * but I see no reason to doubt his authority.

Josephus was born in the year 37. He was himself a Priest, of the sect of the Pharisees; and he was so early and fully instructed in the Jewish religion, that when he was about fourteen, the Chief Priests, and some of the principal men of the city, came frequently to consult him on the interpretation of the Law; and from nineteen years of age, he began to act in public life. He afterwards went to Rome, on behalf of some his fellow Priests, returning three or four years before the War broke out; and during that visit he received much honour from Poppæa, the Emperor Nero's wife. He saw the whole progress of public affairs, towards the final ruin of his country; and had a large share in the military operations in Galilee. When Jotapata was taken, (a fortress about ten miles north of Sephoris,) his life was remarkably preserved; and he was in the camp of Titus during the siege of Jerusalem; as a prisoner, indeed, but with every possible opportunity of knowledge. Altogether, he was eminently qualified to be the historian of his nation, at the period when the awful calamities came upon it which the Rulers and their faction had imprecated upon themselves; and though he takes no notice of the great events recorded by the Evangelists, yet by his records he furnishes an invaluable comment on the prophecy of our Lord respecting the ruin of the nation, and the destruction of the city and Temple of Jerusalem.

* It deserves consideration whether towards the south, (if not as well towards the north), the platform may not, for the sake of security, have been extended beyond the outer wall; and the Mahommedans have taken the whole of this, for the area of their Mosque. On the east no security was needed, on account of the rock: on the west, Aera was a support to the immense structure: on the north, it seems scarcely to have been needed; but on the south, the platform probably required to be extended, in order to give a foundation.

It is not an admissible supposition, that such an historian, himself present at the catastrophe which he records, and previously well acquainted with the structure which he describes, should omit to avail himself of the last opportunity to make that description accurate, by actual measurement of what was about to undergo utter destruction. The Romans fully accomplished the prediction of Christ—'not one stone shall be left on another'; and to show how completely they laid waste the city, they did not leave off their work of destruction till they had rased even the foundations, and passed a plough over the ruins. Now Josephus was present; and he had every motive as a Jew, and as one well-disposed to please his conquerors, to give a correct account of that which needed no exaggeration to record its magnificence. Titus had seen the whole; and exaggeration by Josephus here, would have lessened his credibility elsewhere: but, on the other hand, it is inconceivable that Josephus would say less than the truth.

The foregoing considerations decide me to keep close to the particulars given respecting the Temple by Josephus; and the plan which has been engraved for this work, is, like that in the second edition of Seaton's map of Palestine, derived from what I constructed for my Introduction to the Geography of the New Testament, first published in 1806.

All round the outer wall, were magnificent porticoes, the roofs of which, adorned with carved cedar, were supported by massy columns, each consisting of one solid piece of white marble. On the north, east, and west sides, the columns were thirty-six feet high; and there were three rows; but as one was in the outer wall, these porticoes were double, as Josephus expressly calls them. The whole breadth was forty-five feet; and considering the length, which was nearly a furlong on each side, the height and beauty of the columns, and the ornaments of the roof, the appearance of the whole must have been very magnificent, as well as elegantly simple. The portico on the east, there is reason to believe, was called Solomon's Portico; probably because there alone were remains of Solomon's Temple. It is mentioned in John x. 22, and in Acts v. 12; and as there was little passing through that portico, it was peculiarly adapted for the purposes therein referred to. It was also opposite that entrance into the Inner Court which must, from various circumstances, have been most frequented.

Along the south side, was a still more magnificent structure, called the Royal Portico. This had four rows of columns, dividing it into three aisles; and, in arrangement, it much resembled the choir of a cathedral, supposing a side wall of this building to be removed. The outer and inner aisles, were each thirty feet broad, and the middle one was forty-five. The roofs of the two smaller, were fifty feet from the ground, and the middle one rose as high again. The columns of this portico were twenty-seven feet high, and as thick as three men could encircle with arms extended. From the height of the columns compared with that of the roofs, it is evident that there were chambers over the outer and inner aisles, of this portico, and perhaps over the other porticoes also. On this structure, Herod appears to have employed his greatest efforts and expense; and the whole was ornamented with all that Grecian architecture could achieve, under the limits prescribed by the religion of the Jews.

At no great distance from the porticoes was an elegant stone wall or balustrade, about five feet high, with pillars upon it, bearing inscriptions which forbade Gentiles and other persons legally unclean, to go further, on pain of death: from this circumstance, the space between this 'middle wall of partition' and the boundary of the Temple, has been called the Court of the Gentiles. Here alone, then, could the devout Gentile worship Jehovah; and if, as was often the case, he brought holocausts to be offered on the altar of the Lord, he might perceive the smoke ascending from them in the air; but the altar itself he never saw; he could see no more of what was within the Inner Court, than could be discerned from the Mount of Olives, or through the eastern gate. Now it was in this Court, where alone the Gentiles could worship, that the Chief Priests, sharing without doubt in the profit of the traffic, permitted the venders of animals for sacrifice, and those who gave the shekel of the sanctuary for the Roman or foreign coin, to take their station.

Within the balustrade, all round the inner wall, was a magnificent series of steps, in two flights. This wall inclosed the Inner Court, which, though sixty feet above the pavement of the Outer Court, rose only forty above that of the Inner, on account of its greater elevation. Among the entrances to it, there was one gate on the east, which, among the splendid, was peculiarly splendid. Like the rest, it was forty-five feet high, and half that in breadth; but it was made of Corinthian brass; and it was covered with thicker plates of gold and silver than the others. There is no reason to doubt, that this is what was called the Beautiful Gate of the Temple; and through it the Israelitish women would naturally pass, as their appropriated place for worship was in front of the Temple itself.

All along the eastern side of the Inner Court, was a portico, under which were placed the chests designed to receive the gifts of the worshipers. It is probable that this is what was termed the Treasury.

In front of this portico was the Court of the Women, to which they ascended, from the Beautiful Gate, by another flight of steps; and to this succeeded the Court of the Priests, which was separated from the rest of the Court, in front and on the sides, by a low wall of elegant structure ; and into this the Priests and Levites alone were permitted to enter. Here, to the east of the Temple, stood the Altar of Burnt-Offerings, a large massy structure, seventy-five feet in length and breadth, and twenty-two feet high, having an inclined ascent to it from the south. On this altar, two lambs were offered as holocausts, at the morning and at the evening sacrifice. The front of the Temple, properly so called, was a square, one hundred and fifty feet each way ; but the breadth speedily contracted to ninety feet : the projecting part seems most to correspond with what is called the ' wing of the Temple', in the narrative of the Temptation. A large opening in this front, one hundred and five feet high by about forty broad, without any doors, led into the Vestibule, which was ten feet narrower than the opening,* but rose above it thirty feet, and extended seventy-five feet. The walls of this Vestibule were covered over with gold ; and so were the large folding doors at the end of it, opening into the Holy Place. Before these doors, there was a magnificent Babylonian curtain, extending from top to bottom ; and above the entrance were golden vines, from which hung clusters of golden grapes five or six feet long.

The Holy Place, which succeeded to the Vestibule, was of the same width ; but it was only ninety feet high and sixty long. In this were kept the Golden Candlestick, the Altar of Incense, and the Table of Showbread. And there the Priests performed their daily ministrations.

Beyond this was the Holy of Holies ; of the same breadth as the preceding, but only thirty feet long, thus forming a square. This had the full height of the whole building. There were no rooms above it, or on the sides of it ; but along the sides of the Vestibule and the Holy Place, were numerous apartments communicating with the Vestibule ; and there were some, apparently, over the Holy Place. The Holy of Holies contained nothing, after the Babylonish Captivity ; and it was never entered except by the High Priest, and by him only on the day of annual expiation. It was separated from the Holy Place, only by a veil, which, at the awful hour of darkness when our Saviour expired, was rent, without human agency, from top to bottom ; indicating that the distinctions of ritual sanctity were now to be abolished. This fearful presage occurred at the very hour of evening sacrifice, when many Priests were ministering within the Temple ; and that sanctuary was necessarily beheld by them, which, since it had been consecrated, no Jewish eye had yet seen but the High-Priest's.—No wonder that we read in the sacred history (Acts vi. 7) that ' a great company of the Priests became obedient to the faith'.

* This circumstance is not, I perceive, denoted in the Plan of the Temple ; nor does it appear where the contraction began.

The stones of which the Temple was constructed, were of an immense size: according to Josephus, some of them were sixty-six feet long, nine broad, and seven high. These dimensions appear to us almost incredible; but some much larger in bulk, and nearly as long, were measured by Maundrell at Balbeck.

The proportions and form of the Temple would not suit the taste of modern times; but the effect of the whole must have been singularly magnificent. “To strangers, who approached the capital, says the Jewish historian, the Temple appeared, at some distance, like a huge mountain of snow, decorated with gold; for where it was not covered with plates of gold, it was exceedingly white and glistering.” The appearance of the great front, at sun-rising, when viewed from the Mount of Olives, and still more from the eastern side of the Inner Court, must have been radiant beyond all description. Indeed Josephus says, the effulgence was so strong and dazzling that the eye of the beholder could not bear it.—It was in the Treasury, just opposite this vast surface of gold, and early in the morning, that Jesus, himself ‘the effulgence of the divine glory’, said to the assembled people, ‘I am the Light of the world.’—Here, and in various other cases, the knowledge of the circumstances adds to the impressiveness of his divine truths.

Such was the structure, of which our Lord, when it was in full magnificence before him, foretold the utter ruin; and forty years afterwards, ‘before that generation passed away,’ his prophetic declarations were fully accomplished, notwithstanding the earnest endeavours of the conqueror to save the Temple, when Jerusalem was taken.

The same heavenly messenger that uttered this declaration, hath also declared, that the hour will come when ‘all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil to the resurrection of condemnation.’

HEAVEN AND EARTH SHALL PASS AWAY; BUT HIS WORDS SHALL NOT PASS AWAY.

The Engravings in the following list, would form a series of interesting and instructive illustrations for the foregoing survey of the districts in which our Lord resided or journeyed. They are arranged in the order in which the subjects occur in the survey. The most illustrative are marked with an asterisk.

Mountain Scenery of Judæa : (Ramlah)	Landsc. Illustr.	No. 4
Bethlehem	ditto	No. 5
* Ramah (probably Arimathæa) and Mountains of Judæa ..	ditto	No. 12
* Sychar under Mount Gerizim.....	ditto	No. 11
* Jacob's Well and Mount Gerizim	ditto	No. 18
Approach to the Castle of Sanpoor in Samaria.....	Buckingham, p. 548
Cana of Galilee	Landsc. Illustr.	No. 19
* Bay of Ptolemais from Carmel.....	ditto	No. 4
* Nazareth (Plate II.)	ditto	No. 9

This second plate is every thing that could be desired, supposing it to be a faithful representation : it gives a clear idea of the features of the hallowed valley, and of the precipice on which the town was situated.

* Mount Tabor	Landsc. Illustr.	No. 10
* Kishon and Mount Carmel	ditto	No. 6
* Tiberias and the Lake of Galilee.....	Dr. Clarke's Travels
Fountain of the Jordan	Madox's Excursions
View of Lebanon	Landsc. Illustr.	No. 3
* Hills of Judæa, near Jericho	ditto	No. 12
* Ford of the Jordan above Jericho.....	ditto	No. 4
* The Jabbock and the Hills of Bashan.....	Edinb. Cab. Library
* Defile on the Road from Jerusalem to Jericho	Three Weeks in Palest.
* Elisha's Pool near Jericho.....	Landsc. Illustr.	No. 3
* Mouth of the Jordan and the Dead Sea	ditto	No. 1
Rocks of Engeddi	ditto	No. 6
* Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives	Three Weeks in Palest.
Valley of the Kedron, and Absalom's Pillar	Landsc. Illustr.	No. 1
* Moriah and the Valley of Jehoshaphat	ditto	No. 10
Sepulchres of the Kings	ditto	No. 16
* Garden of Gethsemane	ditto	No. 20

The Findens' " Landscape Illustrations of the Bible, consisting of Views of the most Remarkable Places mentioned in the Old and New Testaments", now publishing in numbers having four plates each, (and also in the volumes of the Biblical Annual,) will form a work of singular interest and value, in proportion to the care employed in selection, and to the faithfulness, as well as spirit, of the delineations given. The eminent Artists who finish the original sketches, should bear in mind that the first object is not to produce beautiful drawings, but true representations of the respective scenery ; and the Proprietors who decide upon the selection, should sedulously keep close to the purpose of the work, as declared by the Title. We may bear with an engraving of the Prison at Rome in which Paul was confined, though it is not a Landscape ; but Gates and Buildings in the present city of Jerusalem, and especially the Pulpit in a Turkish Mosque, do not fall within the avowed scope of the work.

I am authorized to say, that Messrs. Finden will allow copies of the above mentioned engravings from the Landscape Illustrations to be sold separately from the work, at 1s. each ; and that they may be had from Mr. Charles Tilt, Fleet Street, or Mr. Rowland Hunter, St. Paul's.

DISSERTATION IV.

ON THE SUCCESSION OF THE EVENTS RECORDED IN THE GOSPELS; GIVING AN OUTLINE VIEW OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

By the First Dissertation I venture to consider it as proved—

I. That our Lord's Ministry included Two Passovers only: And

II. That the Miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought when that Passover was approaching, at which our Lord was crucified.

In the Second Dissertation, I have advanced what appears to me adequate reason for the position—

III. That in framing a Chronological Arrangement of the Records of our Lord's Ministry, a general preference is due to St. Matthew's order of events where it differs from that of Mark and Luke.

Any one of the foregoing positions may be true, though the other two could be shown to be unfounded; and the last is in no way necessary for the support of the two former. But the following Arrangement is founded, essentially, upon the whole of the three.

Besides the foregoing fundamental positions, there are two others which are of great auxiliary service.

IV. That the portion of St. Luke's Gospel which is contained in the xth and following chapters, as far as the 11th verse of the xviith, is a Miscellaneous Collection of Discourses and other Occurrences, recorded, in general, without reference to the order of time; and that we are at full liberty to arrange the separate Records of which that Gnomology is composed, in the position which best suits the chronological order, as established by the Gospels of the Apostles Matthew and John.

This last principle of arrangement has also been considered in the Second Dissertation. To this I add, as what affords a satisfactory guidance where there are no sufficient grounds for decision as to the succession of events—

VI. That portions which are connected by contiguity in any Gospel should not be needlessly separated from each other.

Having sufficient reason to maintain that every national Festival which occurred during our Lord's Ministry, together with the Feast of Dedication, has a distinct record, all difficulty ceases respecting the dates to be assigned to the various portions of St. John's Gospel. All the intervening occurrences we must, in general, arrange by the aid of St. Matthew's Gospel.

The position of the Miracle of the Five Thousand, in St. Matthew's Gospel, (viz. after the apprehensive inquiries of Herod, from which period that Gospel represents our Lord as principally in those parts of North Palestine where he would not be within reach of that cruel and crafty prince,) taken in connection with the definite statement of St. John, that it was wrought when the Passover was nigh, requires us to place that Miracle some considerable time after the Feast of Dedication. And this is also required by the occurrences which are recorded by St. John as taking place after this Festival.

St. Matthew gives no record of our Lord's going to Jerusalem when the Dedication was approaching; and there is nothing in St. John's record which would lead to the belief that Jesus was then attended by his Apostles. Now in the xth chapter, St. Matthew records the Mission of the Apostles; and from St. Mark's very definite statement, in ch. vi. 30, as well as from St. Luke's, which corresponds with it (Harm. p. 135), there is good reason to believe that, speaking of the Apostles in general, their absence continued till just before the Miracle of the Five Thousand. Some of the Apostles, as well as other disciples, had joined our Lord in the Peræa, (see John xi. 16); but the chief and complete gathering of the Apostles evidently took place in consequence of the intelligence respecting the Death of the Baptist.—We may reasonably place our Lord's visit to Jerusalem, and the subsequent occurrences recorded in John x. 22—xi. 54, in the interval between the Mission and the general Return of the Apostles; and the occurrences which are recorded by St. Matthew in that interval, are naturally to be referred to it. There is one exception to this last, which will be separately considered; but besides this, all the facts recorded in the xith and two following chapters of Matthew, (see p. xliii.), may be considered as belonging to the period during which the Apostles generally were engaged in their mission.

There is one remarkable fact recorded by St. Luke alone, of which St. Matthew takes no notice—the Mission of the Seventy. The latter Evangelist records some declarations of Christ which the former has connected with this event; but from St. Matthew's Gospel alone, the selection and mission of these disciples could not have been known, or even suspected. For the reasons stated in the Second Dissertation, (see pp. liii and liv), I do not hesitate in placing the Mission of the Seventy in the interval during which the Apostles were absent, and in referring their ministry to the Peræa. How this explains the silence of Matthew respecting it, is sufficiently obvious. See Diss. II. Sect i.

Supposing, then, that the Feast of Dedication occurred during the first interval in St. Matthew's history that preceded the Crucifixion—viz. after the Mission of the Apostles—we are necessarily carried back, from that event, to the commencement of our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee after the Imprisonment of John, before a suitable position can be found for the Feast of Tabernacles, which, we know from St. John, our Lord attended. The Gospel of Matthew, from ch. iv. 12 to ch. xi. 1, is a closely-connected narrative, which presents no interval in which that Festival can be placed, with any probability: and, indeed, if a journey of our Lord to Jerusalem, at the time of that great national Festival, attended as it was by events so remarkable, had occurred during that period of his Ministry which is the object of that narrative, it is scarcely conceivable that no notice whatever of it should have been taken by the Evangelist. Yet none is taken. I therefore place the Tabernacles before the time when Jesus began to make his public proclamation as the Messiah, 'Repent! for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.'

This position of the Tabernacles is still further required by the words of our Lord's kinsmen in John vii. 3, 4—'Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles was at hand: his brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples also may see the works that thou doest; for there is no man that doeth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly: if thou do these things, show thyself to the world'. I have already shown (p. xxxvii) how inconsistent this fact is with the supposition, that the Tabernacles occurred after the Miracle of the Five Thousand, and the subsequent occurrences in Galilee; and I now state that it is, in my judgment, alike inconsistent with the supposition, that they occurred after that astonishing series of miracles which were wrought after the Imprisonment of John, and were attended with the utmost publicity. In Christ's first progress through Galilee, after that event, 'there followed him (Matt. iv. 25) great multitudes of people from Galilee and Decapolis and Jerusalem and Judea and the Country beyond the Jordan'; and there is no indication of any interval in this succession of mighty works, from the time of its commencement to the Mission of the Twelve.—I place, therefore, the Feast of Tabernacles before its commencement: and when it is considered that this great Festival took place at the conclusion of the husbandman's autumnal labours; that it was at the commencement of a season, settled as to weather, and moderate as to temperature; and, further, that some of the ceremonies of the Festival itself had a special reference to the Messiah, and that our Lord, by his discourses and miracles during it, must have awakened the attention and raised the expectations of the tens and hundreds of thousands who had then come to Jerusalem from all parts of Palestine;—it must be admitted that this was a suitable period for our Lord to begin his Public Ministry in Galilee, and that these circumstances well accord with the fact that, as soon as he began, great multitudes at once flocked around him.

The first three Evangelists supply us with information respecting the commencement of our Lord's Ministry, in their records of his Baptism, and his subsequent abode in the Desert. From his return to the Baptist, till after the Pentecost, we have a full and distinct record in the Gospel of John. On the interval of comparative retirement between that Festival and the Feast of Tabernacles, observations will be offered to the reader in the Outline View which constitutes the second portion of this Dissertation.

I now proceed to the only essential objection I am acquainted with, against my view of the succession of events in our Lord's Ministry; viz. that the record of the Walk through the Corn-fields stands, in St. Matthew's Gospel (ch. xii. 1—18), after the Mission of the Twelve, and before the Miracle of the Five Thousand. Various changes might be admitted in the details of my Arrangement, without affecting its leading outlines; but if it could be established that the Apostle placed that record where it now stands in his Gospel, for the purpose of deciding the chronological order of the occurrences which he has himself related, then must some great and essential change take place in those leading outlines: for, since the wheat is reaped in Palestine soon after the Pentecost, most if not all of the events preceding the occurrence referred to, must have taken place before that Festival. If so, we must either, with Dr. Priestley, consider all that had so far succeeded the Imprisonment of the Baptist, as occurring between the First Passover and the Pentecost; * or, according to the Tripaschal System, consider them as occurring before a Passover preceding that of the Crucifixion.

In reference to this difficulty I observe,

1. That though St. Matthew, from the natural tendencies of an accurate

* Dr. Priestley transposes the vith chapter of John, so as to stand before the vth; and places the Public Preaching of Christ in Galilee, so far as to include his Discourse after the Miracle of the Five Thousand, between the First Passover and the succeeding Pentecost. He also considers our Lord's Final Departure from Galilee after his Transfiguration, as taking place before the Feast of Tabernacles. These statements will give the reader a sufficient general idea of his arrangement.

eye-witness, strengthened, in his case, by the habits of method which his employments must have required, may reasonably be regarded as having adhered to the order of time in recording the occurrences at which he was present, these causes would not have equal influence in relation to those at which he was not present. Now the fact is recorded in the portion of his Gospel which belongs to the absence of the Twelve on their ministry; and which, more than any other, consists of records derived from other witnesses, and possessed by one or both of the other two Evangelists. See p. xliii. This portion, more than any other part of his Gospel, might, therefore, have been expected to be of a miscellaneous nature;—the Apostle's main objects, however, being steadily kept in view, viz. to record the instructions of Christ and the proofs of his authority, and to show the character of that malignant opposition, the effects of which were now about to bring the predicted ruin on his unhappy country. These objects, it is almost needless to say, are distinctly observable in this portion of the Gospel.

2. I readily admit, however, that some reason may justly be required from me, why this Evangelist should place the record in question, where, on my Arrangement, the occurrence could not have happened. My answer is, because, in the record which he had of this occurrence, it was connected with the next related transaction, the Cure of the Man with the Withered Hand, which took place at this period; and, finding it thus connected, he gave it that place which was decided by the time of the miracle, and which perfectly suited the subject of that portion of his Gospel.* That it was thus connected in the record which he had of it, is obvious, because it is so both in the Gospel of Mark (ch. iii.) and in that of Luke (ch. vi.), of whom, like Matthew, neither was an eye-witness. There is no case, I think, where it is more clear that each of the first three Evangelists possessed a document common to all of them: the facts must have been retraced by some eye-witness, and been recorded by him or some other disciple, as specimens of the unreasonable captiousness of the Pharisees. But there is this remarkable circumstance in addition. In the Greek translation of St. Matthew's Gospel, the two facts are so closely connected (ch. xii. 6), that I do not know how any one could conjecture that they did not occur on the same sabbath. In St. Mark's Gospel there is nothing (ch. iii. 1) which requires such connection. In St. Luke's (ch. vi. 6), it is expressly stated that the miracle was wrought 'on another sabbath'; and (ver. 1) that the occurrences in the corn-fields took place 'on the second-first sabbath.'* It of course follows, that what appears at first sight, judging from Matthew's Gospel alone, to be the chronological connection, cannot be the real one. I believe it exists merely because it existed in the document from which he here derived his narration.

* The connection of subject and thought is so close that, even in a chronological arrangement like the present, it is doubtful whether the record respecting the corn-fields (p. 32) might not have been best placed immediately before that of the miracle (p. 107); just as the first two Evangelists have placed the Anointing at Bethany just before the treacherous offer of Judas (p. 224), when, in point of time, it should be placed, as St. John places it (p. 191), on the day our Lord arrived at Bethany. Every reader of St. Matthew's Gospel who attends to such subjects, must perceive that his mode of composition is not only succinct but methodical; but method may respect place, or subject, as well as time.

3. From the close connection between the remainder of the xiith and the xiiith chapter, and the record respecting the man with the withered hand, it seems clear, that this miracle occurred not long before the general return of the Apostles; at any rate, during the absence of the Apostles. Now if Matthew found connected with this record an occurrence agreeing with it in its general character, and illustrative of his immediate object, he had either (1) to omit it altogether; or (2) to insert it in its chronological position, before the Imprisonment of the Baptist; or (3) to assign, as Luke has done, the date at which it occurred; or (4) to introduce it, which he has done, in that connection in which he found it, without any explanation. For the first, there was obviously no reason: the fact was a simple and unique specimen of the bitter spirit of the enemies of Christ; and it led to declarations which were nowhere else made. The second was out of the question; for the

* The following may serve as some explanation of this diversity between Matthew and Luke.—Since Luke has taken no notice of any Festival between the commencement of our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee and his going to the Last Passover, I infer that he regarded the circumstances attending that Public Preaching as occurring after the Tabernacles, the last of the great Festivals. Now since the Walk through the Corn-fields must have taken place soon after the Pentecost,—attentive as this Evangelist obviously was to chronological notices when he could ascertain them,—I conjecture that the manifest dissociation in point of time between the events connected in his document, and in subject also, led him to search more strictly into the actual fact; and that he thus discovered that the two circumstances did not occur on the same sabbath, and that the first-recorded occurred on the second-first sabbath, by which I understand him to mean (p. 32) the second of those sabbaths which occurred first after the great national Festivals, viz. after the Pentecost.—As to the connection in time, which appears in St. Matthew's Gospel, between the two occurrences—since we are certain, from St. Luke's definite statement, that they took place on different sabbaths, we cannot of course be guided by it in a chronological arrangement: but, if it really existed in the Hebrew Gospel, we may, not unreasonably, conjecture that the facts were originally recorded separately, and that some one, not personally acquainted with them, put them together, on account of their subject, connecting them together, as we now find them, on the supposition that they occurred on the same day. In such supposition there was nothing unreasonable, when the miracle is taken detached from the general history.

Evangelist has given no account of the interval succeeding the Temptation, before the Imprisonment of the Baptist; and to introduce that one fact, merely for the sake of chronological nicety, would have been useless in itself, and would have destroyed that connection of subject which is maintained by its present position. To this position the Evangelist would adhere, as a matter of course; yet, thirdly, he might have assigned a date. If he had given dates elsewhere, it might have been a formidable objection that he has not here: but from the Baptism of Christ to the beginning of the Last Pass-over, his Gospel does not give one date from which it could be known in what year, or at what period of the year, any event occurred that he has recorded. Nothing could be more inartificial than his general system; and nothing was better suited to his great purpose, and to the obvious character of his own mind, than the course which he has pursued in the present case.

If there were not the reason which is presented by the second Observation, for believing that Matthew found the two facts associated in the record which he employed, I might have supposed that he connected the first with the second for some such reason as that for which he has (ch. xxvi. 6—14) connected the Supper at Bethany with Judas's making an agreement with the Priests; but the present difficulty would have been greatly increased, if Matthew had himself so connected them as we find them.

It would have removed the present difficulty, if he had, like Luke, assigned the date; but then we should have had another difficulty, in my judgment much greater than the present—viz. on the one hand, the inconsistency of this with the general system of his Gospel; or, on the other, the great deficiency of dates in his Gospel, when he not only could have assigned them, but, since he thought this needful in one case, might reasonably have been expected to give such chronological information in others. But for the solemnly awakening purpose of his Gospel, it was of no consequence—writing as he did thirty years after the transactions which he records, and when he saw the days of calamity approaching—whether an event occurred in the spring or in the autumn. It would be of no consequence to us, if we had only his Gospel.—At any rate, we can say, with confidence, that he has nowhere declared that all the events which he has recorded are arranged in the order of time:—what reason there is to believe that they generally are, has been already sufficiently stated.

If the considerations which I have now advanced respecting this difficulty attending my Arrangement, do not satisfy the reader's mind as they do my own—and I must repeat that it is the only one of moment which I am acquainted with—then I have to refer to those which attend the supposition that the record respecting the Corn-field is really placed in St. Matthew's Gospel in chronological order.

First—If to escape this difficulty we are disposed to adopt the Tripaschal System,—the Quadripaschal is out of the question,—may I not justly say, after the statements made in the vth section of the First Dissertation, (see especially p. xxxv—xxxviii), that we must involve ourselves in difficulties incomparably greater?

Secondly—If we abide by the Bipaschal System, and at the same time admit, what I regard as established, that the Miracle of the Five Thousand occurred not long before the Crucifixion, then we have to suppose that the transactions in the xiith chapter of Matthew, and all those preceding, occurred before the wheat-harvest, which ended before June, while those in the xivth and following chapters occurred in the spring of the following year; and that St. Matthew's record of the intervening period is confined to the xiiiith chapter: though, in that long interval, must have occurred the Feast of Tabernacles, with the remarkable circumstances connected with it, together with those at and following the Feast of Dedication, including the Resurrection of Lazarus,—all recorded by St. John, and none by St. Matthew. Other difficulties might be stated, but these appear conclusive.

Thirdly—If for this difficulty, while we retain the Bipaschal System, we adopt Dr. Priestley's view of the succession of events, (see the note in p. cxviii), then we involve ourselves in the following difficulties. (1) We must give up every ancient testimony respecting the text in John vi. 4. (2) We must place the vith chapter before the vth.* (3) We must suppose that though all the great events at or near the Pentecost, Tabernacles, and Dedication, (which are recorded by John in the vth chapter, and in the viith chapter and the four following,) occurred during the period which St. Matthew narrates; yet that this Apostle, who must have then accompanied his Lord to the Pentecost and the Tabernacles at least, not only omits all mention of them,

* As το πασχα in John vi. 4 was to be given up, without any testimony against it, it would have been better for the system of arrangement which required this omission, to have given up the whole verse. In that case, the vith chapter might have come in its natural order. This would have been a great improvement; and would have lessened some of the objections which appear to me, independently of those from the received text, to overwhelm Dr. Priestley's hypothesis. In that case, the Mission of the Twelve might have been placed before the Pentecost, and the occurrence in the Corn-field after that Festival. There would still have been several serious objections; but this arrangement would have diminished or prevented others.

On the Arrangement of the Gospel records, I decidedly differ from one whose memory I venerate, and whose services to the cause of Christianity in general, as well as to that form of it which I deem the truth as it is in Jesus, were incalculably great. That the reader may know that this difference neither lessens my general appreciation of his character and talents, nor arises from a low estimate of his ability for scriptural research, I refer him to my Reply to Archbishop Magee, ch. vi.

but does not give any direct intimation, or other means of knowing, that our Lord attended them. And the same respecting the Gospels of Mark and Luke. (4) Though, on this supposition, the great series of miracles and instructions in Galilee, which preceded the Transfiguration, took place before the Feast of Tabernacles, yet, during the last six or seven months of our Lord's Ministry, no effort was made to continue the influence of them; since, on this arrangement of events, our Lord finally left Galilee before the Feast of Tabernacles. (5) From the Gospels of Matthew and Mark, it appears that, from the time when Herod returned to Galilee after the death of the Baptist, and sought to see Jesus, our Lord was continually in the more remote parts of Galilee, or in Philip's dominions, 'till near the Last Passover: but, on Dr. Priestley's arrangement, we must admit that Herod's inquiry was made ten months before the Passover, and yet that our Lord was afterwards openly at the Feast of Tabernacles, and that for a long period he sojourned, tranquilly and publicly, in the southern part of Herod's dominion, between his two courts, which were at Tiberias and Machærus. (6) Notwithstanding the characteristics of the Discourse in the Synagogue at Capernaum (p. xxxviii), we are required to place it ten months before the Crucifixion. (7) Notwithstanding the remarkable expressions of St. Luke (p. lii), in relation to the Transfiguration and our Lord's leaving Galilee for his departure from the world, we are required to place those events before the Feast of Tabernacles, when half of his Ministry still remained: indeed Dr. Priestley places it in the middle of July, and the Crucifixion on the 18th of the March following. (8) After the grand series of miracles, beginning with the commencement of our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee, and ending with his final departure from that country, during which, multitudes from Jerusalem and Judæa attended him, and Scribes went down from Jerusalem to observe him, we have to suppose that the kinsmen of Christ could speak of his doing things in secret—though it was in the most populous part of Palestine, and only from sixty to a hundred miles from Jerusalem. (9) This series of miracles, including even the Transfiguration, having occurred within four months after the First Passover, the remaining eight months before our Lord went up to Jerusalem to his Crucifixion, are left without the record of any signal and striking miracles, excepting those single ones, the cure of the Blind Man after the Tabernacles, and the resurrection of Lazarus after the Feast of Dedication. Even while I followed Dr. Priestley's arrangement, this appeared to me a very serious objection to it.

The supposition which I make is, that St. Matthew possessed a document containing the record of two transactions at neither of which he was present;—the second respecting an important occurrence which led on to others alike important; the first, a short narrative, probably connected with the other by locality and by the personal knowledge of the first recorder, at any rate connected by the subject ;—and that the Evangelist placed the two narratives together, as he found them, in that part of his Gospel where the train of history required the second to be placed.

This supposition appears to me to be attended with incalculably less difficulty than any one of the foregoing, and the difficulty itself to weigh very little against my Arrangement, in opposition to the many phenomena by which this is supported.—Since the time when, by the consideration of those phenomena, I came to the general conclusions which I still maintain—and this is now thirty years ago—I have earnestly, and I think faithfully, reviewed them more than twice that number of times ; I have sought for information on connected subjects wherever it appeared likely to be found ; I have constructed Tables, and Monotessarons, and Outline Views, upon the whole, or on particular parts, and thus brought the Arrangement to a strict test ; and several years ago, I prepared a regular Harmony agreeably to it, which I have repeatedly considered. I can now trace every part of the eventful year of our Saviour's Ministry, as far as we have records of it, with the sentiment which arises from the perception of distinctness and consistency. And to those who may not feel the same satisfaction, and who regard the whole as more the matter of conjecture than I can regard it, I would say—If, nevertheless, this Arrangement appear to be attended with fewer difficulties than others are, and with more accordance with probability, adopt it, with what improvements you discover,—as loosely as you deem the nature and degree of the evidence to require, yet steadily ; and by degrees you will be able to follow the great events recorded, in a regular succession, like the events of ordinary life, and will find the reality of all become increasingly the object of vivid conception and of faith.

I have, at different times, been occupied in drawing up narratives, some extending over a life, others involving the guilt or innocence of individuals in particular circumstances, and one respecting a most eventful and crowded period of a few days ; and this, in the latter case especially, from a variety of conflicting documents, and other sources of evidence ; and I cannot but believe that the habits of judging, on such subjects, to which I have thus and otherwise been trained, have been, in this case, of peculiar aid for the attaining of an accordance with reality. In the leading, and indeed in all essential points, I have a strong conviction that I have attained that accordance. I humbly hope that this volume will aid others in the contemplation, and lead some to the dutiful study of the work and character of him, whom to know, as we may know, is to love and to revere : and I commend it to the blessing of HIM, under a sense of responsibility to whom I have pursued this, the most interesting labour in which I was ever engaged, and in which I have already had an ample reward.

In aid of the purposes in view, and as a suitable mode of offering incidental explanations respecting the succession of events, I now proceed to the second portion of this Dissertation, and shall present to the reader an

OUTLINE VIEW OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

Commencing this all-important period with the Preaching of his Fore-runner, we may divide the Gospel Records into Ten Parts.

I. The Preaching of John the Baptist; and the beginning of the Ministry of Christ, to his First Miracle. This commences in the Harmony, p. 13

II. From the First Passover, inclusively, to the approach of the Feast of Tabernacles. —p. 23

III. Transactions connected with the Feast of Tabernacles. —p. 39

IV. Christ's Public Preaching in Galilee—in the interval between the Feast of Tabernacles and that of Dedication—until the Mission of the Twelve. —p. 49

V. Transactions of Christ after sending forth the Apostles, shortly before the Feast of Dedication, till all of them had collected to him after the Death of the Baptist. —p. 89

VI. From the Return of the Twelve—following the Death of John the Baptist, and succeeded by the Miracle of the Five Thousand—to our Lord's Departure from Galilee. —p. 133

VII. Our Lord's Final Journey from Galilee, through the Peræa, to his Arrival at Bethany shortly before the Passover. —p. 167

VIII. From our Lord's Arrival at Bethany, till the Day on which he ate the Passover. —p. 191

IX. The Last Day of the Saviour's Mortal Life. —p. 225

X. From the Burial of our Lord in the Tomb of Joseph, to his Ascension into Heaven. —p. 275

PART I.

The Preaching of John the Baptist: and the Ministry of Christ, to his First Miracle.

JOHN, the son of Zachariah, born at Hebron, while he was dwelling in seclusion in some part of the Desert of Judæa, received a commission from the Most High to prepare the way for the coming of the Messiah. SECT. II. p. 14. St. Luke expressly states that this was in the fifteenth year of Tiberius Cæsar, which, reckoning from the death of Augustus, began on the 19th of August, A. D. 29. See APPENDIX. We may reasonably place the commencement of the Baptist's Preaching just before the Feast of Tabernacles in that year ; and it is probable that he first baptized near the Ford of the Jordan above Jericho, where the great bulk of the people of Galilee, and of the regions east of the Jordan, would pass and repass the river at that period : see p. xcvi. While John was on the west of the Jordan, he was within the jurisdiction of the Sanhedrim : when on the east, near Bethabara, he was in Herod's. The Tetrarch held his southern court at the fortress Machærus, north of the Arnon, and near the Dead Sea ; and there, as Josephus relates, he imprisoned John : this was, probably, before the Tabernacles in the ensuing year, A. D. 29. Near the end of the following February, A. D. 30, the Baptist was beheaded by Herod, at the request of the daughter of Herodias.

After John had been engaged in his ministry for about five months, by which time the winter of Palestine was over, and the people were again resorting to his baptism, Jesus came to him from Nazareth, being then about thirty years of age ; and while he was praying, after having been baptized, he was ' anointed with the holy spirit and with power', in the presence of the people, and the voice of God proclaimed him to be ' his beloved Son, in whom he was well pleased'. SECT. III. p. 17.

Immediately after his baptism, having now been specially sanctified as the Messiah—the Anointed—Jesus went by divine direction into the more retired part of the Desert (p. xcvi), where he spent forty days. SECT. IV. p. 18. During this period, or at the close of it, our Lord experienced those trials of his faith and dutiful wisdom, which contributed to prepare him for the right employment of those high powers which were given him ' beyond measure'; and, as the Mediator of the Old Covenant was ' with the Lord' (Exod. xxxiv. 28) during the same length of time, so we may believe that the Mediator of the New Covenant, on entering on his all-important work, was at this period with his Heavenly Father, receiving special communications as to the extent and execution of it.

When this period had expired, Jesus returned to the Baptist. The day before he came to him, a deputation had applied to John, to ascertain the extent of his commission. SECT. V. p. 19. John declared that he only baptized to prepare the way for a person of much greater dignity than himself ; and he subsequently bore distinct testimony to the divine appointment of Jesus as that person. In consequence of these declarations, several of his disciples followed Jesus ; and they were among those who were afterwards selected as Apostles.*

* Nathanael is the only one of them whose name does not appear in the catalogues of the Apostles (p. 81) ; but considering this fact, in connection with the honourable testimony now borne by Christ to his character, and his being mentioned again in John xxi. 2, many have supposed, and I think justly, that he is designated, in those catalogues, by the patronymic Bartholomew, i. e. Son of Tholmai.

Soon after these occurrences our Lord went to Cana (p. lxxvi), the residence of Nathanael, and there wrought his First Miracle ; after which he went to Capernaum, with his mother and brethren, and his disciples ; and it does not appear that he ever again resided at Nazareth. SECT. VI. p. 21.

PART II.

From the First Passover, inclusively, to the Approach of the Feast of Tabernacles.

SOON after the miracle at Cana, our Lord went up to Jerusalem to attend the PASSOVER, and he there manifested his divine authority, by driving out the traders from the Temple, and by miracles which are not specified. SECT. I. p. 23. Led by these circumstances, Nicodemus came to him by night, and had a conference with him, which seems to have produced no immediate effect on the Jewish Ruler. SECT. II. p. 24. He then went into the country of Judæa, near the Jordan, where he remained, for some time, with those who had become his disciples ; admitting others by baptism into the profession of belief in him. John was at this time baptizing at Ænon (p. xcv), and a dispute between his disciples and one of the Jews, led to his last-recorded testimony to the divine mission of Jesus. SECT. III. p. 25. From this period we hear nothing more of the Baptist, till the announcement of his having been cast into prison owing to his remonstrances with the Tetrarch of Galilee respecting his marriage with Herodias. It appears probable, that after John had learnt that Jesus had, by publicly baptizing, fully opened his commission, and that the people were now resorting to him, he himself ceased from the public exercise of his ministry ; and that he continued near the court of Herod, entering it, when he saw fit, as a prophet of God, and availing himself of his divine commission to warn, and afterwards to censure, the guilty Tetrarch.—Thus much is clear, that except at his baptism, and on his return from the Desert, our Lord never saw the Baptist ; and it is obvious that he had no direct communication with him, except when John, from the prison in Machærus, sent the message to him, being then in Galilee. It was of great importance, for the influence of John's testimony to Jesus, that they should have no communication with each other ; that, though directed to the same object, their course should be quite independent ; and it was this, probably, which obliged our Lord to go through Samaria in his way to Galilee, when he left Judæa in consequence of the jealousy of the Pharisees. (This route is described in p. lxxiii—lxxvi.) If he had gone the usual route, he would have passed near the place where John was then baptizing. On his way to Galilee, he had the memorable conversation with the Samaritan woman ; and remained at Sychar for two days. SECT. IV. p. 26.

He then proceeded to Cana ; and soon after his arrival there, on the application of one of Herod's household, he healed his son who was then lying sick at Capernaum, above twenty miles from the place. SECT. v. p. 28.

Soon afterwards, he went again to Jerusalem, at the PENTECOST : and there, after healing the infirm man at the Pool of Bethesda, he delivered a solemn address to the Jews, probably before the Sanhedrim, distinctly avowing his having been appointed by God to raise the dead and to judge all mankind ; appealing to the testimony expressly given by the Father himself, to the truth of his claims. SECT. vi. p. 29.

It is probable that our Lord returned immediately to Galilee, and remained there till near the Feast of Tabernacles, preaching in the synagogues, and employing those opportunities which the providence of God presented, for manifesting his divine authority,—thus preparing for that public and extensive announcement of the kingdom of heaven, which he began after the imprisonment of his forerunner. On the first sabbath after the Pentecost, the second great Festival, occurred that transaction, the Walk through the Corn-field, in which, as in a variety of other occasions, was displayed the petty malignity of the enemies of Christ, as well as his own wisdom and enlarged views of moral obligation. SECT. vii. p. 32.

Some time after this occurrence, he went to Nazareth, where, on his unfolding, from the prophecy of Isaiah, the nature and extent of his commission, the malignant jealousy of some of the people in the synagogue was roused to attempt his destruction ; but he miraculously rescued himself from their rage, and again went to Capernaum, where, henceforwards, he appears to have stately resided. SECT. viii. p. 33.

The circumstances thus recorded may be regarded as giving a specimen of our Lord's mode of preaching in this part of his Ministry ; and it was calculated to direct the attention of the people to him, without leading to their crowding around him, and continually attending him, as they did after the Tabernacles, but for which this was not a fit period. We know that the Imprisonment of John, which indicated that his service was ended, was regarded by our Lord as the time when his Public Preaching in Galilee was to begin ; and as the comparison of St. Matthew's Gospel with St. John's leads to the conclusion that this was after the Tabernacles, (see p. cxvii), we conclude, without any opposing consideration, that the former event took place shortly before it.* This postponement of our Lord's most public manifestation of his high powers, might have been otherwise required by the presence of Herod in Galilee during at least a large portion of the intervening period ; but especially by the completing of the harvest at the commencement of it, by the labours of the vintage at the close, and by the intense heat of the weather in the middle. During June, July, and August, as is obvious from the accounts of travelers in Palestine, (see pp. lxxxv—lxxxvii &c.), it would have been most unsuitable to have drawn the people together as he did after the Tabernacles ; and from the considerations stated in p. cxviii, it is clear that no time could have been more suited than this last, for his Public Preaching in Galilee.

* I have somewhere read that Josephus speaks of John's being imprisoned about the time of the Feast of Tabernacles : but I have not found the place.

To this, the later part of our Lord's Ministry, the narratives of Matthew and Mark are confined. St. Luke took here, as in other cases, a wider scope ; and as he does not, like the other two, make the Imprisonment of John an æra in the Ministry of Christ, we may reasonably conclude that he has recorded in his Gospel whatever facts came to his knowledge, from the time when our Lord returned to Galilee to take up his abode there after the Pentecost. It is obvious he was not acquainted with the miracles at Cana, recorded by St. John alone ; but (p. liv) we are at liberty to refer to this less public exercise of his Ministry, such portions of his Gnomology as may appear best to suit this period : and if the Miraculous Draught of Fishes were distinct from the Call of Peter and his companions, as recorded by Matthew and Mark, we may conveniently assign that occurrence also to this interval. With these views, I have placed the record in this Part—viz. SECT. IX. p. 34 ; but it is with much hesitation : yet I know not how to suppose that it could have occurred after the regular Call of the Four Disciples recorded by Matthew and Mark. If it occurred in the present period, we may suppose that, soon after our Lord came down to Capernaum from Nazareth, having preached on one of the days—viz. Monday and Friday—in which the synagogues were open between the sabbaths, he went to the side of the Lake, followed by a number of the people who ' pressed upon him to hear the word of God ' ; and that, in these circumstances, the transaction recorded by St. Luke occurred.

From the nature of the record by St. Luke of our Lord's teaching his Disciples to pray, it appears clear that we must not refer it to a period later than the Sermon on the Mount ; and the circumstances related forbid the supposition that it belonged to that discourse. It is therefore placed in this Part—SECT. X. p. 35.

These are all the records which I see sufficient reason to refer to this period of our Lord's Ministry ; but the information afforded exclusively by St. Luke, ch. iv. 14—30, (together, perhaps, with the two following verses, though these peculiarly refer to the time after John's Imprisonment,) sufficiently indicate the manner in which the present period was occupied, and how it was made to prepare for the succeeding one.

PART III.

Transactions connected with the Feast of Tabernacles.

THIS part of our Lord's Ministry is recorded exclusively by the Apostle John ; and his account of it forms a remarkable portion of his Gospel. The vivid and indeed graphic narration which the Evangelist has given of the leading occurrences at the Tabernacles, indicates the pen of an eye-witness, and gives us a strong impression of the importance of them in the history of our Lord's conduct towards the Jews.*

When the FEAST OF TABERNACLES (p. xvii) was approaching, the brethren (or kinsmen) of Christ, οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ, who had not yet become convinced of his claims, urged him to go into Judæa, and show himself publicly to the world. SECT. I. p. 39. This, however, our Lord may have thought likely, in the circumstances of the case, to lead to tumult, and perhaps afford a reasonable pretext for the charge of sedition against the Roman government ; and he expressed his purpose of not (then at least) going up to the Festival.† When, however, the crowds had disappeared, and he saw that the roads were become solitary, and that there ceased to be any fear of interrupting the progress of his doctrine, by exciting the worldly expectations of a misguided populace, or of involving them in evil and in guilt, he determined again to try if he could save the Jews from impending ruin. He went up with secrecy ; and about the middle of the Festival he entered the Temple, and taught publicly. The Rulers sent officers to seize him ; but they were

* In the Harmony, p. 143, I have connected ch. vii. 1, with ch. vi. This Newcome and others also do. It rather best suits the view given in the First Dissertation (p. xxxiv) respecting that insulated portion of the Gospel ; but it is not necessary even on that hypothesis.

† The common translation of John vii. 8, is " I go not up yet (οὐπω) to this feast ; " but the most ancient reading was οὐκ, not—" I go not up." The addition of yet is made by Archbishop Newcome ; and not yet is the force of the Syriac translation. The present reading probably arose from the desire of some early transcriber to obviate Porphyry's charge of inconstancy.—If as Kuinoel states, οὐκ be often employed for οὐπω, there was no necessity for the change ; and there would be no further difficulty than the choice made of it by St. John : but all the instances which Schleusner gives, refer to past time, not as here to the future ; and I do not see how the words of Christ could be understood by his brethren as referring only to the ordinary time of going. I have myself no difficulty in believing that our Lord, for the reason mentioned above, did not at first deem it wise to go up to the Festival ; but that afterwards, the finger of Providence directing him, if not some special intimation of his Heavenly Father's will, he went up. He may, too, have heard that John had been cast into prison ; and hence perceived that the time was come for his own most public service. At any rate I am quite sure that 'in him was no guile' ; and that he was ever guided by wisdom, duty, and love.

confounded by the authority with which he taught, and returned with their commission unperformed. He still continued his public discourses ; but his declarations excited the rage of the Jews ; and they endeavoured to take away his life. SECT. II. p. 42. He escaped, however, from them ; and, as he went away from the Temple, he gave sight to a man who had been born blind—a miracle which was investigated with the utmost strictness, by our Lord's bitter enemies.* After this he delivered his discourse respecting the Good Shepherd, which concludes St. John's account of the transactions at the Feast of Tabernacles. SECT. III. p. 45.

Having thus been openly rejected by the Jews, at three successive national Festivals, and knowing that the Ministry of his Forerunner was finally closed, our Lord returned to Galilee to proclaim the near approach of the Messiah's kingdom ; to commence that series of wonderful miracles, and public teaching, which we denominate his Public Preaching in Galilee ; and to make the necessary preparation for carrying on the great work for which he came, when his own Ministry on earth should be closed.

PART IV.

Christ's Public Preaching in Galilee — in the interval between the Feast of Tabernacles and that of Dedication—until the Mission of the Twelve.

IMMEDIATELY on returning to Galilee, our Lord called Peter, Andrew, James, and John, to be constant attendants on his Ministry. SECT. I. p. 49. On the ensuing Sabbath, he cured a demoniac in the synagogue at Capernaum, healed the mother of Peter's wife, and wrought many other miracles. SECT. II. p. 50. The next day, after retiring to a solitary spot to hold communion with God, he commenced his FIRST PROGRESS through Galilee, —a very populous district, but not larger than Worcestershire. (See p. lxxvii.) During this Progress, the miracles of our Lord were peculiarly numerous and striking ; and the immediate effect was to draw round him a large concourse of those who were eagerly expecting the approach of the Messiah. SECT. III. p. 52. The absence of Herod, and the other favourable circumstances which have been already stated, (p. cxvii), must all have contributed to promote the publicity of our Lord's progress ; but his inestimable Discourse at the close of it, could not but disappoint those who followed him from merely worldly motives ; and must somewhat embarrass even those of the better disposed, whose notions of the Messiah's kingdom were founded on a literal interpretation of the splendid predictions of their ancient prophets. SECT. IV. p. 53. The hill on which this Discourse was delivered, was assuredly near Capernaum. On descending from it, our Lord healed a leper : and, on entering into Capernaum, he cured the Centurion's servant. SECT. V. p. 65

* In John ix. 2, the expression 'his disciples' occurs. This may denote some of those who had already been recognized as such—John, and Andrew, Peter, Philip, and Nathanael : it by no means requires us to suppose that the Twelve had yet been chosen.

If, as is probable, the true reading in Luke vii. 11, is εν τη εξης (sc. ἡμερα), then our Lord went the next day to Nain, a town in the southern part of Galilee, about twenty-five miles from Capernaum. If Luke wrote εν τῷ εξης, in order, in the course of events, still, as there is no improbability in the present situation of the fact, our subsidiary principle (p. cxvi) would lead us to arrange it here. SECT. VI. p. 68. St. Mark informs us (ch. i. 45) that, after the cure of the leper, our Lord was for some time absent from Capernaum, in the more retired parts of the country : St. Matthew is altogether silent on the subject. A few days after, in the evening, he crossed the southern part of the Lake. It was at this time that he stilled the storm ; and, on landing in the region of Gadara, he healed the demoniacs, and caused their phrensy to take possession of the herd of swine. SECT. VII. p. 68. On his return to Capernaum, he found many of the Pharisees and Doctors of the Law assembled from various parts of Palestine ; and in their presence he healed a paralytic, who was let down from the roof into the court near the place where he was sitting. When he left the place, he called Matthew, then sitting at the receipt of custom, to attend upon his Ministry. SECT. VIII. p. 73. Shortly after this, our Lord dined at Matthew's house, with many Publicans and others, where he conversed with some of the Pharisees, and with John's disciples. While there, Jairus solicited his aid in behalf of his daughter ; and on his way to the house, a poor woman was healed of her infirmity on touching his garment. After raising the daughter of Jairus, he returned, as it appears, to Matthew's house, where he restored sight to two blind men ; and, immediately after, healed a dumb demoniac. SECT. IX. p. 76.

Supposing the Feast of Tabernacles to have begun a little before the middle of September, the events already summarily related may have occurred before the close of October. About that time, probably, our Lord began a SECOND PROGRESS through Galilee ; at the commencement of which he appears to have chosen the Twelve, several of whom, we know, were his earliest Disciples ; and all of whom must have had suitable opportunity of becoming well acquainted with him and with his doctrine. SECT. X. p. 81. About a month after, he specially instructed them and sent them out on their Mission, from near Capernaum. SECT. XI. p. 83.

PART V.

Transactions of Christ after sending forth the Apostles, shortly before the Feast of Dedication, till all of them had collected to him after the Death of the Baptist.

THE First Passover appears to have occurred just before the vernal equinox, which makes the Feast of Dedication come very early. Upon the calculation on which the Calendar in the Appendix is founded, the last day of the Festival was, this year, on the 27th of November. Our Lord obviously made no stay in Jerusalem; and as there was no religious obligation to attend this Festival, we may presume that neither the Apostles, nor other distant Disciples, attended it; and that our Lord himself remained in Galilee as long as he could, consistently with the purpose of being at Jerusalem during it. From Nain, which was the most southerly of the towns of Galilee spoken of in the Gospels, to Jerusalem, going through Samaria, was a journey of nearly three days; and we may suppose our Lord to have crossed the Plain of Esdraelon, without any of his regular attendants, on the 23d of the month.

In this part of our Lord's Ministry, we are left much to conjecture; and yet, allowing the general correctness of our arrangement, there can be little hesitation respecting the real course of events during the absence of the Twelve. After sending them forth, we learn from St. Matthew (ch. xi. 1) that our Lord departed to teach in their cities. Soon after the mission of the Apostles, two of the Disciples of the Baptist came to him, from their Master, to inquire whether he were the promised Messiah, or only another forerunner. SECT. I. p. 89. Immediately after St. Luke's record of this circumstance, we find his account of our Lord's visit to Simon the Pharisee, with the interesting occurrence at his house; * and for the same reasons as have been given in reference to the raising of the Widow's Son at Nain, I place this visit immediately after the departure of John's disciples. SECT. II. p. 91. Comparing the situation of our Lord's reproof to the unbelieving cities in St. Luke's Gospel, where it follows the Mission of the Seventy, with its place in Matthew's, where it follows the message of the Baptist—and perceiving nothing inconsistent with the probable order of events—I consider the Mission of the Seventy as following the message of the Baptist, and occurring before the upbraiding of the cities. SECT. III. p. 92. Its direction and purpose have been stated in the Second Dissertation, p. liv. According to the subsidiary principle (p. cxvi), I suppose that it was soon afterwards, that our Lord, on being accosted by the Jewish Doctor, delivered the parable of the Good Samaritan; and that he visited Martha and Mary. SECT. IV. p. 95. Lazarus and his sisters resided at Bethany, on the eastern side of the Mount of Olives; and I presume that this visit to Bethany preceded our Lord's short visit at Jerusalem during the FEAST OF DEDICATION. Again the Jews sought to kill him; but he immediately withdrew from their jurisdiction, and went into the Peræa, residing principally at Bethabara (p. xcvi) i. e. Bethany beyond the Jordan. SECT. V. p. 96. In that region he appears to have spent the whole of December, and the greater part of January; and during his abode there, he probably delivered several of those Discourses and Parables which are recorded by St. Luke in his Gnomology, and by him alone. SECT. VI. p. 98. While there, too, the Seventy appear to have rejoined him, after having executed their ministry in different parts of the country east of the Jordan. From the record respecting the Resurrection of Lazarus, I conclude that some also of the Apostles rejoined him while in the Peræa.

* In p. 92, I have rendered the words of Christ, in Luke vii. 47, 'Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins have been forgiven; and they were many, for she hath loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, loveth little.' The original in the part respecting which there can be any doubt, is, Οὐ χάριν, λεγω σοι, ἀφεωνται αἱ ἁμαρτιαὶ αὐτῆς αἱ πολλαὶ ὅτι ἠγάπησε. The words 'because she hath loved much' appear to be given as an indication that her sins were numerous; and to show this, and to make 'the many' emphatic, I have separated αἱ πολλαὶ from what precedes. If one could find authority in the writings of Luke, for rendering ὅτι wherefore, which Schleusner maintains that it signifies in several parts of the New Testament, it would be much simpler to render the clause 'Her many sins have been forgiven her, wherefore she loveth much.' Suppose the record which St. Luke possessed of this most affecting occurrence, to have been in Greek, then the latitude allowed to ὅτι, the word probably employed by our Lord, may in this place have caused the employment of ὅτι in the inferential, instead of its usual causal sense.

At the close of the January preceding the Crucifixion, our Lord, knowing that Lazarus was dead, set out again for Bethany, near Jerusalem; and after having restored his friend to life, he retired, with those of his Disciples who had attended him, to the neighbourhood of Ephraim. SECT. VII. p. 104. There was a town of this name in Judæa, north of Jerusalem; but as there was another, further north, in Samaria, out of the jurisdiction of the Jews, it seems most probable that it was to this place that our Lord retired.

Our Lord's visit to Jerusalem at the Dedication, his sojourn in the Peræa, his return to the house of Martha, and his retirement at Ephraim, all took place, I conclude, between the occurrences recorded in the xith chapter of Matthew, and those in the xiith—the Walk through the Corn-field excepted. See pp. cxviii—cxxi. With the Miracle of the Withered Hand, our Lord began his last abode in Galilee. This miracle, which was probably wrought near Capernaum, excited the persecuting spirit of the Pharisees; who now sought, even in Galilee, to take away his life; and it may not unreasonably be supposed, that this was in part owing to the known determination of the Sanhedrim (p. 107) to put him to death. He then went out to the shores of the Lake, accompanied and followed by great numbers of those who needed and received his benevolent aid. SECT. viii. p. 107. At this time he delivered several Discourses, which were occasioned by the hostility of the Pharisees, and the interference of his own Relations. SECT. ix. p. 109. He then dined at the house of a Pharisee, and uttered some solemn reproofs and warnings, against the Scribes and Pharisees. SECT. x. p. 121. The same day he delivered a remarkable series of Parables, beginning with that of the Sower. SECT. xi. p. 122. At the end of February, or the beginning of March, he went into the interior of Galilee, and visited Nazareth. SECT. xii. p. 130. By this time the death of the Baptist must have been generally known ; and, not improbably, it was the immediate cause of the return of those Apostles, who had not yet rejoined our Lord : that Matthew himself had previously rejoined him, appears not improbable, from his full record of Discourses and Parables in the above portion of his Gospel, and from the region in which these occurrences took place.

PART VI.

From the Return of the Twelve—following the Death of John the Baptist, and succeeded by the Miracle of the Five Thousand—to our Lord's Departure from Galilee.

HEROD returned to Galilee soon after he had beheaded John at Machærus. Hearing of Jesus, (as it appears for the first time), he was very desirous to see him ; but our Lord knew the crafty cruelty of his disposition ; and, from this period, he spent most of his time, till his Last Journey to Jerusalem, either in the dominions of Philip, east of the Jordan, or in Galilee Superior, at a distance from Herod's court at Tiberias, and where he could easily fly beyond his jurisdiction. SECT. i. p. 133.

On the return of the Apostles, the multitudes beginning to crowd around him, our Lord went, by water, to a desert near Bethsaida in Philip's dominions. See p. xcii. There he wrought that signal miracle which showed that he had such power at his command as would have enabled him to attain any of the objects of human ambition, and which excited in the minds of the people, the purpose of forcibly making him a king. SECT. ii. p. 135. In the succeeding night he followed his Disciples as they were crossing the Lake, by walking on the sea—SECT. iii. p. 137 ; and the next day delivered, in the synagogue at Capernaum, that remarkable Discourse which proved, to many, too hard a test of faithfulness. SECT. iv. p. 140. This is recorded by John alone ; but Matthew and Mark have recorded another Discourse, (which may have been delivered on the same or on the subsequent day,) addressed to some Scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem, to the people, and to his disciples, concerning eating with unwashed hands. SECT. v. p. 143. While he was on the north-western coast of the Lake, he healed many sick persons (p. 139) who dwelt in the Land of Gennesaret. See p. lxxxix.

It appears that after remaining a short time only in that district,* where he was but a few miles from Tiberias, he went into the region of Tyre and Sidon, (p. xciv), and there healed the daughter of the Syrophœnician woman. He then came to the eastern shore of the Lake, passing through the Decapolis, (p. lxvii), in which region he cured the deaf and dumb man and wrought many other miracles, and also miraculously fed the Four Thousand. SECT. vi. p. 146. It appears not improbable (p. 147) that this was near the place where he had wrought the preceding miracle of the same kind. See p. xcii. From the neighbourhood of Julias, we may suppose that Jesus and the Apostles went by water to Dalmanutha, which must have been somewhere on the eastern side of the Lake,) where some Pharisees came forth to dispute with him; and he then crossed the Lake to Magdala,† and warned the Disciples against the doctrine of the Pharisees. From this place (p. lxxxix) where Mary may have still commonly resided, he went on to Bethsaida (p. lxxxvii), the native place of several of his Apostles; and there gave sight to a blind man. SECT. vii. p. 149.

Without, as it appears, making any stay in the region west of the Lake,

* St. Mark's expression ch. vi. 56, may reasonably be considered as a general statement, rather than as having a peculiar reference to that period. Nevertheless the miracle which he had just wrought must have given a new impulse to the people of the neighbourhood.

† When I wrote the title of Sect. vii. p. 149, I supposed, with many others, that Magdala was on the east of the Lake; but I am satisfied, from the account of modern travelers, that it was on the west. From this fact, and especially from the correct position of Cana, (which from D'Anville, I had placed in the north-west of Lower Galilee,) I have derived great satisfaction, as by far better suiting the references in the Gospels to those towns. The position of Dalmanutha is altogether conjectural; but the narrative of Mark fixes it to the east of the Lake. Some may think that Matthew's account (ch. xv. 39) does the same with respect to Magdala: but I understand him to state no more than the plain fact, that from the place where our Lord fed the Four Thousand, he went, by ship, to the neighbourhood of that town. When there, our Lord made some observations respecting the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees, which Matthew records; and to show the occasion of them, he states what had taken place on the other side of the Lake, which Mark fixes at Dalmanutha. Our Lord, therefore, as we thus learn, did not go direct to Magdala, but went first to Dalmanutha. It is not perhaps unreasonable to suppose, that he would have remained longer on that side the Lake, but for the intrusion of the Pharisees; and that now seeking for privacy and security, he only went across to the residence of friends, to avoid his enemies, though he could not of course have remained so near Tiberias. Indeed he appears to have immediately gone from Magdala and Bethsaida to the north of Palestine.

our Lord now set out towards Cæsarea, in Philip's dominions in the very north of Palestine. In the neighbourhood of that city, (which we have no reason to think that he entered,) Peter, for himself and for the other Apostles, expressly avowed, for the first time, the conviction that Jesus was 'the Messiah, the Son of the living God;' but our Lord immediately (and thenceforwards repeatedly) acquainted his Apostles with his approaching sufferings, and stated the necessity of their undergoing sufferings for his sake. SECT. VIII. p. 150. About six days afterwards, while still in the north of Palestine, (p. xciii), the glorious scene of the Transfiguration occurred, in the presence of Peter, John, and James. SECT. IX. p. 153. The next day, on returning to the rest of the Apostles, our Lord healed the epileptic child. SECT. X. p. 155. He then traveled southwards through Galilee; and on arriving at Capernaum, application was made to him for the half-shekel annually paid by every adult Jew for the service of the Temple. SECT. XI. p. 158. This contribution was collected in the last month of the Jewish year, preparatory to the Passover; and this fact, which decides the time of our Lord's leaving Galilee, perfectly accords with the date assigned by John to the Miracle of the Five Thousand. After delivering to the Apostles some important admonitions on the duty of humility, of mutual aid in spiritual improvement, and of a forgiving disposition, Jesus left Capernaum, and set out on his Last Journey towards Jerusalem. SECT. XII. p. 159.

PART VII.

Our Lord's Final Journey from Galilee, through the Peræa, to his Arrival at Bethany shortly before the Passover.

FROM Capernaum our Lord went southwards, probably passing through Magdala, Bethsaida, Cana, and Nain, (leaving Tiberias on the east), with the intention of going through Samaria, rather than through the territory of Herod on the east of the Jordan. While he was crossing, we may suppose, the Plain of Esdraelon, he sent messengers forward to prepare for his coming. The first town in Samaria was Ginæa (p. lxxv), and, not improbably, it was here that he purposed to pass the second night after his leaving Capernaum;—having spent the first, we may suppose, at Cana. Some preparation was necessary, for he was attended by his Apostles at least; and from Mark xv. 41 (p. 270), we may conclude that, as he came along, he was also joined by Mary of Magdala, and Salome of Bethsaida, the Mother of James and John, as well as by Mary his own Mother, and Mary the Mother of James and Joses, and 'many other women'. Having been refused a reception at the Samaritan village, he went eastwards along the Plain towards Scythopolis (p. xcvi), thus passing through the confines of Samaria and Galilee ; * and as he was in this part of his journey, he healed the Ten Lepers, of whom one only, a Samaritan, returned to give thanks to his benefactor, and to glorify God. SECT. I. p. 167. Our Lord then entered the Peræa, crossing the Jordan either at the bridge above Scythopolis, or at the ford below it (p. xcv); and then passed through the Peræa, along the Plain of the Jordan, teaching as he proceeded. In this course he may have occupied two days : and besides the Discourses recorded by Matthew and Mark, respecting divorces, SECT. II. p. 168, we may place here the Discourses and Parables which St. Luke has recorded after the Miracle of the Ten Lepers, SECT. III. p. 170 ;—the circumstances respecting the Children and the Young Ruler, SECT. IV. p. 172 ;—the Parable of the Labourers in the Vineyard, SECT. V. p. 175 ;—and the series of Discourses recorded by Luke in the xiith and xiiith chapters, SECT. VI. p. 176. This portion of St. Luke's Gnomology, which probably formed a separate document, contains several occurrences peculiarly referable to the Final Journey through the Peræa, such as the crafty warning of the Pharisees (p. 182) that Herod purposed to kill him ; and there is nothing unreasonable in the supposition that the whole which is therein recorded took place at this time : but see the Notes in pp. 176 and 182.

The foregoing Discourses of our Lord, in the Peræa, are marked by a peculiarly earnest tone of spiritual instruction, and by striking references to approaching calamities, which could not fail to impress the minds of his Disciples ; especially if taken in connection with the declared purposes of Herod, and the known intentions of the great Council of their nation : and when, at last, they crossed the Jordan (p. xcvi) and entered Judæa, and saw their Master going before them on the way towards Jerusalem, it is said (Mark x. 32) that ' they were amazed, and, as they followed, they were afraid.' He then again informed the Twelve of his approaching sufferings ; yet, even then, the Mother of James and John came to him, apparently at their desire, to request for them a distinguished place in his kingdom. SECT. VII. p. 183.

Jericho was nineteen miles from Jerusalem, and seven from the Ford of the Jordan. (See p. c). I presume that it was on the Saturday before his Crucifixion that our Lord entered it ; and that he had spent the preceding night in the immediate neighbourhood. While passing through the city, he saw Zacchæus, and went to his house, where he delivered the Parable of the Ten Pounds. SECT. VIII. p. 185. Whether he left the house of Zacchæus that evening, after sunset, or, as is more probable, on the following morning, on going out of the city, attended by a great multitude, he gave sight to blind Bartimæus and his companion. SECT. IX. p. 187.* He then proceeded on his way towards Jerusalem.

* If, as I think probable, the district belonging to Scythopolis was not properly a part of Galilee, then the words in Luke xvii. 11 would mean, ' through the country lying between Samaria and Galilee.' See Harm. Note * p. 168.

PART VIII.

From our Lord's Arrival at Bethany, till the Day on which he ate the Passover.

WHEN Jesus went to the house of Zacchæus, many of his attendants would go on towards Jerusalem, and would reach Bethany, and some of them the city itself, long before he came to the Mount of Olives; so that at Bethany preparations would have been made for him at Simon's house, and also great numbers of the people of Jerusalem would have heard of his approach sufficiently early to come out to see him and Lazarus.

At the end of Part VIII. (p. 225), I have stated the conclusion to which I have come as to the time when the Passover was celebrated, in the week of the Crucifixion;—viz. that the Scripturalists killed the lamb after sunset on the Thursday, and ate the Passover that evening; but that the Traditionalists killed the lamb in the afternoon of the Friday, and ate it on the Friday evening. St. John speaks of the Passover as it was kept by the Pharisees; the other Evangelists speak of it, as it was kept by the bulk of the people—the more distant ones especially. The necessity of the case, if no other reason, required that our Saviour should eat the Passover, which he did, on the Thursday evening: but it is clear from several passages, that St. John reckoned from the Passover as kept by the Pharisees. The information he had obtained respecting their proceedings—suppose from Nicodemus—referred to their time of keeping the Passover; and his reckoning was decided accordingly. 'Six days before the Passover', on this calculation, brings us to the twenty-four hours preceding sunset on the Sunday evening: and I suppose that our Lord reached Bethany about noon on Sunday; and that on the evening of that day occurred the very interesting circumstance at the house of Simon, which seems to have led Judas to the purpose of betraying his Master. SECT. I. p. 191.

On the Monday,† our Lord entered Jerusalem as the Messiah, with the

* The diversities in the accounts of this occurrence, are fully considered in the Note on this Section, in p. 188.

† The common opinion is that it was on the Sunday that our Lord went publicly to Jerusalem; and the day kept in commemoration of it, is termed Palm-Sunday. This opinion, Mr. Greswell observes, "rests upon no better authority than prescription"; and I follow him in placing the procession to Jerusalem on the Monday. See Dissertations, Vol. III. p. 19.

exulting acclamations of his Disciples and the multitude ; himself, however, not elated, but manifesting, when in sight of the city, (Luke xix. 41—44), the most affecting anticipations of its ruin through its sinful rejection of his claims. SECT. II. p. 193. When arrived at the Temple, he healed many blind and lame persons ; and it is not improbable that, on this first day, occurred that solemn scene which followed the application of the Gentile proselytes, when ‘ there came a Voice from Heaven’. SECT. III. p. 196. After this, without making further stay in the Temple, he withdrew with the Twelve to Bethany, where he passed the succeeding nights till the Thursday.

Early on the day following his public entry—that is, on the Tuesday—he wrought the miracle on the Barren Fig-tree ; and on arriving at the Temple, with comparatively few attendants, he drove out those who were trafficking there. (See p. lxiv). This excited the anger of the Chief Priests and their adherents ; and they sought to destroy him ; but the people listened, with admiration, to his instructions ; and the chief men found no means of executing their purposes. SECT. IV. p. 198.

On the second morning after his public entry—that is, on the Wednesday—as he was returning to Jerusalem, the Disciples observed that the Fig-tree had been withered from the roots. SECT. V. p. 199. The circumstances of the preceding day, seem to have aroused the various enemies of our Lord ; and from his entrance into the Temple, till he left it, no more to return, every effort was made to harass and to ensnare him. First (p. 200) a body of the Sanhedrim came and demanded his authority for the measures he had taken ; which led him to deliver several Parables fitted to show to them, and to the people, their guilt and their danger. Next (p. 205) a party of the Herodians, sent by the Pharisees with some of their own disciples, put to him the question respecting the Roman tribute-money. When their crafty and malicious designs had been defeated, the Sadducees came (p. 206) to propose their paradox concerning the resurrection, by which, probably, they had often perplexed their opponents, the Scribes ; some of whom, as it appears, were greatly pleased with our Lord’s reply. Lastly (p. 207) one of the Scribes proposed that inquiry by which the Pharisees so much confounded the plain dictates of conscience—‘ Which is the great commandment of the Law ?’ and this led our Lord to give his sanction to the fundamental declaration of the Jewish Legislator. Our Lord then himself (p. 208) proposed a question to the Pharisees respecting the superiority of the Messiah to David—his progenitor by natural descent—which confounded and silenced them.* Perhaps it was at this interval (p. 209) that, while sitting opposite the Treasury, near the entrance into the Inner Court of the Temple, the Divine Teacher uttered that most encouraging expression respecting the Widow's Mite. It must have been soon after, but probably in the Outer Court, that he delivered those awful denunciations of the extreme wickedness and hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees, and of the fearful evils which were impending over them and his guilty nation, which Matthew alone has recorded in detail, and with which our Lord closed his public instructions. SECT. v. § 11, p. 209. He then quitted the Temple, and as he went out, predicted its utter destruction. SECT. v. § 12, p. 199.

* About this time he may have uttered the solemn declaration in John xii. 44—50, as to the authority of his words : but it may have been uttered on the first day in the Temple. See p. 197.

As he went back to Bethany, it is probable, our Lord delivered, on the Mount of Olives, in the presence of Peter and James and John and Andrew, the remarkable predictions respecting the destruction of the Temple, which were so signally fulfilled 'before that generation passed away'; and those also which yet remain to be fulfilled respecting the universal and final retribution;—the former recorded, in much detail, by each of the first three Evangelists; the latter by St. Matthew alone. SECT. vi. p. 214, and SECT. vii. p. 221.

On the same evening, or the following day, many of the Sanhedrim assembled at the Palace of the High Priest, to consider how they might take Jesus by stratagem, in order to put him to death; and Judas, by some unknown means aware of the purpose of their meeting, went to them, and, for a small sum of money, undertook to deliver him up to them, when apart from the multitude. SECT. viii. p. 223.

PART IX.

The Last Day of the Saviour's Mortal Life—from sunset on Thursday to sunset on Friday.

It does not form a part of my present object, to enter into the detail of those most interesting circumstances which now occurred, in rapid succession, displaying the tenderness of the Man of Sorrows, in conjunction with the dignity of the Son of God—the strength of our Lord's private affections, with the most complete and devout exercises of faith and trust, and the most elevated devotement to the all-important and all-comprehensive purposes for which he came—the distress, the darkness, and the anguish, which, for the perfection of his own character,* and as an encouragement and example to his followers, in all ages, his Heavenly Father appointed for him, as well as those most impressive demonstrations of the Divine love and favour, which attended and followed his expiring agonies on the cross. These are recorded by the Evangelists in much detail. In some minute points, it is not easy to ascertain the precise order of occurrence ; but, in general, the course of events is easily followed ; and, at any rate, the vividness and distinctness of the records, in the separate parts, enable us to picture each scene to ourselves, so as to feel its reality and its impressive influence. The following sketch is given merely for the purpose of connecting together, in the probable order of occurrence, the leading facts of this eventful day.

* This is inferred from Hebrews ch. ii. 10. ch. v. 8, 9.

Late in the evening of Thursday, our Lord went to Jerusalem, with the Apostles, to the house of one of his followers, which tradition places on Mount Sion, where Peter and John had, by his directions, prepared the paschal supper. SECT. I. p. 227. In consequence of a dispute which had arisen among the Apostles as to superiority, our Lord gave them some admonitions on the subject ; and, after the supper came, he rose from table and washed their feet, to teach them humility, and readiness for the mutual services of love. He then declared the purposes of the traitor, who immediately went out to carry them into effect. This might be about ten o'clock. SECT. II. p. 228. After Judas had left the chamber, our Lord declared, once and again,* that Peter would deny him ; and also that the prophecies concerning his own sufferings were now about to be accomplished. He then proceeded to institute the ordinance commemorative of his death, which is so admirably calculated to cherish faith and love and gratitude towards him, and to impress a practical conviction of the purposes and obligations of the New Covenant. SECT. III. p. 236. Before he rose from supper, he administered to his troubled disciples those consolations which he knew they would require, and which the beloved Apostle has recorded, so as to be the source of holy peace and comfort to the faithful heart, till the period when sorrow shall be for ever ended, and after that of holy gratitude. SECT. IV. p. 237. After rising from the paschal table, he delivered those impressive Discourses which John alone has recorded—SECT. V. p. 239 ; and he then offered that prayer to the Father which he alone could have offered ;—indicating the most perfect consciousness of divine authority, and the fullest confidence in the accomplishment of the purposes for which he came from God ; together with earnest desires for the welfare of those whom he especially loved, and who had thus far continued with him in his trials. SECT. VI. p. 242. They then sung a hymn, according to the custom of the paschal supper ; and went forth to go to the Garden of Gethsemane. See p. cvi. On the way thither, he told the Apostles that they all would fall away from him that very night ; which led to renewed professions of attachment on the part of Peter, and to a third warning of his approaching fall. SECT. VII. p. 244.

* This is upon the supposition that the record in Luke (p. 234) respects a warning subsequent to that in John. Mr. Greswell has led me to the conclusion that it does.

When they arrived at Gethsemane, probably about midnight, Jesus retired with Peter, James, and John, to some distance from the rest; and it was then that he experienced those agonizing emotions which displayed an acute susceptibility of suffering, attended with the most perfect trust and the sublimest resignation. The simple delineation of these, in the first three Gospels, is inimitable; and the reference to them in Heb. v. 7—9, shows how they were dwelt upon by the first Christians. SECT. viii. p. 245. About an hour after midnight, Judas came, attended by the Officers of the Chief Priests and Rulers; and he delivered up his Master to them, after a striking proof that Christ's devotement of himself to death was perfectly voluntary: and then all his Disciples forsook him and fled. SECT. ix. p. 247.* Our Lord was then taken, first to the House of Annas (p. cviii), and afterwards to the Palace of Caiaphas, where a few of the Sanhedrim had already collected; where, afterwards, a large part of them, especially those who were the High Priest's partisans, assembled; and where Peter, before the second cock-crowing, denied Jesus thrice.† SECT. x. p. 250. Some hours appear to have been occupied in endeavours to obtain witnesses for the purpose of legal condemnation; but as soon as it was day, Jesus was led, from the High Priest's Palace, to the Hall of the Sanhedrim, in the Inner Court of the Temple, where he was formally pronounced to be worthy of death; and he was then led away to the Prætorium, for the sentence of the Roman Governor. SECT. ix. p. 254. Before the Chief Priests had left the Temple, the wretched Judas, full of remorse, went to them to give back the wages of his treachery; and he afterwards departed and hanged himself. SECT. xii. p. 255.

Probably about seven in the morning, our Lord was brought before the Roman Governor, by whom he was soon after sent to the Palace of Herod, which was on Bezetha, and at no great distance from the Prætorium; and after the cruel Tetrarch had treated him with malicious derision, he sent him back to the Prætorium. Impressed with the innocence of Christ, and awed probably by his manifest dignity, the Governor did all he could, short of the determined exercise of his authority, to save him from the purpose of the Jews; but, at last, after our Saviour had undergone mocking and scourging, Pilate formally condemned him, and delivered him up to be crucified. SECT. xiii. p. 256. This was about nine o'clock in the morning. The preparations were speedily completed, and Jesus was led forth from the Prætorium, bearing his cross; but they soon met with a person who was coming from the country, and they compelled him to bear it after Jesus. A great number of people followed, and among them many women of Jerusalem, wailing and beating their breasts: 'Weep not for me,' said the compassionate Saviour, 'but weep for yourselves and your children.' Two malefactors were taken to be crucified with him. When they came to Golgotha, a stupefying potion was offered him; but he received it not. Then they crucified him, and also the malefactors, one on each side of him. It was at this time that Jesus said, 'Father forgive them, for they know not what they do.' An inscription was put over him, which the Chief Priests read from the walls, and wished to have altered; but Pilate refused. The soldiers then divided his garments among them; and he was exposed to the cruel and malicious revilings of the Chief Priests and Rulers, as well as the scoffs of those who were passing by, and even of one of the persons who were crucified with him. But he was not deserted by all his earthly friends: his Mother and her sister, and Mary of Magdala, were standing by his cross, and the beloved Disciple was also with them. Jesus saw them, and commended his Mother to the care of this Disciple; and the Disciple to the affection of his Mother. At noon, darkness spread over the whole land; and it continued for three hours, till the time when the evening sacrifice was offered, and the paschal lambs began to be slain. At that hour, Jesus uttered the words with which the twenty-second Psalm commences,—thus indicating not only his intense agony, but also his reliance on God for deliverance; and he then spoke of that thirst which forms one of the severest pangs of crucifixion: this led some one who was by, to give him a momentary assuagement; but as soon as he had received the vinegar, he cried, with a loud voice, 'It is finished!' He then said, 'Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit!' and bowed his head, and expired. Then the veil of the Temple (p. cxii) was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, the earth was shaken, and the rocks were rent. The Roman soldiers who were attending the crucifixion, were impressed with awe at these circumstances, and with belief in his supernatural greatness; and the multitudes who were present at the sight, smote their breasts and returned. SECT. xiv. p. 264.

* In this section, and some others, a statement is given in the Notes which are subjoined, of the order in which the circumstances probably occurred.

† The order of the circumstances respecting Peter's denials, which are recorded by the different Evangelists, is fully considered in a Note at the end of Part IX., p. 272.

In order that the sabbath might not be polluted, the Jews requested that the legs of the persons who had been crucified should be broken, to hasten their death. The soldiers to whom the charge was given, found Jesus already dead, and did not break his legs; but one of them pierced his side with a spear, and immediately blood and water came forth. If he had not been already dead, this wound, from the direction and effect, must have caused his death. SECT. xv. p. 270.

Two of the Sanhedrim, who, with others of the Rulers, had secretly espoused the cause of Christ, now came forwards to perform for him the last marks of respect and sorrow; perhaps we may justly add, of reverence and of faith. Joseph of Arimathea (p. lxx) courageously asked Pilate for the body of Jesus ; and he and Nicodemus took it down from the cross ; and having prepared it for burial,—winding round it fine linen bands, with an abundance of aromatic substances,—they placed it in a new and as yet unemployed sepulchre, which Joseph had hewn out in the rock, in a garden near the place of Crucifixion, to the entrance of which they rolled a large stone. SECT. XVI. p. 270. Mary Magdalene, and other female Disciples, observed the place of burial ; and then withdrew to prepare spices and ointments for a more complete embalment after the sabbath was ended. The feelings of that day, in the minds of the enemies of Christ, of his friends and disciples, and of the people at large, may be in some measure imagined ; and if we take single individuals, whose character is more or less known to us, we may find abundance to exercise the imagination in such a way as to increase the vividness of the conviction that all recorded was reality.

PART X.

From the Burial of our Lord in the Tomb of Joseph, to his Ascension into Heaven.

ON the day after the Crucifixion, (that is, on the sabbath of the Jews,) the Chief Priests and Pharisees, having received authority from Pontius Pilate, set a guard of Roman soldiers over the sepulchre, to prevent the body from being taken away by violence ; and they sealed the sepulchre to prevent the withdrawal of it by stealth. SECT. I. p. 275. But they contended with power, before which human power is nothing : ‘ God raised up Jesus’. Early on the following morning, the first day of the week, the third day from his burial, our Saviour rose triumphantly from the tomb, to die no more ; and became the ‘ first-fruits of them that sleep’. The disclosures of this great event are recorded by the several Evangelists, each giving what he had himself learnt from undoubted testimony. SECT. II. p. 276. The probable order of the occurrences on the morning of the Resurrection, is stated in the observations at the beginning of the section ; and a scheme illustrating the succession of the visits to the Sepulchre, is given at the end of it (p. 285) : to these I must refer the reader, as I have nothing to add or to correct. In the afternoon, our Lord presented himself to two of his Disciples on the way to Emmaus, and discoursed to them on the prophecies concerning himself ; and before they had reached Jerusalem, he had appeared to Simon. SECT. III. p. 286. In the evening, when the Apostles in general had assembled together, not improbably in the paschal chamber, he presented himself to them also, and gave them indubitable proof that he had arisen from the dead. SECT. IV. p. 289. And thus closed that great and glorious day, on which Jesus Christ 'was declared to be the Son of God with power', and on which, for all mankind, 'life and immortality were brought to light'.

On the first day of the following week, our Lord presented himself again to the Apostles generally, when Thomas was present. SECT. v. p. 290. After this second manifestation, the Apostles appear to have all gone immediately to Galilee; and in that region, Jesus showed himself to Peter, John, Thomas, Nathanael, and two others, at the Lake, where occurred that most interesting scene in which the respective characters of the two former were so strikingly displayed. SECT. vi. p. 291. Soon after, he met the Apostles, on a mountain which he had before appointed; and there gave them instructions relative to their commission. SECT. vii. p. 293. It is not improbable that it was at this time that 'he was seen by above five hundred Brethren at once' (1 Cor. xv. 6), and we may conjecture that the appointed mountain was that central and commanding elevation near the Lake, which has been described in p. lxxxvi. The Eleven must afterwards have returned to Jerusalem, where, probably, our Lord 'was seen by James' alone, as mentioned by the Apostle Paul. After having, for forty days, given them various opportunities of becoming infallibly certain of the reality of his resurrection, and of listening to his instructions respecting the kingdom of God, and their own duties in promoting it, he finally gave them a comprehensive view of the objects of his Gospel, and directed them to wait in Jerusalem till they were themselves 'endued with power from on high'. He then led them out to that part of the Mount of Olives which adjoins Bethany; and after giving them his final directions, while they were beholding him, he was taken from the earth and carried into heaven. SECT. viii. p. 294.

The Apostles continued looking steadfastly towards heaven as their Lord ascended; and if we try to realize the scene, we find every thing to fix the attention, and to give a cheering resting-place to the imagination. It might have been enough to know, from indubitable proofs, that the Son of Man really entered into his glory; but it is delightful to the eye of faith to see him, in gentle majesty, ascending there. Angels might have accompanied him while mounting towards the throne of Jehovah. Angels will attend him, when he sitteth on that throne to judge the world in righteousness: but it suits more the purposes of the glorious scene on the Mount of Olives, that there should be nothing to dazzle the imagination, or to divide the attention. The Apostles saw him rising from the earth, while praying for them to his God and Father; ascending with tranquil dignity; gradually lessening to their fixed sight; and, before distance rendered him invisible to them, received into a cloud—bright we may reasonably suppose as that which overshadowed him on the Mount of Transfiguration—like that, too, an emblem, to the Jewish disciple, of the shechinah which rested on the ark, and which manifested the presence of Jehovah.

They saw their Lord no more. They witnessed his triumphs; they shared his favour; they wrought miracles by his power; they loved him with a love which stood the test of reproach and toil and suffering and death; they rejoiced in him with joy unspeakable and full of glory; and they looked forwards to the time when they should again see him, and be received into his glory; but on earth they saw him no more. Yet they continued gazing; hoping, perhaps, to catch a last glimpse through the splendid veil which concealed him from their sight. To set at rest their anxious curiosity, two heavenly messengers stood by them, and declared to them that the same Jesus, whom they had seen taken from them into heaven, shall come again—when every eye shall see him—in like manner, visibly, and certainly, as they had seen him go into heaven. Then, full of veneration and exulting transport, the Apostles prostrated themselves on the ground, in reverential homage of their ascended Lord; and speedily returning to Jerusalem with great joy, were continually in the Temple, praising and blessing God.

‘I SAW IN THE NIGHT VISIONS, AND, BEHOLD, ONE LIKE THE SON OF MAN CAME WITH THE CLOUDS OF HEAVEN, AND CAME TO THE ANCIENT OF DAYS, AND THEY BROUGHT HIM NEAR BEFORE HIM. AND THERE WAS GIVEN HIM DOMINION, AND GLORY, AND A KINGDOM, THAT ALL PEOPLE, NATIONS, AND LANGUAGES, SHOULD SERVE HIM: HIS DOMINION IS AN EVERLASTING DOMINION, WHICH SHALL NOT PASS AWAY, AND HIS KINGDOM THAT WHICH SHALL NOT BE DESTROYED.’—DAN. vii. 13, 14.

SUMMARY VIEW
OF THE
DIVISION OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY :

For reference from the Index.

- | | |
|------|--|
| Part | I. To the First Miracle. |
| | II. To the Approach of the Tabernacles. |
| | III. Occurrences at the Tabernacles. |
| | IV. Public Preaching, till the Mission of the 'Twelve. |
| | V. During the Absence of the Apostles. |
| | VI. To our Lord's Departure from Galilee. |
| | VII. Last Journey, as far as Bethany. |
| | VIII. To the Day before the Crucifixion. |
| | IX. Last Day of the Saviour's Mortal Life. |
| | X. To his Ascension. |

INDEX.

MATTHEW.

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
i.	1—17	Intr.	6	5
	18—25	—	7	7
ii.	1—23	—	10	10
iii.	1—12	I.	2	14
	13—17	—	3	17
iv.	1—11	—	4	18
	12—22	IV.	1	49
	23—25	—	3	52
v.	1—48	—	4	53
vi.	1—34	—	—	58
vii.	1—29	—	—	61
viii.	1—13	—	5	65
	14—17	—	2	51
	18—34	—	7	68
ix.	1—9	—	8	73
	10—34	—	9	76
	35—38	—	10	82
x.	1	—	11	83
	2—4	—	10	81
	5—42	—	11	83
xi.	1	—	—	87
	2—19	V.	1	89
	20—30	—	3	92
xii.	1—8	II.	7	92
	9—21	V.	8	107
	22—50	—	9	110
xiii.	1—52	—	11	122
	53—58	—	12	130
xiv.	1—2	VI.	1	133

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
xiv.	13—21	VI.	2	135
	22—36	—	3	138
xv.	1—20	—	5	143
	21—38	—	6	146
	39	—	7	149
xvi.	1—12	—	—	149
	13—28	—	8	150
xvii.	1—13	—	9	153
	14—21	—	10	156
	22—27	—	11	158
xviii.	1—35	—	12	159
xix.	1	—	—	165
	1—12	VII.	2	168
	13—30	—	4	172
xx.	1—16	—	5	175
	17—28	—	7	183
	29—34	—	9	187
xxi.	1—11	VIII.	2	193
	12—13	—	4	198
	14—17	—	2	195
	18—19	—	4	198
	20—46	—	5	199
xxii.	1—46	—	—	203
xxiii.	1—39	—	—	209
xxiv.	1—2	—	—	214
	3—51	—	6	214
xxv.	1—46	—	7	221
xxvi.	1—5	—	8	223
	6—13	—	1	191

MATTHEW continued.

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
xxvi.	14—16	VIII.	8	224
	17—19	IX.	1	227
	20—25	—	2	228
	26—29	—	3	236
	30—35	—	7	244
	36—46	—	8	245
	47—56	—	9	247
	57—75	—	10	250

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
xxvii.	1—2	IX.	11	254
	3—10	—	12	255
	11—31	—	13	257
	32—56	—	14	264
	57—61	—	16	270
	62—66	X.	1	275
xxviii.	1—15	—	2	277
	16—20	—	7	29

M A R K.

i.	1—8	I.	2	14
	9—11	—	3	17
	12—13	—	4	18
	14—20	IV.	1	49
	21—34	—	2	50
	35—39	—	3	52
	40—45	—	5	65
ii.	1—14	—	8	73
	15—22	—	9	76
	23—28	II.	7	32
iii.	1—12	V.	8	107
	13—19	IV.	10	81
	19—35	V.	9	109
iv.	1—34	—	11	122
	35—41	IV.	7	68
v.	1—21	—	—	70
	22—43	—	9	77
vi.	1—6	V.	12	130
	6	IV.	10	82
	7—13	—	11	83
	14—30	VI.	1	133
	31—44	—	2	135
	45—56	—	3	138
vii.	1—23	—	5	143
	24—37	—	6	146
viii.	1—9	—	—	148
	9—26	—	7	149
	27—38	—	8	150
ix.	1	—	—	153
	2—13	—	9	153
	14—29	—	10	155

ix.	30—33	—	11	158
	33—50	VI.	12	159
x.	1—12	VII.	2	168
	13—31	—	4	172
	32—45	—	7	183
	46—52	—	9	187
xi.	1—11	VIII.	2	193
	12—19	—	4	198
	20—33	—	6	199
xii.	1—14	—	—	202
xiii.	1—2	—	—	214
	3—37	—	6	214
xiv.	1—2	—	8	224
	3—9	—	1	191
	10—11	—	8	224
	12—16	IX.	1	227
	17—21	—	2	228
	22—25	—	3	236
	26—31	—	7	244
	32—42	—	8	245
	43—52	—	9	247
	53—72	—	10	250
xv.	1	—	11	254
	2—20	—	13	257
	21—41	—	14	264
	42—47	—	16	270
xvi.	1—11	X.	2	277
	12—13	—	3	286
	14	—	4	289
	15—18	—	7	294
	19—20	—	8	295

LUKE.

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
i.	1—4	Intr.	1	1
	5—25	—	2	1
	26—38	—	3	3
	39—56	—	4	3
	57—80	—	5	4
ii.	1—21	—	8	7
	22—40	—	9	8
	41—52	—	11	11
iii.	1—20	I.	2	14
	21—23	—	3	17
	23—38	Intr.	6	5
iv.	1—13	I.	4	18
	14—15	II.	7	32
	16—30	—	8	33
	31—41	IV.	2	50
	42—44	—	3	52
v.	1—11	II.	9	34
	12—16	IV.	5	65
	17—28	—	8	73
	29—39	—	9	76
vi.	1—5	II.	7	32
	6—11	V.	8	107
	12—19	IV.	10	81
	20—49	—	4	53
vii.	1—10	—	5	65
	11—17	—	6	68
	18—35	V.	1	89
	36—50	—	2	91
viii.	1—3	IV.	10	82
	4—18	V.	11	122
	19—21	—	9	120
	22—40	IV.	7	68
	41—56	—	9	77
ix.	1—6	—	11	83
	7—10	VI.	1	133
	10—17	—	2	135
	18—27	—	8	150
	28—36	—	9	153
	37—43	—	10	155
	43—45	—	11	158
	46—50	—	12	159
	51—56	VII.	1	167
	57—62	IV.	7	69
x.	1—24	V.	3	92

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
x.	25—42	V.	4	95
xi.	1—13	II.	10	35
	14—28	V.	9	110
	37—54	—	10	121
xii.	1—59	VII.	6	176
xiii.	1—35	—	—	180
xiv.	1—35	V.	6	98
xv.	1—32	—	—	100
xvi.	1—31	—	—	102
xvii.	1—10	VI.	12	160
	11—19	VII.	1	168
	20—37	—	3	170
xviii.	1—14	—	—	170
	15—30	—	4	172
	31—34	—	7	183
	35—43	—	9	187
xix.	1—28	—	8	185
	29—44	VIII.	2	193
	45—48	—	4	198
xx.	1—44	—	5	200
	45—47	—	—	209
xxi.	1—4	—	—	209
	5—6	—	—	214
	7—36	—	6	214
	37—38	—	8	224
xxii.	1—6	—	—	224
	7—13	IX.	1	227
	14—16	—	2	228
	17—20	—	3	236
	21—38	—	2	232
	39	—	7	244
	40—46	—	8	245
	47—53	—	9	247
	54—65	—	10	250
	66—71	—	11	254
xxiii.	1	—	—	255
	2—25	—	13	257
	26—49	—	14	264
	50—56	—	16	270
xxiv.	1—12	X.	2	280
	13—35	—	3	286
	36—43	—	4	289
	44—53	—	8	294

JOHN.

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
i.	1—18	I.	1	13
	19—51	—	5	19
ii.	1—12	—	6	21
	13—22	II.	1	23
	23—25	—	2	24
iii.	1—21	—	—	24
	22—36	—	3	25
iv.	1—42	—	4	26
	43—54	—	5	28
v.	1—47	—	6	29
vi.	1—13	VI.	2	135
	14—21	—	3	137
	22—71	—	4	140
vii.	1	—	—	143
	2—53	III.	1	39
viii.	1	—	—	42
	2—59	—	2	42
ix.	1—41	—	3	45
x.	1—21	—	—	47
	22—42	V.	5	96
xi.	1—54	—	7	104

Chap.	Ver.	Part	Sect.	Page
xi.	54—57	VIII.	1	191
xii.	1—11	—	—	191
	12—19	—	3	193
	20—50	—	—	196
xiii.	1—38	IX.	2	229
xiv.	1—31	—	4	237
xv.	1—27	—	5	239
xvi.	1—33	—	—	240
xvii.	1—26	—	6	242
xviii.	1	—	7	244
	2—12	—	9	247
	13—27	—	10	250
	28—40	—	13	256
xix.	1—16	—	—	261
	17—30	—	14	264
	31—37	—	15	270
	38—42	—	16	270
xx.	1—18	X.	2	277
	19—23	—	4	289
	24—31	—	5	290
xxi.	1—25	—	6	291

INTRODUCTION

TO THE

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

CIRCUMSTANCES CONNECTED WITH THE BIRTH AND CHILDHOOD OF JOHN THE BAPTIST AND OF JESUS CHRIST.

SECT. I.

Luke's General Introduction to the Gospel History.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		FORASMUCH as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us, ² even as they delivered them unto us, who from the beginning were cyewitnesses and ministers of the word; ³ it seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, ⁴ that thou mightest know the certainty of those things wherein thou hast been instructed.*

SECT. II.

Announcement to Zachariah of the approaching Birth of John.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		⁵ THERE was in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zachariah, of the course of Abijah: and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth. ⁶ And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless. ⁷ And they had no child, because that Elisabeth

* On the import of St. Luke's General Introduction, see the Preliminary Observations.

B

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		was barren, and they both were well stricken in years. ⁸ And it came to pass, that while he executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course, ⁹ according to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord. ¹⁰ And the whole multitude of the people were praying without at the time of incense. ¹¹ And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of the altar of incense. ¹² And when Zachariah saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him. ¹³ But the angel said unto him, "Fear not, Zachariah: for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son; and thou shalt call his name John. ¹⁴ And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth. ¹⁵ For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb. ¹⁶ And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God. ¹⁷ And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." ¹⁸ And Zachariah said unto the angel, "Whereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years." ¹⁹ And the angel answering said unto him, "I am Gabriel, who stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings. ²⁰ And, behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season." ²¹ And the people waited for Zachariah, and wondered that he tarried so long in the temple. ²² And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple; for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless. ²³ And it came to pass, that, as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house. ²⁴ And after those days his wife Elisabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying, ²⁵ "Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the days wherein he looked on me to take away my reproach among men."

SECT. III.

Announcement to Mary of the approaching Birth of Jesus.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		²⁶ Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, ²⁷ to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David ; and the virgin's name was Mary. ²⁸ And the angel came in unto her, and said, " Hail, highly favoured ; the Lord is with thee : blessed art thou among women." ²⁹ And she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be. ³⁰ And the angel said unto her, " Fear not, Mary : for thou hast found favour with God. ³¹ And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS. ³² He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest : and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David : ³³ and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever ; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." ³⁴ Then said Mary unto the angel, " How shall this be, seeing I know not a man ? " ³⁵ And the angel answered and said unto her, " The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee : therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.* ³⁶ And, behold, thy kinswoman Elisabeth, she also hath conceived a son in her old age : and this is the sixth month with her who was called barren. ³⁷ For with God nothing shall be impossible." ³⁸ And Mary said, " Behold the handmaid of the Lord ; be it unto me according to thy word." And the angel departed from her.

SECT. IV.

Mary's Visit to Elizabeth.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		³⁹ Now Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah. ⁴⁰ And she entered into the house of Zachariah, and saluted Elisabeth. ⁴¹ And it came to pass, that when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb ; and Elisabeth was filled

* Or, therefore also thy holy offspring shall be called the Son of God.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		with the Holy Spirit: ⁴² and she spake out with a loud voice, and said, “Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. ⁴³ And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? ⁴⁴ For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy. ⁴⁵ And blessed is she who believed that there will be a performance of the things told her from the Lord.” ⁴⁶ And Mary said, “My soul doth magnify the Lord, ⁴⁷ and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour; ⁴⁸ because he hath regarded the low estate his handmaiden. For, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed; ⁴⁹ because he that is mighty hath done to me great things; and holy is his name. ⁵⁰ And his mercy is on them that fear him, from generation to generation. ⁵¹ He hath shewed strength with his arm; he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts. ⁵² He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree. ⁵³ He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away. ⁵⁴ He hath helped his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy, ⁵⁵ (as he spake to our fathers,) to Abraham and to his seed for ever.” ⁵⁶ And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

SECT. V.

Birth of John the Baptist.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		⁵⁷ Now Elisabeth’s full time came that she should be delivered; and she brought forth a son. ⁵⁸ And her neighbours and her kindred heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her. ⁵⁹ And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zachariah, after the name of his father. ⁶⁰ And his mother answered and said, “Nay; but he shall be called John.” ⁶¹ And they said unto her, “There is no one among thy kindred that is called by this name.” ⁶² And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called. ⁶³ And he asked for a writing tablet, and wrote, saying, “His name is John.” And they all wondered. ⁶⁴ And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue loosed; and

MATT.	MARK	LUKE I.	JOHN
		he spake, and praised God. ⁶⁵ And fear came on all that dwelt round about them : and all these sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judea. ⁶⁶ And all they that heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, “What manner of child shall this be !” And the hand of the Lord was with him. ⁶⁷ And his father Zachariah was filled with the Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying, ⁶⁸ “Blessed be the Lord God of Israel ; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, ⁶⁹ and hath raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David ; ⁷⁰ (as he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, who have been since the world began ;) ⁷¹ even salvation from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us ; ⁷² to perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant ; ⁷³ the oath which he sware to our father Abraham, ⁷⁴ that he would grant unto us, that we, being delivered out of the hand of our enemies, might serve him, without fear, ⁷⁵ in holiness and righteousness before him, all our days. ⁷⁶ And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest : for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways ; ⁷⁷ in order to give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins, ⁷⁸ through the tender mercy of our God ; whereby the day-spring from on high hath visited us, ⁷⁹ to give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.” ⁸⁰ And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit ; and he was in the deserts till the day of his manifestation unto Israel.

SECT. VI.
*Genealogy of Jesus Christ.

MATT. I.	MARK	LUKE III.	JOHN
THE book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.† • Abraham begat Isaac ; and Isaac begat Jacob ; and Jacob begat Judah and his brethren ; • and Judah begat Phares and		²³ Jesus—being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph, the son of Heli, ²⁴ the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, the son of Melchi, the son of Janna, the son of Joseph, ²⁵ the son of Mattathiah, the son of Amos, the son of

* In these Genealogies, the names are given as in Archbp. Newcome's Translation.

† (Matt.) Or, Genealogy of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham.

MATT. I.	MARK	LUKE III.	JOHN
Zara, by Tamar; and Phares begat Hezron; and Hezron begat Aram; ⁴ and Aram begat Aminadab; and Aminadab begat Naashon; and Naashon begat Salmon; ⁵ and Salmon begat Boaz, by Rahab; and Boaz begat Obed, by Ruth; and Obed begat Jessé; ⁶ And Jessé begat David the king; and David the king begat Solomon, by her that had been the wife of Uriah; ⁷ and Solomon begat Rehoboam; and Rehoboam begat Abjah; and Abjah begat Asa; ⁸ and Asa begat Jehoshaphat; and Jehoshaphat begat Jehoram; and Jehoram begat Uzziah; ⁹ and Uzziah begat Jotham; and Jotham begat Ahaz; and Ahaz begat Hezekiah; ¹⁰ and Hezekiah begat Manasseh; and Manasseh begat Amon; and Amon begat Josiah; ¹¹ and Josiah begat Jeconiah and his brethren, about the time they were carried away to Babylon: ¹² and after they were brought to Babylon, Jeconiah begat Salathiel; and Salathiel begat Zerubbabel; ¹³ and Zerubbabel begat Abiud; and Abiud begat Eliakim; and Eliakim begat Azor; ¹⁴ and Azor begat Sadoc; and Sadoc begat Achim; and Achim begat Eliud; ¹⁵ and Eliud begat Eleazar; and Eleazar begat Matthan; and Matthan begat Jacob; ¹⁶ and Jacob begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ. ¹⁷ So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.		Nahum, the son of Esli, the son of Naggé, ²⁶ the son of Maath, the son of Mattathiah, the son of Semëi, the son of Joseph, the son of Judah, ²⁷ the son of Joanna, the son of Rhesa, the son of Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, the son of Neri, ²⁸ the son of Melchi, the son of Addi, the son of Cosam, the son of Elmodam, the son of Er, ²⁹ the son of José, the son of Eliezer, the son of Jorim, the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, ³⁰ the son of Simeon, the son of Judah, the son of Joseph, the son of Jonan, the son of Eliakim, ³¹ the son of Melea, the son of Menan, the son of Mattatha, the son of Nathan, the son of David, ³² the son of Jessé, the son of Obed, the son of Boaz, the son of Salmon, the son of Naasson,* ³³ the son of Aminadab, the son of Aram, the son of Hezron, the son of Phares, the son of Judah, ³⁴ the son of Jacob, the son of Isaac, the son of Abraham, the son of Terah, the son of Nahor, ³⁵ the son of Serug, the son of Reü, the son of Peleg, the son of Eber, the son of Salah, ³⁶ the son of Cainan, the son of Arphaxad, the son of Shem, the son of Noah, the son of Lamech, ³⁷ the son of Methuselah, the son of Enoch, the son of Jared, the son of Mahalaleel, the son of Cainan, ³⁸ the son of Enoch, the son of Seth, the son of Adam, the son of God.
		* Or, Naashon, as in Matt. i. 4. The Greek is the same in both cases, Ναασων.

SECT. VII.

Announcement to Joseph of the approaching Birth of Jesus.

MATT. I.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
¹⁸ Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise : for when his mother Mary had been espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Spirit. ¹⁹ Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privately. ²⁰ But while he thought on these things, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, “Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife : for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Spirit. ²¹ And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus : for he shall save his people from their sins.” ²² (Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled * which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, ²³ ‘Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel,’ which being interpreted is, God with us.) ²⁴ Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife : ²⁵ and knew her not till she had brought forth her first-born son : and he called his name Jesus.	Is. 7; 14.

SECT. VIII.

Birth of Jesus, with connected Circumstances.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE II.	JOHN
		AND it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cesar Augustus, that all the land should be enrolled. ² (This enrolment was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.†) ³ And all went to be enrolled every one to his own city. ⁴ And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem ; (because he was of the house and lineage of David :) ⁵ to be enrolled with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child. ⁶ Now it came to pass that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. ⁷ And she brought forth her firstborn son,

* Or, so that it was fulfilled. † On this enrolment, see the Preliminary Observations.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE II.	JOHN
		and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. ⁸ And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. ⁹ And, lo, an angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. ¹⁰ And the angel said unto them, "Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all the people; ¹¹ that unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. ¹² And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger." ¹³ And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, ¹⁴ "Glory to God in the highest heavens, and on earth peace, good will toward men." ¹⁵ And it came to pass, when the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which hath come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us." ¹⁶ And they went with haste, and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. ¹⁷ And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. ¹⁸ And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds. ¹⁹ But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart. ²⁰ And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them. ²¹ And when eight days were accomplished for circumcising him, his name was called Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

SECT IX.

Presentation of Jesus in the Temple.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE II.	JOHN
		²² And when the days of their purification were accomplished, according to the law of Moses, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord; *

* See Exod. xxii. 29. xxxiv. 26. Lev. xii. Numb. xviii. 15, 16.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE II.	JOHN
		²³ (as it is written in the law of the Lord, ‘Every male that openeth the womb, shall be called holy to the Lord ;’) ²⁴ and to offer a sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, ‘A pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons.’ ²⁵ And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon ; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel : and the Holy Spirit was upon him. ²⁶ And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord’s Christ.* ²⁷ And he came by the Spirit into the temple ; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law, ²⁸ then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said, ²⁹ “ Now, Lord, thou lettest thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word ;† ³⁰ for mine eyes have seen thy salvation, ³¹ which thou hast prepared before the face of all people ; ³² a light to enlighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.” ³³ And his father and mother wondered at those things which were spoken of him. ³⁴ And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, “ Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel ; and for a sign which shall be spoken against ; ³⁵ (yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also ;) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.” ³⁶ And there was one Anna, a prophetess, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher : she was of a great age, and had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity ; ³⁷ and she was a widow of about fourscore and four years, who departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day. ³⁸ And she, coming up that same hour, gave thanks unto the Lord, and spake concerning him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.‡ ³⁹ And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth. ⁴⁰ And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom : and the grace of God was upon him.

* Or, the Anointed of the Lord.

† Or, Now, Sovereign Lord, thou art dismissing thy servant according to thy word, in peace ; for &c.

‡ Here is commonly introduced the narrative in the following section—thus making Luke ii. 39 correspond with Matt. ii. 22, 23. As the words of St. Luke imply that he was not acquainted with the record in Matt. ii., it appears best to leave these verses in their present situation.

SECT. X.

Visit of the Magi—Flight into Egypt—Return to Galilee.

MATT. II.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came Magi from the east to Jerusalem, ² saying, "Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.* ³ When Herod the king heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. ⁴ And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he inquired of them where the Christ should be born. ⁵ And they said unto him, "In Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet, ⁶ 'And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, art not the least among the princes of Judah: for out of thee shall come a Governor, who shall rule my people Israel.' " ⁷ Then Herod, when he had privately called the Magi, inquired of them exactly what time the star appeared. ⁸ And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, "Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I also may come and worship him."† ⁹ Now when they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they had seen in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over the place where the young child was. ¹⁰ And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. ¹¹ And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshiped him:‡ and when they had had opened their treasures, they presented gifts unto him, gold and frankincense and myrrh. ¹² And having been warned in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way. ¹³ And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, "Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod is about to seek the young child, to destroy him." ¹⁴ Then he arose and took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt: ¹⁵ and he was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled§ which	Mic. 5; 2.

* Or, to do him homage. † Or, do him homage. ‡ Or, did him homage. § Or, so that it was fulfilled.

MATT. II.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, 'Out of Egypt have I called my son.'	Hos. 11; 1.
¹⁶ Then Herod, when he saw that he was deceived by the Magi, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the male children that were in Beth-lehem, and in all its borders, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had exactly inquired of the Magi. ¹⁷ Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, ¹⁸ 'In Ramah was a voice heard, lamentation and weeping and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.'	Jer. 31; 15.
¹⁹ But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, ²⁰ saying, "Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead who sought the young child's life." ²¹ And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel. ²² But when he heard that Archelaus reigned in Judca in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: notwithstanding, being warned in a dream, he turned aside into the parts of Galilee: ²³ And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled* which was spoken by the prophets, 'He shall be called a Nazarene.'

SECT. XI.

Jesus at the Passover when Twelve Years of age.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE II.	JOHN
		⁴¹ Now his parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover. ⁴² And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem after the custom of the feast. ⁴³ And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus remained behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it. ⁴⁴ But, supposing him to have been in the company, they went a day's journey; and they sought him among their kindred and acquaintance. ⁴⁵ And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him. ⁴⁶ And it came to pass, that after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst

* Or, so that it was fulfilled.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE II.	JOHN
		of the teachers, both hearing them, and asking them questions. ⁴⁷ And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding and answers. ⁴⁸ And when his parents saw him, they were amazed: and his mother said unto him, "Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing." ⁴⁹ And he said unto them, "How is it that ye sought me? knew ye not that I must be in my Father's house?" ⁵⁰ And they understood not the saying which he spake unto them. ⁵¹ And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them. And his mother kept all these things in her heart. ⁵² And Jesus increased in wisdom, and in stature, and in favour with God and man.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART I.

THE PREACHING OF JOHN THE BAPTIST :
AND THE MINISTRY OF CHRIST, TO HIS FIRST MIRACLE.

SECT. I.*

General View of the Dispensation by Jesus Christ : His Power and Dignity.

MATT,	MARK	LUKE	JOHN I.
			IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. ² The same was in the beginning with God. ³ All things were made by him ; and without him was not any thing made that was made. ⁴ In him was life ; and the life was the light of men. ⁵ And the light shineth in darkness ; and the darkness comprehended it not. ⁶ There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. ⁷ The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. ⁸ He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light. ⁹ That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. ¹⁰ He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. ¹¹ He came unto his own, and his own received him not. ¹² But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name : ¹³ which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. ¹⁴ And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of

* This section is from the common version, without any alterations.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN I.
			grace and truth.— ¹⁵ John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, “This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for he was before me.”— ¹⁶ And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace. ¹⁷ For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ. ¹⁸ No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him .

SECT. II.

General View of the Ministry of the Baptist.

MATT. III.	MARK I.	LUKE III.	JOHN
	THE BEGINNING OF THE GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST, the SON OF GOD.	Now in the fifteenth year of the government of Tiberius Cesar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip te- trach of Iturea and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, ² under the high priest Annas and Caia- phas,† the word of God came unto John, the son of Zachariah, in the desert. ³ And he came into all the region about the Jordan, (a) preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins: ⁴ as it is written in the book of the words of Isaiah the prophet, say- ing, (b) ‘The voice of one crying in the desert, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. ⁵ Every valley
Now in those days cometh John the Bap- tist, preaching in the desert of Judea, ² and saying, “Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.” ³ For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Isaiah, saying, ‘The voice of one crying in the desert, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.’	² As it is written in Isaiah the prophet,* ‘Be- hold, I send my messen- ger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way; ³ (b) ‘The voice of one crying in the desert, Pre- pare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight;’ ⁴ so John came baptizing in the desert, and (a) preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.

• (Mark) R. T. in the prophets. Mill thinks the original reading was, in the prophet. — The passages cited are Mal. iii. 1, and Is. xl. 3.

† (Luke) R. T. under the high-priests Annas and Caiaphas, which reading Kuinoel prefers.

MATT. III.	MARK I.	LUKE III.	JOHN
(a) ⁴ And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was locusts and wild honey. (b) ⁵ Then went out unto him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about the Jordan, ⁶ and were baptized by him in the Jordan, confessing their sins. ⁷ But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath about to come? ⁸ Bring forth therefore fruit meet for repentance: ⁹ and think not to say within yourselves, 'We have Abraham for our father:' for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham. ¹⁰ And even now the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.	(b) ⁵ And there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins. (a) ⁶ Now John was clothed with camel's hair, and with a leathern girdle about his loins; and he ate locusts and wild honey.	shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked places shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth; ⁶ and all flesh shall see the salvation of God.' ⁷ Then said he to the multitudes that came forth to be baptized by him, "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath about to come? ⁸ Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, 'We have Abraham for our father:' for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham. ⁹ And even now the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire."

N. B. In these and other pages, the letters (a) and (b) are introduced to direct to corresponding portions, where it does not appear desirable to change the order of any one.

MATT. III.	MARK I.	LUKE III.	JOHN
¹¹ I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry: he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit, and with fire: ¹² whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly cleanse his threshing-floor; and he will gather his wheat into the garner, but will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire."	⁷ And he preached, saying, "There cometh one mightier than I after me, the fastening of whose sandals I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose. ⁸ I indeed have baptized you with water: but he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit."	¹⁰ And the multitudes asked him, saying, "What then shall we do?" ¹¹ He answereth and saith unto them, "Let him that hath two coats, give to him that hath none; and let him that hath meat, do likewise." ¹² Then came also publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, "Teacher, what shall we do?" ¹³ And he said unto them, "Exact no more than that which is appointed for you." ¹⁴ And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, "And what shall we do?" And he said unto them, "Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely; and be content with your wages." ¹⁵ And as the people were in expectation, and all were reasoning in their hearts concerning John, whether or not he were the Christ; ¹⁶ John answered all, saying, "I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the fastening of whose sandals I am unworthy to unloose: he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire: ¹⁷ whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly cleanse his threshing-floor; and he will gather the wheat into his garner, but will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire."

MATT.	MARK	LUKE III.	JOHN
		¹⁸ With many other exhortations, therefore, he preached glad tidings to the people. — ¹⁹ But Herod the tetrarch, being reproved by him concerning Herodias his brother Philip's wife, and concerning all the evil things which Herod had done, ²⁰ added this also above all, that he shut up John in prison.

SECT. III.

The Baptism of Jesus, near Bethabara.

MATT. III.	MARK I.	LUKE III.	JOHN
¹³ THEN cometh Jesus from Galilee to the Jordan unto John, to be baptized by him. ¹⁴ But John forbad him, saying, "I have need to be baptized by thee, and comest thou to me?" ¹⁵ But Jesus answering said unto him, "Suffer it now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness." Then he suffered him ¹⁶ And Jesus, having been baptized, went up straightway from the water: and lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and coming upon him: ¹⁷ and lo, a voice from heaven, saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."	⁹ And it came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized by John in the Jordan. ¹⁰ And straightway coming up from the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him: ¹¹ and there came a voice from heaven, saying, "Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."	²¹ Now it came to pass, while all the people were being baptized, that Jesus also having been baptized, and praying, the heaven was opened, ²² and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in a bodily appearance like a dove, and a voice came from heaven, saying, "Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." ²³ And Jesus himself was about thirty years of age, when beginning his ministry.

SECT. IV.

*The Sojourn of Christ in the Desert, near the Dead Sea : His Temptations.

MATT. IV.	MARK I.	LUKE IV.	JOHN †
THEN was Jesus led up by the Spirit into the desert to be tempted by the devil. ² And having fasted forty days and forty nights, he afterward hungered. ³ And the tempter came to him and said, “If thou art the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread.” ⁴ But he answered and said, “It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.” ⁵ Then the devil taketh him to the holy city, and placeth him on the wing of the temple, ⁶ and saith unto him, “If thou art the Son of God, cast thyself down : for it is written, ‘He will give his angels charge concerning thee : and in their hands shall they bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.’” ⁷ Jesus said unto him, “Again it is written, ‘Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.’”	¹² And immediately the Spirit sendeth him forth into the desert. ¹³ And he was there in the desert forty days tempted by Satan : and he was with the wild beasts : and the angels ministered unto him.	And Jesus being full of the Holy Spirit returned from the Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the desert, ² for forty days, being tempted by the devil. And in those days he did eat nothing : and when they were ended, he afterward hungered. ³ And the devil said unto him, “If thou art the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread.” ⁴ And Jesus answered him, saying, “It is written, that ‘man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.’” ⁹ And he brought him to Jerusalem, and placed him on the wing of the temple, and said unto him, “If thou art the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence : ¹⁰ for it is written, ‘He will give his angels charge concerning thee, to keep thee : ¹¹ and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.’” ¹² And Jesus answering said unto him, “It is said, ‘Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.’”

* The second temptation in Matthew is the third in Luke ; and vice versa.
† If, as some think, the second verse of St. John’s Gospel refer to this period, it may be inserted here.

MATT. IV.	MARK	LUKE IV.	JOHN
⁸ Again, the devil taketh him to an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them ; ⁹ and saith unto him, “ All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me.”* ¹⁰ Then saith Jesus unto him, “ Get thee hence, Satan : for it is written, ‘ Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.’ ” ¹¹ Then the devil leaveth him ; and, behold, angels came and ministered unto him.		⁵ And the devil, taking him up to a high mountain, shewed him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. ⁶ And the devil said unto him, “ All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them : for it hath been delivered unto me ; and to whomsoever I will I give it. ⁷ If therefore thou wilt worship before me,* all shall be thine.” ⁸ And Jesus answered and said unto him, “ Get thee behind me, Satan : for it is written, ‘ Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.’ ” ¹³ And when the devil had ended all the temptation, he departed from him for a season.

SECT. V.

Testimony of the Baptist to a Deputation from the Sanhedrim, which came to him at Bethabara. The first Disciples of Jesus.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN I.
			¹⁹ Now this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent Priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, “ Who art thou ? ” ²⁰ And he confessed, and denied not ; but confessed, “ I am not the Christ.” ²¹ And they asked him, “ What then ? Art thou Elijah ? ” And he saith, “ I am not.” “ Art thou the prophet ? ” And he answered, “ No.” ²² They said therefore unto him, “ Who art thou ? that we may give an answer to them who sent us. What sayest

* Προσκυνεω, worship, in the tempter's words, seems best rendered do homage : if so, the reply of Christ must be rendered, ‘ Thou shalt do homage to the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve,’ λατρευσεις.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN I.
			thou of thyself?" ²³ He said, "I am 'the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord,' as said the prophet Isaiah." ²⁴ And they who were sent were of the Pharisees. ²⁵ And they asked him, and said unto him, "Why then baptizest thou, if thou art not the Christ, nor Elijah, nor the prophet?" ²⁶ John answered them, saying, "I baptize with water: but there hath stood one among you, whom ye know not; ²⁷ even he who cometh after me, the fastening of whose sandal I am not worthy to unloose." ²⁸ These things took place at Bethany beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing. ²⁹ The next day he seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, "Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world. ³⁰ This is he of whom I said, 'After me cometh a man who is preferred before me: for he was before me.' ³¹ And I knew him not: but that he should be made manifest to Israel, therefore I came baptizing with water." ³² And John bare testimony, saying, "I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him. ³³ And I knew him not before: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, 'Upon whomsoever thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he who baptizeth with the Holy Spirit.' ³⁴ And I saw, and bare testimony that this is the Son of God." ³⁵ The next day again John was standing there, and two of his disciples; ³⁶ and looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, "Behold the Lamb of God!" ³⁷ And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus. ³⁸ Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, "What seek ye?" They said unto him, "Rabbi," (which signifieth, being interpreted, Master,) "where dwellest thou?" ³⁹ He saith unto them, "Come and see." They came and saw where he dwelt, and they abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour. ⁴⁰ One of the two who heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. ⁴¹ He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, "We have found the Messiah" (which is, being interpreted, Christ, i. e. Anointed.) ⁴² And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said, "Thou art Simon the son of Jonah; thou shalt be called Cephas:" (which is interpreted, Peter, i. e. Rock.) ⁴³ The next day, Jesus purposed to go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, "Follow me." ⁴⁴ Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. ⁴⁵ Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, "We have found him of whom Moses wrote in the law, and also the prophets, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph. ⁴⁶ And Nathanael said unto him, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" Philip saith unto him, "Come and see." ⁴⁷ Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, "Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile!" ⁴⁸ Nathanael saith unto him, "Whence knowest thou me?" Jesus answered and said unto him, "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig-tree, I saw thee." ⁴⁹ Nathanael answered and saith unto him, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel." ⁵⁰ Jesus answered and said unto him, "Because I said unto thee, 'I saw thee under the fig-tree,' believest thou? thou shalt see greater things than these." ⁵¹ And he saith unto him, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, [Henceforth] ye shall see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man."

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN I.

SECT. VI.

The Marriage at Cana : Our Lord's First Miracle.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN II.
			AND on the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there: ² and both Jesus was invited, and his disciples, to the marriage. ³ And when the wine failed, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, "They have no wine." ⁴ Jesus saith unto her, "Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come." * ⁵ His mother saith unto the servants, "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it ." ⁶ And there were set there six stone vessels for water, (after the manner of purifying of the Jews,) containing two or three firkins apiece. ⁷ Jesus saith unto them, "Fill the vessels with water." And they filled them up to the brim. ⁸ And he saith unto them, "Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast." And they

* Or, What hast thou to do with me? Is not mine hour come?

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN II.
			bare it.” ⁹ Now when the ruler of the feast tasted the water that had been made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants who drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast calleth the bridegroom, ¹⁰ and saith unto him, “ Every man first setteth forth the good wine, and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: thou hast kept the good wine until now.” ¹¹ This beginning of miracles made Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested his glory; and his disciples believed on him. ¹² After this, he went down to Capernaum, himself, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and they remained there not many days.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART II.

FROM THE FIRST PASSOVER, INCLUSIVELY, TO THE APPROACH OF THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.

SECT. I.

At the First Passover, Jesus drives the Traders from the Temple, and predicts his Death to the Rulers.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN II.
			¹³ Now the passover of the Jews was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. ¹⁴ And he found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting : ¹⁵ and when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen ; and poured out the money of the exchangers, and overthrew their tables ; ¹⁶ and said unto them that sold doves, "Take these things hence ; make not my Father's house a house of merchandise." ¹⁷ And his disciples remembered that it is written, 'The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.' ¹⁸ Then answered the Jews and said unto him, "What sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things ?" ¹⁹ Jesus answered and said unto them, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." ²⁰ Then said the Jews, "Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou raise it up in three days ?" ²¹ But he spake of the temple of his body. ²² When therefore he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them ; and they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.

SECT. II.

During the Passover many believe in him: Conference with Nicodemus: Observations of the Evangelist.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN II.
			²³ Now while he was in Jerusalem at the passover, during the feast, many believed in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did. ²⁴ But Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because he knew all men, ²⁵ and needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man. CH. III. But there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: ² the same came to him by night, and said unto him, "Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him." ³ Jesus answered and said unto him, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Unless a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." ⁴ Nicodemus saith unto him, "How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?" ⁵ Jesus answered, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Unless a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. ⁶ That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. ⁷ Wonder not that I said unto thee, 'Ye must be born again.' ⁸ The wind bloweth where it will, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but thou canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit." ⁹ Nicodemus answered and said unto him, "How can these things be?" ¹⁰ Jesus answered and said unto him, "Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things? ¹¹ Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that which we know, and testify that which we have seen; and ye receive not our testimony. ¹² If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe, if I tell you heavenly things? ¹³ And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he who came down from heaven, even the Son of man who is in heaven. ¹⁴ And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: ¹⁵ that whosoever believeth in him should [not perish, but] have everlasting life." ¹⁶ For God so loved the world, that he gave his

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN III.
			only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. ¹⁷ For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. ¹⁸ He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. ¹⁹ And this is the condemnation, that the light hath come into the world, and yet men have loved the darkness rather than the light, because their deeds were evil. ²⁰ For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. ²¹ But he that doeth the truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

SECT. III.

*Last recorded Testimony of the Baptist: Observations of the Evangelist.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN III.
			²² AFTER these things, Jesus went, and his disciples, into the land of Judea; and there he continued with them, and baptized. ²³ Now John also was baptizing in Ænon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and the people came to him, and were baptized. ²⁴ (For John was not yet cast into prison.) ²⁵ There arose therefore a question, on the part of John's disciples with a Jew, about purifying. ²⁶ And they came unto John, and said unto him, "Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond the Jordan, to whom thou barest testimony, behold, he baptizeth, and all men go to him." ²⁷ John answered and said, "A man can receive nothing, unless it be given him from heaven. ²⁸ Ye yourselves bear me testimony,† that I said, 'I am not the Christ, but I am sent before him.' ²⁹ He that hath the bride is the bridegroom:‡ but the friend of the bridegroom, who

* Wetstein, Bengel, Kninoel, and others, regard the Testimony of the Baptist as ending with v. 30. This opinion does not well suit v. 32: yet the phraseology of the 31st and following verses best accords with the supposition, that they are the observations of the Evangelist suggested by that testimony. The system of notation adopted in this Harmony renders some decision necessary; and this appears, on the whole, the most probable.

• Or, are witnesses to me.

‡ Or, It is the bridegroom that hath the bride.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN III.
			standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice. This my joy therefore is fulfilled. ³⁰ He must increase, but I must decrease.” ³¹ He that cometh from above is above all : he that is from the earth is from the earth, and speaketh from the earth : he that cometh from heaven is above all. ³² And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth ; yet no one receiveth his testimony. ³³ He that hath received his testimony hath set his seal to this , that ‘ God is true.’ ³⁴ For he whom God sent speaketh the words of God : for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him . ³⁵ The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand. ³⁶ He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life : and he that disobeyeth the Son shall not see life ; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

SECT. IV.

Our Lord's Conference with the Samaritan Woman : Subsequent Occurrences.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN IV.
			WHEN therefore the Lord knew that the Pharisees had heard that he made and baptized more disciples than John,* ² (although Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples,) ³ he left Judea, and departed again into Galilee. ⁴ Now it was necessary for him to go through Samaria. ⁵ He cometh therefore to a city of Samaria, called Sychar, near to the portion of land which Jacob gave to his son Joseph. ⁶ Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied with the journey, sat accordingly by the well : (it was about the sixth hour.) ⁷ There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water : Jesus saith unto her, “ Give me to drink.” ⁸ (For his disciples had gone away unto the city to buy provisions.) ⁹ Then saith the Samaritan woman unto him, “ Why dost thou, being a Jew, ask drink of me, who am a Samaritan woman ? ” (for the Jews have no communication with the Samaritans.) ¹⁰ Jesus answered and said unto her, “ If thou hadst known the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee,

* Literally, Jesus is making and baptizing more disciples than John. This is the report which the Pharisees had received, in its own form ; and Ἰησοῦς is not pleonastic, though scarcely expressible in a translation.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN IV.
			‘Give me to drink?’ thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.” ¹¹ The woman saith unto him, “Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then hast thou that living water?” ¹² Art thou greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and himself drank thereof, and his sons, and his cattle?” ¹³ Jesus answered and said unto her, “Every one who drinketh of this water shall thirst again: ¹⁴ but whosoever shall drink of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; * but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto everlasting life.” ¹⁵ The woman saith unto him, “Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, nor come hither to draw.” ¹⁶ Jesus saith unto her, “Go, call thy husband, and come hither.” ¹⁷ The woman answered and said, “I have no husband.” Jesus saith unto her, “Thou hast well said, ‘I have no husband:’ ¹⁸ for thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: thou hast said this truly.” ¹⁹ The woman saith unto him, “Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet. ²⁰ Our fathers worshiped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.” ²¹ Jesus saith unto her, “Woman, believe me, that the hour cometh, when neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, ye shall worship the Father. ²² Ye worship what ye know not: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews. ²³ But the hour cometh,” (and now it is,) “when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him. ²⁴ God is a Spirit: and they that worship him ought to worship in spirit and in truth.” ²⁵ The woman saith unto him, “I know that the Messiah cometh,” (called the Christ;) “when he is come, he will tell us all things.” ²⁶ Jesus saith unto her, “I who speak unto thee am he.” ²⁷ And upon this his disciples came, and wondered that he talked with the woman: † yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her? ²⁸ The woman then left her bucket, and went back into the city, and saith to the men, ²⁹ “Come, see a man, who hath told me all that I ever did: is not this the Christ?” ³⁰ They went out of the city, and came unto him.

* Lit. Shall not thirst for ever, εις τον αιωνα. † Or, that he was talking with a woman.

MATT.	MARK .	LUKE	JOHN IV.
			³¹ In the mean while his disciples besought him, saying, “ Rabbi, eat.” ³² But he said unto them, “ I have meat to eat that ye know not of.” ³³ Therefore said the disciples one to another, “ Hath any one brought him aught to eat ?” ³⁴ Jesus saith unto them, “ My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. ³⁵ Say ye not, ‘ There are still four months, and then the harvest cometh ?’ behold, I say unto you, ‘ Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields ; for they are already white for harvest.’” ³⁶ He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto everlasting life : that both he who soweth and he who reapeth may rejoice together. ³⁷ For herein is the saying true, ‘ One soweth, and another reapeth.’ ³⁸ I send you to reap that whereon ye have bestowed no labour : others have laboured, and ye have entered into their labours.” ³⁹ And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him because of the word of the woman who testified, “ He told me all that ever I did.” ⁴⁰ When therefore the Samaritans had come unto him, they besought him that he would abide with them : and he abode there two days. ⁴¹ And many more believed because of his own word ; ⁴² and they said unto the woman, “ We no longer believe because of thy saying : for we have ourselves heard him ; and we know that this is indeed the Saviour of the world, [the Christ.]”

SECT. V.

On his return to Galilee, Jesus, while at Cana, heals the Nobleman’s Son who was ill at Capernaum.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN IV.
			⁴³ Now after the two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee : ⁴⁴ for Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country. ⁴⁵ When therefore he came into Galilee, the Galileans received him gladly, having seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast : for they also

* Nothing can be decided from this verse as to the part of the year when this conversation took place. (See the Preliminary Observations.) The import is, After the seed-sowing is over, there is still an interval of four months before the harvest cometh : but here the harvest presents itself at once. Many of the people of Sychar, we may reasonably suppose, were now seen coming through the fields in their way to our Lord. After ‘ Say ye not,’ at the beginning of the verse, supply, after seed-sowing.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN 17.
			had gone unto the feast. ⁴⁶ He came therefore again unto Cana of Galilee, where he had made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman,* whose son was sick at Capernaum. ⁴⁷ He having heard that Jesus had come out of Judea into Galilee, went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son : for he was at the point of death. ⁴⁸ Then said Jesus unto him, " Unless ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe." ⁴⁹ The nobleman saith unto him, " Lord, come down ere my child die." ⁵⁰ Jesus saith unto him, " Go thy way, thy son liveth." And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way. ⁵¹ But as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, " Thy son liveth." ⁵² He inquired therefore of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, " Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him." ⁵³ The father knew therefore that it was at the same hour, in which Jesus had said unto him, " Thy son liveth : " and he himself believed, and his whole household.
			⁵⁴ This again is the second miracle that Jesus wrought, on coming out of Judea into Galilee.

SECT. VI.

During the Pentecost, our Lord heals the Infirm Man at the Pool of Bethesda : his subsequent Discourse before the Sanhedrim.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN V.
			AFTER these things there was a feast of the Jews ; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.
			² Now there is at Jerusalem near the sheep-gate a pool,† which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches. ³ In these lay a [great] number of infirm persons, blind, lame, withered, [waiting for the moving of the water. ⁴ For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water : whoever then went in first after the troubling of the water, was made whole, whatsoever disease he had.]
			⁵ Now a certain man was there, who had had an infirmity thirty and eight years. ⁶ When Jesus

* th, person of the royal household. Not improbably it was Chuza, Herod's steward. Luke viii. 3.

† th, a bath. — Bethesda signifies house of mercy.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN V.
			saw him lying there, and knew that he had been now a long time afflicted, he saith unto him, "Dost thou desire to be made whole?" ⁷ The infirm man answered him, "Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another goeth down before me." ⁸ Jesus saith unto him, "Rise, take up thy couch, and walk." ⁹ And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his couch, and walked. Now on that day was the sabbath. ¹⁰ The Jews therefore said unto him that had been cured, "It is the sabbath, it is not lawful for thee to carry thy couch." ¹¹ He answered them, "He that made me whole, the same said unto me, 'Take up thy couch, and walk.'" ¹² They asked him therefore, "Who is the man that said unto thee, 'Take up thy couch, and walk.'?" ¹³ But he that was healed knew not who it was: for Jesus had withdrawn away privately, a multitude being in the place. ¹⁴ After these things Jesus findeth him in the temple; and he said unto him, "Behold, thou hast been made whole: sin no more, lest some worse thing befall thee." ¹⁵ The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, who had made him whole. ¹⁶ And on this account the Jews persecuted Jesus, because he did these things on the sabbath. ¹⁷ But Jesus answered them, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I also work." ¹⁸ For this therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only broke the sabbath, but also said that God was his own Father, making himself equal to God. ¹⁹ Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also the Son in like manner doeth: ²⁰ for the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that he himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may wonder. ²¹ For as the Father raiseth the dead, and giveth them life, so also the Son giveth life to whom he will. ²² Nor indeed doth the Father judge any one; but he hath committed all judgment unto the Son, ²³ that all may honour the Son, as* they honour the Father: he that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father who sent him. ²⁴ Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that

* So Newcome, Campbell, &c.: the original is καὶ ὡς.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN V.
			heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and cometh not into condemnation ; but hath passed from death unto life. ²⁵ Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour cometh, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God : and they that hear shall live. ²⁶ For as the Father hath life in himself ; so hath he given to the Son also to have life in himself ; ²⁷ and he hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man. ²⁸ Wonder not at this : for the hour cometh, in which all that are in the tombs shall hear his voice, ²⁹ and shall come forth ; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life ; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of condemnation. ³⁰ Of myself I can do nothing : as I hear, I judge : and my judgment is just ; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of him who sent me. ³¹ If I alone bear testimony concerning myself, my testimony is not true. ³² There is another that beareth testimony of me ; and I know that the testimony which he testifieth concerning me is true. ³³ Ye sent unto John, and he bare testimony unto the truth. ³⁴ Yet I require not testimony from man : but I say these things that ye may be saved. ³⁵ He was a burning and shining light : and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light. ³⁶ But I have greater testimony than that of John : for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, these very works that I do, bear testimony concerning me, that the Father hath sent me. ³⁷ And the Father who sent me hath himself borne testimony concerning me. Have ye never heard his voice, nor seen his appearance ? * ³⁸ And have ye not his word abiding among you, that ye believe not on him whom he hath sent ? ³⁹ Ye search the scriptures ; for in them ye think ye have everlasting life : and they are they which testify of me : ⁴⁰ yet ye are not willing come to me, that ye may have life. ⁴¹ I require not glory from men : ⁴² but I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you. ⁴³ I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not : if another come in his own name, him ye will receive. ⁴⁴ How can ye believe, who require glory from one another, and seek not the glory which cometh from God

* So Campb. from Turner (Priestley's Harm.). See εἶδος in Luke iii. 22. Exod. xxiv. 17. Numb. xii. 8.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN V.
			alone? ⁴⁵ Think not that I will accuse you to the Father : there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. ⁴⁶ For if ye had believed Moses, ye would have believed me : for he wrote concerning me. ⁴⁷ But if ye believe not his writings, how will ye believe my words? ”

SECT. VII.

*The Walk through the Corn-fields, on the Second-first Sabbath.

MATT. XII.	MARK II.	LUKE IV.	JOHN
		¹⁴ AND Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee : and a report went forth concerning him through all the region round about. ¹⁵ And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified by all.†
At that time Jesus went on the sabbath through the corn fields ; and his disciples hungered, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat. ² But the Pharisees seeing it said unto him, “ Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath day.” ³ But he said unto them, “ Have ye not	²³ And it came to pass, that he went on the sabbath through the corn-fields ; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn. ²⁴ And the Pharisees said unto him, “ Behold, why do they on the sabbath that which is not lawful? ” ²⁵ And he said unto them, “ Have ye never read what David	CH. VI. Now it came to pass on the second-first sabbath that he went through the corn fields ; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and ate, rubbing them in their hands. ² But certain of the Pharisees said unto them, “ Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath? ” ³ And Jesus answering them

* The chronological position of this Section is nearly decided by the period of the year ; the barley-harvest being after the Passover, the wheat-harvest after the Pentecost. St. Luke alone has given a specific date to the circumstance, denominating the sabbath δευτεροπρωτος—literally, the second-first. Some (following Scaliger) suppose this to mean, the first sabbath after the second day of the Passover. It is more probable that it means either the first sabbath of the second Jewish month, or the first sabbath after the second of the three great festivals, viz. the Pentecost. On the whole the latter seems preferable ; and it enables us better to place the fact in Galilee.—The position of the record in the Gospels, with the difficulty which this causes on the arrangement of this Harmony, is considered in the Preliminary Dissertations.

† These two verses follow St. Luke’s record of the Temptation ; and are obviously to be regarded as a General View of our Lord’s Preaching in Galilee. They precede the record (in Sect. VIII.) of his Rejection at Nazareth ; but they are inserted here, as the date assigned by St. Luke decides the chronological position of this Section ; and the facts recorded must have been in Galilee.

MATT. XII.	MARK II.	LUKE VI.	JOHN
read what David did, when he himself hungered, and they who were with him? ⁴ how he went into the house of God, and ate the shewbread, which it was not lawful for him to eat, nor for them who were with him, but for the priests alone? ⁵ Or have ye not read in the law, that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the sabbath, and yet are blameless? ⁶ But I say unto you, That a greater than the temple is here. ⁷ But if ye had known what this meaneth, ‘I will have mercy, and not sacrifice,’ ye would not have condemned the guiltless.	did, when he had need, and he himself hungered, and they who were with him? ²⁶ how he went into the house of God, in the days of Abiathar the high-priest, and ate the shewbread, which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them who were with him?”	said, “Have ye not read this, what David did, when he himself hungered, and they who were with him? ⁴ that he went into the house of God, and took the shewbread, and ate, and gave also to them who were with him; which it is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone?”
⁸ For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath.”	²⁷ And he said unto them, “The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath: ²⁸ Therefore the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath.”	⁵ And he said unto them, “The Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath.”	Hos. 6 ; 6.

SECT. VIII.

Christ rejected at Nazareth.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE IV.	JOHN
		¹⁶ AND he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day; and he stood up to read. ¹⁷ And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Isaiah. And when he had opened the book,* he found the place where it was written, ¹⁸ ‘The Spirit of the Lord is upon me: † wherefore he

Is. 61 ; 1.

* Or, unrolled the book: so in ver. 20, rolled up the book.

† Or, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, inasmuch as he hath &c. Or, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me: he hath sent me to preach glad tidings &c

D

MATT.	MARK	LUKE IV.	JOHN
		hath anointed me to preach glad tidings to the poor ; he hath sent me * to proclaim liberty to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty the oppressed, ¹⁹ to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord.’ ²⁰ And having closed the book, he gave it again to the attendant, and sat down. And the eyes of all in the synagogue were earnestly fixed on him. ²¹ Then he began to say unto them, “ To-day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears.” ²² And all bare him testimony, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth, and said, “ Is not this the son of Joseph ?” ²³ And he said unto them, “ Ye will surely tell me this proverb, ‘ Physician, heal thyself,’ and say, ‘ Whatsoever we have heard done at Capernaum, do also here in thine own country.’” ²⁴ But he said, “ Verily, I say unto you, No prophet is acceptable in his own country. ²⁵ But in truth I tell you, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up for three years and six months, when there was great famine throughout all the land ; ²⁶ yet to none of them was Elijah sent, except unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, to a widow. ²⁷ And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet ; and no one of them was cleansed, except Naaman the Syrian.” ²⁸ And all in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath, ²⁹ and rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him even to the brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong. ³⁰ But he passing through the midst of them went away.

SECT. IX.

The Miraculous Draught of Fishes.†

MATT.	MARK	LUKE V.	JOHN
		Now it came to pass, when the multitude pressed upon him to hear the word of God, that he was standing by the lake of Gennesaret ; ² and he saw

* The Received Text has here a clause which is found in the Septuagint, as well as in the Hebrew—to heal the broken hearted. Griesbach omits the clause : Scholz retains it.

† There are so few points of correspondence, and so many of difference, between this record, and the narrative in Matthew and Mark respecting the Call of Peter &c. (see Part III. Sect. i,) that Macknight, Greswell, &c., appear right in considering this as an independent transaction. In this case, the whole train of circumstances following the call of the four Disciples, requires it to be placed before the commencement of our Lord’s Public Preaching in Galilee. Till that period, they must occasionally at least have followed their ordinary occupations at the Lake. Macknight observes truly, that St. Luke expresses no call of the four Disciples : but it is also to be admitted that he must have regarded it as such.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE V.	JOHN
		two ships* standing by the lake : but the fishermen had gone out of them, and were washing their nets. ³ And he entered into one of the ships, which was Simon's, and besought him to put forth a little from the land. And he sat down, and taught the multitudes out of the ship. ⁴ Now when he had ceased speaking, he said unto Simon, "Put forth into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught." ⁵ And Simon answering said unto him, "Master, though we have toiled all the night, we have taken nothing : nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net." ⁶ And when they had done this, they inclosed a great number of fishes ; and their net was quite breaking. ⁷ And they beckoned to their companions, who were in the other ship, to come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they were sinking. ⁸ Now when Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at the knees of Jesus, saying, "Depart from me ; for I am a sinful man, O Lord." ⁹ For astonishment seized him, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fishes which they had taken ; ¹⁰ and in like manner also James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said unto Simon, "Fear not ; henceforth thou shalt catch men." ¹¹ And when they had brought their ships to land, they left all, and followed him.

SECT. X.

The Disciples instructed in Prayer. †

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XI.	JOHN
		AND it came to pass, as he was praying in a certain place, that when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples." ² And he said unto them, "When ye pray, say, 'O Father, hallowed be thy name : thy kingdom come. ³ Give us day

* Or, vessels—the small fishing-vessels of the Lake : and so throughout the Gospels.

† This Section is found in that part of St. Luke's Gospel which consists of a Gnomology, or miscellaneous Collection of Discourses, &c., placed by him at the close of his records of our Lord's ministry in Galilee, (see Prel. Diss.) ; and it is in a portion of that Collection (viz. ch. xi.) the remainder of which we are enabled to arrange by the corresponding parts of the other Gospels. It would, therefore, be thus isolated from its context ; and it may, with much probability, be arranged in this Part. At any rate it ought to be placed before the Sermon on the Mount ; since the brief prayer contained in it could scarcely have been given after the fuller prayer recorded by St. Matthew, which comes regularly in Part IV.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XI.	JOHN
		by day our daily bread.* 4 And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that trespasseth against us.† And lead us not into temptation. but deliver us from evil.” 5 And he said unto them, “Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, ‘Friend, lend me three loaves; 6 for a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him!’ 7 and he from within shall answer and say, ‘Trouble me not : the door is now shut, and my children with me are in bed ; I cannot rise and give thee.’ 8 I say unto you, that even if he will not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many loaves as he needeth. 9 And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you ; seek, and ye shall find ; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. 10 For every one that asketh, receiveth ; and he that seeketh, findeth ; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened. 11 Now if a son shall ask bread‡ from any one of you that is a father, will he give him a stone ? or if a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent ? 12 or if he shall ask an egg, will he give him a scorpion ? 13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit § to them that ask him !”

* Or, the food needful for our subsistence.

† The Greek words employed here and in Matthew, from οφειλω, signify owe, &c. They imply, in this connexion, restitution or penalty due for offences ; and therefore the offences themselves: trespass is a fair equivalent rendering ; and is sanctioned by the constant use of it in the Lord’s prayer, as employed in the Liturgy of the Church of England, &c.

‡ Or, a loaf.

§ Or, a holy spirit.

The four preceding Sections contain all the records which can, with any decided probability, be placed between the Pentecost and the Feast of Tabernacles, after which (see Prel. Diss.) our Lord commenced that grand series of miracles and instructions which we term his Public Preaching in Galilee. That in this interval he was employed in the more private exercise of his great work—teaching, for instance, in the synagogues, and in other ways preparing the minds of the people for the approaching summons, ‘Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand’—we might infer even from those words of his relatives (John vii. 3, 4) which preclude the supposition that such transactions as are recorded at the close of the fourth chapter of Matthew were then occurring, or had occurred not long before.

Three circumstances appear to have mainly contributed to our Lord’s comparative retirement during the interval between the Pentecost and the Feast of Tabernacles.

1. The leading men among the Jews had already rejected him and sought his life; and he could not therefore have taught in Jerusalem in that interval, since the Roman Governor resided at Cæsarea except at the Feasts.

2. From the known course of events, it is probable that Herod, (Tiberias being his ordinary residence,) was in Galilee during this interval; which would have prevented such public progresses through that region as our Lord afterwards made.

3. During the greater part of the interval between the Pentecost and the Feast of Tabernacles, the heat was usually so intense, that the people could not have collected around him, as they afterwards did.

Important facts in relation to the last point, will be found in the Preliminary Observations.

The sixth chapter of St. John is not arranged in this Harmony, according to its position in the Gospel. It contains a record of the miracle of the Five Thousand, wrought in Philip’s dominions, and of our Lord’s subsequent discourse in the synagogue at Copernaum. Now the seventh chapter, and the thirteen following, record a series of transactions which occurred at Jerusalem, or in direct connexion with events there, (without any reference to Galilee:) and they form one regular portion of St. John’s Gospel, the parts of which are so closely connected together, by subject, and by locality, that the record in the sixth chapter could not have been introduced by the Evangelist in its chronological position, without interrupting the unity and purpose of that most important and interesting portion. On this account, therefore, as there appears abundant reason to think, St. John placed it where it stands, in chronological relation to the preceding portion of the Gospel; and, as though to prevent any misunderstanding, he assigns a date to the record, viz. the Passover approaching (ch. vi. 4.), which is perfectly accordant with the train of events in the other Gospels, and even with several expressions in the chapter itself which indicate the near approach of his death.

That the miracle of the Five Thousand occurred not long before the Passover at which our Lord was crucified, is the fundamental position on which the arrangement of this Harmony rests; and a full consideration of this fact will be found in the Preliminary Observations. The only essential difficulty attending it, arises from the position of the sixth chapter of St. John; to which difficulty the statements in the preceding paragraph refer, and which they may be deemed to obviate.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART III.

TRANSACTIONS CONNECTED WITH THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.*

SECT. I.

On the approach of the Festival, Christ is urged to go to Jerusalem :
He goes up privately about the middle of it : Transactions during it.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VII.†
			2 Now the feast of the Jews, the Tabernacles, was at hand. 3 His brethren ‡ therefore said unto him, “ Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples also may see thy works which thou doest : 4 for no one doeth any thing in secret, and yet seeketh himself to be known openly. If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world.” 5 (For neither did his brethren believe in him.) 6 Then Jesus said unto them, “ My time is not yet come : but your time is always ready. 7 The world cannot hate you ; but me it hateth, because I testify concerning it, that its works are evil. 8 Go ye up unto this feast : I go not up yet § unto this feast ; for my time is not yet fully come.” 9 Having said these things unto them, he remained in Galilee.

* About this time, probably, Herod imprisoned John the Baptist in the fortress of Machærus, near the Dead Sea, where the Tetrarch resided when in the Peræa.

† As in Archbp. Newcome’s Translation, and also in Campbell’s, the first verse of this seventh chapter is connected in this Harmony with the sixth chapter.

‡ Or, kinsmen ; and so in the following verses.

§ The common text is ουπω, not yet : Griesbach has ουκ, not ; and so also has Scholz. Mace renders “ I do not go with you.” In the above, not is supplied, as in Newcome ; but it is not needed for our Lord’s justification against Porphyry’s charge of inconstancy. See Preliminary Dissertations.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VII.
			¹⁰ When however his brethren had gone up, then he also went up unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret. ¹¹ The Jews* therefore sought him at the feast, and said, "Where is he?" ¹² And there was much murmuring † among the multitudes concerning him: some said, "He is a good man:" others said, "Nay; but he deceiveth the people." ¹³ Howbeit no man spake openly of him, for fear of the Jews. ¹⁴ But when it was now the midst of the feast, Jesus went up into the temple, and taught. ¹⁵ And the Jews wondered, saying, "How knoweth this man learning, having never been taught?" ¹⁶ Jesus answered them, and said, "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. ¹⁷ If any man desire to do his will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it is from God, or whether I speak from myself. ¹⁸ He that speaketh from himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh the glory of him that sent him, he is true, and unrighteousness is not in him." ¹⁹ "Did not Moses give you the law? and yet no one of you keepeth the law: why do ye seek to kill me?" ²⁰ The multitude answered and said, "Thou hast a demon: who seeketh to kill thee?" ²¹ Jesus answered and said unto them, "I have done one work, and ye all wonder at it.‡ ²² Moses gave unto you circumcision, (not that it is from Moses, but from the fathers;) and ye on the sabbath circumcise a man. ²³ If a man receive circumcision on the sabbath, that the law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me, because I have made a man altogether whole on the sabbath? ²⁴ Judge not according to appearance but judge righteous judgment." ²⁵ Some of the inhabitants of Jerusalem therefore said, "Is not this he, whom they seek to kill?" ²⁶ But, lo, he speaketh openly, and they say nothing unto him. Do the rulers really know that he is the Christ? ²⁷ Nevertheless we know him, whence he is: but

* "The Jews" often denotes, in this Gospel, the leading men. † Or, private debating.

‡ Upon the duration assigned in this Harmony to the ministry of Christ, the present was the first festival succeeding that at which our Lord cured the infirm man at the Pool of Bethesda. The reference to the miracle is thus natural and striking: but can this be said, if (as upon every other hypothesis) a year and some months, including three if not four of the great national festivals, had intervened? It is clear that our Lord had not been in Jerusalem since that miracle; and is it conceivable that he who laid so much stress upon the fulfilment of the law, would disobey its express injunctions on this point?

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VII.
			when the Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.” ²⁸ Jesus therefore cried aloud in the temple as he taught, saying, “ Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am ? yet I am not come of myself ; but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not. ²⁹ But I know him : for I am from him, and he sent me forth.” ³⁰ Then they sought to take him : yet no man laid hands on him, because his hour had not yet come. ³¹ Now many of the multitude believed on him, and said, “ When the Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done ? ” ³² The Pharisees heard the people murmuring these things concerning him ; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him. ³³ Jesus therefore said, “ Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go away unto him that sent me. ³⁴ Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me : and where I am, ye cannot come.” ³⁵ The Jews therefore said among themselves, “ Whither will he go, that we shall not find him ? will he go unto the dispersed among the Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles ? ³⁶ What is this word that he spake, ‘ Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me : and where I am, ye cannot come ? ’ ” ³⁷ In the last day, the great day of the feast, Jesus stood in the temple and cried aloud, saying, “ If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. ³⁸ He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, from within him shall flow rivers of living water.” ³⁹ (Now this he spake concerning the Spirit, which they that believe on him were about to receive : for the Holy Spirit was not yet given ; because Jesus was not yet glorified.) ⁴⁰ Many of the multitude therefore, when they heard this word, said, “ This is in truth the Prophet.” ⁴¹ Some said, “ This is the Christ.” But others said, “ Doth the Christ come out of Galilee ? ⁴² Hath not the scripture said that the Christ cometh of the offspring of David, and from the town of Bethlehem, where David was ? ” ⁴³ There was therefore a division in the multitude because of him. ⁴⁴ Now some of them were desirous to take him ; but no one laid hands on him. ⁴⁵ The officers therefore came to the chief priests and Pharisees ; and these said unto them, “ Why have ye not brought him ? ” ⁴⁶ The officers answered, “ Never man spake like this man.” ⁴⁷ The Pharisees therefore answered them, “ Are ye also deceived ? ⁴⁸ Has any one of the rulers believed on him, or of

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VII.
			the Pharisees? ⁴⁹ But this multitude who know not the law are accursed.” ⁵⁰ Nicodemus saith unto them, (he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them,) ⁵¹ “Doth our law condemn a man, unless it first hear from himself, and know what he doeth?” ⁵² They answered and said unto him, “Art thou also from Galilee? Search, and look: for no prophet hath been raised up out of Galilee.” ⁵³ [And every one went unto his own house: CH. VIII. but Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.

SECT. II.

The Woman taken in Adultery brought before Jesus. His Discourses with the Jews, on the Day after the Festival.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VIII.
			² Now early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them. ³ But the Scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst, ⁴ they say unto him, “Teacher, this woman was taken in the act of adultery. ⁵ Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such women should be stoned: what therefore sayest thou?” ⁶ Now this they said, trying him, that they might have whereof to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground. ⁷ But when they continued asking him, he raised himself up and said unto them, “Let him who is without sin among you, first cast a stone at her.” ⁸ And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground. ⁹ But they having heard it , and being convicted by conscience, went out one by one, beginning from the eldest, even to the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst. ¹⁰ But Jesus having raised himself up and seen no one except the woman, he said unto her, “Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no one condemned thee?” ¹¹ She said, “No one, Lord.” And Jesus said unto her, “Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.”] •

• The passage beginning with the last verse of the viith chapter, and ending here, is marked by Griesbach as of doubtful authority. It is wanting in several ancient and valuable testimonies; and in others it appears with considerable variations, and even in a different place. Scholz however decides in

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VIII.
			¹² Again therefore Jesus spake unto them, saying, "I am the light of the world : he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." ¹³ The Pharisees therefore said unto him, "Thou bearest testimony concerning thyself; thy testimony is not true." ¹⁴ Jesus answered and said unto them, "Though I bear testimony concerning myself, yet my testimony is true : for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye know not whence I come, or whither I go. ¹⁵ Ye judge according to the flesh; I judge no man. ¹⁶ And yet if I judge, my judgment is true : for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me. ¹⁷ Now even in your law it is written, that the testimony of two men is true. ¹⁸ I am one who bear testimony concerning myself, and the Father that sent me beareth testimony concerning me." ¹⁹ They said therefore unto him, "Where is thy Father?" Jesus answered, "Ye neither know me, nor my Father : if ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also." ²⁰ These words he spake in the treasury, while teaching in the temple : yet no one laid hold on him ; because his hour had not yet come. ²¹ Jesus therefore again said unto them, "I go away, and ye will seek me, and will die in your sin : whither I go, ye cannot come." ²² The Jews therefore said, "Will he kill himself? because he saith, 'Whither I go, ye cannot come.' " ²³ And he said unto them, "Ye are from beneath; I am from above : ye are of this world; I am not of this world. ²⁴ I said therefore unto you, that ye will die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye will die in your sins." ²⁵ Then said they unto him, "Who art thou?" [And] Jesus said unto them, "What I said unto you even at the beginning. ²⁶ I have many things to say and to judge concerning you: but he that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard from him." ²⁷ They understood not that he spake to them of the Father. ²⁸ Jesus therefore said unto them, "When ye have lifted up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he: and I do nothing of myself; but as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things. ²⁹ And favour of its genuineness. Kuinoel states at great length the arguments for and against it; and gives his judgment, though less decidedly, on the same side as Scholz. The internal evidence is strongly in favour of the authenticity of the record; and the external evidence preponderates for its genuineness. Whether or not actually written by the Evangelist, it may be rightly regarded as recording his testimony.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VIII.
			he that sent me is with me : [the Father] hath not left me alone ; because I always do those things that please him.”
			³⁰ As he spake these words many believed on him.
			³¹ Jesus therefore said to those Jews who believed on him, “ If ye continue in my word, ye are my disciples indeed ; ³² and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.” ³³ The Jews answered him, “ We are Abraham’s offspring, and were never enslaved to any man : how sayest thou, ‘ Ye shall be made free ? ’ ” ³⁴ Jesus answered them, “ Verily, verily, I say unto you, that whosoever committeth sin is the slave of sin. ³⁵ And the slave abideth not in the house for ever : but the Son abideth for ever. ³⁶ If therefore the Son shall make you free, ye will be free indeed. ³⁷ I know that ye are Abraham’s offspring ; but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you. ³⁸ I speak that which I have seen with [my] Father : and ye moreover do that which ye have seen with [your] father.” ³⁹ They answered and said unto him, “ Abraham is our father.” Jesus saith unto them, “ If ye were Abraham’s children, ye would do the works of Abraham. ⁴⁰ But now ye seek to kill me, a man who have told you the truth, which I have heard from God : this did not Abraham. ⁴¹ Ye do the deeds of your father.” Then said they to him, “ We were not born of fornication ; we have one Father, even God.” ⁴² Jesus said unto them, “ If God were your Father, ye would love me : for I came forth from God, and have come unto you ; for I have not come of myself, but he sent me. ⁴³ Why do ye not understand my speech ? even because ye cannot listen to my word. ⁴⁴ Ye are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father ye are willing to do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own : for he is a liar, and the father of lying .* ⁴⁵ And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not. ⁴⁶ Which of you convicteth me of sin ? If I say the truth, why do ye not believe me ? ⁴⁷ He that is of God heareth the words of God : it is on this account that ye do not hear, because ye are not of God.” ⁴⁸ The Jews answered and said unto him, “ Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a demon ? ” ⁴⁹ Jesus answered, "I have not a demon ; but I honour my Father, and ye dishonour me. ⁵⁰ But I seek not my own glory: there is one that seeketh and judgeth. ⁵¹ Verily, verily, I say unto you, If any one keep my word, he shall never see death." * ⁵² The Jews therefore said unto him, "Now we know that thou hast a demon. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, 'If a man keep my word, he shall never taste of death.' ⁵³ Art thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? and the prophets also are dead: whom makest thou thyself?" ⁵⁴ Jesus answered, "If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing: it is my Father that glorifieth me; of whom ye say, that he is your God: ⁵⁵ yet ye have not known him; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and I keep his word. ⁵⁶ Your father Abraham rejoiced in hope that he should see my day: and he saw it , and was glad." ⁵⁷ The Jews therefore said unto him, "Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?" ⁵⁸ Jesus said unto them, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was,† I am he ." ⁵⁹ The Jews therefore took up stones to cast at him: but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple. ‡

* Literally, of it, or, of him.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VIII.

SECT. III.

Miraculous Cure of the Blind Man : Our Lord's subsequent Discourses :
The Good Shepherd, &c.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN IX.
			AND as he passed by, he saw a man who was blind from his birth. ² And his disciples asked him, saying, "Rabbi, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind? ³ Jesus answered, "Neither this man sinned, nor his parents: but it is that the works of God might be made manifest in him. ⁴ I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no one can

• Lit. he shall not see death for ever, εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

+ Or, Before he becometh Abraham, (i. e. Father of many nations.) The next clause is rendered as in John iv. 26. viii. 24, 28. ix. 9. xiii. 19. xviii. 5, 6, 8. For the grammatical construction of the first clause, see ch. xiv. 24.

‡ The common text has this addition, "going through the midst of them, and so passed by." Griesbach rejects it from his text: Scholz retains it.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN IX.
			work. ⁵ As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." ⁶ Having said these things, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay, ⁷ and said unto him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam," (which is, interpreted, Sent.) He went away therefore, and washed, and came back seeing. ⁸ The neighbours therefore, and they who before saw him that he was a beggar, said, "Is not this he that sat and begged?" ⁹ Others said, "This is he:" and others, "It is like him:" he himself said, "I am he." ¹⁰ They said therefore unto him, "How were thine eyes opened?" ¹¹ He answered and said, "A man called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said to me, 'Go to Siloam, and wash:' and I went and washed, and I received sight." ¹² They said therefore to him, "Where is he?" He saith, "I know not." ¹³ They bring him to the Pharisees that afore-time was blind. ¹⁴ Now it was the sabbath when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes. ¹⁵ Again therefore the Pharisees also asked him how he received his sight: and he said unto them, "He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and I see." ¹⁶ Therefore some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not from God, because he keepeth not the sabbath." Others said, "How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles?" * And there was a division among them. ¹⁷ They say to the blind man again, "What sayest thou concerning him, because he hath opened thine eyes?" And he said, "That he is a prophet." ¹⁸ The Jews therefore did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and had received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight. ¹⁹ And they asked them, saying, "This is your son, of whom ye say that he was born blind? how then doth he now see?" ²⁰ His parents answered them and said, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind: ²¹ but how he now seeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age;† ask him: he will speak for himself." ²² These things said his parents, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had already agreed, that if any man should acknowledge him as Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue. ²³ On

* Or, signs, as σημεια is rendered with only one exception, in the first three Gospels.

† Lit. he hath full age.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN IX.
			this account his parents said, "He is of age ; ask him." ²⁴ They therefore a second time called the man who had been blind, and said unto him, "Give glory to God : we know that this man is a sinner." ²⁵ He answered and said, "If he is a sinner, I know it not : one thing I know, that, though I was blind, I now see." ²⁶ But they said to him again, "What did he do to thee ? how opened he thine eyes ?" ²⁷ He answered them, "I have told you already, and ye did not hearken : why do ye desire to hear again ? do ye also desire to become his disciples ?" ²⁸ They reviled him, and said, "Thou art the disciple of that man ; but we are disciples of Moses. ²⁹ We know that God spake unto Moses : as to this man, we know not whence he is." ³⁰ The man answered and said unto them, "Why herein is a wonderful thing, that ye know not whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes. ³¹ Now we know that God heareth not sinners : but if any man is a worshiper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth. ³² It hath never been heard * that any one opened the eyes of one born blind. ³³ If this man were not from God, he could do nothing." ³⁴ They answered and said unto him, "Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us ?" And they cast him out. ³⁵ Jesus heard that they had cast him out ; and having found him, he said unto him, "Dost thou believe on the Son of God ?" ³⁶ He answered and said, "And who is he, Lord, that I may believe on him ?" ³⁷ And Jesus said unto him, "Thou hast both seen him, and he that talketh with thee is he." ³⁸ And he said, "Lord, I believe." And he worshiped him.† ³⁹ And Jesus said, "For judgment I have come into this world, that they who see not may see ; and that they who see may become blind." ⁴⁰ [And] those of the Pharisees that were with him heard these words, and said unto him, "Are we also blind ?" ⁴¹ Jesus said unto them, "If ye were blind, ye would not have had sin : but now ye say, 'We see ;' your sin [therefore] remaineth. CH. X. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not through the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. ² But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. ³ To him the door-keeper openeth ; and the

Lit. from the age, εκ του αιωνος, it hath not been heard.

† Or, did him homage,

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN X.
			sheep hear his voice : and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. ⁴ [And] when he bringeth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him : for they know his voice. ⁵ But a stranger they will not follow, but will flee from him : for they know not the voice of strangers.” ⁶ Jesus spake this parable * unto them : but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them. ⁷ Jesus therefore said unto them again, “ Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep. ⁸ All whoever came before me are thieves and robbers : but the sheep did not hear them. ⁹ I am the door : if any one enter in through me, he shall be kept safe, and shall go in and come out, and shall find pasture. ¹⁰ The thief cometh not, but to steal, and to kill, and to destroy : I am come that the sheep may have life, and that they may have it abundantly. ¹¹ I am the good shepherd : the good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep. ¹² But he that is a hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth, and the wolf seizeth them, and scattereth the sheep. ¹³ [Now the hireling fleeth,] because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep. ¹⁴ I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known by mine, ¹⁵ as the Father knoweth me, and I also know the Father : and I lay down my life for the sheep. ¹⁶ And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold : them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold, one shepherd. ¹⁷ On this account, the Father loveth me, because I lay down my life, that I may take † it again. ¹⁸ No one taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power ‡ to lay it down, and I have power ‡ to take † it again. This commandment § have I received of my Father.” ¹⁹ There was again therefore a division among the Jews on account of these words. ²⁰ And many of them said, “ He hath a demon, and is mad ; why hear ye him ? ” ²¹ Others said, “ These are not the words of a demoniac. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind ? ”

* Or, allegory, παροιμία.—This word occurs in none of the other Gospels ; and in the present sense only in this place. St. John uses it in ch. xvi. 25, 29. It occurs once more in 2 Pet. ii. 22. In this place, and in the Septuagint, it denotes proverb. St. John nowhere uses παραβολή, parable.

† Or, receive.

‡ Or, authority.

§ Or, commission.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART IV.

CHRIST'S PUBLIC PREACHING IN GALILEE—IN THE INTERVAL BETWEEN THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES AND THAT OF DEDICATION—UNTIL THE MISSION OF THE TWELVE.

SECT. I.

On hearing of the Imprisonment of the Baptist, Christ begins to proclaim the Approach of the Kingdom of Heaven: He calls Peter, Andrew, James, and John.

MATT. IV.	MARK I.	LUKE	JOHN
¹² Now when Jesus heard that John was delivered up to prison, he departed into Galilee: ¹³ and having quitted Nazareth, he came and dwelt at Capernaum, upon the sea-coast, in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthalim: ¹⁴ that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, ¹⁵ ‘The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the sea, along the Jordan,* Galilee of the Gentiles; ¹⁶ the people that sat in darkness hath seen great light; and to those who sat in the region and shadow of death light hath sprung up.’	¹⁴ Now after John was delivered up to prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom of God,		Is. 9; 1, 2.

* Or, the one by the way of the sea, the other along the Jordan, which is Galilee of the Gentiles.—The territory of Zabulon adjoined the Lake of Galilee, and extended westwards from it: that of Nephthalim lay northwards, by the side of (πέραν) the Jordan; and this latter formed the chief part of Upper Galilee, or Galilee of the Gentiles. Capernaum was near the confines of these tribes, on the northwestern shore of the Lake.

MATT. IV.	MARK I.	LUKE	JOHN
¹⁷ From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven draweth near." ¹⁸ Now as he was walking by the sea of Galilee, he saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. ¹⁹ And he saith unto them, "Come after me, and I will make you fishers of men." ²⁰ And straightway they left the nets, and followed him. ²¹ And having gone forwards thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them. ²² And straightway they left the ship and their father, and followed him.	¹⁵ [and] saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God draweth near: repent ye, and believe the gospel." ¹⁶ Now as he was walking by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. ¹⁷ And Jesus said unto them, "Come after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." ¹⁸ And straightway they left their nets, and followed him. ¹⁹ And having gone forwards thence a little, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets. ²⁰ And straightway he called them: and they left their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired servants, and went away after him.

SECT. II.

On the ensuing Sabbath, Christ heals the Demoniac in the Synagogue of Capernaum; then, the Mother of Peter's Wife; and, in the Evening, many others.

MATT.	MARK I.	LUKE IV.	JOHN
Matt. 7; 29. (p. 01)	²¹ AND they go into Capernaum; and straightway on the sabbath he entered into the synagogue and taught. ²² And they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the Scribes.	³¹ AND he went down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee,*and taught them on the sabbath. ³² And they were astonished at his doctrine: for his word was with authority.

* This specification of Capernaum shews that the record which begins here is different from that respecting the Rejection of Christ at Nazareth, (Part II. Sect. viii.), in which Capernaum had been already mentioned. There is, therefore, no objection to the separation of this from the preceding portion.

MATT. VIII.	MARK I.	LUKE IV.	JOHN
	²³ And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out, ²⁴ saying, "Ah! what hast thou to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God." ²⁵ And Jesus rebuked it, saying, "Be silent, and come out of him." ²⁶ And the unclean spirit having torn him, and cried with a loud voice, came out of him. ²⁷ And they were all amazed, so that they reasoned among themselves, saying, "What is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority he commandeth even the unclean spirits, and they obey him." ²⁸ And the report of him went forth straightway into all the surrounding region of Galilee. ²⁹ And straightway, when they came out of the synagogue, they came to the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. ³⁰ Now the mother of Simon's wife lay sick of a fever, and straightway they tell him concerning her. ³¹ And he came and raised her up, taking her by the hand; and straightway	³³ And in the synagogue there was a man that had a spirit of an unclean demon; and he cried out with a loud voice, ³⁴ saying, "Ah! what hast thou to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God." ³⁵ And Jesus rebuked it, saying, "Be silent, and come out of him." And the demon having thrown him into the midst, came out of him, having hurt him not. ³⁶ And amazement came upon all, and they spake among themselves, saying, "What word is this? for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out." ³⁷ And a rumour went forth concerning him into every place of the surrounding region. ³⁸ And he arose out of the synagogue, and entered into the house of Simon. Now the mother of Simon's wife was taken with a great fever; and they besought him for her. ³⁹ And he stood above her, and rebuked the fever: and it left her; and immediately she
¹⁴ AND Jesus going into the house of Peter, saw his wife's mother laid on a bed, and sick of a fever. ¹⁵ And he touched her hand, and the fever left

* St. Matthew records the following facts among the transactions succeeding the Sermon on the Mount; and they have a local connexion with them. In this case, however, St. Mark's arrangement must be preferred; as he too closely connects (ver. 29) the cure of Peter's mother-in-law with that of the demoniac, to allow us to suppose that they did not occur on the same day: while his obvious and recorded intimacy with that Apostle, renders his order preferable, in this case, to that of St. Matthew, who as yet was not a constant eye witness.

MATT. VIII.	MARK I.	LUKE IV.	JOHN
her : and she arose, and ministered unto them. 16 Now when evening was come, they brought unto him many possessed with demons : and he cast out the spirits by a word, and healed all that were sick : 17 that it might be fulfilled * which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, 'He took away our infirmities, and bare away our diseases.'	the fever left her, and she ministered unto them. 32 Now when evening was come, when the sun had set, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and those who were possessed with demons. 33 And the whole city was gathered together at the door. 34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many demons ; and suffered not the demons to speak, because they knew him.	arose and ministered unto them. 40 Now when the sun was setting, all who had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him ; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them. 41 And demons also came out of many, crying out, and saying, "Thou art the Son of God." And rebuking them , he suffered them not to speak : for they knew that he was the Christ.

SECT. III.

On the Day after the Sabbath, our Lord begins his First Progress through Galilee : General Account of it.

MATT. IV.	MARK I.	LUKE IV.	JOHN
23 AND Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the glad	35 AND in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed. 36 And Simon and they that were with him followed him. 37 And when they had found him, they said unto him, "All are seeking thee." 38 And he saith unto them, "Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also ; for therefore came I forth." 39 And he preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and cast out demons.	42 AND when it was day, he departed and went forth into a solitary place : and the multitude sought him, and came unto him, and stayed him, that he might not depart from them. 43 But he said unto them, "I must preach the glad tidings of the kingdom of God to other cities also : for therefore I have been sent forth." 44 And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.

* Or, so that it was fulfilled.—The reference is to Is. liii. 4. The rendering of the passage quoted, follows Newcome, except that he has 'removed' instead of 'bare away'.

MATT. IV.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN tidings of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every weakness among the people. ²⁴ And the report of him went throughout all Syria : and they brought unto him all that were sick, persons afflicted with divers diseases and torments, and demoniacs, and lunatics, and paralytics ; and he healed them. ²⁵ And there followed him great multitudes from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judea, and the country beyond the Jordan.

SECT. IV.

*At the close of our Lord's First Progress through Galilee, he delivers his Sermon on the Mount, near Capernaum.

MATT. V.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
Now seeing the multitudes, he went up a mountain : and when he had sat down, his disciples came unto him. ² And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, ³ “Blessed † are the poor in spirit : for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. ⁴ Blessed are they that mourn : for they shall be comforted :		²⁰ AND he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, “ Blessed are ye poor : for yours is the kingdom of God.

* In St. Luke's Collection of Discourses, &c. (see p. 35,) there are several passages closely corresponding with parts of the Sermon on the Mount as recorded by St. Matthew, some of which may possibly have been delivered only in this Discourse. It has not, however, been deemed expedient to separate these from their context ; but they are given here for the purpose of comparison.—That the Discourse recorded by St. Luke, in chap. vi., is the same with that in St. Matthew's Gospel, is, very decidedly, the most probable supposition. See the Note at the end of this Section, p. 64.

† Μακάριοι is rendered happy by Newcome, Campbell, and others. But the Septuagint employs this word in the Psalms where we have blessed ; and blessed is much more forcible than happy, always conveying a reference to the appointment and blessing of God.

MATT. V.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
⁵ Blessed are the meek : for they shall inherit the land. ⁶ Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness : for they shall be filled. ⁷ Blessed are the merciful : for they shall obtain mercy. ⁸ Blessed are the pure in heart : for they shall see God. ⁹ Blessed are the peacemakers : for they shall be called sons of God. ¹⁰ Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness' sake : for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. ¹¹ Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and say every thing evil against you for my sake, [speaking falsely]. ¹² Rejoice, and be exceeding glad : for great is your reward in heaven : for so persecuted they the prophets that were before you. ¹³ " Ye are the salt of the earth : but if the salt have lost its savour, wherewith shall it be salted ? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and trodden under foot by men. ¹⁴ Ye are the light of the world. A city placed on a hill cannot be hid. ¹⁵ And men do not light a candle, and put it under the measure, but on the candlestick ; and it shineth unto all that are in the house. ¹⁶ So let your light shine before men, that they may see your good		²¹ Blessed are ye that hunger now : for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now : for ye shall laugh. ²² Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from them, and revile you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake. ²³ Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy : for, behold, your reward is great in heaven : for thus did their fathers unto the prophets. ²⁴ But woe for you that are rich ! for ye receive your consolation. ²⁵ Woe for you that are filled ! for ye shall hunger. Woe for you that laugh now ! for ye shall mourn and weep. ²⁶ Woe for you, when men speak well of you ! for thus did their fathers to the false prophets. — CH. XI. 33. " Now no one having lighted a candle putteth it into a secret place, nor under the measure, but on the candlestick, that they who come in may see the light. —

MATT. V.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
works and glorify your Father who is in heaven. 17 "Think not that I have come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I have not come to destroy, but to fulfil. 19 For verily I say unto you, Until heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall by no means pass away from the law, till all be fulfilled. 19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of the least of these commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. 20 For I say unto you, Unless your righteousness shall abound more than that of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall by no means enter into the kingdom of heaven. 21 "Ye have heard that it hath been said to them of old time, 'Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment:' 22 but I say unto you, Every one who is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment: and whosoever shall say to his brother, 'Raca,' vain empty fellow, shall be in danger of the council: and whosoever shall say, 'Moreh,' vile worthless wretch, shall be in danger of hell fire.* 23 If therefore thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there remember that thy brother hath any complaint against thee; 24 leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first obtain reconciliation with thy brother,

* Lit. of the Gehenna of fire.

MATT. V.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
and then come and offer thy gift. ²⁵ “Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art in the way with him; lest the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. ²⁶ Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing. ²⁷ “Ye have heard that it hath been said, ‘Thou shalt not commit adultery:’ ²⁸ but I say unto you, Every one who looketh on a woman so as to lust after her, hath already committed adultery with her in his heart. ²⁹ But if thy right eye is causing thee to offend, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and that thy whole body should not be cast into hell. ³⁰ And if thy right hand be causing thee to offend, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and that thy whole body should not be cast into hell. ³¹ “It hath been said, ‘Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement’: ³² but I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that hath been put away, committeth adultery. ³³ “Again, ye have heard that it hath been said to them of old time, ‘Thou shalt not forswear		СН. XII. 58, 59. “For when thou goest with thine adversary to the magistrate, while on the way, give diligence to be delivered from him; lest he drag thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison. ⁵⁹ I say unto thee, thou wilt by no means depart thence, till thou payest even the last mite.” СН. XVI. 18. “Every one who putteth away his wife and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and every one who marrieth her that hath been put away by her husband, committeth adultery.”

MATT. V.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths :’ ³⁴ but I say unto you, Swear not at all : neither by heaven, for it is the throne of God ; ³⁵ nor by the earth, for it is his footstool ; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. ³⁶ Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. ³⁷ But let your communication be, Yea, yea ; Nay, nay : for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil. ³⁸ “ Ye have heard that it hath been said, ‘ An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth : ’ ³⁹ but I say unto you, that ye resist not evil : but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. ⁴⁰ And if any man desires to sue thee at law, and to take away thy vest, let him have thy mantle also. ⁴¹ And whosoever shall compel thee to go one mile, go with him two. ⁴² Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that desireth to borrow from thee turn not thou away. ⁴³ “ Ye have heard that it hath been said, ‘ Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy : ’ ⁴⁴ but I say unto you, Love your enemies, [bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you,] and pray for them that despitefully use you, and persecute you ; ⁴⁵ that ye may be sons of your Father who is in heaven : for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just and the unjust. ⁴⁶ For if ye love them that love you, what reward have		²⁹ “ Unto him that smiteth thee on the cheek, offer also the other ; and him that taketh away thy mantle forbid not to take thy vest also. ³⁰ Give to every one that asketh of thee ; and from him that taketh away what is thine ask it not again. ²⁷ “ But I say unto you that hear, Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, ²⁸ bless them that curse you, and pray for them that despitefully use you. ³² “ And if ye love those that love you, what thanks have ye ? for sinners also love those that love them. ³³ And if ye do good to them that do good to you, what thanks have ye ? for sinners also do the same.

MATT. V.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
ye? do not even the publicans the same? ⁴⁷ And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye that is excellent? do not even the heathens so? ⁴⁸ Be ye therefore perfect, as your Father who is in heaven is perfect. CH. VI. "Take heed that ye do not your acts of righteousness before men, in order to be seen by them; for otherwise ye have no reward with your Father who is in heaven. ² When therefore thou doest alms, sound not a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may be glorified by men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward. ³ But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth: ⁴ that thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father who seeth in secret shall himself reward thee [openly.] ⁵ "And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen by men. Verily, I say unto you, They have their reward. ⁶ But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father who is in secret; and thy Father who seeth in secret shall reward thee openly. ⁷ But when ye pray,		³⁴ And if ye lend to those from whom ye hope to receive again, what thanks have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, that they may receive as much again. ³⁵ But love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be sons of the Highest: for he is kind unto the unthankful and evil. ³⁶ Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful.

MATT VI.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
use not vain repetitions,* as the heathens do : for they think that they shall be heard for their much-speaking. ⁸ Be not ye therefore like unto them : for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him. ⁹ After this manner therefore pray ye : ‘ Our Father who art in heaven : hallowed be thy name : ¹⁰ thy kingdom come : thy will be done, as in heaven, so also on earth. ¹¹ Give us this day our daily bread.† ¹² And forgive us our trespasses,‡ as we forgive those who trespass ‡ against us. ¹³ And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.’ § ¹⁴ For if ye forgive men their offences, your heavenly Father will also forgive you : ¹⁵ but if ye forgive not men [their offences,] neither will your Father forgive your offences. ¹⁶ “ Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of sad countenance : for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward. ¹⁷ But when thou fastest, anoint thy head, and wash thy face ; ¹⁸ that thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father who is in secret : and

* Or, many idle words. Or, a vain multiplicity of words.

† Or, the food needful for our subsistence.

‡ Lit. our debts—our debtors. But see the Note in p. 36.

§ The Doxology is left out of the text by Griesbach and by Scholz ; and is omitted by Archbp. Newcome in his translation. The evidence against its having formed a part of the original Gospel, is deemed decisive by Erasmus, Grotius, Mill, Bengel, Wetstein, Kninoel, and other eminent critics. It appears to have been derived from the Liturgies of the Church. It is, indeed, found in the great bulk of the manuscripts and versions : nevertheless, those few manuscripts which do not contain it are of high authority and value ; none of the Latin fathers, (even those who wrote commentaries on the prayer,) take any notice of it ; and among the Greek fathers, Origen, who flourished in the third century, takes no notice of it, though he points out the difference between the prayer in Matthew and that in Luke.

MATT. VI.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
thy Father who seeth in secret, shall reward thee.
19 " Treasure not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust corrupteth, and where thieves break through and steal : 20 but treasure up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust corrupteth, and where thieves do not break through or steal : 21 for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.		CH. XII. 33, 34. 33 " Sell your possessions, and give alms ; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth. 34 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."
22 " The light of the body is the eye : if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. 23 But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee is darkness, how great that darkness !		CH. XI. 34, 35. 34 " The light of the body is the eye : when therefore thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light ; but when it is evil, thy body also is full of darkness. 35 Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness."
24 " No one can serve two masters : for either he will hate the one and love the other ; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.* 25 Therefore I say unto you, Take no anxious thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink ; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than food, and the body than raiment ? 26 Behold the birds of heaven, that they sow not, nor reap, nor gather into barns ; † and yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they ? 27 And which of you by taking anxious thought can add one cubit to his stature ? ‡ 28 And why take ye anxious thought for		CH. XII. 22—31. 22 " And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no anxious thought for your life, what ye shall eat ; nor for the body, what ye shall put on. 23 The life is more than food, and the body than raiment. 24 Consider the ravens, that they neither sow nor reap ; which have neither storehouse nor barn ; † and yet God feedeth them : how much better are ye than the birds ! 25 And which of you by taking anxious thought can add one cubit to his stature. ‡ 26 If then ye are not able to do that thing which

* Or, riches. Mammon was a deity presiding over wealth.

† The same word in the original is translated garner in Matt. iii. 12. and Luke iii. 17.

‡ Or, life, ἡλικία.

MATT. VI.	MARK	LUKE [XII.] VI.	JOHN
raiment ! Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow ; they toil not, nor do they spin : ²⁹ yet I say unto you, Not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these.* ³⁰ Now if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is there, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, will he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? ³¹ Therefore take no anxious thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, What shall we put on? ³² (for after all these things do the Gentiles seek :) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. ³³ But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and the righteousness of it; and all these things shall be added unto you. ³⁴ Take therefore no anxious thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take anxious thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. CH. VII. "Judge not, that ye be not judged. ² For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye measure, it shall be measured to you.		is least, why take ye anxious thought for the rest? ²⁷ Consider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, nor do they spin; and yet I say unto you, Not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these.* ²⁸ Now if God so clothe the grass, which is to-day in the field, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith? ²⁹ And seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind. ³⁰ For after all these things do the nations of the world seek: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things. ³¹ But seek ye the kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you." — CH. VI. ³⁷ "And judge not, and ye shall not be judged: condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: forgive, and ye shall be forgiven: ³⁸ give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down and shaken and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure with which ye measure, it shall be measured to you again." ³⁹ (And he spake a parable unto them: "Can a blind man lead a blind man? will they not both fall into the ditch?

* "The fields of the Levant are overrun with the Amaryllis lutea, whose golden liliaceous flowers, in autumn, afford one of the most brilliant and gorgeous objects in nature."—Sir James Edward Smith's Considerations, p. 39. This flower blossoms towards the end of September, and continues through the whole of October.

MATT. VII.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
3 And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? 4 Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, ' Let me take out the mote from thine eye ;' and, behold, a beam is in thine own eye? 5 Thou hypocrite, first take out the beam from thine own eye ; and then shalt thou see clearly to take out the mote from thy brother's eye. 6 " Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you. 7 " Ask, and it shall be given you ; seek, and ye shall find ; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. 8 For every one that asketh, receiveth ; and he that seeketh, findeth ; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened. 9 But † what man is there of you, who, if his son ask for bread, ‡ will give him a stone? 10 and if he ask for a fish, will give him a serpent? 11 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give good things to them that ask him! 12 " All things therefore what-		40 A disciple is not above his teacher : but every disciple fully instructed will be as his teacher.* 41 And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? 42 Or how canst thou say to thy brother, ' Brother, let me take out the mote that is in thine eye,' though thou thyself beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first take out the beam from thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to take out the mote that is in thy brother's eye. — CH. XI. 9—13. " Ask, and it shall be given you ; seek, and ye shall find ; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. 10 For every one that asketh, receiveth ; and he that seeketh, findeth ; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened. 11 Now if a son shall ask bread ‡ from any one of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent? 12 or if he shall ask an egg, will he give him a scorpion? 13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit § to them that ask him!" — CH. VI. 31 " And as ye would

* Or, but every disciple will be exactly trained as his teacher.

† The conjunction η, or, here merely indicates connection. It is not translated in ch. xx. 15.

‡ Or, a loaf.

§ Or, a holy spirit.

MATT. VII.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
soever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so unto them : for this is the law and the prophets. ¹³ “ Enter ye in through the strait gate : for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction ; and there are many who enter in through it. ¹⁴ How narrow is the gate, and straitened the way, which leadeth unto life ! and there are few that find it. ¹⁵ “ Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly are rav- ening wolves. ¹⁶ By their fruits ye shall know them. Do men gather grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles ? ¹⁷ Thus every good tree bringeth forth good fruit ; but a corrupt tree bring- eth forth evil fruit. ¹⁸ A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruits, nor can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruits. ¹⁹ Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. ²⁰ Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them. ²¹ “ Not every one that saith unto me, ‘ Lord, Lord,’ shall enter into the kingdom of heaven ; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. ²² Many will say to me in that day, ‘ Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name ?		that men should do to you, do ye also to them in like manner. ⁴³ “ For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit ; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.* ⁴⁴ For every tree is known by its own fruit. For of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble-bush do they cut grapes. ⁴⁵ The good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good ; and the evil [man] out of the evil [treasure of his heart] bringeth forth that which is evil : for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.

* Or, for a tree is not good, producing corrupt fruit ; nor is a tree corrupt, producing good fruit.

MATT. VII.	MARK	LUKE VI.	JOHN
and in thy name cast out demons? and in thy name done many mighty works?' ²³ And then I will declare unto them, 'I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.' ²⁴ "Every one therefore who heareth these words of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, who built his house upon the rock: ²⁵ and the rain descended, and the torrents came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon the rock. ²⁶ And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand: ²⁷ and the rain descended, and the torrents came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it."  ²⁸ And it came to pass, when Jesus ended these words, that the multitudes were astonished at his doctrine; ²⁹ for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the Scribes."	Mark 1; 22. (p. 50)	⁴⁶ "But why do ye call me 'Lord, Lord,' and do not the things which I say? ⁴⁷ Every one that cometh to me, and heareth my words, and doeth them, I will shew you to whom he is like. ⁴⁸ He is like a man building a house, who digged, and sunk deep, and laid the foundation on the rock: and when the flood arose, the torrent rushed vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it; for it was founded upon the rock. ⁴⁹ But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man who built a house upon the earth, without a foundation; against which the torrent rushed vehemently, and straightway it fell: and the ruin of that house was great."

* Macknight, Greswell, &c., suppose the record by St. Matthew to be of a different discourse from that recorded by St. Luke: Newcome, Priestley, &c., regard the two Evangelists as recording the same discourse. The position of the discourse in Luke is the chief if not the only argument against the identity of it with that in Matthew; and the nature of St. Luke's Gospel (see Prel. Diss.) greatly weakens the force of this consideration. For the identity, there are the following facts. (1) The records present the same commencement and the same conclusion; and both of these are remarkable. (2) There is very little in Luke's record, which is not included in Matthew's. (3) The train of thought is so completely correspondent, that in adapting the order in Luke to that in Matthew, we have the following series, ver. 20—26, 29, 30, 27, 28, 32—42, 31, 43, 45—49. (4) At the close of each record we find it stated, that when Jesus had ended his discourse, he went into Capernaum, and there healed the Centurion's servant. This last fact is decisive.—St. Luke has recorded many discourses not found in St. Matthew's Gospel; but Matthew's record of the Sermon on the Mount, of itself makes his Gospel inestimable.

SECT. V.

After the Sermon on the Mount, before entering Capernaum, our Lord cures the Leper ; and, in the City, the Centurion's Servant.

MATT. VIII.	MARK I.	LUKE V.	JOHN
¹ Now when he came down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him. ² And, behold, a leper cometh to him, and worshipeth him,* saying, " Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." ³ And Jesus stretched forth his hand and touched him, saying, " I will : be thou made clean." And straightway his leprosy was made clean. ⁴ And Jesus saith to him, " See thou tell no one : but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them."	⁴⁰ AND a leper cometh to him, entreating him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, " If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." ⁴¹ And Jesus, moved with compassion, stretched forth his hand and touched him, and saith unto him, " I will : be thou made clean." ⁴² And when he had spoken, straightway the leprosy departed from him, and he was made clean. ⁴³ And having strictly charged him, he straightway sent him forth, ⁴⁴ and saith unto him, " See thou tell nothing to any one, but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer, for thy cleansing, those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them." ⁴⁵ But when he had gone forth, he began to publish it much, and to spread abroad the report, (so that Jesus could no longer enter openly into the city,† but was without in solitary places;) and they came to him from every quarter.	¹² AND it came to pass when he was in † one of the cities that, behold, a man full of leprosy came ; and seeing Jesus, he fell on his face, and besought him, saying, " Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." ¹³ And he stretched forth his hand and touched him, saying, " I will : be thou made clean." And straightway the leprosy departed from him. ¹⁴ And he charged him to tell no one : " but go and shew thyself to the priest, and offer, for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them." ¹⁵ But the report went abroad the more concerning him ; and great multitudes came together to hear him, and to be healed by him of their infirmities : but he withdrew into solitary places, and prayed.

* Or, did him reverence (or, homage.) This is preferable also in p. 47.

† This obviously refers to the speedy, not to the immediate, effect. Our Lord entered into Capernaum at this time ; but the next day he went to the south of Galilee ; and soon after into the region of Gadara.

‡ Lepers were not allowed to be in cities. The preposition, however, is ἐν, in ; and it is not probable that St. Luke would have employed it if he had meant near to. The Hebrew ׁ denotes both in and at, or near to ; but unless some reason presented itself to the contrary, it would naturally be rendered ἐν, in.

MATT. VIII.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
⁵ Now when Jesus entered into Capernaum, a centurion came to him, entreating him, ⁶ and saying, "Lord, my servant* lieth in my house a paralytic, grievously tormented." ⁷ And Jesus saith unto him, "I will come and heal him." ⁸ And the centurion answered and said, "Lord,		Now when he had finished all his sayings in the hearing of the people he entered into Capernaum. ² And a certain centurion's servant, who was very dear to him, was sick, and about to die. ³ But the centurion having heard concerning Jesus, sent to him elders of the Jews, beseeching him by them,† that he would come and restore his servant. ⁴ And they came to Jesus and entreated him earnestly, saying, "He is worthy for whom thou wilt do this; † ⁵ for he loveth our nation, and himself hath built us a synagogue." ⁶ And Jesus went with them: but when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying to him by them,† "Lord,

* The original, here and in the next page, where the asterisk is affixed, is παῖς, child, servant: in the other cases where 'servant' occurs, it is δουλος, slave.

† The remarkable construction of the Greek in the 3d and 6th verses, (the participles rendered beseeching and saying being in the singular number,) contributes to explain the origin of the diversity between St. Luke's account and St. Matthew's. The details given by Luke shew that the Centurion did not come personally to Christ: but since his friends who brought the second message, (or rather the chief person who spoke,) obviously delivered it in the Centurion's own words, and in the first person, according to the custom of the east—as probably the Elder also did, who delivered the first message—those bystanders who knew none of the parties personally, might naturally form the impression that the Centurion himself had said to Christ what in fact his friend said in the Centurion's words. The statement in Matthew's record, that the Centurion came to Jesus, and spake to him, is thus sufficiently explained. It is probable that St. Matthew was not present at the transaction, but recorded it as he learnt it: his informant was only mistaken in supposing the application of the Centurion to have been in person: and the mistake was a natural one. The facts, that he applied to Jesus, humbly yet earnestly, in behalf of a valued servant, and that Jesus miraculously healed the servant without going to the house where he was, are unaffected by the inconsistency in the details. St. Luke obviously derived his account from some one well acquainted with those details—the Centurion himself, perhaps, or some one of those who came to Jesus in his behalf: St. Matthew, from a less informed eye-witness. It is observable that St. Mark, the companion of Peter, does not record the miracle. It seems natural that Peter should, immediately on entering Capernaum, go to his own home: if so he would not be an eye-witness. As to St. Matthew, who had not yet been called from his stated occupation, but who must have been a hearer of the Sermon on the Mount, which he alone fully records—a service for which his employments peculiarly qualified him,—one can scarcely doubt that, when Jesus had ended his inestimable discourse, he would hasten home to commit to writing that which divine providence prepared and appointed him to record.

‡ Or, He is worthy that thou shouldst do this for him, αἰτιος ἐστιν ὃ παρεξει τουτο.

MATT. VIII.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
I am not fit that thou shouldst enter under my roof: but only speak the word, and my servant * will be healed. 9 And indeed I am a man under authority, having soldiers under myself; and I say to this man, ‘Go,’ and he goeth; and to another, ‘Come,’ and he cometh; and to my servant, ‘Do this,’ and he doeth it.” 10 And when Jesus heard this, he wondered, and said to them that followed, “Verily I say unto you, Not even in Israel, have I found faith so great. 11 And I say unto you, that many will come from the east and the west, and be placed at table† with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven: 12 but the sons of the kingdom will be cast out into the outer darkness: there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” 13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, “Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, be it done unto thee.” And his servant* was healed in that very hour.		trouble not thyself; for I am not fit that thou shouldst enter under my roof. 7 Wherefore also I did not think myself worthy to come unto thee; but speak by word, and my servant * will be healed. 8 And indeed I am a man placed under authority, having soldiers under myself; and I say to this man, ‘Go,’ and he goeth; and to another, ‘Come,’ and he cometh; and to my servant, ‘Do this,’ and he doeth it.” 9 And when Jesus heard these things, he wondered at him; and turning back, he said to the multitude that was following him, “I say unto you, Not even in Israel have I found faith so great.” 10 And they that had been sent, having returned to the house, found the servant well that had been sick.

* See Note * in the preceding page.

† The ancient posture at table was recumbent. They reclined on couches, with their feet a way from the table, and supported themselves with the left arm, employing the right in eating. The common rendering leads away from the fact; in some cases injuriously to the sense; but the literal English is scarcely suitable; and a more general rendering is deemed preferable.

SECT. VI.

The next day, Christ raises the Widow's Son at Nain.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
		11 AND it came to pass the day after, that he went to a city called Nain ; and many of his diciples went with him, and a great multitude. 12 But when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow : and a great multitude of the city was with her. 13 And when the Lord saw her, he was moved with compassion towards her, and said to her, " Weep not." 14 And he came and touched the bier : and they that bare it stood still. And he said, " Young man, I say unto thee, Arise."* 15 And he that had been dead sat up, and began to speak. And Jesus delivered him to his mother. 16 And fear came upon all : and they glorified God, saying, " A great prophet has been raised up among us ;" and, " God hath visited his people." 17 And this report coucerning him went forth throughout all Judea, and throughout all the region round about.

SECT. VII.

Having given Directions to cross the Lake, our Lord is addressed by a Scribe and others : on the Passage, Jesus stilleth the Storm :† on landing in the District of Gadara, he restores the Maniac and his Companion.

MATT. VIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
18 Now when Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he gave orders to depart unto the other side.	35 AND on that day, when evening came,‡ he saith unto them, " Let us go over unto the other side."	22 Now it came to pass on one of those days, that he went into a ship, and his disciples : and he said unto them, " Let us go over unto the other side of the lake."

* Or, Be thou raised.

† This storm, or rather hurricane, by no means requires us to suppose that the incidents here recorded occurred in the winter ; and the whole of the connected events opposes the supposition. The course our Lord was taking, was from the western shore of the Lake to the south-eastern. The eastern shore is mountainous and abrupt ; and it often happens that the winds from the south-east, sweeping down upon the Lake against the current of the Jordan, suddenly raise a boisterous sea, to the great danger of the mariner. The chronology of this Harmony places the present event in the latter part of October : the violent agitation of the water was obviously caused by a sudden hurricane, which arose as the vessel was advancing towards the precipitous shores of the district of Gadara. It is in no degree probable that our Lord would have ordered such a passage, by night, in the winter.

‡ St. Mark appears to have considered this passing of the Lake, as occurring in the evening of the day

MATT. VIII.	MARK	LUKE IX.	JOHN
19 And a certain scribe came, and said unto him, "Teacher,* I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest." 20 And Jesus saith unto him, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of heaven have nests; but the Son of man hath not where he may lay his head." 21 And another of his disciples said unto him, "Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father." 22 But Jesus said unto him, "Follow me; and leave the dead to bury their dead."		57 Now it came to pass, as they were journeying on the way,† that a certain man said unto him, "I will follow thee, Lord, whithersoever thou goest." 58 And Jesus said unto him, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of heaven have nests; but the Son of man hath not where he may lay his head." 59 And he said unto another, "Follow me." But he said, "Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father." 60 But [Jesus] said unto him, "Leave the dead to bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God." 61 And another also said, "I will follow thee, Lord, but suffer me first to bid farewell to those that are in my house." 62 But Jesus said unto him, "No man, that hath put his hand to the plough and looketh at things behind, is fitted for the kingdom of God."

when our Lord delivered the Parables which he had just recorded. In that case, however, it seems scarcely probable that Matthew would have placed the latter after the selection and mission of the Apostles. On the whole, taking especially into account the characteristics of the several Gospels, and the circumstances of their respective Authors, (see Prel. Diss.,) it appears best to place the delivery of the Parables where the Apostle has placed it. It must also be observed, that St. Luke, who obviously had here a record corresponding with that employed, with several additions, by St. Mark, only says, ver. 22, 'on one of the days'; and that St. Mark's expression 'on that day' does not necessarily signify any thing more than at that period, just as the phrase in those days. (See Acts viii. 1.) Whatever day it was, however, this Evangelist specifies the time of departure—viz. when evening came: 'on a certain day, in the evening,' may perhaps be regarded as giving the force of his words.

* In all cases of address, it might be best to render Διδασκαλος, Rabbi, rather than Teacher; but as Ραββι is itself sometimes employed in the original, this course has not been followed. The reader may, however, deem it best to change Teacher, in this and similar cases, to Rabbi. (See John i. 39.)

† St. Luke appears to have inserted the incidents to which St. Matthew has given a very specific position, in the part of his Gospel where a journey was begun, on account of the words with which his record commenced.—It is not probable that the incidents recorded by St. Matthew occurred at any other time than that in which his Gospel so definitely places them.

MATT. VIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
23 And when he had entered into the ship, his disciples followed him. 24 And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, insomuch that the ship was covered by the waves: but he was sleeping. 25 And his disciples came to him, and awoke him, saying, "Lord, save us: we are perishing." 26 And he saith unto them, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm. 27 But the men wondered, saying, "What manner of man is this, that both the winds and the sea obey him!" 28 And when he came to the other side, into the country of the Gergesenes,* there met him	36 And when they had sent away the multitude, they took him, as he was, in the ship. (Now there were also with him other little ships.) 37 And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now filling. 38 And he was in the hinder part of the ship, sleeping on a pillow: and they awake him, and say unto him, "Teacher, carest thou not that we are perishing?" 39 And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, "Peace!† be still!" And the wind fell, and there was a great calm. 40 And he said unto them, "Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith?" 41 And they feared exceedingly,‡ and said one to another, "Who then is this, that both the wind and the sea obey him!" CH. v. And they came to the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gadarenes.	And they put forth to sea. 23 Now as they were sailing he fell asleep. And there came down a storm of wind on the lake; and they were filling with water, and were in danger. 24 And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, "Master, Master, we are perishing." But he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm. 25 And he said unto them, "Where is your faith?" And they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, "Who then is this! for he commandeth both the winds and the water, and they obey him." 26 And they sailed to the country of the Gadarenes, which is over against Galilee. 27 And

* Griesbach represents Gerasenes as a very probable reading, though somewhat inferior to Gergesenes; and Gadarenes as probable, but having less authority than either of the other two. Scholz receives Gadarenes into his text; yet the opinion of Griesbach is very probable, that the transcribers of Matthew's Gospel, from the recollection of Mark's, or from the purpose to make all alike, changed Gergesenes, or Gerasenes, into Gadarenes.—It is not surprising that the country lying south-east of the Lake should be designated from Gadara, which was the principal city in Palestine east of the Jordan; but as it was at least eight or ten miles from the Lake, it can scarcely have been the city to which the swineherds fled, though the demoniac probably belonged to it. (Luke viii. 27.) Josephus does not mention Gergesa itself; but Origen says that there was a small town of that name, situated near a precipice on the shore of the Lake: if correct, this must have been the city spoken of in reference to the persons feeding the swine.

† Or, Hush! or, Be hushed!

‡ Lit. feared with great fear.

MATT. VIII.	MARK V.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
two demoniacs, * coming out of the tombs, exceeding fierce, so that no one was able to pass by that way.	2 And when he came out of the ship, straightway there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit, 3 who had his dwelling among the tombs; and no man could bind him, even with chains: 4 because he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been torn asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: and no one was able to subdue him. 5 And always, night and day, he was on the mountains, and among the tombs, crying out, and cutting himself with stones. 6 But when he saw Jesus afar off, he ran and worshiped him.† 7 And crying with a loud voice, he said, "What hast thou to do with me, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not." 8 (For he had said unto him, "Come out of the man, thou unclean spirit.") 9 And he asked him, "What is thy name?" And he answered, say-	when he went forth to the land, there met him a certain man of the city who had had demons for a long time, and ware no clothes, and abode not in a house, but in the sepulchres. 28 But when he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, "What hast thou to do with me, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I pray thee torment me not." 29 (For he had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. And indeed it had for a long time seized him; and he was kept bound with chains and fetters;

* The poor maniac of whom Mark and Luke have given so full an account, was obviously a person of notoriety, if not from his station in life, at least from the intensity of his disorder. The other insane person, whom St. Matthew alone adverts to, might have been entirely lost sight of by the time when the other Evangelists wrote: but Matthew residing at Capernaum, would hear of both when the disciples returned to that city; and as the transaction occurred just before his own call, it was natural that he should record the substance of all the information he received. This he has done with his usual brevity, precision, and distinctness. The accounts of the other Evangelists contain nothing to render it improbable that there really was another insane person with the maniac.

† Or, did him reverence, (or, homage.)—The demoniacs might, from the lofty shore, have witnessed the stilling of the storm.

MATT. VIII.	MARK V.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
³⁰ Now there was at a distance from them a herd of many swine, feeding. ³¹ And the demons entreated him, saying, "If thou cast us out, send us into the herd of swine," ³² And he said unto them, "Go." And having come forth, they went away into the swine: and, behold, the whole herd rushed down the precipice into the sea, and perished in the waters. ³³ And they that were feeding them fled, and went away to the city, and told all things, and the circumstances respecting the demoniacs. ³⁴ And, behold, the whole city came forth to meet Jesus: and when they saw him, they entreated him that he would depart from their borders.	ing, "My name is Legion: for we are many." ¹⁰ And he entreated him much that he would not send them away out of the country. ¹¹ Now there was there, at the mountain, a great herd of swine feeding. ¹² And the demons besought him, saying, "Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them." ¹³ And straightway Jesus suffered them. And the unclean spirits having come forth, entered into the swine: and the herd rushed down the precipice into the sea; ([now they were] about two thousand;) and they were suffocated in the sea. ¹⁴ And they that were feeding the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the fields. And the people came forth to see what it was that had been done. ¹⁵ And they come to Jesus, and see the demoniac, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind, [him that had had the legion:] and they were afraid. ¹⁶ And they that had seen it told them how it had happened to the demoniac, and concerning the swine. ¹⁷ And they began	and he brake the bonds, and was driven by the demon into solitary places.) ³⁰ And Jesus asked him, saying, "What is thy name?" And he said, "Legion:" because many demons had entered into him. ³¹ And he besought him* that he would not command them to go out into the abyss. ³² Now there was there a herd of many swine feeding on the mountain: and they entreated him that he would suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them. ³³ And the demons having come forth from the man, entered into the swine: and the herd rushed down the precipice into the lake, and were suffocated. ³⁴ Now when they that were feeding them saw what had been done, they fled, and went away and told it in the city and in the fields. ³⁵ And the people came forth to see what had been done; and they came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the demons had come forth, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid. ³⁶ And they also that had seen it told them by what means he that had been a demoniac was restored.

* 'They besought him,' is a reading of great probability.

MATT.	MARK V.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
	to entreat him to depart from their borders. ¹⁸ And when he had entered into the ship, he that had been a demoniac, entreated him that he might be with him. ¹⁹ And he suffered him not, but saith unto him, “Go back to thine own house to thy family, and tell them what great things the Lord hath done for thee, and that he hath had compassion on thee.” ²⁰ And he went away, and began to publish in the Decapolis what great things Jesus had done for him: and all wondered. ²¹ And when Jesus had passed over again in the ship unto the other side, a great multitude gathered unto him: and he was nigh unto the sea.	³⁷ Then the whole multitude of the surrounding country of the Gadarenes brought him to depart from them; for they were seized with great fear: and he entered into the ship, and returned back. ³⁸ But the man from whom the demons had gone forth prayed him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, ³⁹ “Return to thine house, and declare what great things God hath done for thee.” And he went away, and published throughout the whole city what great things Jesus had done for him. ⁴⁰ And it came to pass, that, when Jesus returned, the multitude gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him.

SECT. VIII.

On returning to Capernaum, Jesus heals the Paralytic, and afterwards calls Matthew the Publican.

MATT. IX.	MARK II.	LUKE V.	JOHN
And he entered into the ship, and passed over, and came to his own city. ² And, behold, they	And again he entered into Capernaum, after some days; * and it was heard that he was in a	¹⁷ And it came to pass one of those days, that he was teaching; and there were Pharisees and

* ‘After some days’ refers to the time when our Lord cured the leper. In that interval we learn from St. Luke that he raised the widow’s son at Nain; and from St. Matthew that he restored the Gadarene demoniac. After this last miracle, both Mark and Luke record the raising of the daughter of Jairus; which agrees with the succession of events as ascertained from St. Matthew’s Gospel; but this last also requires us to place it after the call of Matthew, which, as all the three record, was preceded by the cure of the Paralytic. Besides, St. Matthew expressly informs us that Jairus applied to Christ while he was at his table; and since he has so recorded it, it is not an admissible supposition that the order of Mark and Luke can be chronologically correct. What may have caused the arrangement in these two Gospels, is considered in the Preliminary Dissertations.

MATT. IX.	MARK II.	LUKE V.	JOHN
brought to him a paralytic laid on a bed.	certain house.† 2 And straightway many were gathered together, so that not even the parts at the door could any longer contain them: and he spake the word unto them. 3 And they come unto him, bringing a paralytic, borne by four. 4 And not being able to come nigh unto him on account of the multitude, they removed the covering § where he was; and having torn away the balustrade , they let down the couch on which the paralytic was lying. 5 And Jesus seeing their faith, saith unto the paralytic, "Son,* thy sins are forgiven thee." 6 Now there were certain of the Scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts, 7 "Why doth this man thus speak blasphemies? who can forgive sins but	doctors of the law sitting by, who were come out of every town of Galilee, and from Judea, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal the sick. 18 And, behold, men bringing on a bed a man who was afflicted with palsy: and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him. 19 And not finding any way by which they might bring him in on account of the multitude, they went upon the house, and let him down by the tiles, with the little couch, into the midst before Jesus. 20 And seeing their faith, he said unto him, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee." 21 And the Scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, "Who is this who speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins,
And Jesus seeing their faith, said unto the paralytic; "Son,* be of good cheer; † thy sins are forgiven thee." 3 And, behold, certain of the Scribes said within themselves, "This man blasphemeth." 4 And Jesus perceiving their thoughts

* Or, Child, τέκνον.

† Or, take courage.

‡ Εἰς οἶκον. The absence of the article does not decide the matter; but it leaves room for the supposition that it was not our Lord's ordinary residence. Indeed, as a number of leading men (see Luke v. 17.) were collected from various parts, it is most probable that the place where they met was a house of some distinction: we may conjecture Chuza's, or the Centurion's.—The important point, however, is the structure of the house; and the rendering of Mark ii. 4, and of Luke v. 19, is formed upon what is known respecting the houses of the east. They consisted of rooms round a court. The roofs were flat, and covered with a kind of cement; and there was a staircase to them from the principal entrance. Round the roof, towards the court, was a balustrade, or parapet; and below this, there was in some houses, a facing of ornamental tiles. The court was sometimes covered with an awning. The persons who carried the paralytic, finding the court thronged, carried him up on the roof, tore away the balustrade, removed the awning over the place where Christ was teaching, and let the man down, on his pallet, by the tiles, into the court below. There is a peculiarity in the details as given by each of those Evangelists which is strikingly accordant with their respective circumstances. Luke's record is that of one who had seen the house itself, and to whom the account was given by a resident in it: Mark gives the particulars, as related by those who had been personally concerned in removing the awning and tearing out the balustrade. St. Matthew merely gives the fact, according to his usual system when not present; and he was at the receipt of custom.

§ Lit. they uncovered the covering.

MATT. IX.	MARK II.	LUKE V.	JOHN
said, "Wherefore think ye evil things in your hearts? ⁵ For which is easier? to say, Thy sins are forgiven; or to say, Arise, and walk? ⁶ But that ye may know that the Son of man hath authority on earth to forgive sins," (then he saith to the paralytic,) "Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine own house." ⁷ And he arose and went away to his own house. ⁸ But the multitudes seeing this, wondered, and glorified God, who had given such authority unto men.	one, that is God?" ⁸ And straightway Jesus, knowing in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, said unto them, "Why reason ye these things in your hearts? ⁹ Which is easier? to say to the paralytic, Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy couch, and walk? ¹⁰ But that ye may know that the Son of man hath authority on earth to forgive sins," (he saith to the paralytic,) ¹¹ "I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go to thine own house." ¹² And straightway he arose, took up the couch, and went forth before them all: so that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, "We never saw it thus."	but God alone?" ²² And Jesus knowing their reasonings, answered and said unto them, "Why reason ye thus in your hearts? ²³ Which is easier? to say, Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? ²⁴ But that ye may know that the Son of man hath authority upon earth to forgive sins," (he said unto him that was afflicted with palsy,) "I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch,* and go unto thine own house." ²⁵ And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. ²⁶ And amazement seized them all, and they glorified God: and they were filled with fear, saying, "We have seen strange things to-day."
⁹ And as Jesus passed by from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, "Follow me." And he arose, and followed him.	¹³ And he went forth again by the sea side; and all the multitude came unto him, and he taught them. ¹⁴ And as he passed by, he saw Levi the son of Alphaeus sitting at the receipt of custom, and saith unto him, "Follow me." And he arose and followed him.	²⁷ And after these things he went forth, and saw a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, "Follow me." ²⁸ And he left all, rose up, and followed him.

* Or, little couch. In this Section there are three different words employed for 'that whereon he lay': Matthew has κλινη, a couch on which persons reclined at table, or a bed for sleeping on: Mark, κρᾶββατον, a pallet, or small bed, or couch: Luke, κλινη, and also κλινιδιον, little couch. What the paralytic lay upon was probably a pallet on a small light bedstead. Κρᾶββατον is used only by Mark and John. It was most appropriated to the mean beds and couches of the poor: rendered couch, as here, it denotes a small bed with a light bedstead.

MATT. IX.	MARK II.	LUKE V.	JOHN
¹⁶ Now no one putteth a piece of unwrought cloth upon an old garment, for the piece which filleth it up taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worse. ¹⁷ Nor do men put new wine into old bottles : * for otherwise the bottles are burst, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will perish : but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserved." § 2. ¹⁸ While he was saying these things unto them, behold, a ruler came and worshiped him,† saying, "My daughter was just now dying : but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live." ¹⁹ And Jesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples. ²⁰ And, behold, a woman, who had had an issue of blood for twelve years, came behind, and touch-	with them, they cannot fast. ²⁰ But days will come, when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then will they fast in those days. ²¹ And no man seweth a piece of unwrought cloth upon an old garment : for otherwise the new piece which filleth it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse. ²² And no one putteth new wine into old bottles: for otherwise the new wine bursteth the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will perish: but new wine must be put into new bottles." § 2. СН. V. ²² And, behold, there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, by name Jäirus ; and seeing him, he falleth at his feet, ²³ and entreateth him greatly, saying, "My little daughter is at the point of death : I pray thee that thou wouldst come and lay thy hands on her,‡ that she may be restored , and she shall live." ²⁴ And Jesus went away with him ; and a great multitude followed him, and thronged him. ²⁵ And a certain woman, who had been afflicted with an issue of blood for twelve years,	then will they fast in those days." ³⁶ And he spake also a parable unto them, " No one putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old ; for otherwise both the new maketh a rent, and the piece from the new agreeth not with the old. ³⁷ And no one putteth new wine into old bottles ; for otherwise the new wine will burst the bottles, and will itself be spilled, and the bottles will perish. ³⁸ But new wine must be put into new bottles ; and both are preserved. ³⁹ And no one having drunk old wine straightway desireth new : for he saith, The old is better." § 2. СН. VIII. ⁴¹ And, behold, there came a man, (he was a ruler of the synagogue, whose name was Jäirus,) and fell down at the feet of Jesus, and entreated him that he would come to his house : ⁴² for he had an only daughter, about twelve years of age, and she was dying. But as he was going the multitudes thronged him. ⁴³ And a woman who had been afflicted with an issue of blood twelve years, who though she

* Or, skins, or, skin-bottles.—And so throughout the Section. † Or, did him reverence (or, homage.)

‡ The construction of this clause in the Greek is peculiar, ἵνα ἐλθὼν ἐπιθῇς.

MATT. IX.	MARK V.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
ed the border of his garment: ²¹ For she said within herself, "If I only touch his garment I shall be restored." ²² But Jesus turned about, and when he saw her, he said, "Daughter, be of good comfort: * thy faith hath restored thee." And the woman was restored from that hour.	²⁶ and had suffered many things under many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was in nothing benefited, but rather grew worse, ²⁷ having heard of Jesus, came in the multitude behind, and touched his garment. ²⁸ For she said, "If I may but touch his garments, I shall be restored." ²⁹ And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she perceived in her body that she was healed of that disorder.† ³⁰ And Jesus, straightway knowing in himself that power had gone out of him, turned about in the multitude, and said, "Who touched my garments?" ³¹ And his disciples said unto him, "Thou seest the multitude thronging thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?" ³² And he looked round about to see her that had done this. ³³ But the woman fearing and trembling, knowing what had been done to her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth. ³⁴ But he said unto her, "Daughter, thy faith hath restored thee; go in peace, and be whole of thy disorder."†	had spent all her living upon physicians, could not be healed by any one, ⁴⁴ came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately the issue of her blood was stopped. ⁴⁵ And Jesus said, "Who touched me?" And all denying, Peter said, and they that were with him, "Master, the multitudes press thee and throng thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?" ⁴⁶ But Jesus said, "Some one touched me: for I perceived that power went out from me." ⁴⁷ Now when the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling, and falling down before him, she declared unto him before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she had been immediately healed. ⁴⁸ But he said unto her, "Daughter, be of good comfort; * thy faith hath restored thee, go in peace."
§ 3.	§ 3.	§ 3.
	³⁵ While he was yet speaking, there come	⁴⁹ While he was yet speaking, there cometh

* Or, take courage.

† Μαστιξ, scourge.

MATT. IX.	MARK V.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
23 And when Jesus came to the ruler's house, and saw the minstrels* and the multitude making a tumultuous noise, 24 he saith unto them, "Go away: for the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth." And they laughed at him. 25 But when the multitude had been put forth, he went in, and took her by the hand, and the damsel arose.† 26 And the fame hereof went forth into all that land.	persons from the ruler of the synagogue's house, who said, "Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Teacher any further?" 26 But Jesus having heard the word that was spoken, saith straightway unto the ruler of the synagogue, "Fear not, only believe." 27 And he suffered no one to follow with him, except Peter, and James, and John the brother of James. 28 And he cometh to the house of the ruler of the synagogue, and seeth the tumult, persons weeping and wailing greatly. 29 And entering in he saith unto them, "Why make ye this tumultuous noise, and weep? the child is not dead, but sleepeth." 30 And they laughed at him. But when he had put them all out, he taketh the father and the mother of the child, and them that were with him, and entereth in where the child was lying. 31 And he laid hold of the child's hand, and saith unto her, "Talitha cumi;" which is, being interpreted, "Damsel; (I say unto thee,) Arise." 32 And straightway the damsel arose, and walked; for she was twelve years old. And they were	one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, "Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Teacher." 30 But when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, "Fear not: only believe, and she shall be restored." 31 And when he entered into the house, he suffered no one to enter, except Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden. 32 And all were weeping, and bewailing her: but he said, "Weep not: she is not dead, but sleepeth." 33 And they laughed at him, knowing that she was dead. 34 And he put them all out, and laid hold of her hand, and called aloud, saying, "Maiden, arise." 35 And her spirit returned, and she immediately arose:

* Lit. pipers, αυλητας.

† Or, was raised.

MATT. IX.	MARK V.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
§ 4. ²⁷ And as Jesus was passing by from thence, two blind men followed him, crying out, and saying, "Son of David, have pity on us." ²⁸ And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him : and Jesus saith unto them, "Believe ye that I am able to do this?" They said unto him, "Yea, Lord." ²⁹ Then he touched their eyes, saying, "According to your faith be it done unto you." ³⁰ And their eyes were opened ; and Jesus strictly charged them, saying, "See that no one know it." ³¹ But when they went forth they spread abroad his fame in all that country. ³² Now as they were going out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man, a demoniac. ³³ And when the demon was cast out, the dumb man spake : and the multitudes wondered, saying, "It was never thus seen in Israel." ³⁴ But the Pharisees said, "He casteth out demons by the prince of the demons."	astonished with great astonishment. ⁴³ And he charged them straitly that no man should know it ; and ordered that something should be given her to eat.	and he commanded that something should be given her to eat. ⁵⁵ And her parents were astonished : but he charged them to tell no one what had been done.

SECT. X.

Christ selects the Apostles, and then makes a Second Progress through Galilee.

MATT. X.	MARK III.	LUKE VI.	JOHN
• Now the names of the twelve apostles are these ; First, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother ; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother ; ² Philip, and Bartholomew ; Thomas, and Matthew the publican ; James the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbeus surnamed Thaddaeus ; ³ Simon Kananites,† and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.	¹² And he goeth up to a mountain,‡ and calleth unto him whom he would : and they came unto him. ¹⁴ And he appointed twelve, that they might be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach ; ¹⁵ and to have authority to heal diseases, and to cast out demons : Simon, ¹⁶ (and Simon he surnamed Peter ; §) ¹⁷ and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James ; (and these he surnamed Boanerges, which is, Sons of thunder ;) ¹⁸ and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon Kananites,† ¹⁹ and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.	¹² And it came to pass in those days, that he went out to a mountain† to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. ¹³ And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples : and from them he chose twelve, whom he named also apostles ;— ¹⁴ Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, ¹⁵ Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, ¹⁶ and Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, who also was the traitor :— ¹⁷ and he came down with them, and stood on the plain, and the multitude of his disciples,

• St. Matthew does not record the selection, but only the mission of the Apostles. This is agreeable to the general system of his Gospel in relation to facts : in recording discourses he is copious and detailed.

† Kananites means the same as Zelotes, implying that Simon was one of the Zelotes.

‡ To ορος, the mountain, as in Matt. v. 1, seems to indicate some well-known hill near Capernaum.

§ Lit. and he put on Simon the name Peter. This refers to a former period. (John i. 42 : see p. 20.) The regular construction would have been, as in Luke and Matthew, Simon, whom he surnamed Peter ; but St. Mark's Gospel presents many irregularities in style. In a close translation, it appears best to leave them.

|| Ver. 14–16 form a parenthesis ; the construction of the Greek, connecting ver. 13 and 17, may be thus represented : and having chosen out twelve from them, whom he named Apostles,——and having come down with them, he stood on the plain, &c.

MATT. IX.	MARK VI.	LUKE VI.	JOHN
³⁵ And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every weakness among the people. ³⁶ Now when he saw the multitudes he was moved with compassion for them, because they were wearied and scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. ³⁷ Then he saith unto his disciples, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few ; ³⁸ pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth other labourers into his harvest."	⁶ And he went round the villages in a circuit, teaching.	and a great number of the people from all Judea, and Jerusalem, and the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, who came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases ; ¹⁸ and they that were oppressed with unclean spirits: and they were cured. ¹⁹ And the whole multitude sought to touch him: because power went forth from him, and healed all. CH. VIII. And it came to pass in the course of events, that he journeyed throughout every city and village, preaching and declaring the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. And the Twelve were were with him. ² And certain women, who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, from whom had gone forth seven demons; ³ and Joanna the wife of Chuza Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, who ministered unto him from their substance.

SECT. XI.

The Apostles instructed both for their present Mission, and for their future Service, and then sent forth into various parts of Galilee.

MATT. X.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
AND having called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them authority over unclean spirits, so as to cast them out, and to heal every disease and every weakness. — ⁵ These twelve Jesus sent forth, having charged them, saying, “Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and enter not into a city of the Samaritans; ⁶ but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. ⁷ And as ye go, preach,* saying, ‘The kingdom of heaven draweth near.’ ⁸ Heal the infirm; raise the dead; cleanse the lepers; cast out demons; freely have ye received, freely give. ⁹ Provide not gold, nor silver, nor brass, in your purses; ¹⁰ provide not bag for the way, nor two vests, nor sandals, nor a staff: for the labourer is worthy of his food. ¹¹ “And into whatsoever city or village ye enter, inquire who in it is worthy; and there abide until ye go forth. ¹² And when ye enter into a house, salute it. ¹³ And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it	⁷ AND he calleth unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth two by two; and he gave them authority over unclean spirits; ⁸ and charged them that they should take nothing for the way, except a staff only; no bag, no bread, no brass in the purse: ⁹ but to be shod with sandals; and “do not put on two vests.” ¹⁰ And he said unto them, “Wheresoever ye enter into a house, there abide until ye go forth thence.	Now having called his twelve disciples together, he gave them power and authority over all the demons, and to heal diseases. ² And he sent them forth to preach †the kingdom of God, and to cure the infirm. ³ And he said unto them, “Take nothing for the way, neither staves, nor bag, nor bread, nor money; and do not have two coats apiece. ⁴ “And into whatsoever house ye enter, there abide, and thence go forth.

* Or, (as also elsewhere,) make proclamation, κηρυσσετε.

† Or, proclaim.

MATT. X.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
will rise up against parents, and cause them to be put to death. ²² And ye will be hated by all men for my name's sake. But he that endureth to the end shall be saved. ²³ But when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another ; and if they persecute you out of this, flee ye into another : * for verily I say unto you, ye shall not finish the cities of Israel, until the Son of man come. ²⁴ " The disciple is not above the teacher ; nor the servant above his lord. ²⁵ It is enough for the disciple that he be as his teacher, and the servant as his lord. If they have surnamed the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more will they so call them of his household ? ²⁶ Fear them not therefore : for there is nothing covered, which shall not be revealed ; and hidden, which shall not be known. ²⁷ What I say to you in the darkness, that speak ye in the light : and what ye hear in the ear, that proclaim ye upon the housetops. ²⁸ And fear not any thing from them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul : but fear him rather who is able to destroy both soul		— CH. XII. 2—9. " Now there is nothing covered, which shall not be revealed ; and hidden, which shall not be known. ³ Wherefore, whatsoever ye have spoken in the darkness shall be heard in the light ; and that which ye speak to the ear in chambers, shall be proclaimed upon the housetops. ⁴ But I say to you, my friends, be not made afraid by them that kill the body, and

* The clause preceding, Griesbach introduces into his text, with the mark of very probable addition : Scholz gives to it no indication that he regards it as of authority.

MATT. X.	MARK	LUKE [XII.]	JOHN
and body in hell. ²⁹ Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? * and yet not one of them falleth † [on the ground] without your Father: ³⁰ and even the hairs of your head are all numbered. ³¹ Fear not therefore; ye are of more value than many sparrows. ³² "Every one therefore who shall confess me before men, him shall I confess also before my Father who is in heaven. ³³ But whosoever shall deny me before men, him shall I also deny before my Father who is in heaven. ³⁴ "Think not that I have come to send peace on the land; I have come not to send peace, but a sword. ³⁵ For I have come to set a man at variance against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law: ³⁶ and a man's foes will be those of his own household. ³⁷ "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy		afterwards have no more that they can do; ⁵ but I will warn you whom ye should fear; fear him who, after he hath killed, hath power ‡ to cast into hell: yea, I say unto you, fear him. ⁶ Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings? and not one of them is forgotten before God. ⁷ Moreover, even the hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not, therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows. ⁸ "Now I say unto you, Every one who shall confess me before men, the Son of man also will confess him before the angels of God. ⁹ But he that denieth me before men, will be denied before the angels of God." —

* Lit. an as, ασσάριον.—This was a brass coin of the value of one-tenth of a denarius (or drachma,) i. e. of rather more than three farthings; but it is here well represented by farthing, as our smallest coin.

† The future of the Greek is well represented here by our aorist. Such, probably, was the force of the word employed in the original Gospel.

‡ The original is ἐξουσία, commonly rendered authority.

MATT. X.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
of me : and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me : ³⁸ and he that doth not take up his cross, and follow after me, is not worthy of me. ³⁹ He that findeth his life shall lose it : and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it. ⁴⁰ “ He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. ⁴¹ He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet’s reward ; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shall receive a righteous man’s reward. ⁴² And whosoever shall give unto one of these little ones* a cup of cold water only to drink in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no-wise lose his reward.” СН. XI. And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished commanding his twelve disciples, he departed thence, to teach and preach in their cities.	¹² And they went forth, and preached that all should repent. ¹³ And they cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many sick persons, and healed them.	⁶ And they went forth, and went through the villages, preaching glad tidings, and healing every where.

* Or, these my followers (or, servants). Kuinoel (from Boltinius) observes that קטן little, denotes also attendant, follower, disciple. It is opposed to גד great, which also signifies master.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART V.

TRANSACTIONS OF CHRIST AFTER SENDING FORTH THE APOSTLES, SHORTLY BEFORE THE FEAST OF DEDICATION, TILL ALL OF THEM HAD COLLECTED TO HIM AFTER THE DEATH OF THE BAPTIST.

SECT. I.

The Message of the Baptist, and our Lord's Reply.

MATT. XI.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
² Now when John had heard in the prison the works of the Christ, he sent two of his disciples, ³ and said unto him, "Art thou he that cometh, or do we look for another?" ⁴ And Jesus answered and said unto them, "Go and shew John what things ye hear and see: ⁵ the blind receive sight, and the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor		¹⁸ AND the disciples of John shewed him concerning all these things. ¹⁹ And John having called unto him certain two of his disciples, sent them to Jesus, saying, "Art thou he that cometh, or do we look for another?" ²⁰ Now when the men came unto him, they said, "John the Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that cometh, or do we look for another?" ²¹ (Now in the same hour he healed many of diseases and harassing disorders* and evil spirits; and to many blind he granted sight.) ²² And Jesus answering said unto them, "Go and shew John what things ye have seen and heard; that the blind receive sight, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are

* Μαστιξι, scourges. In the Gospels, the original word occurs only in Mark iii. 10. v. 29, 34. Luke vii. 21.

MATT. XI.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
have glad tidings preached to them. ⁶ And blessed is he , whosoever shall not be caused to fall by me.”*		raised, the poor have glad tidings preached to them. ²³ And blessed is he , whosoever shall not be caused to fall by me.”*
⁷ Now as they were departing, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, “What went ye out into the desert to behold? a reed shaken by the wind? ⁸ What then went ye out to see? a man clothed in soft garments? behold, they that wear soft garments are in the houses of kings. ⁹ What then went ye out to see? a prophet? yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. ¹⁰ For this is he , concerning whom it is written, ‘Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee.’ ¹¹ Verily I say unto you, among those born of women there hath not been raised up a greater than John the Baptist: yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. ¹² And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.† ¹³ For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John. ¹⁴ And if ye are willing to receive it , this is Elijah, that was about to come. ¹⁵ He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.	Mal. 3; 1.	²⁴ And when the messengers of John had gone away, he began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, “What went ye out into the desert to behold? a reed shaken by the wind? ²⁵ What then went ye out to see? a man clothed in soft garments? Behold, they who are gorgeously appareled, and live luxuriously, are in royal palaces. ²⁶ But what went ye out to see? a prophet? yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. ²⁷ This is he , concerning whom it is written, ‘Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee.’ ²⁸ For I say unto you, Among those born of women there is no greater prophet than John the Baptist: yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.”
		²⁹ And all the people that heard him , and the publicans,

* Or, find a stumbling-block in me, σκανδαλισθῆναι ἐν ἐμοί. The verb occurs (see Schmidt) in Matt. v. 29, 30. xi. 6. xiii. 21, 57. xv. 12. xvii. 27. xviii. 0, 8, 9. xxiv. 10. xxvi. 31, 33. Mark iv. 17. vi. 3. ix. 42, 43, 45, 47. xiv. 27, 29. Luke vii. 23. xvii. 2. John vi. 61. xvi. 1.—Σκανδαλον, a stumbling-block, is found in Matt. xiii. 41. xvi. 23. xviii. 7 (three times). Luke xvii. 1.

† Or, the kingdom of heaven is entered with eagerness, and the eager seize it with avidity.—‘The days of John the Baptist’ refers to the commencement of his public preaching; about fourteen months before the present period.

MATT. XI.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
¹⁶ “ Now to what shall I liken this generation ? It is like unto children sitting in market-places, and calling unto their companions, ¹⁷ and saying, ‘ We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced ; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.’ ¹⁸ For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, ‘ He hath a demon.’ ¹⁹ The Son of man hath come eating and drinking, and they say, ‘ Behold a gluttonous man, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners !’ And yet wisdom is justified by her children.”		justified God, having been baptized with the baptism of John. ³⁰ But the Pharisees and the lawyers rejected the counsel of God in relation to themselves, not having been baptized by him. ³¹ “ To what then shall I liken the men of this generation ? and to what are they like ? ³² They are like unto children sitting in the market-place, and calling one to another, and saying, ‘ We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced ; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not wept.’ ³³ For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine ; and ye say, ‘ He hath a demon.’ ³⁴ The Son of man hath come eating and drinking ; and ye say, ‘ Behold a gluttonous man, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners !’ ³⁵ And yet wisdom is justified by all her children.”

SECT. II.

Jesus, at the House of Simon the Pharisee, receives the grateful Services of the Woman who had been a Sinner.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
		³⁶ Now one of the Pharisees asked him to eat with him ; and he entered into the Pharisee’s house, and placed himself at table. ³⁷ And, behold, a woman in the city, who had been a sinner, when she knew that Jesus was at table in the Pharisee’s house, brought an alabaster vase of balsam, ³⁸ and stood behind at his feet weeping, and began to wet his feet with tears ; and she wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the balsam.* ³⁹ But when the Pharisee who had invited him saw it, he spake within himself,

* Or, (following the peculiar force of the Greek imperfect,) and she kept wiping them with the hair of her head, and kissing his feet, and anointing them with the balsam,—Campbell well renders μυρον balsam.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE VII.	JOHN
		saying, "This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what kind of woman this is who toucheth him : for she is a sinner." ⁴⁰ And Jesus answering said unto him, "Simon, I have something to say unto thee." And he saith, "Teacher, say it." ⁴¹ "There was a certain creditor who had two debtors: the one owed five hundred denarii, and the other fifty : ⁴² but since they had nothing to pay, he forgave them both. Which therefore of them, tell me, will love him most ? " ⁴³ Simon answered and said, "I suppose that he will to whom he forgave most." And he said unto him, "Thou hast judged aright." ⁴⁴ And turning towards the woman, he said unto Simon, "Thou seest this woman : I entered into thy house, thou gavest no water for my feet ; but she hath wetted my feet with tears, and wiped them with her hair : ⁴⁵ thou gavest me no kiss ; but she, from the time I entered, hath not ceased to kiss my feet : ⁴⁶ thou anointedst not my head with oil, but she hath anointed my feet with balsam. ⁴⁷ Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins have been forgiven ; and they were many, for she hath loved much : but he to whom little is forgiven, loveth little." ⁴⁸ And he said unto her, "Thy sins have been forgiven." ⁴⁹ And they that were at table with him began to say within themselves, "Who is this who even forgiveth sins ? " ⁵⁰ But he said to the woman, "Thy faith hath saved thee ; go in peace."

SECT. III.

Christ instructs and sends forth the Seventy Disciples : He upbraids the Cities of Galilee : (Notice of the Return of the Seventy to him :) He gives Thanks to the Father.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE X.	JOHN
		AFTER these things * the Lord appointed seventy others also, and sent them forth two and two before his face into

* The ixth chapter, which forms a distinct Section of Luke's Gospel, begins with the Mission of the Twelve. According to this Evangelist's methodical system, he next gives all the events connected with it—a brief account of the execution of their commission, and their return, and of a series of transactions which succeeded this, till our Lord 'steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem.' The present chapter begins a new portion of his Gospel ; and 'after these things' refers, generally, to the former part of his record ; but, in particular, to the Mission of the Twelve, as is shown by the clause 'Seventy others also.' St. Matthew does not record the Mission of the Seventy ; but has some connected discourses.

MATT. XI.	MARK	LUKE X.	JOHN
		every city and place, whither he himself was about to come.* 2 He said therefore unto them, "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth more labourers into his harvest. 3 Go your way: behold, I send you forth as lambs amidst wolves. 4 Carry neither purse, nor bag, nor sandals; nor shoes and salute no one by the way. 5 And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, 'Peace be to this house.' 6 And if a son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn back upon you. 7 But in the same house remain, eating and drinking what they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house. 8 And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you: 9 and heal the infirm that are therein, and say unto them, The kingdom of God draweth near unto you. 10 But into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go forth into the streets of it, and say, 11 'Even the dust which cleaveth to us from your city, we wipe off against you: notwithstanding know this, that the kingdom of God draweth near.' 12 I say unto you, that it will be more tolerable in that day for Sodom, than for that city. 13 Woe for thee, Chorazin! woe for thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works which have been done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would long ago have repented, in 20 THEN he began to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works had been done, because they repented not.

21 "Woe for thee, Chorazin! woe for thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works which have been done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would long ago have repented, in

* These places appear to have been in the Peræa.

MATT. XI.	MARK	LUKE. X.	JOHN
sackcloth and ashes. ²² But I say unto you, It will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you. ²³ And thou, Capernaum, which hast been exalted unto heaven, wilt be thrust down to the abyss : * for if the mighty works which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. ²⁴ But indeed I say unto you, that it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment, than for thee." ²⁵ At that time Jesus answered and said, " I praise thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hidden these things from the wise and understanding, and hast revealed them unto babes.† ²⁶ Even so, Father : for so it hath seemed good in thy sight. ²⁷ All things have been delivered unto me by my Father : and no one knoweth the Son, except the Father ;		in sackcloth and ashes. ¹⁴ But indeed it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment, than for you. ¹⁵ And thou, Capernaum, which hast been exalted to heaven, wilt be thrust down to the abyss.* ¹⁶ He that heareth you heareth me ; and he that despiseth you despiseth me ; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me." ¹⁷ (And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, " Lord, even the demons are subjected unto us by thy name." ¹⁸ And he said unto them, " I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. ¹⁹ Behold, I give unto you authority to tread on serpents and scorpions, and upon all the power of the enemy : and nothing shall by any means hurt you. ²⁰ Notwithstanding, in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subjected unto you ; but rejoice, that your names are written in heaven.") ²¹ In that hour Jesus greatly rejoiced in spirit, and said " I praise thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hidden these things from the wise and understanding, and hast revealed them unto babes.† Even so, Father : for so it hath seemed good in thy sight. ²² All things have been delivered unto me by my Father : and no one knoweth who the Son is, ex-

* Lit. to hades, ἑως ᾗδου, the abode of the dead.

† Or, (neglecting the idiom, for which see Rom. vi. 17.) because though &c., yet thou &c.

MATT. XI.	MARK	LUKE X.	JOHN
neither knoweth any one the Father, except the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son willeth to reveal him ."		cept the Father ; and who the Father is, except the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son willeth to reveal him ." 23 And turning unto the disciples, he said privately, " Blessed are the eyes which see what ye see : 24 for I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see what ye see, and have not seen ; and to hear what ye hear, and have not heard."
28 " Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. 29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me ; for I am meek and lowly in heart : and ye shall find rest unto your souls. 30 For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

SECT. IV.

*Christ delivers the Parable of the Good Samaritan : and visits Martha and Mary at Bethany.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE X.	JOHN
		25 AND, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, trying him, and saying, " Teacher, what shall I do to inherit everlasting life ? " 26 And he said unto him, " What is written in the law ? how readest thou ? " 27 And he answering said, " Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind ; and thy neighbour as thyself." 28 And he said unto him, " Thou hast answered aright : this do, and thou shalt live." 29 But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, " And who is my neighbour ? " 30 And Jesus replied and said, " A certain man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho,

* The present record occurring only in St. Luke's Gnomology, the chronological position of these events is not decidedly ascertainable. There is, however, nothing that renders the position here assigned improbable ; and the system of this Harmony, therefore, requires to maintain the connexion already existing. The visit to Bethany must have occurred when our Lord was going to Jerusalem ; and in his journey thither, at the Feast of Dedication, it is probable he was almost alone, which well suits the circumstances of that visit.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE X.	JOHN
		and he fell among robbers, who having both stripped him and wounded him, departed, leaving him half dead. ³¹ Now by chance a certain priest was coming down that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. ³² And in like manner a Levite also, when he was at the place, came and saw him, and passed by on the other side. ³³ But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he was moved with compassion; ³⁴ and he came to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine: and having set him on his own beast, he brought him to an inn, and took care of him. ³⁵ And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two denarii, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, ‘Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.’ ³⁶ Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among the robbers?” ³⁷ And he said, “He that shewed mercy on him.” Then said Jesus unto him, “Go, and do thou likewise.” ³⁸ Now it came to pass, as they journeyed, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house. ³⁹ And she had a sister called Mary, who also sat at the feet of Jesus, and heard his word. ⁴⁰ But Martha was distracted about much serving; and standing near she said, “Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.” ⁴¹ But Jesus answered and said unto her, “Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: ⁴² yet of one thing only is there need. But Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her.”

SECT. V.

Christ at Jerusalem at the Feast of Dedication: subsequent Sojourn in the Peræa, where, probably, the Seventy rejoin him, and some also of the Twelve.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN X.
			²² Now it was the feast of the dedication at Jerusalem, and it was winter.* ²³ And Jesus was walking in the temple in Solomon’s portico. ²⁴ The

* Or, stormy weather. (See Kninoel.)—This assigns the reason why our Lord was in Solomon’s Portico. The Feast of Dedication depending, like all the other events of the Jewish Year, on the time of its commencement, might vary from the end of November to that of December. The proper winter of Palestine, was during the latter half of December. See Calendar in the Appendix.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN X.
			Jews therefore surrounded him, and said unto him, "How long dost thou keep our mind in suspense? If thou art the Christ, tell us plainly." ²⁵ Jesus answered them, "I have told you, and ye believe not. The works that I do in my Father's name, these bear testimony concerning me : ²⁶ yet ye believe not ; for ye are not of my sheep. As I said unto you, ²⁷ my sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me : ²⁸ and I give unto them everlasting life ; and they shall never perish,* nor shall any one force them out of my hand. ²⁹ My Father, who gave them to me, is greater than all ; and no one is able to force them out of my Father's hand : ³⁰ I and the Father are one." ³¹ The Jews therefore again took up stones to stone him. ³² Jesus answered them, "Many good works have I shewed you from my Father ; for which of these works do ye stone me?" ³³ The Jews answered him, saying, "For a good work we stone thee not ; but for blasphemy ; and because thou, being man, makest thyself God." ³⁴ Jesus answered them, "Is it not written in your law, 'I said, Ye are gods?' ³⁵ If he said those are gods, unto whom the word of God came, (and the scripture cannot be broken,) ³⁶ say ye of him whom the Father sanctified, and sent into the world, 'Thou blasphemest ;' because I said, I am the Son of God? ³⁷ If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not. ³⁸ But if I do them, even if ye believe not me, believe the works : that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him." ³⁹ Therefore they sought again to take him : but he went forth out of their hand. ⁴⁰ And he went away again, beyond the Jordan to the place where John was ^{first} baptizing ; and there he abode. ⁴¹ And many came unto him ; and they said, "John did no miracle : but all things whatever John spake concerning this man were true." ⁴² And many believed in him there.

* Lit. and they cannot perish for ever, εις τον αιωνα.

SECT. VI.

*Discourses of Christ during his Sojourn in the Peræa. § 1. At the House of the Chief Pharisee. § 2. With the Multitude, on counting the Cost. § 3. Parables: the Lost Sheep—the Lost Money—the Prodigal Son. § 4. Parables: the Unjust Steward—the Rich Man and Lazarus.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIV.	JOHN
		§ 1. AND it came to pass, when he went into the house of one of the rulers of the sect of the Pharisees, on the sabbath, to eat bread, that they were watching him. ² And, behold, there was before him a certain man who had the dropsy. ³ And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, “Is it lawful to cure any one on the sabbath day?” ⁴ but they were silent. And he took hold of him , and healed him, and sent him away. ⁵ And he [answering] said unto them, “Of which of you shall an ass or an ox fall into a pit, and he will not straightway draw him out on the sabbath day?” ⁶ And they were not able to answer him again to these things. ⁷ And he spake a parable† to those that were invited, when he marked how they chose out the chief places at table; saying unto them, ⁸ “When thou art invited by any one to a marriage-feast, do not take the chief place at table; lest a more honourable man than thou should have been invited by him; ⁹ and he that invited thee and him come and say to thee, ‘Give this man place;’ and then thou begin with shame to take the lowest place. ¹⁰ But when thou art invited, go and take the lowest place; that when he that invited thee cometh, he may say unto thee, ‘Friend, go up higher!’ then shalt thou have glory in the presence of them that are at table with thee. ¹¹ For whosoever exalteth himself shall be humbled; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.” ¹² And he said also to him that had invited him,

* The Discourses in this Section are contained in three consecutive chapters of St. Luke's Gnomology. There is nothing which renders it certain that they were delivered at this period; but it is scarcely conceivable that St. Matthew could have been present at such parables as those in the xvth chapter, or even that they could have been delivered publicly in Galilee, without his recording them. Hence we may reasonably suppose them delivered in the Peræa during Matthew's absence from our Lord, while on his mission as an Apostle.—These chapters, (as also the three preceding,) are placed by Macknight, as here, in the interval between the Feast of Dedication, and the Resurrection of Lazarus.

† Or, admonition.—Our word parable is more limited in its application than the original παραβολη.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIV.	JOHN
		“ When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, nor thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours ; lest they also invite thee again, and a recompence be made thee. ¹³ But when thou makest a feast, invite the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind : ¹⁴ and thou shalt be blessed ; because they have no power to recompense thee ; for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the righteous.” ¹⁵ Now a certain one of them that were at table with him having heard these things, said unto him, “ Blessed is he who shall eat bread in the kingdom of God.” ¹⁶ But he said unto him, “ A certain man made a great supper, and invited many. ¹⁷ And he sent his servant at the hour of supper, to say to them that had been invited, ‘ Come ye, for all things are now ready.’ ¹⁸ And they all with one consent began to make excuse. The first said unto him, ‘ I have bought a field, and I must go forth and see it : I beseech thee, have me excused.’ ¹⁹ And another said, ‘ I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am going to prove them : I beseech thee, have me excused.’ ²⁰ And another said, ‘ I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.’ ²¹ And [that] servant came, and told his master these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, ‘ Go forth quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and maimed, and lame, and blind.’ ²² And the servant said, ‘ Sir, it is done as thou hast commanded, and still there is room.’ ²³ And the master said unto the servant, ‘ Go forth to the highways and hedges, and compel persons to come in, that my house may be filled. ²⁴ For I say unto you, No one of those men who were invited shall taste of my supper.’ ” § 2. ²⁵ Now great multitudes were going along with him : and he turned, and said unto them, ²⁶ “ If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and further, even his own life, he cannot be my disciple. ²⁷ And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple. ²⁸ For which of you, intending to build a tower, doth not first sit down, and count the cost, whether he have sufficient for the completion of it ? ²⁹ lest by any means, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIV.	JOHN
		able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him, ³⁰ saying, ‘This man began to build, and was not able to finish.’ ³¹ Or what king, going to make war against another king, doth not first sit down and consult whether he is able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand? ³² and if not, while he is yet far off, he sendeth an embassy, and asketh conditions of peace. ³³ In like manner, therefore, whosoever there is of you who biddeth not farewell to all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple. ³⁴ “Salt is good: but if the salt have lost its savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned? ³⁵ It is fitted neither for the land, nor for the dunghill: men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.” § 3. CH. xv. Now all the publicans and the sinners drew near unto him to hear him. ² And the Pharisees and the Scribes murmured, saying, “This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.” ³ But he spake this parable unto them, saying, ⁴ “What man of you, having a hundred sheep, and having lost one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the desert, and go after that which is lost, until he find it? ⁵ and when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing: ⁶ and when he cometh to his house, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying, ‘Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.’ ⁷ I say unto you, that, in like manner, joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine righteous persons, who have no need of repentance. ⁸ “Or what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently until she find it? ⁹ and when she hath found it, she calleth her female friends and neighbours together, saying, ‘Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost.’ ¹⁰ In like manner, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.” ¹¹ And he said, “A certain man had two sons: ¹² and the younger of them said to his father, ‘Father, give me the portion of property that falleth to me.’ And he divided unto them his substance. ¹³ And not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country,

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XV.	JOHN
		and there wasted his substance by living dissolutely. ¹⁴ And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land ; and he began to be in want. ¹⁵ And he went and joined himself to one of the citizens of that country ; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine. ¹⁶ And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks* which the swine did eat : and yet no one gave unto him. ¹⁷ But when he came to himself, he said, ‘ How many hired servants of my father have abundance of bread, and I perish here with hunger ! ¹⁸ I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight : ¹⁹ I am no more worthy to be called thy son : make me as one of thy hired servants.’ ²⁰ And he arose, and went to his father. But when he was yet far off, his father saw him, and was moved with compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him. ²¹ But the son said unto him, ‘ Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight ; [and] I am no more worthy to be called thy son.’ ²² But the father said to his servants, ‘ Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him ; and put a ring on his hand, and sandals on his feet : ²³ and bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it ; and let us eat, and be joyful : ²⁴ for this my son was dead, and is alive again ; [and] he was lost, and is found.’ And they began to be joyful. ²⁵ Now his elder son was in the field : and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard music and dancing. ²⁶ And he called to him one of the servants, and inquired what these things meant. ²⁷ And he said unto him, ‘ Thy brother is come ; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound.’† ²⁸ But he was angry, and would not go in : his father therefore came out, and intreated him. ²⁹ But he answering said to his father, ‘ Lo, these many years have I served thee, nor have I at any time transgressed thy commandment : and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might be joyful with my friends : ³⁰ but when this thy son hath come, who hath devoured thy substance with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.’ ³¹ And he said unto him, ‘ Son,‡ thou art always

* Rather, pods, τα κερατια. What are here called husks, were the fruit of a tree which produces long and slender pods, shaped like a sickle, containing a pulp of a sweetish taste, with several brown shining seeds like beans.

† Lit. being in health, υγιανοντα. ‡ Child, τεκνον.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XV.	JOHN
		with me, and all that I have is thine.* 32 But it was meet that we should be joyful and be glad : for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again ; and [was] lost, and is found.' " § 4. CH. XVI. Now he said also unto his disciples, " There was a certain rich man, who had a steward ; and he was accused unto him as wasting his property. 2 And he called him, and said unto him, ' Why do I hear this of thee ? give an account of thy stewardship ; for thou canst no longer be steward.' 3 But the steward said within himself, ' What shall I do ? for my master taketh away from me the stewardship : I cannot dig ; to beg I am ashamed. 4 I am resolved what I will do, that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.' 5 And having called everyone of his master's debtors unto him, he said unto the first, ' How much owest thou unto my master ? ' 6 And he said, ' A hundred measures † of oil.' And he said unto him, ' Take thy writing, ‡ and sit down quickly, and write fifty.' 7 Then he said to another, ' And how much owest thou ? ' And he said, ' A hundred measures § of wheat.' And he said unto him, ' Take thy writing, ‡ and write fourscore.' 8 And the master commended the unjust steward, because he had done prudently : for the sons of this world are more prudent in their generation than the sons of the light. 9 And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness ; ‡ that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations. 10 " He that is faithful in what is least, is faithful also in much : and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much. 11 If therefore ye have not been faithful in deceitful wealth, who will commit to your trust that which is true ? 12 And if ye have not been faithful in that over which ye have no power, who will give you your own ?

* Lit. all mine are thine. † Bath, βατος. This measure held twelve or thirteen gallons.

‡ Γραμμα might be well rendered here agreement : the writing appears to have been an agreement to pay so much rent. The steward had exacted more than his master appointed ; and he now directs the tenants to alter the agreement to the rent the master had fixed ; by which he appeared to render the tenants great kindness, while he did no further injustice to the master. (See Macknight.)

§ Corns, κορος. This measure held about fifteen bushels. || Or, life, αιων.

‡ Or, of unrighteous wealth : or, rather, of deceitful wealth.

 Lit. which is foreign to you, εν τω αλλοτριω. The contrast is between momentary and everlasting possessions.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XVI.	JOHN
		¹³ “No servant can serve two masters : for either he will hate the one, and love the other ; or he will cleave to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.” ¹⁴ And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things : and they scoffed at him. ¹⁵ And he said unto them, “Ye are they that justify yourselves before men ; but God knoweth your hearts : for that which is high in esteem among men is an abomination in the sight of God. ¹⁶ “The law and the prophets were until John : from that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man eagerly presseth into it. ¹⁷ But it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away, than for one tittle of the law to fall. ¹⁸ “Every one who putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery : and [every one] who marrieth her that is put away from her husband committeth adultery. ¹⁹ “Now there was a certain rich man, who was clothed in purple and fine linen, and feasted splendidly every day : ²⁰ and there was a certain poor man named Lazarus, who was laid at his gate full of sores, ²¹ and desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man’s table : moreover even the dogs came and licked his sores. ²² Now it came to pass, that the poor man died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham’s bosom. And the rich man also died, and was buried. ²³ And in hades * he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. ²⁴ And he cried aloud and said, ‘Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue ; for I am tortured in this flame.’ ²⁵ But Abraham said, ‘Son,† remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things : but now he is comforted, and thou art tortured. ²⁶ And beside all these things, between us and you a great gulf is fixed : so that they who would pass from hence to you are not able ; nor can they that would come from thence, pass over to us.’ ²⁷ But he said, ‘I besecch thee therefore, Father, that thou wouldest send him to my father’s house ; ²⁸ for I have five brethren ; that

* Εν τῇ αἰνῇ, the unseen state, the abode of the dead.

† Child, τέκνον.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XVI.	JOHN
		he may testify unto them, that they also may not come to this place of torment.' 29 Abraham saith unto him, 'They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.' 30 But he said, 'Nay, father Abraham: yet if one should go unto them from the dead, they will repent.' 31 And he said unto him, 'If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, although one should rise from the dead.' "

SECT. VII.

Jesus goes to Bethany and raises Lazarus from the Dead: the Sanhedrim formally resolve to put him to Death; and he withdraws to Ephraim, with some of his Disciples.—About this Time the Baptist was beheaded.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XI.
			Now a certain man was sick,* named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha.† 2 (Now it was the Mary that anointed the Lord with balsam, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.) 3 His sisters therefore sent unto him, saying, "Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick." 4 When Jesus heard that , he said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified by it." 5 (Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.) 6 When he heard therefore that he was sick, he still abode two days in the place where he was. 7 Then afterward he saith to the disciples, "Let us go into Judea again." 8 The disciples say unto him, "Rabbi, the Jews were just now seeking to stone thee; and goest thou thither again?" 9 Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any one walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world: 10 but if any one walk in the night, he stumbleth, because the light is not in him." 11 These things said he: and afterward he saith unto them, "Our friend Lazarus bath fallen asleep; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep."

* In this chapter, St. John employs ασθενης, strengthless, and ασθενew, to be strengthless, to denote the extremity of weakness—dangerous illness.

† The construction απο Βηθανιας, εκ της κωμης, is found also in ch. i. 44, απο Βεθσαιδα, εκ της πολεως.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XI.
			¹² His disciples therefore said, “ Lord, if he sleep, he will do well.”* ¹³ (Now Jesus spake of his death : but they thought that he spake of the rest of sleep.) ¹⁴ Jesus therefore said unto them plainly, “ Lazarus is dead : ¹⁵ and I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, that ye may believe ; nevertheless let us go unto him.” ¹⁶ Thomas therefore, who is called Didymus, saith unto his fellow-disciples, “ Let us also go, that we may die with him.” ¹⁷ When Jesus therefore came, he found that he had already lain four days in the tomb. ¹⁸ (Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem ; about fifteen furlongs off : ¹⁹ and many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary, that they might comfort them concerning their brother.) ²⁰ Martha therefore, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him : but Mary continued sitting in the house. ²¹ Then said Martha unto Jesus, “ Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died : ²² but, even now, I know that whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God will give it thee.” ²³ Jesus saith unto her, “ Thy brother shall rise again.” ²⁴ Martha saith unto him, “ I know that he will rise again in the resurrection at the last day.” ²⁵ Jesus said unto her, “ I am the resurrection, and the life : he that believeth in me, though he die, yet shall he live : ²⁶ and every one who liveth and believeth in me shall never die.† Believest thou this ?” ²⁷ She saith unto him, “ Yea, Lord : I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, he that cometh into the world.”‡ ²⁸ And when she had said these things, she went away, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, “ The Teacher is here, and calleth for thee. ²⁹ When she heard this, she ariseth quickly, and cometh unto him. ³⁰ (Now Jesus had not yet come into the town, but was in the place where Martha had met him.) ³¹ The Jews therefore who were with her in the house, and were comforting her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up quickly, and went out, followed her, saying, “ She is going to the tomb to weep there.” ³² Mary therefore, when she came where Jesus was, and saw him, fell at his feet, saying

* Lit. he shall be restored, σωθησεται. Newc. he shall recover.

† Lit. shall not die for ever, εις τον αιωνα.

‡ Or, Yes, Lord, I have believed ; (or, I fully believe, πεπιστευκα ;) because thou art the Christ, &c.
(Ο ερχομενος, ‘ He that cometh,’ was an expression for the expected Messiah.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XI.
			unto him, “ Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother would not have died.” ³³ Jesus therefore, when he saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping who came with her, groaned in spirit, and was troubled, ³⁴ and said, “ Where have ye laid him ? ” They say unto him, “ Lord, come and see.” ³⁵ Jesus wept. ³⁶ The Jews said therefore, “ Behold how he loved him ! ” ³⁷ But some of them said, “ Could not this man who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died ? ” ³⁸ Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone lay upon it. ³⁹ Jesus said, “ Take away the stone.” Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, “ Lord, by this time he stinketh : * for he hath been four days in the tomb.” ⁴⁰ Jesus saith unto her, “ Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God ? ” ⁴¹ They took away therefore the stone. But Jesus raised his eyes upwards, and said, “ Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me : ⁴² yet I knew that thou hearest me always : but because of the multitude who stand around I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.” ⁴³ And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, “ Lazarus, come forth.” ⁴⁴ And he that had been dead came forth, bound hand and foot with funeral bands : and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, “ Loose him, and let him go.” ⁴⁵ Many therefore of the Jews who came to Mary, and saw the things which Jesus did, believed in him. ⁴⁶ But some of them went away to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done. ⁴⁷ The chief priests therefore, and the Pharisees, gathered together a council, and said, “ What are we doing ? for this man doeth many miracles. ⁴⁸ If we suffer him to go on thus, all will believe in him : and the Romans will come and take away both our place and our nation.” ⁴⁹ But a certain one of them, named Caiphas, being the high priest of that year, said unto them, “ Ye know nothing : ⁵⁰ nor do ye consider that it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and not that the whole nation perish.” ⁵¹ Now this he spake not of

* This is literal—οὕτως, [Campbell has, ‘ the smell is offensive.’

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XI.
			himself : but being the high priest of that year, he prophesied : because Jesus was about to die for that nation ; ⁵² and not for that nation only, but that he might also gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad. ⁵³ From that day, therefore, they took counsel together to put him to death. ⁵⁴ Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews ; but went thence unto the country near the desert, to a city called Ephraim ; and there he continued with his disciples.*

SECT. VIII.†

On returning to Galilee, probably at Capernaum, our Lord heals the Man with the Withered Hand : The Pharisees there hold a Council against him ; and he withdraws to the Shore of the Lake.

MATT. XII.	MARK III.	LUKE VI.	JOHN
⁹ AND having departed thence, he went into their synagogue. ¹⁰ And, behold, there was a man who had a withered hand ; and they asked him, saying, “ Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath ! ” in order that they might accuse him. ¹¹ But he said unto them, “ What man shall there be among you, who shall have one sheep, and, if this fall into a pit on	AND he entered again † into the synagogue : and there was a man there who had his hand withered. ² And they watched him, whether he would heal him on the sabbath ; in order that they might accuse him. ³ And he saith unto the man who had his hand withered, “ Rise up into the midst. ” ⁴ And he saith unto them, “ Is it lawful on the sabbath	⁶ Now it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught. And there was a man there whose right hand was withered. ⁷ But the Scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath ; in order that they might find accusation against him. ⁸ But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man who had the

* At this place begins the last division of St. John’s Gospel, respecting the transactions of the Passover at which our Lord was crucified.

† The record in this Section is found, in each of the three Gospels, connected with the Walk through the Corn-fields : Part II. Sect. vii. The circumstance is considered, as it respects this Harmony, in the Preliminary Dissertations. St. Luke’s account decides two things ; first, that the facts recorded in the former Section, occurred on the Second-first Sabbath, (see p. 32 ;) and secondly, that the fact in the present Section, occurred on a different Sabbath. St. Mark’s Gospel in no way obliges us to refer the latter to the same day as the former ; but the Greek of St. Matthew’s Gospel naturally would do so, if there were no opposing consideration, such as is supplied by the statement of Luke. It is obvious that the accurate inquiries of this Evangelist had led him to the knowledge of the fact which the common record, from which all these Evangelists here derived information, did not communicate.

‡ Πάλιν, again, appears to have here no distinct reference to what precedes : it may be rendered moreover, or at another time. See Schleusner and Robinson’s Lexicon from Wahl.

MATT. XII.	MARK III.	LUKE VI.	JOHN
the sabbath, will not lay hold of it, and lift it out ? ¹² How much therefore is a man better than a sheep ? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath." ¹³ Then saith he to the man, "Stretch forth thine hand." And he stretched it forth ; and it was restored whole as the other. ¹⁴ But the Pharisees went out, and took counsel against him, how they might destroy him. ¹⁵ But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew from thence : and great multitudes followed him ; and he healed them all,	to do good or to do evil ? to save life, or to kill ?" But they were silent. ⁵ And having looked round on them with anger, being grieved at the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he stretched it forth : and his hand was restored. ⁶ And the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might destroy him. ⁷ And Jesus withdrew with his disciples to the sea : and a great number of persons from Galilee followed him, and from Judea, ⁸ and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond the Jordan ; and the people of Tyre and Sidon, a great number, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him. ⁹ And he spake to his disciples, that a little ship should attend upon him, because of the multitude, lest they should throng him. ¹⁰ For he healed many ; insomuch that they pressed upon him that they might touch him, as many as had grievous diseases. ¹¹ And the unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell down before him, and cried,	withered hand, "Rise up, and stand in the midst." And he arose and stood forth. ⁹ Jesus said therefore unto them, "I will ask you something : * Is it lawful on the sabbath to do good, or to do evil ? to save life, or to kill ?" ¹⁰ And looking round upon them all, he said unto the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he did so : and his hand was restored as the other. ¹¹ But they were filled with madness ; and conferred with one another what they should do to Jesus.

* Griesbach's pointing, which is adopted also by Scholz, requires to render, "I will ask you, Which is lawful on the sabbath ? to do good ;" &c.

MATT. XII.	MARK III.	LUKE	JOHN
16 and charged them that they should not make him known: 17 that it might be fulfilled * which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, 18 ‘Behold my servant, whom I have chosen; my beloved, in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall declare his law† to the Gentiles. 19 He shall not strive, nor cry; neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets. 20 A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth his law unto victory. 21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.‡	saying, “Thou art the Son of God.” 12 And he charged them that they should not make him known.		Is. 42; 1-4.

SECT. IX.

Discourses of Christ occasioned by the hostility of the Pharisees and the interference of his Relatives. § 1. After the Cure of the Blind and Dumb Demoniac. § 2. On the Demand of a Sign from Heaven. § 3. On the Application of his Mother and Brethren.

MATT. § 1.	MARK III. § 1.	LUKE § 1.	JOHN
	19 AND † they go into a house. § 20 And the multitude cometh together again, so that they were not able to eat

* Or, so that it was fulfilled.

† Κρισις, judgment, here denotes law. See Pearce, Newcome, &c.

‡ St. Mark, especially, very often commences his narrations with καί, and: it may then properly be rendered now, moreover, afterwards. See Robinson.

§ Or, they come home—i. e. to the house in Capernaum in which Jesus commonly resided.—See the Note at the end of the Section.

MATT. XII.	MARK III.	LUKE XI.	JOHN
²² THEN was brought unto him a demoniac, blind and dumb : and he healed him, so that the blind and dumb man both spake and saw. ²³ And all the multitudes were amazed, and said, "Is not this the son of David?" ²⁴ But the Pharisees hearing them said, "This man doth not cast out demons, except by Beelzebub, prince of the demons." ²⁵ But Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand: ²⁶ and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then shall his kingdom stand?" ²⁷ And if I by Beelzebub cast out demons, by whom do your sons cast them out? wherefore they shall be your judges. ²⁸ But if by the Spirit of God I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God hath come unto you. ²⁹ How indeed can anyone enter into a strong man's house, and plunder his goods, unless he first bind the strong man?	bread. ²¹ And when his relatives heard of it, they went forth to lay hold on him; for they said, "He is beside himself." ²² And the Scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, "He hath Beelzebub," and, "By the prince of the demons he casteth out demons." ²³ And he called them unto him, and said unto them in parables, "How can Satan cast out Satan? ²⁴ And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. ²⁵ And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand. ²⁶ And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end. ²⁷ No one can enter into a strong man's house, and plunder his goods, unless he first bind the strong man;	¹⁴ AND he was casting out a demon, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the demon had gone forth, that the dumb man spake: and the multitudes wondered. ¹⁵ But some of them said, "By Beelzebub, prince of the demons, he casteth out demons." ¹⁶ (But others, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.) ¹⁷ But he, knowing their purposes, said unto them, "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against a house falleth. ¹⁸ And if Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that by Beelzebub I cast out demons. ¹⁹ But if I by Beelzebub cast out demons, by whom do your sons cast them out? wherefore they shall be your judges. ²⁰ But if by the finger of God I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God hath come unto you. ²¹ When a strong man thoroughly armed guardeth his palace, his possessions are in peace: ²² but when a stronger

MATT. XII.	MARK III.	LUKE XI.	JOHN
and then he will plunder his house. 20 He that is not with me is against me ; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad. 21 “ Wherefore I say unto you, Every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven unto men : but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven unto men. 22 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it will be forgiven him : but whosoever shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven him, neither in this age, nor in that to come. 23 “ Either deem the tree good, if its fruit is good ; or deem the tree corrupt, if its fruit is corrupt : for the tree is known by the fruit. † 24 “ O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things ? for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. 25 The good man out of his good treasure bringeth forth good things : and the evil man out of his evil treasure bringeth forth evil things. 26 But I say unto you, Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account of in the	and then he will plunder his house. 20 Verily I say unto you, All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and the blasphemics wherewithsoever they blaspheme : 20 but whosoever blasphemeth against the Holy Spirit never hath forgiveness,* but is in danger of everlasting punishment.” 20 He said this, because they said, “ He hath an unclean spirit.”	than he cometh upon him and overcometh him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils. 23 He that is not with me is against me : and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.”

* Lk. hath not forgiveness for ever, εις τον αιωνα.—Everlasting punishment, αιωνιος κρισις.

† This rendering is justified by the Hellenistic import of και for γ.

MATT. XII.	MARK	LUKE XI.	JOHN
day of judgment.* ³⁷ For by thy words thou shalt be acquitted, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.” § 2. ³⁸ Then certain of the Scribes and Pharisees answered, saying, “Teacher, we desire to see a sign from thee.” ³⁹ But he answered and said unto them, “An evil and faithless generation seeketh after a sign; and no sign shall be given to it, except the sign of the prophet Jonah: ⁴⁰ for as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the fish; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights† in the heart of the earth. ⁴¹ (a) The men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment with this generation, and will condemn it: because they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and, behold, a greater than Jonah is here. ⁴² (b) The queen of the south will rise up in the judgment with this generation, and will condemn it: because she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.		§ 2. ²⁹ Now when the multitudes were crowding upon him, he began to say, “This is an evil generation: it seeketh a sign; and no sign shall be given it, except the sign of Jonah. ³⁰ For as Jonah was a sign unto the Ninevites, so will the Son of man also be to this generation. ³¹ (b) The queen of the south will rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and will condemn them: because she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here. ³² (a) The men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment with this generation, and will condemn it: because they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and, behold, a greater than Jonah is here.

* Lit. give an account of it: παν ῥημα ἀργον——περι αὐτου. Ἀργον, idle, might be rendered injurious.

† That this idiomatic expression is equivalent to three days, and that the declaration was fulfilled though our Lord rose on the third day, see 1 Sam. xxx. 12, compared with ver. 13; 2 Chron. x. 5, compared with ver. 12; and Matt. xxvii. 63, compared with ver. 64.

MATT. XII.	MARK	LUKE XI.	JOHN
43 " But when the unclean spirit hath gone forth from the man, it* goeth through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. 44 Then it saith, ' I will return into my house from whence I came forth : ' and when it is come, it findeth it empty, swept, and set in order. 45 Then it goeth, and taketh with itself seven other spirits more wicked than itself, and they enter in and dwell there : and the last state of that man becometh		33 " Now no one when he hath lighted a lamp, putteth it into a secret place, nor under the measure, but on the stand, that they who enter in may see its brightness. 34 The lamp of the body is the eye: when therefore thine eye is single, thy whole body also is enlightened; but when it is evil, thy body also is darkened. 35 Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness. 36 If therefore thy body be wholly enlightened, having no part darkened, it shall be wholly enlightened, as when the lamp enlighteneth thee with its lustre.† 24 " When the unclean spirit hath gone forth from the man, it goeth through dry places, seeking rest; and finding none, it saith, " I will return unto my house whence I came forth." 25 And when it cometh, it findeth it swept and set in order. 26 Then it goeth, and taketh seven other spirits more wicked than itself; and they enter in, and dwell there: and the last state of that man becometh worse than the first.

* Luke xi. 14. ' and it was dumb,' αυτο, establishes the propriety of this rendering.

† In this paragraph three words occur which are all rendered light in the common translation: ver. 33, φειγγος, brightness; ver. 34, λυχνος, light, i. e. candle or lamp; ver. 35, φως, light: and besides these, φωτεινος, enlightened, is rendered full of light, and φωτιζω, enlighten, is rendered give light. For the sake of ver. 34, λυχνος, is best rendered lamp in ver. 33. The same word occurs in Matt. vi. 22; see p. 60.

MATT. XII.	MARK III.	LUKE XI.	JOHN
than the first. Even so shall it be unto this wicked generation.
§ 3. ⁴⁶ While he was yet speaking to the multitudes, behold, his mother and his brethren stood without, seeking to speak with him.* ⁴⁷ And some one said unto him, "Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speak with thee." ⁴⁸ But he answered and said unto him that told him, "Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?" ⁴⁹ And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, "Behold my mother and my brethren!" ⁵⁰ For whosoever shall do the will of my Father who is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother."	§ 3. ³¹ His mother and his brethren therefore come, and, standing without, they sent unto him, calling him.* ³² And a multitude were sitting around him; and they said unto him, "Behold, thy mother and thy brethren without are seeking thee." ³³ And he answered them, saying, "Who is my mother, or my brethren?" ³⁴ And he looked round about on them that were sitting around him, and saith, "Behold my mother and my brethren!" ³⁵ For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother."	²⁷ And it came to pass, while he was saying these things, that a certain woman lifted up her voice from the multitude, and said unto him, "Blessed the womb that bare thee, and the breasts which thou hast sucked!" ²⁸ But he said, "Yea, but rather, Blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it." § 3. CH. VIII. ¹⁹ Now his mother and brethren were coming to him; and they could not get at him on account of the multitude.* ²⁰ And it was told him by some who said, "Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to see thee." ²¹ But he answered and said unto them, "My mother and my brethren are these who hear the word of God, and do it."

* It is obvious that they came from some other part of the city. If οἱ παρ' αὐτοῦ, his relatives or friends, in Mark iii. 21 (p. 110), means his Mother and Brethren, then 'went forth' does not import—from where he was, but from where they were. The course of events is this:—Jesus, after the labours of the morning, goes to his usual residence: the people collect together there, bringing a blind and dumb demoniac, whom Jesus heals: his relatives hearing that the people were thronging to him, and fearing, probably, the political effects of this popular excitement, go to restrain him; they call out, 'He is beside himself:' the Scribes from Jerusalem catch the words, and use them for their malignant purposes: after a time, Jesus is informed that his Mother and Brethren were outside the crowd, seeking to speak with him.—See the valuable notes of Kuinoel on Mark.

SECT. X.

Christ at the House of a Pharisee.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XI.	JOHN
		³⁷ Now as he spake, a certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him : and he entered into his house, and placed himself at table. ³⁸ But when the Pharisee saw it, he wondered because he had not first washed before dinner. ³⁹ And the Lord said unto him, “ Now ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and of the dish ; but what is within yourselves, is full of rapine and wickedness. ⁴⁰ Foolish men ! did not he that made that which is without, make that which is within also ? ⁴¹ But rather give for alms those things which belong to you ;* and, behold, all things are clean unto you. ⁴² “ But woe for you, Pharisees ! for ye pay tithe of mint and rue and every herb, and pass by justice and the love of God : these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the others undone. ⁴³ Woe for you, Pharisees ! for ye love the chief seat in the synagogues, and salutations in the market-places. ⁴⁴ Woe for you ! for ye are as tombs which appear not ; and the men that walk over them know it not.” ⁴⁵ But one of the Lawyers† answered and said unto him, “ Teacher, in saying these things thou reproachest us also.” ⁴⁶ And he said, “ Woe for you also, ye Lawyers ! because ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers. ⁴⁷ Woe for you ! because ye build the tombs of the prophets ; but your fathers killed them. ⁴⁸ Truly ye bear testimony and give approbation to the deeds of your fathers : because they indeed killed them, and ye build [their tombs.]”

* Or, give alms according to your ability, τα ενοντα, supplying κατα.

† Kuinoel thinks that Γραμματευς, Scribe, Νομικος, Lawyer, and Νομοδιδασκαλος, Doctor (or Teacher) of the Law, all mean the same.—In the Gospels, Luke alone employs the last, and once only. He uses Νομικος seven times ; and besides these cases it occurs only in Matt. xxii. 35. Γραμματευς is the common appellation ; and indeed it appears to be the most generic, denoting all who had the charge of transcribing and interpreting the Law, and deciding on its application. Νομικος, perhaps, denoted those whose peculiar office was interpreting the Law, and deciding on legal difficulties ; and the Νομοδιδασκαλοι appear to have been the Rabbis of the greatest eminence, who presided in the schools of learning ; such as Gamaliel, to whom Luke applies the appellation in Acts v. 34. He and other of the Scribes were members of the Sanhedrim.—For want of a better word, Lawyer has been retained as the rendering of Νομικος.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XI.	JOHN
		⁴⁹ (Wherefore also the wisdom of God hath said,* “ I will send to them prophets and apostles, and of them they will kill some and persecute others : ⁵⁰ that the blood of all the prophets, which hath been shed from the foundation of the world, may be required† from this generation ; ⁵¹ from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zachariah who perished between the altar and the temple : yea I say unto you, It shall be required from this generation.”) ⁵² “ Woe for you, Lawyers ! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge : ye have not yourselves entered in, and them that were entering in ye have hindered.” ⁵³ And as he said these things unto them, the Scribes and the Pharisees began to urge him ve- hemently, and to incite him to speak without forethought of many things ; ⁵⁴ [laying wait for him,] and [seeking] to catch something from his mouth, [that they might accuse him.] ‡

SECT. XI. §

The Day of Parables.—Parable of the Sower : Explanation of it : Parable of the Tares : Springing and Growth of Corn : Mustard-seed : Leaven : Explanation of the Parable of the Tares : Hidden Treasure : Merchant seeking Pearls : Fish taken in a Net.

MATT. XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
Now on that day Je- sus went forth from the house, and sat by the sea side. ² And great	AND he began again to teach by the sea side : and a great multitude was gathered together unto	⁴ AND when a great multitude were gathered together, and persons from every city came to

* The declarations in these verses appear to have been added by the recorder, as what he knew to have been uttered by Christ in a similar connexion.

† Or, so that the blood——will be required.

‡ Even if the words marked as doubtful were omitted, the spirit and purposes of the enemies of Christ would be distinctly displayed. All the circumstances recorded well suit this period of his ministry, when the Sanhedrim (Sect. VII.) had already resolved to put him to death ; and when Scribes had come from Jerusalem (Sect. IX.) obviously to watch him, and to thwart his influence.—The Pharisee at whose house he now was, appears to have invited him in order to promote such purposes ; and the severity of our Lord’s language accords with the occasion.

§ The xiiiith chapter of Luke, and especially the last fourteen verses, best suit our Lord’s final journey to Jerusalem : the xiiith may be connected with it, and referred to Part VII., which, on the whole, appears preferable ; or it may be introduced before the present Section, as connected with the xith chapter, contained in the foregoing Sections. In arranging the various Discourses, &c. in Luke’s Gnomology, we are almost exclusively to be guided by their respective characteristics and circumstances : but it is well that we should not needlessly separate those portions which occur together in his Gospel.

MATT XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into the ship, and sat : and the whole multitude stood on the shore. ³ And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, “ Behold, the sower went forth to sow ; ⁴ and as he was sowing, some seeds fell by the way side, and the birds came and devoured them. ⁵ And others fell upon rocky places, where they had not much earth : and forthwith they sprang up, because they had no depth of earth : ⁶ but when the sun arose, they were scorched ; and because they had no root, they withered away. ⁷ And others fell upon thorns ; and the thorns came up, and choked them. ⁸ But others fell upon good ground, and yielded fruit, one a hundred, another sixty, another thirty. ⁹ He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.” ¹⁰ And the disciples came near, and said unto him, “ Why speakest thou unto them in parables ? ” ¹¹ But he answered and said unto them, “ To you it has been given to know the mysteries of the kingdom	him,so that he entered into the ship,and sat on the sea ; and the whole multitude was by the sca on the land. ² And he taught them many things by parables, and said unto them in his teaching, ³ “ Hearken ! behold, the sower went forth to sow : ⁴ and it came to pass, as he was sowing, that some seed fell by the way side, and the birds of heaven came and devoured it. ⁵ And other seed fell on rocky ground, where it had not much earth ; and forthwith it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth : ⁶ but when the sun arose, it was scorched ; and because it had no root, it withered away. ⁷ And other seed fell into thorns, and the thorns came up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit. ⁸ And other fell on good ground, and yielded fruit that came up and increased ; and it brought forth, one thirty, and one sixty, and one a hundred.” ⁹ And he said unto them, “ He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.” ¹⁰ Now when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked him concerning the parable. ¹¹ And he said unto them, “ To you it has been given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God : but unto	him, he spake by a parable : ⁵ “ The sower went forth to sow his seed : and as he was sowing, some seed fell by the way side ; and it was trodden down, and the birds of heaven devoured it. ⁶ And other seed fell upon the rock ; and as soon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it had not moisture. ⁷ And other fell among thorns ; and the thorns sprang up with it, and choked it. ⁸ And other fell on good ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit a hundredfold.” And when he had said these things, he cried, “ He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.” ⁹ And his disciples asked him,saying,“What may this parable be ? ” ¹⁰ And he said, “ To you it has been given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God : but to others in parables ;

MATT. XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
to hear what ye hear, and have not heard. ¹⁹ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower. ¹⁹ When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth not, the wicked one cometh, and seizeth that which was sown in his heart: this is he that received seed by the way side. ²⁰ And he that received seed on the rocky places, is he who though he heareth the word, and straightway receiveth it with joy; ²¹ yet hath not root in himself, but is of short duration: and when tribulation or persecution ariseth on account of the word, he is straightway caused to fall. ²² And he that received seed among the thorns, is he that heareth the word; and yet the care of this world,* and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful. ²³ But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; who also heareth fruit, and bringeth forth, one a hundred, another sixty, another thirty."	¹³ And he saith unto them, "Know ye not this parable? how then will ye know all parables? ¹⁴ The sower soweth the word. ¹⁵ And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown; and when they have heard, Satan straightway cometh, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts. ¹⁶ And these in like manner are they that are sown on the rocky places; who, when they have heard the word, straightway receive it with joy; ¹⁷ yet have not root in themselves, but are of short duration: then, when tribulation or persecution ariseth on account of the word, they are straightway caused to fall. ¹⁸ And these are they that are sown among the thorns: these are they that hear the word, ¹⁹ and the cares of this world,* and the deceitfulness of riches, and the desires concerning other things, entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful. ²⁰ And these are they that are sown on good ground; those who hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, one thirty, and one sixty, and one a hundred."	¹¹ "Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God. ¹² Those by the way side are they that hear; then cometh the devil, and taketh away the word from their heart, lest they should believe and be saved. ¹³ And they on the rock are they, who, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have not root; who, for a short time believe, and in time of temptation fall away. ¹⁴ And that which fell among the thorns, these are they, who, when they have heard, go away, and are choked by the cares and riches and pleasures of life, and bring not fruit to perfection. ¹⁵ But that on the good ground, these are they, who, in an honest and good heart, having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patient constancy."

* Or, life, αἰών.

MATT. XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE VIII.	JOHN
	21 And he said unto them, "Doth a lamp come to be put under the measure, or under the bed? and not to be put on a stand? 22 For there is not any thing hid which will not be manifested; neither was any thing secret, but that it should come abroad. 23 If any one have ears to hear, let him hear." 24 And he said unto them, "Take heed what ye hear. With what measure ye measure, it shall be measured to you. 25 For whosoever hath, to him shall be given: and he that hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken from him."	16 "No one, when he hath lighted a lamp, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed; but putteth it on a stand, that they who enter in may see the light. 17 For there is not any thing hid, that shall not be made manifest; nor secret, that shall not be known and come abroad. 18 Take heed therefore how ye hear: for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, even that which he seemeth to have shall be taken from him."
24 Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is like a man sowing good seed in his field. 25 But while men were sleeping, his enemy came and sowed tares* among the wheat, and went away. 26 Now when the blade sprang up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also. 27 So† the servants of the housholder came and said unto him, 'Sir,†

* Ζιζανία, rendered tares, denotes a plant infesting the corn-fields of Palestine, which resembles wheat, both in its stalk and in its leaf, but is of no value. Tares must here be considered as denoting this spurious wheat, which, however, is entirely different from the tares of our country: these are a species of vetch.

† Δε. It is a connective of very general application, like καί in Mark: see p. 109.

‡ Κυριε. Lord, or Master.

MATT. XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE	JOHN
didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? whence then hath it tares?’ 28 And he said unto them, ‘An enemy hath done this.’ And the servants said unto him, ‘Wilt thou therefore that we go and gather them up!’ 29 But he said, ‘Nay; lest, while ye gather up the tares, ye root up the wheat together with them. 30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather together first the tares and bind them in bundles, to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.’ ”	26 And he said, “ So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground; 27 and sleep and arise, night and day; and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how. 28 For the earth bringeth forth fruit of its own accord, first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear. 29 But when the fruit offers itself, straightway he putteth in the sickle, because the harvest is come.” 30 And he said, “ Whereunto may we liken the kingdom of God? or with what object of comparison may we compare it? 31 It is as a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown
31 Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, “ The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field. 32 This indeed is less than all other

MATT. XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE	JOHN
seeds : but when it is grown, it is greater than other herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of heaven come and lodge in its branches.” ³³ Another parable spake he unto them : “The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.” ³⁴ All these things spake Jesus unto the multitudes in parables : and without a parable spake he not then * unto them : ³⁵ that it might be fulfilled † which was spoken by the prophet, saying, ‘ I will open my mouth in parables ; I will utter things hidden from the foundation of the world.’ ³⁶ Then having sent the multitudes away, Jesus went into the house : and his disciples came unto him, saying, “ Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.” ³⁷ And he answered and said unto them, “ He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man : ³⁸ and the field is the world ;	in the earth, is less than all other seeds that are on the earth : ³² but when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all other herbs, and shooteth out great branches ; so that the birds of heaven are able to lodge under the shadow of it.” ³³ And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it : ³⁴ but without a parable spake he not then unto them : and in private he explained all things to his disciples.		Ps. 78 ; 2, 3.

* The first verb rendered spake is in the aorist, ελαλησε, the second in the imperfect, ελαλει. In Mark, both are in the imperfect.

† Or, so that it was fulfilled.

MATT. XIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
and the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom: but the tares are the sons of the wicked one; ³⁹ and the enemy that sowed them is the devil: moreover the harvest is the end of the world,* and the reapers are the angels. ⁴⁰ As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be at the end of this world.* ⁴¹ The Son of man will send forth his angels, and they will gather out of his kingdom all causes of sin, and them that do iniquity; ⁴² and will cast them into the furnace of fire: there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth. ⁴³ Then will the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear. ⁴⁴ "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; which a man having found hideth, and from joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field. ⁴⁵ "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant, seeking goodly pearls: ⁴⁶ who, having found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

* Or, age, αιων, denoting the present period of existence. And so in ver. 49.

MATT. XIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
⁴⁷ “Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net cast into the sea, and gathering fish of every kind : ⁴⁸ which, when it was filled, they drew to the shore, and having sat down, gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away. ⁴⁹ So will it be at the end of the world : the angels will come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just, ⁵⁰ and will cast them into the furnace of fire: there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.” ⁵¹ [Jesus saith unto them,] “Do ye understand all these things?” They say unto him, “Yea, Lord.” ⁵² And he said unto them, “Wherefore every Scribe made a disciple to the kingdom of heaven, is like unto a housholder, who bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.”

SECT. XII.

Our Lord again visits Nazareth.

MATT. XIII.	MARK VI.	LUKE	JOHN
⁵³ AND it came to pass, that when Jesus had finished these parables, he departed thence. ⁵⁴ And when he came to his own country, he taught them in their synagogue, so that they were astonished, and said, “Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works?	AND he went forth from thence, and came into his own country; and his disciples follow him. ² And when the sabbath was come, he began to teach in the synagogue: and many hearing him were astonished, saying, “Whence hath this man these things? and what

MATT. XIII.	MARK IV.	LUKE	JOHN
Is not this the carpenter's son? is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren, James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas? ⁵⁶ and his sisters, are not they all with us? Whence therefore hath this man all these things?" ⁵⁷ And they were offended in him.* But Jesus said unto them, "A prophet is not without honour, except in his own country, and in his own house." ⁵⁸ And he did not many mighty works there, because of their unbelief.	wisdom is this which is given unto him, and how are such mighty works wrought by his hands? ³ Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James, and Joses, and of Judas, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us?" And they were offended in him.* ⁴ But Jesus said unto them, "A prophet is not without honour, except in his own country, and among his own kindred, and in his own house." ⁵ And he was not able to do there any mighty work, except that he laid his hands upon a few sick folk, and healed them. ⁶ And he wondered, because of their unbelief.

* Or, less closely in form, he was a stumbling-block unto them, εσκανδαλιζοντο εν αυτω.

The records of the following Part are peculiarly full in the first two Gospels—the one written by an Apostle, the other by a companion of Apostles, and especially of Peter; and the succession of events in each is closely correspondent. This might be expected on considering that when the miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought, the Passover was approaching (John vi. 4); and that, as also appears from expressions in our Lord's subsequent Discourse in Capernaum, the time of his death was not far distant. The nature of his transactions, too, the comparative ease of retracing them, the danger in which he obviously was, and his continual change of place in order to avoid it—all must have contributed to fix the course of events in the minds of those who accompanied him at this period.

St. Luke's record of the following Part is contained in the ixth chapter of his Gospel. It is very brief; but the order of events is the same as that in the first two Gospels; and he fixes, by his expressions in ver. 31 and 51, the near approach of our Lord's death. After the departure from Galilee, Luke introduces his Gnomology; and then returns to the last journey in ch. xvii. 11.

On the time when the miracle of the Five Thousand was wrought, see the Preliminary Dissertations.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART VI.

FROM THE RETURN OF THE TWELVE—FOLLOWING THE DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST, AND SUCCEEDED BY THE MIRACLE OF THE FIVE THOUSAND—TO OUR LORD'S DEPARTURE FROM GALILEE.

SECT. I.

Herod hears of Jesus, after the Death of John the Baptist: The remainder of the Apostles rejoin our Lord.

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
At that time Herod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus; ² and he said unto his servants,* "This is John the Baptist: he is risen† from the dead; and therefore mighty works are wrought by him."‡	¹⁴ AND king Herod heard of him; (for his name was spread abroad :) and he said, "John the Baptist is risen† from the dead, and therefore mighty works are wrought by him."‡ ¹⁵ Some said, "He is Elijah;" and others said, "He is a prophet," that is,§ one of the ancient prophets: ¹⁶ but when Herod heard, he said, "It is [John] whom I beheaded: he is risen† from the dead." ¹⁷ For Herod himself had sent forth and laid hold on John, and bound	⁷ Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all the things done by him: and he was perplexed, because it was said by some, that John had been raised from the dead; ⁸ but by others, that Elijah had appeared; and by others, that a prophet, one of the ancient prophets, had arisen again. ⁹ And Herod said, "John have I beheaded: but who is this, of whom I hear such things?" And he sought to see him. Ch. iii. 19, 20. See p. 17.

* Or, attendants, or, courtiers, τοῖς παισὶν αὐτοῦ. See Kuinoel. † Or, hath been raised, ἐγερθῆναι.

‡ Or, mighty powers operate by him, αἱ δυνάμεις ἐνεργοῦσιν ἐν αὐτῷ.

§ Ὡς. See Kuinoel. Griesbach rejects η, or.

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE	JOHN
prison for the sake of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife. ⁴ For John often said * unto him, "It is not lawful for thee to have her." ⁵ And when he himself would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they accounted him as a prophet. ⁶ But when Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced in the midst of his court, and pleased Herod: ⁷ whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she should ask.	him in prison for the sake of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife: because he had married her. ¹⁸ For John often said * unto Herod, "It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife." ¹⁹ Therefore Herodias was enraged against him, and would have put him to death; but could not: ²⁰ for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and preserved him; and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly. ²¹ And a convenient day having come, when Herod on his birthday made a supper for his nobles, and commanders, and the chief men of Galilee; ²² and the daughter of that Herodias having come in, and danced, and pleased Herod and them that were at table with him, the king said unto the damsel, "Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee." ²³ And he sware unto her, "Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom." ²⁴ And she went forth,

* Or, kept saying, ελεγε. Here, and in various other instances, the force of the Greek imperfect is important.

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
8 And she, being before instructed by her mother, said, "Give me here on a dish the head of John the Baptist. 9 And the king was sorry; but for the sake of his oath, and of those who were at table with him, he commanded it to be given her. 10 And he sent, and beheaded John in the prison. 11 And his head was brought on a dish, and given to the damsel: and she carried it to her mother. 12 And his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.	and said unto her mother, "What shall I ask?" And she said, "The head of John the Baptist." 25 And she came in straightway with haste to the king, and asked, saying, "I desire that thou forthwith give me on a dish the head of John the Baptist." 26 And the king became very sorrowful; yet for the sake of his oath, and of those who were at table with him, he did not choose to reject her. 27 And straightway the king sent one of his guards,* and commanded his head to be brought: and he went and beheaded him in the prison, 28 and brought his head on a dish, and gave it to the damsel: and the damsel gave it to her mother. 29 And when his disciples heard of it, they came and took up his corpse, and laid it in a tomb. 30 And the apostles gather themselves together unto Jesus; and they told him all things, both whatever they had done, and whatever they had taught.
		10 And the apostles, when they returned, told him whatever things they had done.

SECT. II.

The Miracle of the Five Thousand, near Bethsaida in Philip's Dominions.†

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN VI.
13 WHEN Jesus heard these things, he	31 AND he said unto them (i. e. the apostles)	10 AND he took them (i. e. the apostles) and	AFTER these things Jesus went away be-

* Or, a spearman, σπεκουλατωρα.

† This was the more ancient name: Philip called it Julias. It appears to have been commonly called Chorazin. Some confound it with Bethsaida of Galilee, which lay on the west shore of the Lake.

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN VI.
departed thence by ship into a desert place privately : and when the multitudes heard thereof, they followed him on foot from the cities. ¹⁴ And when [Jesus] came out of the ship, he saw a great multitude ; and he was moved with compassion toward them, and healed their sick. ¹⁵ But when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, " This is a desert place, and the day has already passed : send the multitudes away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals." ¹⁶ But Jesus said unto them, " They need not go away ; give ye them to eat." ¹⁷ And they say unto him, " We have nothing here but five loaves, and two fishes." ¹⁸ But he said, " Bring them hither to me." ¹⁹ And he directed the multitudes to place them-	" Come ye yourselves privately into a desert place, and rest a little while : " for there were many coming and going, and they had not even leisure to eat. ³² And they went away into a desert place by ship privately. ³³ And the people saw them departing ; and many knew it, and ran together thither on foot, from all the cities. ³⁴ And when he came out of the ship, he saw a great multitude ; and he was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd : and he began to teach them many things. ³⁵ And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said, " This is a desert place, and the day is now far spent ; ³⁶ send them away, that they may go into the fields and villages round about, and buy themselves bread : for they have nothing to eat." ³⁷ He answered and said unto them, " Give ye them to eat." And they say unto him, " Should we go and buy bread for two hundred denarii, and give them to eat ? " ³⁸ But he saith unto them,	withdrew privately into a desert place of [a city called] Bethsaida. ¹¹ And when the multitudes knew it, they followed him : and he received them, and spake unto them concerning the kingdom of God ; and them that had need of cure, he healed. ¹² Now the day began to decline ; and the twelve came, and said unto him, " Send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages round about, and the fields, and lodge, and get provisions : for we are here in a desert place." ¹³ But he said unto them, " Give ye them to eat." And they said, " We have no more than five loaves and two fishes ; unless we should go and buy food for all this people." ¹⁴ (For they were about five thousand men.) But he said to his disciples,	yond the sea of Galilee, that is of Tiberias. ² And a great multitude followed him, because they saw the miracles which he did on them that were sick. ³ And Jesus went up the mountain, and there sat with his disciples. ⁴ (Now the passover, the feast of the Jews, was nigh.) ⁵ When Jesus therefore lifted up his eyes, and saw that a great multitude was coming unto him, he saith unto Philip, " Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat ? " ⁶ But this he said to try him : for he himself knew what he was about to do. ⁷ Philip answered him, " Bread worth two hundred denarii is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little." ⁸ One of his disciples, (Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter,) saith unto him, ⁹ " There is a lad here, who hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes : but what are they among so many ? " ¹⁰ And Jesus said, " Make the men place themselves on the ground." (Now there was much grass in the place.) The men therefore placed them-

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE IX.	JOHN VI.
selves on the grass, and took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to the disciples; and the disciples gave to the multitudes. ²⁰ And all ate, and were filled: and they took up what remained of fragments, twelve baskets full. ²¹ Now they that ate were about five thousand men, beside women and children.	“How many loaves have ye? go [and] see.” And when they knew, they say, “Five, and two fishes.” ³⁹ And he commanded them to make all place themselves, by companies, upon the green grass. ⁴⁰ And they placed themselves on the ground in ranks, by hundreds, and by fifties. ⁴¹ And having taken the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, and blessed, and brake the loaves, and gave to his disciples, to set before them; and the two fishes he divided among all. ⁴² And they all ate, and were filled. ⁴³ And they took up twelve baskets full of fragments of bread , and of the fishes. ⁴⁴ And they that ate of the loaves were five thousand men.	“Make them place themselves on the ground , by fifties, in a company.” ¹⁵ And they did so, and made all place themselves on the ground . ¹⁶ And he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed them, and brake, and gave to the disciples to set before the multitude. ¹⁷ And they ate, and were all filled: and there was taken up what remained to them, twelve baskets of fragments.	selves on the ground , in number about five thousand. ¹¹ And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed [to the disciples, and the disciples] to them that had placed themselves on the ground ; and likewise of the fishes as much as they chose. ¹² When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, “Gather together the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost. ¹³ They therefore gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with fragments from the five barley loaves, which remained unto them that had eaten.

SECT. III.

During the following Night, Jesus walks on the Sea; and the next Day works Miracles in the Land of Gennesareth.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VI.
			¹⁴ THE men therefore having seen the miracle which Jesus did, said, “This is of a truth the prophet, that was coming into the world.” ¹⁵ Jesus therefore knowing that

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE	JOHN VI.
22 AND straightway he constrained the disciples to enter into the ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent away the multitudes. 23 And having sent away the multitudes, he went up to the mountain* apart to pray : and when evening was come, he was there alone. 24 But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed about by the waves : for the wind was contrary. 25 But in the fourth watch of the night he departed unto them, walking on the sea. 26 And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, " It is a spirit : " and they cried out through fear. 27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, " Take courage, it is I ; † be not afraid. "	45 AND straightway he constrained his disciples to enter into the ship, and to go before unto the other side to Bethsaida, ‡ while he sent away the multitude. 46 And when he had dismissed them, he departed to the mountain* to pray. 47 And when evening was come, the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he was alone on the land : 48 and he saw them tossed about in rowing ; for the wind was contrary unto them. And about the fourth watch of the night he cometh unto them, walking upon the sea, and would have passed by them. 49 But when they saw him walking upon the sea, they supposed it was a spirit, and cried aloud : 50 for they all saw him, and were troubled. And immediately he talked with them, and saith unto them, " Take courage, it is I ; † be not afraid. "		they were about to come and take him by force, that they might make him a king, withdrew [again] to the mountain* himself alone. § 16 Now when evening came, his disciples went down unto the sea, 17 and having entered into the ship, they were going to the other side of the sea to Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus had not come to them. 18 And a great wind blowing, the sea was much agitated. 19 When they had therefore rowed about twenty-five or thirty furlongs, they perceive Jesus walking on the sea, and coming nigh unto the ship : and they were afraid. 20 But he saith unto them, " It is I ; † be not afraid. "

• To ορος, if the article have specific force, may denote the mountain adjoining. So also in John vi. 3.

† Lit. I am he, εγω ειμι.

‡ This was Bethsaida of Galilee, between which and Capernaum lay the Land of Gennesaret.

§ The succession of events appears to have been this. The people being convinced by the miracle that Jesus was the expected Messiah, purposed, under the influence of their worldly expectations, to make him a king. Jesus, knowing their intention, and probably expecting that some of the Apostles would support their views, sent these all away to cross over the Lake, while he dismissed the multitudes; and then he went up the adjoining mountain, which looked over the sea.—The 14th and 15th verses of John, may be well regarded as a parenthesis.

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE	JOHN VI.
²⁸ But Peter answered him and said, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee upon the waves." ²⁹ And he said, "Come." And when Peter had gone down from the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus. ³⁰ But seeing the wind boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried out, saying, "Lord, save me." ³¹ And straightway Jesus stretched forth his hand, and laid hold on him, and saith unto him, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" ³² And when they had come into the ship, the wind ceased. ³³ And they that were in the ship came and worshiped him,* saying, "Truly thou art the Son of God." ³⁴ And when they had passed over, they came to the land of Gennesaret. ³⁵ And the men of that place knew him, and sent out into all that region round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased;	⁵¹ And he went up unto them into the ship; and the wind ceased: and they were greatly amazed in themselves beyond measure,[and wondered]. ⁵² For they understood not the miracle of the loaves: for their heart was hardened. ⁵³ And when they had passed over, they came to the land of Gennesaret, and drew to the shore. ⁵⁴ And when they came out of the ship, the people straightway knew him, ⁵⁵ and ran through all that region round about, and began to carry about on couches those that were sick, where they heard that he was. ⁵⁶ And wheresoever he entered into villages, or		²¹ They therefore gladly received him into the ship: and straightway the ship came to the land to which they were going.

* Or, did him reverential homage.

MATT. XIV.	MARK VI.	LUKE	JOHN
³⁰ and besought him that they might only touch the border of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole.	cities, or fields, they laid the sick in the public places, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched him were made whole.

SECT. IV.

Discourse in the Synagogue at Capernaum, the Day after the Miracle of the Five Thousand.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VI.
			²² THE day following, the multitude that stood on the other side of the sea having seen that there was no other vessel there, except one, and that Jesus entered not with his disciples into the ship, but that his disciples went away alone;—²³ however there came other vessels from Tiberias nigh unto the place where they ate the bread, after the Lord had given thanks:—²⁴ when the multitude therefore saw that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, they themselves went into the ships, and came to Capernaum, seeking for Jesus. ²⁵ And having found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, “Rabbi, when camest thou hither?” ²⁶ Jesus answered them and said, “Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw miracles, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were filled. ²⁷ Work* not for the meat which perisheth, but for the meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man will give unto you: for him hath the Father sealed, even God.” ²⁸ They said therefore unto him, “What shall we do, that we may work the works of God?” ²⁹ Jesus answered and said unto them, “This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.” ³⁰ Some said therefore unto him, “What miracle therefore doest thou that we may see, and believe thee? what dost thou work? ³¹ Our fathers ate manna in the desert; as it is written, ‘He gave them bread from heaven to eat.’” ³² Jesus [therefore] said unto them, “Verily, verily, I say unto you,
		Ps. 78; 24.

* Thus rendered for correspondence with the necessary rendering of ver. 28.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VI.
			Moses gave you not the bread from heaven ; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven. ³³ For the bread of God is that which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.” ³⁴ Others therefore said unto him, “ Lord, always give us this bread.” ³⁵ [And] Jesus said unto them, “ I am the bread of life : he that cometh to me shall never hunger ; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. ³⁶ But I said unto you, that ye have both seen me, and believe not. ³⁷ All that* the Father giveth me will come to me ; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out. ³⁸ For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me. ³⁹ And this is the will of him that sent me, that of all which* he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. ⁴⁰ For this is the will of him that sent me, that every one who seeth† the Son, and believeth on him, should have everlasting life : and I will raise him up at the last day.” ⁴¹ The Jews therefore murmured concerning him, because he said, ‘ I am the bread which came down from heaven.’ ⁴² And they said, “ Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know ? why therefore doth he say, ‘ I came down from heaven ? ’ ” ⁴³ Jesus answered and said unto them, “ Murmur not among yourselves. ⁴⁴ No man can come to me, unless the Father who sent me draw him : and I will raise him up at the last day. ⁴⁵ It is written in the prophets, ‘ And all shall be taught of God.’ Every one that hath heard and learned from the Father, cometh unto me. ⁴⁶ Not that any one hath seen the Father, except him that is from God ; he hath seen the Father. ⁴⁷ Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life. ⁴⁸ I am the bread of life. ⁴⁹ Your fathers ate manna in the desert, and died : ⁵⁰ this is the bread which cometh down from heaven, in order that any one may eat thereof, and not die. ⁵¹ I am the living bread which came down from heaven : if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever : ‡ and the bread § which I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.”

* Lit. Every thing which.

† Or, discerneth, or, perceiveth, ᾔσῳπει. John iv. 19 ; also vi. 62.

‡ Ζῆσται εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

§ Καὶ ὁ ἄρτος δέ. This construction is peculiar.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VI.
			⁵² The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?" ⁵³ Jesus therefore said unto them, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Unless ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have not life in you. ⁵⁴ He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day. ⁵⁵ For my flesh is truly meat, and my blood is truly drink.* ⁵⁶ He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, abideth in me, and I in him. ⁵⁷ As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father; he also that eateth me, even he shall live by me. ⁵⁸ This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as [your] fathers ate and died; he that eateth this bread shall live for ever."† ⁵⁹ These things he said in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.‡ ⁶⁰ Many therefore of his disciples, when they heard this, said, "This is a hard saying; who can hear it?" ⁶¹ But Jesus knowing in himself that his disciples murmured concerning this, said unto them, "Doth this cause you to fall?"§ ⁶² If therefore ye should perceive the Son of man going up where he was before——⁶³ It is the spirit that giveth life; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words which I speak unto you, are spirit, and are life. ⁶⁴ But there are some of you that believe not." (For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who it was that would betray him.) ⁶⁵ And he said, "On this account I said unto you, No one can come unto me, unless it have been given unto him by [my] Father" ⁶⁶ From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. ⁶⁷ Jesus therefore said unto the twelve, "Do ye also desire to go away?" ⁶⁸ Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. ⁶⁹ And we believe and know that thou art the Holy One of God." ⁷⁰ [Jesus] answered them, "Have not I chosen

• There is good authority for true instead of truly.

† Ζησεται εις τον αιωνα.

‡ Kuinoel, Simpson, and others, suppose that what follows passed in some other place.

§ Or, Is this a stumbling-block to you?

|| Or, we assuredly believe and know.—The original verbs are in the perfect tense.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN VI.
			you twelve, and one of you is a false accuser?" * ⁷¹ Now he spake of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon: for he was about to betray him, [being] one of the twelve. CH. VII. And after these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Judea, because the Jews were seeking to kill him.

SECT. V.

Declarations to the Scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem: and also the People and his Disciples.

MATT. XV.	MARK VII.	LUKE	JOHN
THEN came to Jesus the Scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem, saying, ² “Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.” ³ But he answered and said unto them, (a) “Why also do ye transgress the commandment of God by your tradition? ⁴ For	THEN gather together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the Scribes, who came from Jerusalem. ² And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled (that is with unwashen) hands,——³ (for the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands do not eat, diligently holding the tradition of the elders; ⁴ and when they come from the market, unless they have wholly washed,† they eat not: and many other things there are which they have received to hold, as the washings of cups, and vases, and brasen vessels, and couches :) ⁵ then the Pharisees and Scribes asked him, “Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with defiled hands?” ⁶ But he answered and said unto them, (b) “Well hath Isaiah prophesied concerning you

- The original is διαβολος.

† This appears to be the force of εαν μη βαπτισωνται: in the preceding verse the verb is νιψωνται.—Kuinoel prefers the interpretation—‘nor do they eat of things sold in the market, unless they have been thoroughly washed:’ but απο αγορας is closely rendered after market; and for the other interpretation one would have expected τα απο αγορας.

MATT. XV.	MARK VII.	LUKE	JOHN
God commanded, saying ‘ Honour thy father and mother :’ and, ‘ He that revileth father or mother, let him surely die.’ ⁵ But ye say, ‘ Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest have been profited by me ; ⁶ and honour not his father or his mother, he is guiltless.’ * And ye have made the commandment of God of no effect by your tradition. (b) ⁷ Ye hypocrites, well did Isaiah prophesy concerning you, saying, ⁸ ‘ This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. ⁹ But in vain do they reverence me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.’ ” ¹⁰ And he called the multitude unto him, and said unto them, “ Harken ye, and understand : ¹¹ Not that which entereth into the mouth defileth the man ; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth the man.”	hypocrites, as it is written, ‘ This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. ⁷ But in vain do they reverence me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.’ ⁸ For laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washings of vases, and cups : and many other such like things ye do.” ⁹ And he said unto them,(a) “ Full well ye make void the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition. ¹⁰ For Moses said, ‘ Honour thy father and thy mother ;’ and, ‘ He that revileth father or mother, let him surely die :’ † ¹¹ But ye say, ‘ If a man shall say to his father or mother, It is Corban, (that is to say, a gift,) by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me ; he is guiltless.’ ¹² And ye no longer suffer him to do any thing for his father or his mother ; ¹³ making the word of God of no effect by your tradition which ye deliver : and many such like things ye do.” ¹⁴ And he called all the multitude unto him, and said unto them, “ Harken ye all unto me, and understand : ¹⁵ there is nothing from without the man, which going into him can defile him : but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man. ¹⁶ If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.”	Is. 29 ; 13. Ex. 20 ; 12. Ex. 21 ; 17.

* Or, he must not honour (i. e. aid) his father or his mother.—See Kuinoel, who considers καὶ οὐ μὴ, in Hellenistic use, as equivalent to μὴ. If καὶ be omitted, for which there is much authority, (especially if τιμῆσαι be read for τιμῆσθαι, for which there is still more,) the construction is plain—‘ he shall not honour his father and mother.’ Lachman’s text gives οὐ μὴ τιμῆσαι.

† Lit. let him die the death.

MATT. XV.	MARK VII.	LUKE	JOHN
¹² Then came his disciples, and said unto him, "Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, when they heard thy word?" ¹³ But he answered and said, "Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up. ¹⁴ Let them alone: they are blind leaders of the blind. And if a blind man lead a blind man, both shall fall into the ditch." ¹⁵ And Peter answered and said unto him "Declare unto us this parable." ¹⁶ But Jesus said, "Are ye also still without understanding? ¹⁷ Do not ye yet perceive that every thing which entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught? ¹⁸ But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and these defile the man. ¹⁹ For out of the heart come forth evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies: ²⁰ these are the things which defile a man: but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man."	¹⁷ And when he entered into [the] house from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable. ¹⁸ And he saith unto them, "Are ye also thus without understanding? Do ye not perceive, that nothing from without which entereth into the man, can defile him; ¹⁹ because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, cleansing all food?" ²⁰ And he said, "That which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man. ²¹ For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, ²² thefts, covetous desires, malignant purposes, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, folly:* ²³ all these evil things come from within, and defile the man."

* By rendering πλεονεξιαι covetous desires, and πονηριαι malignant purposes, the due force is given to the plural form of the original: οφθαλμος πονηρος, an evil eye, denotes envy: "αφροσυνη seems to be opposed here," as Wynne well observes, "to σωφροσυνη, or sobriety of thoughts and words; so that it implies all wild sallies of imagination, and extravagant desires." Σωφροσυνη includes the idea of wise and virtuous self-regulation: αφροσυνη, all that is opposite to this.

SECT. VI.

Jesus goes to the Region of Tyre and Sidon, where he cures the Daughter of the Syrophenician Woman : He then returns to the Neighbourhood of the Lake of Galilee ; and, in the Decapolis, he cures a Deaf Man and many others, and miraculously supplies Four Thousand with Food.

MATT. XV.	MARK VII.	LUKE	JOHN
²¹ AND Jesus went forth from thence, and withdrew to the regions of Tyre and Sidon. ²² And, behold, a Canaanite woman came forth from those borders, and cried aloud unto him, saying, "Have mercy on me, Lord, thou son of David ; my daughter is grievously afflicted by a demon. ²³ But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came to him, and entreated him, saying, "Send her away ; for she crieth after us." ²⁴ But he answered and said, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel."* ²⁵ And she came and worshiped him,† saying, "Lord, help me." ²⁶ But he answered and said, "It is not well to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs." ²⁷ And she said,	²⁴ AND he arose from thence and departed to the borders of Tyre and Sidon. And he entered into the house, and desired that no one should know it : yet he could not remain hidden. ²⁵ For a woman having heard concerning him, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, she came and fell at his feet : ²⁶ (now the woman was a Gentile, a Syrophenician by nation :) and she entreated him to cast forth the demon out of her daughter. ²⁷ But Jesus said unto her, "Let the children first be filled : for it is not well to take the children's bread, and cast it to the dogs." ²⁸ And she answered and said

* St. Matthew's narrative in ver. 22—24 respects what passed before they entered the house, (which might have belonged to some follower of Jesus :) St. Mark's only refers to what passed within the house, and may have been derived from the master of it, who knew only what passed there. The woman recognized Christ on the way, and in consequence of this came to the house which he had entered.

† Or, did him reverential homage.

MATT. XV.	MARK VII.	LUKE	JOHN
“Yea, Lord: and yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from the table of their masters.” ²⁸ Then Jesus answered and said unto her, “O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee as thou desirest.” And her daughter was cured from that hour. ²⁹ And Jesus departed from thence, and came near the sea of Galilee; and went up to the mountain,* and sat down there. ³⁰ And great multitudes came unto him, having with them the lame, the blind, the dumb, the maimed, and many others, and they laid them down at the feet of Jesus; and he cured them: ³¹ so that the multitudes wondered, when they saw the dumb speaking, the maimed whole, the lame walking, and the blind seeing: and they glorified the God of Israel.	unto him, “Yea, Lord: and yet the dogs under the table eat of the children’s crumbs.” ²⁹ And he said unto her, “For this saying go thy way; the demon hath gone forth out of thy daughter.” ³⁰ And when she was come to her house, she found the demon gone forth, and her daughter laid upon the bed. ³¹ And again, departing from the borders of Tyre and Sidon,† he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the borders of Decapolis. ³² And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to put his hand upon him. ³³ And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears; and he spat, and touched his tongue; ³⁴ and looking up to heaven, he groaned, and saith unto him, “Ephphatha,” that is, Be opened. ³⁵ And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of

* Εἰς τὸ ὄρος. It does not appear improbable that this was the same mountain as that to which he retired after the miracle of the Five Thousand. It was in a solitary place, near the Lake, and obviously on the eastern side of the Jordan.

† ‘And again going forth from the borders of Tyre, he passed through Sidon,’ is a reading of considerable authority, and is adopted by Lachman. It well accords with the obvious purpose of our Lord’s present course.

MATT. XV.	MARK VII.	LUKE	JOHN
³² And Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, "I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now remained with me three days, and have nothing to eat: and I am not willing to send them away fasting, lest they should grow faint on the way." ³³ And his disciples say unto him, "Whence can we have so many loaves in a desert place, as to fill so great a multitude?" ³⁴ And Jesus saith unto them, "How many loaves have ye?" And they said, "Seven, and a few little fishes." ³⁵ And he commanded the multitude to place themselves on the ground. ³⁶ And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave them to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude. ³⁷ And they all ate, and were filled; and they took up of the fragments that remained, seven baskets full. ³⁸ Now they that ate were four thousand men, beside women and children.	his tongue was loosed, and he spake aright. ³⁶ And he charged them that they should tell no man: but the more he charged them, so much the more abundantly they published it. ³⁷ And they were beyond measure astonished, saying, "He hath done all things well: he maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak." СН. VIII. In those days the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, he called [his] disciples unto him, and saith unto them, ² "I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now remained with me three days, and have nothing to eat: ³ and if I send them away fasting to their own home, they will grow faint by the way: for some of them come from far." ⁴ And his disciples answered him, "From whence can any one fill* these people with bread here in a desert place?" ⁵ And he asked them, "How many loaves have ye?" And they said, "Seven." ⁶ And he commanded the people to place themselves on the ground; and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave them to his disciples to set before them; and they did set them before the people. ⁷ And they had a few small fishes: and he blessed, and commanded to set them also before them. ⁸ So they ate, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments remaining, seven baskets. ⁹ Now they that ate were about four thousand.

* Χορταζω, here rendered satisfy in the common translation, is rendered fill in every other instance except Luke xvi. 21.

SECT. VII.

When near Magdala, some Pharisees and Sadducees seek for a Sign from our Lord : After crossing the Lake, he warns the Disciples against their Doctrine ; and, on arriving at Bethsaida, restores a Blind Man.

MATT. XV.	MARK VIII.	LUKE	JOHN
³⁹ AND having sent away the multitude, he went into the ship, and came to the borders of Magdala. CH. XVI. And the Pharisees and Sadducees came to him, and trying him, desired him to shew them a sign from heaven. ² But he answered and said unto them, "When it is evening, ye say, 'It will be fair weather : for the sky* is red.'" ³ And in the morning, 'It will be stormy, to-day : for the sky* is red and lowering.' [Ye hypocrites,] ye know how to discern the face of the sky ;* but ye cannot discern the signs of the times. ⁴ A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign ; and no sign shall be given unto it, except the sign of the prophet Jonah." And he left them, and departed. ⁵ And when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to bring bread. ⁶ But Jesus said unto them, "Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees." ⁷ And they reasoned among themselves, saying, "It is because we have brought no bread." ⁸ But Jesus knowing it, said, "O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread ?" ⁹ Do ye not yet perceive, nor remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and	AND he sent them away. ¹⁰ And straightway he entered into the ship with his disciples, and came into the region of Dalmanutha. ¹¹ And the Pharisees came forth, and began to dispute with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, trying him. ¹² And he sighed deeply in his spirit, and saith, "Why doth this generation seek after a sign ? verily I say unto you, There shall no sign be given unto this generation."† ¹³ And he left them, and entering again [into the ship] he departed to the other side. ¹⁴ And the disciples had forgotten to take bread ; and except one loaf they had none with them in the ship. ¹⁵ And he charged them, saying, "Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and the leaven of Herod." ¹⁶ And they reasoned among themselves, saying, "It is because we have no bread." ¹⁷ And Jesus knowing it, saith unto them, "Why reason ye, because ye have no bread ? do ye not yet perceive, nor understand ? have ye your heart still hardened ?" ¹⁸ having eyes, see ye not ? and having ears, hear ye not ? and do ye not remember ? ¹⁹ When I brake the five loaves among the five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up ?" They say unto him, "Twelve."

* Or, heaven, as in ver. 1.

† Lit. if a sign shall be given to this generation,——

MATT XVI.	MARK VIII.	LUKE	JOHN
how many baskets ye took up? ¹⁰ nor the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many baskets ye took up? ¹¹ Why do ye not perceive that it was not concerning bread that I bade you beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees? ” ¹² Then they understood that he bade them beware, not of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees.	²⁰ “ And when the seven among the four thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? ” And they said, “ Se-ven.” ²¹ And he said unto them, “ Why do ye not understand?” ²² And he cometh to Bethsaida : and they bring a blind man unto him, and beseech him to touch him. ²³ And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town ; and having spat on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw any thing. ²⁴ And he looked up, and said, “ I see men, as trees, walking.” ²⁵ Then he again put his hands upon his eyes, and made him look up : and he was restored, and saw all men clearly. ²⁶ And he sent him away to his house, saying, “ Neither go into the village, nor tell any one in the village.”

SECT. VIII.

Jesus withdraws to the Region of Cæsarea Philippi, where Peter declares his Belief that he is the promised Messiah : Christ then predicts his approaching Sufferings.

MATT. XVI.	MARK VIII.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
¹³ Now Jesus having gone into the region of Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, say- ing, “ Who do men say that I the Son of man	²⁷ AND Jesus went forth, and his disciples, to the villages of Cæsarea Philippi. And on the way he asked his dis- ciples, saying unto them,	¹⁸ AND it came to pass, as he was praying alone, his disciples were with him : and he asked them, saying, “ Who do the multitudes say that I

MATT. XVI.	MARK VIII.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
am?"* ¹⁴ And they said, "Some say, John the Baptist: but others, Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets." ¹⁵ He saith unto them, "But who say ye that I am?" ¹⁶ And Simon Peter answered and said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." ¹⁷ And Jesus answered and said unto him, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jonah: for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but my Father who is in heaven. ¹⁸ And I also say unto thee, Thou art Peter, (i. e. rock;) and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hades† shall not prevail against it. ¹⁹ And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." ‡ ²⁰ Then he charged his disciples that they should tell no one that he was the Christ. § ²¹ From that time began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, that he must go unto Jerusalem,	"Who do men say that I am?" ²⁸ And they answered, "John the Baptist; and others say Elijah; but others, one of the prophets." ²⁹ And he saith unto them, "But who say ye that I am?" And Peter answereth and saith unto him, "Thou art the Christ." ³⁰ And he enjoined them that they should say this to no one concerning him. ³¹ And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer	am?" ¹⁹ And they answered and said, "John the Baptist: but others say Elijah; and others, that some one of the ancient prophets has risen again." ²⁰ And he said unto them, "But who say ye that I am?" And Peter answered and said, "The Christ of God." ²¹ And he enjoined them, and commanded them to tell this to no one: ²² saying, "The Son of man must suffer many

* Or, Who do men say that I am?—the Son of Man?

† Or, of the grave; or, of death:—see p. 103.

‡ In this passage, δέω, bind, has the import of prohibit, or forbid; and λύω, loose, implies release from, or allow: both through Rabbinical usage. See Kuinoel, from Lightfoot and Buxtorf.

§ Or, that they should say to no one, 'He is the Christ.'

MATT. XVI.	MARK VIII.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
shall a man give in exchange for his soul?† * For the Son of man will come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then he will render unto every man according to his works.*	shall a man give in exchange for his soul?† 38 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also will the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels. CH. IX. And he said unto them, "Verily I say unto you, There are some of those that stand here, who will not taste of death, until they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom."	 26 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him will the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and the glory of the Father, and of the holy angels. 27 But I tell you in truth, there are some of those that stand here, who will not taste of death, until they see the kingdom of God."

SECT. IX.

The Transfiguration of Christ.†

MATT. XVII.	MARK IX.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
AND after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John his brother, and leadeth them up a high mountain apart. 2 And he was transfigured before them; and his face	2 AND after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up a high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them. 3 And his gar-	28 Now it came to pass about eight days after these words, that he took with him Peter and John, and James, and went up into a mountain to pray. 29 And it came to pass§

* Or, his conduct; or, his doing, πραξιν αυτου.

† See Note † in preceding page.

‡ This great event is commonly supposed, (but merely through the influence of monkish tradition,) to have occurred on mount Tabor. The train of the history leads to the belief, that the 'high mountain' was in the north of Galilee; not far from Cæsarea Philippi; and further, it is scarcely conceivable that the name of the mountain would not have been given, had it been one so remarkable and well-known as Tabor. Lightfoot (Hor. Hebr. et Talm.) on Mark ix. 2, decisively rejects the traditionary opinion.

§ The idiomatic expression καὶ ἐγένετο, it came to pass, is neglected here in the common translation; which is a rare occurrence. It often might be neglected with advantage; but it is more emphatic here than in ver. 28.

MATT. XVII.	MARK IX.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
shone as the sun, and his garments became white as the light. ³ And, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elijah, talking with him. ⁴ But Peter answered and said unto Jesus, "Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; * one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah." ⁵ While he was yet speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them; and, behold, a voice out of the cloud, which said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased: hear ye him." ⁶ And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid. ⁷ And Jesus came and touched them, and said, "Arise, and be not afraid." ⁸ And when they lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, except Jesus only.	ments became shining, exceeding white [as snow;] so as no fuller on earth can whiten. ⁴ And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus. ⁵ And Peter answered and said to Jesus, "Rabbi, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; * one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah." ⁶ For he knew not what to say; for they were sore afraid. ⁷ And there came a cloud overshadowing them; and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, "This is my beloved Son: hear ye him." ⁸ And instantly looking around, they no longer saw any one, except Jesus only with themselves.	that as he was praying, the appearance of his face was altered, and his raiment became white and glistening. ³⁰ And, behold, there talked with him two men, who were Moses and Elijah: ³¹ who appeared in glory, and spake of his departure which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. ³² Now Peter and they that were with him were heavy with sleep: but when they were awakened, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him. ³³ And it came to pass, as they departed from him, that Peter said unto Jesus, "Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles: * one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah:" not knowing what he said. ³⁴ While he was saying these things, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them: and they were afraid as they entered into the cloud. ³⁵ And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, "This is my beloved Son: hear ye him." ³⁶ And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone. And they kept silence, and told no one in those days any of those things which they had seen.

* Or, tents, σκηνάς.

MATT. XVII.	MARK IX.	LUKE	JOHN
⁹ And as they were coming down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, "Tell the vision to no one, until the Son of man shall have risen from the dead." ¹⁰ And his disciples asked him, saying, "Why therefore say the Scribes that Elijah must come first?" ¹¹ But [Jesus] answered and said unto them,* "Elijah indeed cometh [first], and shall restore all things. ¹² But I say unto you, that Elijah hath come already, and they knew him not, but did unto him whatsoever they desired. So also the Son of man is about to suffer by them." ¹³ Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them concerning John the Baptist.	⁹ And as they were coming down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no one what things they had seen, unless when the Son of man should have risen from the dead. ¹⁰ And they kept that saying to themselves, reasoning together what the rising from the dead might mean. ¹¹ And they asked him, saying, "Why say the Scribes that Elijah must first come?" ¹² And he answered and said unto them, "Elijah indeed cometh first, and restoreth all things;" (and he told them how it is written concerning the Son of man, that he must suffer many things, and be set at nought:) ¹³ "but I say unto you, both that Elijah hath come, and that they have done unto him whatsoever they desired:" as it is written of him.

SECT. X.

On the Day after the Transfiguration, our Lord cures a Deaf and Dumb Demoniac.

MATT.	MARK IX.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
	¹⁴ AND when he came to the disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and Scribes reasoning with them. ¹⁵ And straightway all the multitude, when they saw	³⁷ AND it came to pass, that on the next day, when they had come down from the mountain, a great multitude met him.

* Perhaps we may supply here, They said truly: in which case our Lord's reply will be "They said truly, 'Elijah cometh first and shall restore all things'; but I say unto you, Elijah hath come already," &c. And so in Mark ix. 12.

MATT. XVII.	MARK IX.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
¹⁴ AND when they had come to the multitude, there came a man unto him, kneeling down to him, and saying, ¹⁵ "Lord, have pity on my son: because he is a lunatic, and grievously afflicted: for often he falleth into the fire, and often into the water. ¹⁶ And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him." ¹⁷ Then Jesus answered and said, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I endure you? Bring ye him hither to me." ¹⁸ And Jesus rebuked him, and the demon came forth from him: and the child was cured from that hour.	him, were struck with amazement; and they ran to him and saluted him. ¹⁶ And he asked them, "Why are ye reasoning with one another?" ¹⁷ And one of the multitude answered and said, "Teacher, I have brought unto thee my son, who hath a dumb spirit: ¹⁸ and wheresoever it seizeth him, it dasheth him down; and he foameth, and gnasheth with [his] teeth, and wasteth away: and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast it out; and they could not." ¹⁹ But he answereth them and saith, "O unbelieving generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I endure you? bring ye him unto me." ²⁰ And they brought him unto him: and when the child saw him, straightway the spirit convulsed him; and he fell on the ground, and wallowed, foaming. ²¹ And he asked his father, "How long a time is it since this came unto him?" and he said, "From childhood. ²² And it hath often cast him into the fire, and into the water, to destroy him: but if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us." ²³ Jesus said unto him, "If thou canst	³⁸ And, behold, a man cried out from the multitude, saying, "Teacher, I beseech thee, look upon my son: for he is mine only child.* ³⁹ And, behold, a spirit seizeth him, and suddenly crieth out, and convulseth him so that he foameth,† and bruising him hardly departeth from him. ⁴⁰ And I besought thy disciples to cast it out; and they could not." ⁴¹ But Jesus answering said, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, and endure you? Bring thy son hither." ⁴² But as he was yet coming the demon dashed him down, and convulsed him. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and delivered him to his father. ⁴³ And all were astonished at the mighty power of God.

• Μονογενής.

† Lit. with foaming.

MATT. XVII.	MARK IX.	LUKE	JOHN
	believe,——* all things are possible to him that believeth.” 24 And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, “ I do believe : help thou mine unbelief.” 25 And when Jesus saw that the multitude were running together to him, he rebuked the un- clean spirit, saying unto him, “ Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I command thee, come forth out of him, and enter no more into him.” 26 And having cried out, and rent him sore, he† came out of him : and he was as one dead ; insomuch that many said, “ He is dead.” 27 But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up ; and he arose. 28 And when he had come into a house, his disciples asked him pri- vately, “ Why could not we cast him out ? ”
19 Then the disciples came to Jesus privately, and said, “ Why could not we cast it out ? ” 20 And Jesus said unto them, “ Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye should have faith as a grain of mus- tard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, ‘ Re- move hence to yonder place ; ’ and it shall re- move: and nothing shall be impossible unto you. 21 But this kind cometh not forth except by prayer and fasting.”	29 And he said unto them, “ This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting.”

* We may supply, thy desire will be granted ; or words of similar import. Some ancient testimonies omit πιστευσαι ; on which reading we might render the clause, ‘ If thou canst ’ ? and suppose our Lord to repeat the father’s words ; they implying a doubt of his power. Griesbach’s edition of 1805 gives the lower mark : the authority for the omission appears quite insufficient.

† Griesbach’s reading makes the participles masculine ; in that of the received text they are neuter.

SECT. XI.

In passing through Galilee, Jesus again predicts his approaching Sufferings : and, on arriving at Capernaum, pays the Temple Tribute.

MATT. XVII.	MARK IX.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
²² AND while they were journeying in Galilee, Jesus said unto them, "The Son of man is about to be delivered into the hands of men : ²³ and they will kill him, and the third day he will be raised." And they were exceeding sorry. ²⁴ Now when they came to Capernaum, they that receive the half-shekel came to Peter, and said, "Doth not your Teacher pay the half-shekel?" ²⁵ He saith, "Yes." And when he came into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, "What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? from their own sons, or from strangers?" ²⁶ Peter saith unto him, "From strangers." Jesus saith unto him, "Then indeed the sons are free. ²⁷ But that we may not cause them to err,* go to the sea, and cast a hook, and take the first fish that cometh up; and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find a shekel : that take, and give unto them for me and thee."	³⁰ AND when they had gone forth from thence, they were passing along through Galilee; and he desired that no man should know it. ³¹ For he taught his disciples, and said unto him, "The Son of man is being delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill him; and after he is killed, he will rise the third day." ³² But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him. ³³ And he came to Capernaum.	⁴³ BUT while all wondered at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, ⁴⁴ "Fix ye these words in your ears: for the Son of man is about to be delivered into the hands of men." ⁴⁵ But they understood not this saying, and it was hidden from them, so that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him concerning that saying.

* Or, throw a stumbling-block in their way, σκανδαλισωμεν αυτους. See Note * p. 90.

SECT. XII.

Our Lord's last Discourses in Galilee: respecting Humility, and Mutual Consideration; Causes of Sin; Divine Mercy; Mutual Forgiveness; Apostolical Authority; and Humble Duty: with the Parable of the Unmerciful Servant.

MATT. XVIII.	MARK IX.	LUKE IX.	JOHN
At that hour the disciples came unto Jesus, saying, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" ² And Jesus called a child unto him, and set him in the midst of them; ³ and said, "Verily I say unto you, Unless ye be changed, and become as children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven. ⁴ Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. ⁵ And whosoever shall receive one such child in my name receiveth me.	³³ AND when he was in the house he asked them, "What were ye disputing about [among yourselves] on the way?" ³⁴ But they were silent: for on the way they had disputed among themselves, which was the greatest. ³⁵ And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, "If any man desire to be first, he shall be last of all, and servant of all." ³⁶ And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them, ³⁷ "Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever receiveth me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me." ³⁸ (But John answered him, saying, "Teacher, we saw some one casting out demons in thy name; and we forbad him, [because he followeth not us.]" ³⁹ But Jesus said, "Forbid him not: for there is no one who shall do a miracle in my name, and soon be able to speak evil of me.	⁴⁶ Now there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest. ⁴⁷ And Jesus, perceiving the reasoning of their heart, took a child, and set him by him; ⁴⁸ and said unto them, "Whosoever shall receive this child in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth him that sent me: for he that is least among you all, he shall be great." ⁴⁹ (But John answered and said, "Master, we saw some one casting out demons in thy name: and we forbad him, because he followeth not with us." ⁵⁰ And Jesus said unto him, "Forbid him not: for he that is not against you is for you.")

MATT. XVIII.	MARK IX.	LUKE XVII.	JOHN
⁶ But whosoever shall cause one of these little ones who believe in me to offend, it is better for him that a millstone should be hanged about his neck, and plunged with him into the depth of the sea. ⁷ Woe for the world through causes of offending! for it must be that causes of offending come; but woe for that man by whom the cause of offending cometh! ⁸ But if thy hand or thy foot be causing thee to offend, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire. ⁹ And if thine eye be causing thee to offend, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire. *	⁴⁰ For he that is not against you is for you.) ⁴¹ For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink on this account, because ye are Christ's, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward. ⁴² And whosoever shall cause one of the little ones that believe in me to offend, it is better for him that a millstone should be hanged about his neck, and cast with him into the sea. ⁴³ And if thy hand be causing thee to offend, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the unquenchable fire, ⁴⁴ where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. ⁴⁵ And if thy foot be causing thee to offend, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter lame into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, [into the unquenchable fire,] ⁴⁶ where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. ⁴⁷ And if thine eye be causing thee to offend, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom	Then said he unto the disciples, "It is impossible that causes of offending should not come: but woe for him through whom they come! ² It is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and hurled with him into the sea, than that he should cause one of these little ones to offend. ³ Take heed unto yourselves."

* Lit. the Gehenna of fire.

MATT. XVIII.	MARK IX.	LUKE XVII.	JOHN
10 "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, In heaven their angels always behold the face of my Father who is in heaven. 11 [For the Son of man is come to save that which was lost.] 12 What think ye? if any man have a hundred sheep, and one of them have gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine on the mountains, and go and seek that which hath gone astray? 13 And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, He rejoiceth more over that sheep, than over the ninety and nine which went not astray. 14 Even so it is not the will of your Father who is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish. 15 "Now if thy brother shall trespass against	of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire,* 48 where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.† 49 For every one shall be salted with fire; and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt. 50 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost its saltiness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another."
		3 "[Now] if thy brother trespass [against thee,]

* Lit. the Gehenna of fire.

† Griesbach prefixes his lower mark of omission to these words in the 44th and 46th verses.

MATT. XVIII.	MARK	LUKE XVII.	JOHN
thee, go and reprove him between thee and him alone : if he will hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother ; ¹⁶ but if he will not hear thee, take with thee one or two more, that by the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established. ¹⁷ And if he shall refuse to hear them, tell it unto the church : and if he also refuse to hear the church, let him be unto thee as a heathen and a publican. ¹⁸ Verily I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven : and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.* ¹⁹ “ Again I say unto you, If two of you shall agree on earth concerning any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them by my Father who is in heaven. ²⁰ For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.”		rebuke him ; and if he repent, forgive him. ⁴ And if seven times in a day he trespass against thee, and seven times in a day turn again, saying, ‘ I repent ’ ; thou shalt forgive him.” ⁵ And the apostles said unto the Lord, “ Increase our faith.” ⁶ But the Lord said, “ If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, ‘ Be thou rooted up, and be thou planted in the sea ; ’ and it should obey

* See Note ‡ on Ch. xvi. 18. p. 151.

MATT. XVIII.	MARK	LUKE XVII.	JOHN
21 Then came Peter to him, and said, "Lord, how often shall my brother trespass against me, and I forgive him? till seven times?" 22 Jesus saith unto him, "I say not unto thee, Till seven times; but, Till seventy times seven. 23 In regard to this, the kingdom of heaven is likened unto a king, who chose to reckon with his servants.* 24 And when he began to reckon, one was brought unto him who owed him ten thousand talents; 25 and as		you. 7 But which of you is there having a servant† plowing, or feeding cattle, who will say unto him, when come in from the field, 'Come straightway and place thyself at table'? 8 but will not rather say unto him, 'Make ready where-with I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou shalt eat and drink?' 9 Doth he thank that servant† because he did the things commanded? I think not. 10 So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all the things commanded you, say, 'We are unprofitable servants: ‡ We have done what we ought to do.'"

* Or, slaves :—and so throughout the parable.

* † Or, slave.

‡ Or, slaves.

MATT. XVIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
he had not wherewith to pay, his lord* command- ed him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. ²⁶ The servant therefore fell down, and worship- ed him,† saying, ‘Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.’ ²⁷ And the lord of that servant being moved with compassion, releas- ed him, and forgave him the debt. ²⁸ Now when the same servant went forth, he found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him a hundred denarii: and he seized him, and took him by the throat, saying, ‘Pay [me] whatever thou owest.’ ²⁹ His fellow-servant therefore fell down, and entreated him, saying, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay thee [all.]’ ³⁰ And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt. ³¹ But when his fellow- servants saw what was done, they were exceed- ing sorry, and came and told their lord all that was done. ³² Then his lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, ‘Thou wicked ser- vant, I forgave thee all

* Or, master:—and so throughout the parable; except perhaps in ver. 26, where one would prefer ‘Lord,’ or ‘Sir.’

† Or, did him reverence; or, threw himself at his feet.

MATT. XVIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
that debt, because thou entreatedst me: ²³ oughtest not thou also to have had pity on thy fellow-servant, even as I had pity on thee!’ ²⁴ And his lord was angry, and delivered him to the gaolers,* till he should pay all that was due unto him. ²⁵ Thus also will my heavenly Father do unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother.” — CH. XIX. And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these words, he departed from Galilee.

* Lit. tormentors :—but see Kuinoel.

After recording the Transfiguration and some of the subsequent occurrences, St. Luke informs us, in ch. ix. 51—56, (with which passage the next Part commences,) that our Lord sent messengers before him, who went into a village of the Samaritans to prepare for his coming, but that the inhabitants refused to receive him. This fact is recorded by St. Luke alone ; and it is obvious from it, that our Lord first purposed to go direct through Samaria : it may reasonably be inferred that this was in order to avoid the necessity of passing through the eastern portion of Herod's dominions, through which lay the ordinary route of the Galileans when going to Jerusalem. Here the sacred historian suspends his narrative of the Last Journey, to introduce that miscellaneous Collection of the Sayings of Christ, (chiefly derived, it is probable, from the written records or verbal relations of the Seventy Disciples,) which forms so remarkable a feature of his Gospel, and constitutes so large and important a portion of it—occupying the xth and six following chapters, with the first ten verses of the xviith. (See Prel. Diss.) After giving these invaluable records, many of which are found solely in his Gospel, the sacred historian continues his narrative of the Last Journey with an occurrence which neither of the other Evangelists has recorded—the cure of the ten lepers. In ch. ix. 56, he had stated that when our Lord was refused reception in the village of the Samaritans, he ‘went to another village :’ in ch. xvii. 11, we find him, in the immediately succeeding part of his journey, going along the confines of Samaria and Galilee, (obviously in order to go into the Peræa,) and entering into a certain village.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART VII.

OUR LORD'S FINAL JOURNEY FROM GALILEE, THROUGH THE PERÆA, TO HIS ARRIVAL AT BETHANY SHORTLY BEFORE THE PASSOVER.

SECT. I.

Our Lord sets out for Jerusalem—is refused Reception in Samaria—While passing through the Confines of Samaria and Galilee, in order to go into the Peræa, he heals Ten Lepers.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE IX.	JOHN
		⁵¹ AND it came to pass, when the days were fulfilled in which he was to be received up,* that he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem. ⁵² And he sent messengers before his face ; † and they went and entered into a village of the Samaritans, in order to make ready for him. ⁵³ And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he was going ‡ to Jerusalem. ⁵⁴ Now when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, “ Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elijah did ? ” ⁵⁵ But he turned, and rebuked them, [and said, “ Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.”] § ⁵⁶ And they went to another village.

* So Wynne : Lit. the days of his being received up.

† Or, (without the Hebraism,) before him. ‡ Or, (without the Hebraism,) because he was going.

§ The beautiful portion of ver. 55, which is included in brackets, is omitted by Lachman ; and regarded as very doubtful by Griesbach and Scholz. The first part of the 50th verse is entirely omitted by each of the three Editors—viz. ‘ for the Son of man came not to destroy men’s lives, but to save them.’ It does not appear improbable, that at least the part which is left in the text was a traditionary record of Christ’s words added in the margin of an early copy of Luke’s Gospel. There must have been many remembered sayings of Christ not recorded in the Gospels ; see, for instance, Acts xx. 35.

|| After this verse are recorded some occurrences, two of which are referred by St. Matthew to an earlier period : see p. 69. The third, which is peculiar to Luke, may have occurred at this period.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XVII.	JOHN
		¹¹ And it came to pass, as he was going to Jerusalem, that he passed between Samaria and Galilee.* ¹² And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, who stood afar off. ¹³ And they lifted up their voice, and said, "Jesus, Master, have pity on us." ¹⁴ And when he saw them, he said unto them, "Go and shew yourselves unto the priests." And it came to pass, that as they departed they were cleansed. ¹⁵ Now one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God; ¹⁶ and he fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks: and he was a Samaritan. ¹⁷ But Jesus answering said, "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?" ¹⁸ There are not found any that returned to give glory to God, except this stranger." ¹⁹ And he said unto him, "Arise, and go thy way: thy faith hath restored thee."

SECT. II.

Christ teaches in the Peræa: Declaration to the Pharisees respecting Divorces.

MATT. XIX.	MARK X.	LUKE	JOHN
AND it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these words,† he departed from Galilee, and came into the borders of Judea, beyond the Jordan.‡ ² And great multitudes followed him; and he cured them there. ³ And the Pharisees came unto him, trying him, and say-	AND he arose from thence,† and cometh into the borders of Judea, through the country beyond the Jordan: and the multitudes resort unto him again; and, as he was wont, he taught them again. ² And some Pharisees came to him, and asked him, "Is it

* Δια μεσου Σαμαρειας και Γαλιλαιας. See Campbell, who renders these words 'through the confines of Samaria and Galilee.' In common relation to two countries, μεσος must mean the middle between: so Mesopotamia means the country between the rivers Euphrates and Tigris.—Some suppose that the Evangelist represents our Lord as going from Ephraim (near Judæa) to Jerusalem, and passing through the midst of Samaria and of Galilee in his way.

† The Gospels of Matthew and Mark give no notice of Christ's having purposed to go through Samaria, before he actually went into the Peræa: 'these words' in Matthew, and 'thence' in Mark, refer to the preceding portion of their records respectively. The first clause of Matthew has already been given, at the close of Part vi. (p. 165;) it is repeated here to maintain the connexion. The course recorded by St. Luke would not differ much, if at all, from that which our Lord would otherwise have pursued in going from Capernaum to the Peræa; as he would of course avoid Tiberias, and had probably to cross the Jordan by the bridge near Scythopolis.

‡ This may mean, into the part of the Peræa which bordered on Judæa, nearly opposite Jericho; or, as Mark expresses it, 'into the borders of Judæa, passing through the country beyond the Jordan.'

MATT. XIX.	MARK X.	LUKE	JOHN
ing [unto him,] “Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?”* 4 But he answered and said unto them, (a) “Have ye not read, that he who made them from the beginning made them male and female; 5 and said, ‘For this cause a man will leave father and mother, and cleave to his wife: and they two shall be one flesh!’ 6 so that they are no more two, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.” (b) 7 They say unto him, “Why did Moses then direct to give a writing of divorcement and put her away?” 8 He saith unto them, “For the hardness of your hearts Moses suffered you to put away your wives: but from the beginning it was not so. 9 And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, not for fornication, and marry another, committeth adultery: and he who marrieth her that is put away, committeth adultery” 10 His disciples say unto him, “If the case of the man be so with his wife, it is not good to marry.” 11 But he said unto them, “All men cannot receive this saying, save they to whom it is given. 12 For there are eunuchs, who were so born from their mother’s womb: and there are eunuchs, who were made eunuchs by men: and there are eunuchs, who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. He that is able to receive it, let him receive it.”	lawful for a husband to put away his wife?” trying him. 3 And he answered and said unto them, “What did Moses direct you to do?” (b) 4 And they said, “Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.” 5 And Jesus answered and said unto them, “For the hardness of your heart he wrote for you this direction. (a) 6 But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female. 7 ‘For this cause a man will leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife; 8 and they two shall be one flesh:’ so that they are no more two, but one flesh. 9 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.” 10 And in the house his disciples asked him again concerning the same matter. 11 And he saith unto them, “Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her. 12 And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.”	Gen. 2; 24.

SECT. III.

Discourse when asked by the Pharisees when the Kingdom of God would come ; followed by the Parables of the Unjust Judge, and the Pharisee and Publican.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XVII.	JOHN
		²⁰ Now when he was asked by the Pharisees, “When is the kingdom of God coming?” he answered them and said, “The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: ²¹ nor will they say, ‘Lo here!’ or, ‘Lo there!’ for, lo, the kingdom of God is within you.” ²² And he said unto the disciples, “The days will come, when ye will desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and will not behold it. ²³ And they will say to you, ‘Lo, here!’ or, ‘Lo, there!’ Go not away, nor follow them. ²⁴ For as the lightning, that lighteneth out of one part under heaven, shineth unto the other part under heaven; so will the Son of man be in his day. ²⁵ But first must he suffer many things, and be rejected by this generation. ²⁶ And as it was in the days of Noah, so will it be also in the days of the Son of man. ²⁷ They ate, they drank, they married, they were given in marriage, until the day in which Noah entered into the ark; and the flood came, and destroyed them all. ²⁸ In like manner also, as it was in the days of Lot;—they ate, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they built; ²⁹ but, on the day in which Lot went forth from Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed all;—³⁰ thus will it be in the day in which the Son of man is revealed. ³¹ In that day whosoever shall be on the house-top, and his goods in the house, let him not come down to take them; and, in like manner, let not him that shall be in the field return back. ³² Remember Lot’s wife. ³³ Whosoever shall seek to save his life will lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life will preserve it. ³⁴ I say unto you; In that night two men will be on one bed; one will be taken, and the other left. ³⁵ Two women will be grinding together; the one will be taken, and the other left.” ³⁷ And they answer and say unto him, “Where, Lord?” But he said unto them, “Where the body is, there will the eagles be gathered together.” CH. XVIII. And he spake also a parable unto them to this end, that they ought always to pray, and not

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
		to faint : * ² saying, “ There was in a certain city a judge, † who feared not God, and regarded not man. ³ And there was a widow in that city ; and she came often ‡ unto him, saying, ‘ Avenge me of mine adversary.’ ⁴ And he would not for a while : but afterwards he said within himself, ‘ Though I fear not God, and regard not man ; ⁵ yet because this widow giveth me trouble, I will avenge her ; lest by her coming she at last weary me out.’ ” ⁶ And the Lord said, “ Hear what the unjust judge saith : ⁷ and will not God avenge his own elect, who cry unto him day and night, though he bear long with them ? § ⁸ I say unto you, He will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, will he find faith in the land ? ” ⁹ And he spake also this parable unto some who trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised the rest of men. ¹⁰ “ Two men went up into the temple to pray ; the one a Pharisee, and the other a Publican. ¹¹ The Pharisee stood by himself, and prayed thus : ‘ God, I thank thee, that I am not as the rest of men, extortioners, unjust, adulterers ; or even as this Publican. ¹² I fast twice in the week ; I give tithes of all that I possess.’ ¹³ And the Publican, standing afar off, would not even lift up his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, ‘ God be merciful to me a sinner.’ ¹⁴ I say unto you, This man went down to his house justified rather than the other ; for every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled ; but he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.”

* Or, to be weary, εκκακειν. The verb occurs also in 2 Cor. iv. 1, 16. Gal. vi. 9 (first clause). Eph. iii. 13. 2 Thess. iii. 13.

† Κριτης τις ην εν τινι πολει. In ver. 3, Griesbach omits τις.

‡ Or, kept coming, ηρχετο. The peculiar force of the Greek imperfect is often important.

§ If ‘ with them,’ επ’ αυτοις, must refer to the ‘ elect,’ then the rendering of the clause should be to this effect, ‘ though he delay help for them.’

|| Kuinoel, however, and others, understand the clause as in the common translation, ‘ stood and prayed thus with himself.’

SECT. IV.

Children brought to Jesus: Inquiry of the Young Ruler; and our Lord's subsequent Declarations.

MATT. XIX.	MARK X.	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
¹³ THEN were there brought unto him little children, that he might put his hands on them, and pray: but the disciples rebuked them. ¹⁴ But Jesus said, "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." ¹⁵ And he put his hands on them, and departed thence. ¹⁶ And, behold, one came and said unto him, "[Good] Teacher, what good thing shall I do, that I may have everlasting life?" ¹⁷ But he said unto him, "Why askest thou me concerning good? One is good. But if thou desirest to enter into life, keep the commandments." ¹⁸ He saith unto him, "Which?" And Jesus said, "Thou shalt not kill; Thou shalt not commit adultery; Thou shalt not steal; Thou shalt not bear false witness; ¹⁹ Honour thy father and mother; and, Thou shalt love thy	¹³ AND they brought little children unto him, that he might touch them: but the disciples rebuked those that brought them. ¹⁴ But when Jesus saw it, he was greatly displeased, and said unto them, "Suffer the little children to come unto me: forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God. ¹⁵ Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." ¹⁶ And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them." ¹⁷ And as he was going forth into the way, there ran one to him, and kneeled to him, and asked him, "Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit everlasting life?" ¹⁸ But Jesus said unto him, "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God. ¹⁹ Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery; Do not kill; Do not steal; Do not bear false witness; Do not defraud; Honour thy father and mother." ²⁰ And he answered and said unto him,	¹⁵ AND they brought unto him also infants, that he might touch them: but when the disciples saw it, they rebuked them. ¹⁶ But Jesus called them unto him, and said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God. ¹⁷ Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." ¹⁸ And a certain ruler asked him, saying, "Good Teacher, what shall I do to inherit everlasting life?" ¹⁹ But Jesus said unto him, "Why callest thou me good? there is none good, but one, that is, God. ²⁰ Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery; Do not kill; Do not steal; Do not bear false witness; Honour thy father and [thy] mother." ²¹ And he said, "All these things have I observed from my youth." ²² And when Jesus heard these things, he said unto him, "One

MATT. XIX.	MARK X.	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
neighbour as thyself.” 20 The young man saith unto him, “All these things have I observed from my youth : what lack I yet !” 21 Jesus said unto him, “If thou desirest to be perfect, go thy way, sell what is thine, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven : and come, follow me.” 22 But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful : for he had great possessions.	“Teacher, all these things have I observed from my youth.” 21 And Jesus looking upon him loved him, and said unto him, “One thing thou lackest : go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven : and come, [take up the cross,] and follow me.” 22 But he was sad at that saying, and went away sorrowful : for he had great possessions.	thing thou still wantest : sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven : and come, follow me.” 23 But when he heard this, he became very sorrowful : for he was very rich.
23 But Jesus said unto his disciples, “Verily I say unto you, A rich man will hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.	23 And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, “How hardly will they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God !” 24 And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, “Children,* how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God !” 25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of the needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.” 26 And they were exceedingly astonished, saying among themselves, “Who then can	24 And when Jesus saw that he was become very sorrowful, he said, “How hardly will they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God !” 25 For it is easier for a camel to enter through a needle’s eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.” 26 And they that heard it, said, “Who then can
24 And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to enter through a needle’s eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.” 25 And when the disciples heard it, they were greatly astonished saying, “Who then can

* The original here is τεκνα : the word rendered little children in this Section is παιδια. It is obvious from St. Luke, who uses τα βρεφη, that the children were very young : but παιδιον, though in form the diminutive of παις, is of more general application than little child. St. John employs it, ch. xxi. 5, where our Lord is addressing Peter and his companions.—In the common translation, παιδιον is rendered child in Mark ix. 36, 37, while in the corresponding passage in Matt. xviii. 2—5. (see p. 159,) it is rendered little child ; and in Mark x. 13 and 14, the plural is rendered both young children and little children.

MATT. XIX.	MARK X.	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
be saved?" ²⁶ But Jesus looking upon them said unto them, "With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible. " ²⁷ Then answered Peter and said unto him, "Lo, we have left all things, and followed thee; what then shall we have?" ²⁸ And Jesus said unto them, "Verily I say unto you, Ye that have followed me, shall, in the regeneration, [¶] when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, yourselves also sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. ²⁹ And every one who hath left houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life. ³⁰ " But many shall be first, who are last; and last, who are first.	²⁷ But Jesus looking upon them saith, "With men it is impossible , but not with God: for with God all things are possible." ²⁸ Peter began to say unto him, "Lo, we have left all things, and followed thee." ²⁹ Jesus answered and said, "Verily I say unto you, There is no one who hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and for the sake of the gospel, ³⁰ but shall receive a hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world * to come, everlasting life. ³¹ " But many shall be first, who are last; and last, who are first.	be saved?" ²⁷ But he said, "The things which are impossible with men are possible with God." ²⁸ Peter said, "Lo, we have left all things, and followed thee." ²⁹ And he said unto them, "Verily I say unto you, 'There is no one who hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, ³⁰ who shall not receive manifold in this time, and in the world * to come, everlasting life."

* Εν τω αιώνι: see Note, p. 129.—At the close of these verses and of the 29th in Matthew, the original is the same, ζωην αιωνιον: but it is rendered in Matthew, everlasting life, in Mark eternal life, and in Luke life everlasting. Such variations in the common translation are continually occurring.

SECT. V.

The Parable of the Labourers in the Vineyard.

MATT. XX.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
“FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a householder,* who went forth with the early morning to hire labourers into his vineyard. ² And when he had agreed with the labourers for a denarius a day, he sent them into his vineyard. ³ And he went forth about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market-place; ⁴ and he said unto them, ‘Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you.’ And they went. ⁵ Again he went forth about the sixth and the ninth hour, and did likewise. ⁶ And about the eleventh [hour] he went forth, and found others standing, and saith unto them, ‘Why have ye stood here all the day idle?’ ⁷ They say unto him, ‘Because no man hath hired us.’ He saith unto them, ‘Go ye also into the vineyard; [and whatsoever is right, ye shall receive.]’ ⁸ Now when evening came, the master of the vineyard saith unto his steward, ‘Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last, even unto the first.’ ⁹ And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received each a denarius. ¹⁰ But when the first came, they supposed that they should receive more; and they likewise received each a denarius. ¹¹ But when they had received it, they murmured against the householder, ¹² saying, ‘These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, who have borne the burden of the day, and the heat.’ ¹³ But he answered one of them, and said, ‘Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst thou not agree with me for a denarius? ¹⁴ Take thine own, and go thy way: but I choose to give unto this last, even as unto thee. ¹⁵ Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good?’ ¹⁶ So the last shall be first, and the first last: † for many are called, but few chosen.”

* Here, and in various other places, the use of ανθρωπος is idiomatic, and cannot be adequately represented in English.

† The order is here necessary, because the nominative with the article must be the subject of the verb: in ch. xix. 30, and in Mark x. 31, the same order is preferable. Griesbach omits οι in Mark x. 31.

SECT. VI.

*A Series of Discourses, &c. recorded in connexion by St. Luke.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XII.	JOHN
		1. Admonitions and Encouragements to the Disciples. AT a time† when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people,‡ so that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples, “First of all take heed to yourselves of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. ² Now there is nothing covered, which will not be revealed : and hidden which will not be known. ³ Wherefore whatsoever ye speak in darkness will be heard in the light ; and that which ye speak to the ear in the chambers will be proclaimed upon the housetops. ⁴ But I say unto you my friends, Be not made afraid by them that kill the body, and afterwards have no more that they can do : ⁵ but I will warn you whom ye shall fear : fear him, who after he hath killed hath power§ to cast into hell ; yea, I say unto you, Fear him. ⁶ Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings ? and not one of them is forgotten before God. ⁷ But even the hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore : ye are of more value than many sparrows. ⁸ “Now I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, the Son of man also will confess him before the angels of God : ⁹ but he that denieth me before men will be denied before the angels of God. ¹⁰ And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it will be forgiven him : but unto him that blasphemeth against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven him.
Matt. 10 ; 26-31. (p. 85.)
Matt. 10 ; 32, 33. (p. 86.)

* The Discourses and other Sayings of Christ recorded in the xiith and xiiith chapters of Luke appear to have formed one record ; and this may have been derived from one of the Seventy. Several portions of it can only be referred to the Last Journey : others, however, so closely correspond with Discourses delivered at other periods, that we might suppose the record to have been formed from passages of those and other Discourses ; see, e. g. those which have already been arranged (in pp. 56, 60, 84, 85, 86,) with the Sermon on the Mount, and the Instructions to the Apostles. On the other hand, it is obvious that St. Luke could not himself regard such portions as belonging to those Discourses of which he has given records ; and there is nothing directly opposing the supposition that they were all delivered at the same period, viz. when our Lord was on his way to Jerusalem in order to attend the last Passover. Why the xivth, xvth, and xviith chapters are not placed in succession after the xiiith, see Note * p. 98.

† Εν οἷς, with which this chapter commences, may refer to the preceding chapter : but it is rendered and when, or, now by the ancient versions, and is supplied by δε in some MSS. The style of the verse, and indeed of various parts of the Section, has considerable peculiarity.

‡ Or, a multitude consisting of myriads.

§ See p. 86.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XII.	JOHN
Matt. 10 ; 17-20. (p. 84.)		¹¹ “ But when they bring you unto the synagogues, and magistrates, and authorities, take ye no anxious thought how or what thing ye shall speak in defence, or what ye shall say ; ¹² for the Holy Spirit shall teach you in the same hour what ye ought to say.” 2. Warnings against Covetousness ; Parable of the Rich Man. ¹³ And one of the multitude said unto him, “ Teacher, tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me.” ¹⁴ But he said unto him, “ Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you ? ” ¹⁵ And he said unto them, “ Take heed, and beware of covetousness : for the life of any one consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.” * ¹⁶ And he spake a parable unto them, saying, “ The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully : ¹⁷ and he thought within himself, saying, ‘ What shall I do, because I have not where I can gather together my fruits ? ’ ¹⁸ And he said, ‘ This will I do : I will pull down my barns, and build greater ; and there will I gather together all my crops and my goods. ¹⁹ And I will say to my soul, Soul ! thou hast many good things laid up for many years ; take thine ease, eat, drink, be merry.’ ²⁰ But God said unto him, ‘ Foolish man ! this night thy soul shall be required of thee : † then whose will those things be, which thou hast provided ? ’ ²¹ So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.” 3. Admonitions respecting Anxiety. ²² And he said unto his disciples, “ Therefore I say unto you, Take no anxious thought for [your] life, what ye shall eat ; nor for the body, what ye shall put on. ²³ The life is more than food, and the body than raiment. ²⁴ Consider the ravens, that they neither sow nor reap ; which have neither storehouse nor barn ; and yet God feedeth them : how much more are ye better than the birds ? ²⁵ And which of you by taking anxious thought can add
Matt. 6 ; 25-33. (p. 60.)

* Or, for when any one hath abundance, his life (or happiness) doth not depend on his possessions.— See Kuinoel.

† Lit. they will demand thy life from thee : that is, (without the idiom,) thy life will be demanded from thee.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XII.	JOHN
		one cubit to his stature ? * 26 If then ye are not able to do that thing which is least, why take ye anxious thought for the rest? 27 Consider the lilies how they grow : they toil not, nor do they spin ; and yet I say unto you, Not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these.† 28 Now if God so clothe the grass, which is to-day in the field, and to-morrow is cast into the oven ; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith ! 29 And seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind. 30 For after all these things do the nations of the world seek : and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things. 31 But seek ye the kingdom of God ; and [all] these things will be added unto you. 32 “ Fear not, little flock ; for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom. 33 Sell your possessions, and give alms ; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, nor moth corrupteth. 34 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. 4. Preparation for the Coming of the Lord. 35 “ Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning ; 36 and be yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he shall return from the marriage-feast ; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may straightway open unto him. 37 Blessed are those servants, whom their lord when he cometh shall find watching : verily I say unto you, that he will gird himself, and place them at table, and come and serve them. 38 And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them thus, blessed are those servants. 39 “ Now ye know this, that if the master of the house had known at what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.† 40 Be ye therefore ready also : for at an hour when ye think not the Son of man cometh.” 41 Then Peter said unto him, “ Lord, dost thou

Matt. 24 ;
43, 44.

* Or, life, ἡλίκια. † See Note, p. 61.

† The walls of the houses in the east were made of clay or unburnt bricks : and there was no entrance from without but by the door : hence broken through gives the correct idea, viz. of working a passage through the wall.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XII.	JOHN
Matt. 25 ; 45-51.		 speak this parable unto us, or even to all ? ” ⁴² But the Lord said, “ Who then is the faithful and wise steward, whom his lord * will make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of food in due season ? ⁴³ Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. ⁴⁴ Truly I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all his possessions. ⁴⁵ But if that servant say in his heart, ‘ My lord delayeth his coming ; ’ and shall begin to beat the men-servants and the maid-servants, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken ; ⁴⁶ the lord of that servant will come in a day in which he looketh not for him, and at an hour of which he is not aware, and will cut him in sunder,† and will appoint him his portion with the unfaithful.  ⁴⁷ “ Now that servant, who knew his lord’s will, and prepared not himself, nor did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. ⁴⁸ But he that knew it not, and did things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. And unto every one to whom much is given, of him shall much be required : and to whom men have committed much, of him they will require the more. 5. Consequences of Christ’s Mission ; Individual Judgment urged.  ⁴⁹ “ I came to send fire on the land ; and what do I desire, if it be already kindled ? ⁵⁰ And I have a baptism to be baptized with ; and how am I straitened till it be accomplished ! ⁵¹ Suppose ye that I came to give peace on the land ? I say unto you, Nay, but rather division. ⁵² For from henceforth there will be five in one house divided, three against two, and two against three : ⁵³ the father will be divided against the son, and the son against the father ; the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother ; the mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.”  ⁵⁴ And he said also to the multitudes, “ When ye see

* Or, Master.—In like manner through ver. 42—47, and in ver. 36, 37. The original of servant throughout this portion, is δουλος ; but slave conveys the idea less accurately, in the Gospels at least, than servant. In ver. 45, the original of ‘ men-servants ’ is τους παιδας.

† Or, scourge him severely.—The following clause shows that διχοτομησει cannot imply the death of the servant : and it appears merely to denote a very severe scourging, like the threatening expression heretofore heard in our day, ‘ I will cut him in pieces.’

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XII.	JOHN
Matt. 5; 25, 26. (p. 56.)		the cloud rise out of the west, ye straightway say, ‘There cometh a shower ;’ and so it is. ⁵⁵ And when ye see the south wind blow, ye say, ‘There will be heat ;’ and it cometh to pass. ⁵⁶ Ye hypocrites, ye know how to discern the face of the earth and of the sky ; but how is it that ye do not discern this time ? ⁵⁷ Yea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right ? ⁵⁸ For when thou goest with thine adversary to the magistrate, while on the way, give diligence to obtain reconciliation from him ; lest he drag thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison. ⁵⁹ I say unto thee, Thou wilt by no means depart thence, till thou payest even the last mite.” 6. Calamities not always Judgments. CH. XIII. Now there were present at that time some that told him concerning the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. ² And Jesus answering said unto them, “ Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things ? ³ I tell you, Nay : but, unless ye repent, ye will all likewise perish. ⁴ Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and killed them, suppose ye that they were sinners* above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem ? ⁵ I tell you, Nay : but, unless ye repent, ye will all likewise perish.” 7. Parable of the Barren Fig-Tree. ⁶ He spake also this parable ; “ A certain man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard ; and he came seeking fruit thereon, and found none. ⁷ And he said unto the vinedresser, ‘ Behold, three years I come seeking fruit on this fig-tree, and find none : cut it down ; why cumbereth it the ground !’ ⁸ But he answering saith unto him, ‘ Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it : ⁹ and if it bear fruit, well : but if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down.” 8. Observations after healing the Infirm Woman on the Sabbath. ¹⁰ Now he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. ¹¹ And, behold, there was a woman who

* Οφείλεται, debtors.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIII.	JOHN
		had a spirit of infirmity for eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise raise herself up. ¹² And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, "Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity." ¹³ And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight; and she glorified God. ¹⁴ But the ruler of the synagogue, being moved with indignation because Jesus had wrought the cure on the sabbath-day, answered, and said unto the people, "There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be cured, and not on the sabbath-day." ¹⁵ The Lord therefore answered him, and said, "Thou hypocrite, doth not each of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the manger, and lead him away to water him? ¹⁶ And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath-day?" ¹⁷ And as he said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the multitude rejoiced for all the glorious things done by him.
Matt. 13; 31, 32.	Mark 4; 30-32.	9. Parables of the Grain of Mustard and Leaven. ¹⁸ And he said, "Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and unto what shall I liken it? ¹⁹ It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden; and it grew, and became a great tree; and the birds of heaven lodged in the branches of it" ²⁰ [And] again he said, "To what shall I liken the kingdom of God? ²¹ It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened."
Matt. 13; 33.		10. Answer to the Inquiry, "Are there few that shall be saved"? ²² And he was going through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem; ²³ and one said unto him, "Lord, are there but few that are saved?" And he said unto them, ²⁴ "Strive ye to enter in through the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and will not be able, ²⁵ when once the master of the house hath risen up, and shut the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, 'Lord, Lord, open unto us.' And he shall answer and say unto you, 'I know you not whence ye are.' ²⁶ Then

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIII.	JOHN
		ye will begin to say, 'We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.' ²⁷ And he will say, 'I tell you, I know you not whence ye are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.' ²⁸ There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, but you yourselves cast out. ²⁹ And they will come from the east, and from the west, and [from] the north, and from the south, and will be placed at table in the kingdom of God. ³⁰ And, behold, there are last who will be first, and there are first who will be last." 11. Observations of our Lord on hearing that Herod purposed to kill him. ³¹ In that same day there came certain Pharisees, saying unto him, "Go forth, and depart hence: for Herod purposeth to kill thee." ³² And he said unto them, "Go ye, and tell that fox, 'Behold, I cast out demons, and I do cures, to-day and to-morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.' ³³ Nevertheless I must go on to-day, and to-morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet should perish out of Jerusalem. ³⁴ O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that have been sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together unto me, as a hen gathereth her brood under her wings! and ye would not. ³⁵ Behold, your house is left by you: and I say unto you, Ye will not see me, until the time shall come when ye will say, 'Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.' "

Notwithstanding Luke ix. 51, (p. 167,) Macknight places the two chapters of the foregoing Section, (together with the one that precedes and the three which follow them,) in the interval between the Feast of Dedication and the raising of Lazarus. This is inconsistent with the 10th and 11th portions, which clearly refer to the Last Journey. The 6th and 7th also better suit this arrangement. Nevertheless it is far from clear that all the discourses and occurrences recorded even in the xiiith chapter, belong to that period. The 9th portion consists of two parables which are recorded together (see p. 127) in Matt. xiii.; and it has no apparent connexion with the portions preceding and following. So again, in the 8th portion, ver. 14th seems to imply that our Lord was stationary in the place where the miracle was wrought. With respect to the xiith chapter, there is nothing to decide to what period the different portions of it should be referred. If the 1st belong to the Instructions to the Apostles, the 2d must be placed on the same day. The 3d may have been a record of part of the Sermon on the Mount. The 4th much better suits the present than any preceding period: but it may have been derived from the Discourse on the Mount of Olives. The 5th portion seems miscellaneous; but ver. 50 best suits the present journey.

SECT. VII.

On entering Judæa, our Lord again predicts his approaching Death and Resurrection : James and John apply to him for the Chief Posts in his Kingdom.

MATT. XX.	MARK X.	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
17 AND as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took aside the twelve disciples apart on the way, and said unto them, 18 “ Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem ; and the Son of man will be delivered up unto the Chief Priests and Scribes ; and they will condemn him to death, 19 and deliver him to the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify : and the third day he will rise again.” 20 Then came to him the mother of the sons of Zebedee with her sons, worshiping him,* and asking something from him. 21 And he said unto her, “ What dost thou desire ? ” She saith unto him, “ Command that these my two sons should sit,	32 Now they were on the way going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus went before them : and they were amazed ; and as they followed, they were afraid. And he again took aside the twelve and began to tell them what things were about to happen unto him : 33 “ Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem ; and the Son of man will be delivered to the Chief Priests, and the Scribes ; and they will condemn him to death, and deliver him to the Gentiles : 34 and they will mock him, and scourge him, and spit upon him, and kill him : and the third day he will rise again.” 35 And James and John, the sons of Zebedee, come unto him, saying, “ Teacher, we desire that thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall ask.” 36 And he said unto them, “ What do ye desire that I should do for you ? ” 37 They said	31 Now he took aside the twelve, and said unto them, “ Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem ; and all things that are written by the prophets will be accomplished in the Son of man. 32 For he will be delivered unto the Gentiles, and will be mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spit on : 33 and they will scourge him, and put him to death : and the third day he will rise again. 34 And they understood none of these things : and this saying was hidden from them, and they knew not the things which were spoken by him.

* Or, doing him reverence.
N

MATT. XX.	MARK X.	LUKE	JOHN
the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom." ²² But Jesus answered and said, "Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink the cup which I am about to drink?" They say unto him, "We are able." ²³ And he saith unto them, "Ye will indeed drink of my cup: but to sit on my right hand, and on [my] left, is not mine to give, except to those for whom it hath been prepared by my Father." ²⁴ And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation respecting the two brethren. ²⁵ But Jesus called them unto him, and said, "Ye know that the rulers of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them; and the great exercise authority over them: ²⁶ it shall not be so among you; but whosoever desireth to be great among you, let him be your minister; ²⁷ and whosoever desireth to be chief among you, let him be your servant: ²⁸ even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."	unto him, "Grant unto us that we may sit, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left, in thy glory." ³⁸ But Jesus said unto them, "Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink the cup which I drink? and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?" ³⁹ And they say unto him, "We are able." And Jesus said unto them, "Ye will indeed drink the cup that I drink; and will be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: ⁴⁰ but to sit on my right hand, and on [my] left, is not mine to give, except to those for whom it hath been prepared." ⁴¹ And when the ten heard it, they began to be moved with indignation respecting James and John. ⁴² But Jesus called them to him, and saith unto them, "Ye know that they who appear to rule over the Gentiles exercise dominion over them; and their great ones exercise authority over them. ⁴³ But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever desireth to be great among you, shall be your minister: ⁴⁴ and whosoever desireth to be chief of you, shall be servant of all. ⁴⁵ For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."

SECT. VIII.

Christ at the House of Zacchæus : the Parable of the Ten Pounds.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIX.	JOHN
		AND Jesus entered and was passing through* Jericho. ² And, behold, a man named Zacchæus: and he was a Chief Publican; and he was rich. ³ And he was seeking to see Jesus, who he was: and he could not from among the multitude, because he was little in stature. ⁴ And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore-tree that he might see him: for he was about to pass that way. ⁵ And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, “Zacchæus, make haste and come down; for to-day I must abide in thy house.” ⁶ And he made haste, and came down, and received him rejoicing. ⁷ And all beholding murmured, saying, “He hath gone in to be guest with a sinner.”† ⁸ And Zacchæus stood, and said unto the Lord; “Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation,‡ I restore him fourfold.” ⁹ And Jesus said respecting him, “This day hath salvation come to this house, inasmuch as he also is a son of Abraham: ¹⁰ for the Son of man hath come to seek and to save that which was lost.” ¹¹ And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and they thought that the kingdom of God was immediately about to appear. ¹² He said therefore, “A certain man of noble birth went to a far country, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. ¹³ And he called his ten servants,§ and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them,

* This, which is the force of the original, διηρχετο, seems to imply that it was in Jericho that Zacchæus, in the first instance at least, was endeavouring to see Jesus; and it is most probable, considering his employment, that he resided in the city.

† See Note * p. 175.—Καταλυσαι ‘to be guest’ might well be rendered ‘to lodge,’ as in Luke ix. 12.

‡ Ει τινος τι εσυκοφαντησα: comp. Luke iii. 14.

§ The original is δουλος throughout the parable.

Or, Mina: and so throughout.—The Mina, μνα, was equivalent to 100 drachmas; that is, (without taking into account the different value of money,) between three and four pounds sterling. It is obvious, however, that the word here stands indefinitely for a large sum of money; and it is therefore needless to change the present translation.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XIX.	JOHN
		‘Trade with these till I come.’ ¹⁴ But his citizens hated him, and sent an embassy after him, saying, ‘We are not willing for this man to reign over us.’ ¹⁵ And it came to pass, when he had returned, having received the kingdom, that he commanded those servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money; that he might know how much every man had gained by trading. ¹⁶ And the first came, saying, ‘Lord,* thy pound hath gained ten pounds.’ ¹⁷ And he said unto him, ‘Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.’ ¹⁸ And the second came, saying, ‘Lord, thy pound hath made five pounds.’ ¹⁹ And he said to him also, ‘And be thou over five cities.’ ²⁰ And another came, saying, ‘Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin: ²¹ for I feared thee, because thou art an austere man: thou takest up what thou layedst not down, and reapest what thou didst not sow.’ ²² And he saith unto him, ‘Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up what I laid not down, and reaping what I did not sow? ²³ and wherefore didst thou not give my money at the bank?† and at my coming I might have required the same with interest.’ ²⁴ And he said unto them that stood by, ‘Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath the ten pounds.’ ²⁵ (And they said unto him, ‘Lord, he hath ten pounds.’) ²⁶ ‘For I say unto you, Unto every one that hath shall be given; but from him that hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken away from him. ²⁷ But those mine enemies, who were not willing that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay before me.’” ²⁸ And when he had thus spoken, he went before, going up to Jerusalem.‡

• Or, Sir. So Newcome renders throughout the parable. The original is κύριος, as in ver. 8.

† Or, at the table of the exchangers.—The original import of bank, in this connexion, exactly corresponds with that of τραπεζα.

‡ The brevity of St. Luke's narration will be obvious, on comparing ver. 7—10 with ver. 11, and this with ver. 28: it might even be supposed, but for ver. 5, that our Lord did not remain at all in the house of Zacchæus. Considering this brevity, there appears no reason why we should not suppose that he passed the night there, if this be found best to suit the train of the history.

SECT. IX.

Jesus gives Sight to Two Blind Men near Jericho.*

MATT. XX.	MARK X.	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
29 AND as they were going out from Jericho, a great multitude followed him. 30 And, behold, two blind men who were sitting by the way-side, when they heard that Jesus was passing by, cried out, saying, "Pity us, Lord! thou Son of David!" 31 But the multitude rebuked them, that they might be silent: but they cried the more, saying, "Pity us, Lord! thou Son of David!" 32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, "What	46 AND they come to Jericho: and as he was going out from Jericho, and his disciples, and a great multitude, the son of Timæus, Bartimæus, the blind man,† was sitting by the way-side, begging. 47 And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth,‡ he began to cry out and say, "Son of David! Jesus! pity me!" 48 And many rebuked him, that he might be silent: but he cried much more, "Son of David! pity me!" 49 And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called: and they call the blind man, saying unto him, "Be of good courage! rise! he calleth thee." 50 And casting away his mantle, he arose and came to Jesus. 51 And Jesus answered and said unto him, "What dost thou	35 It came to pass, as he drew nigh unto Jericho,§ a certain blind man was sitting by the way-side, begging: 36 and hearing a multitude going by, he asked what this meant. 37 And they told him, "Jesus of Nazareth‡ is passing by." 38 And he cried aloud, saying, "Jesus! Son of David! pity me!" 39 And they who went before rebuked him, that he might be silent: but he cried so much the more, "Son of David! pity me!" 40 And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him, 41 saying,	"What dost thou desire

* On the locality of this miracle, see the Note at the end of the Section.

† If the original reading was as given by Lachman, then we might render thus—'the son of Timæus, Bartimæus, a blind man,' &c.

‡ Or, the Nazoræan, ὁ Ναζωραῖος; or, the Nazarene, as in Matt. ii. 23.

§ The original, ἐν τῷ ἐγγιζειν αὐτὸν εἰς Ἱεριχώ, would allow us to render, 'when he was drawing nigh Jerusalem, at Jericho'; (comp. ver. 31, and ch. xix. 29, 37 :) but as respects the difference between St. Luke's narrative, and that of the former Evangelists, this presents no direct advantage; for, after recording the miracle, St. Luke expressly says, that Jesus 'entered and was passing through Jericho': so that he must have considered the transaction as occurring before our Lord entered the city. See the Note at the end of the Section.

MATT. XX.	MARK X.	LUKE XVIII.	JOHN
do ye desire that I should do unto you ? ” 33 They say unto him, “ Lord, that our eyes may be opened.” 34 And Jesus, moved with compassion, touched their eyes ; and straightway their eyes received sight, and they followed him.	desire that I should do unto thee ? ” And the blind man said unto him, “ Rabboni ! * that I may receive my sight.” 52 And Jesus said unto him, “ Go thy way ; thy faith hath restored thee.” † And straightway he received his sight, and followed him in the way.	that I should do unto thee ? ” And he said, “ Lord, that I may receive my sight.” 42 And Jesus said unto him, “ Receive thy sight : thy faith hath restored thee.” † 43 And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God : and all the people having seen it, gave praise unto God.

* Or, My Teacher (or Master). The Received Text has 'Paββovi, which is the Syro-Chaldaic form of the pure Hebrew 'Paββi, My Teacher (or Master) The most approved reading is 'Paββorvi, which represents the Galilean pronnciation of 'Paββovi The Rabbinical writings say that Rabboni is more dignified than Rabbi, and this than Rab, which simply signifies Master or Teacher. See Schlensner.

† 'Η πίστις σου σέσωκε σε. In Luke, the common translation is, 'hath saved thee' ; in Mark, 'hath made thee whole.'

NOTE ON SECT. IX.

There are two considerable diversities in the narratives of this miracle : St. Matthew speaks of two blind men, while the other Evangelists mention one only ; and both Matthew and Mark expressly say that the miracle was wrought when our Lord was going out of Jericho, whereas St. Luke places it on his approaching that city. (See the Note on ver. 35.) The first diversity presents no difficulty. From the mention of the name of Timæus, it is reasonable to suppose that he was a person well known at Jericho ; and at any rate, the history of Bartimæus is alone recorded, as he would himself tell it, or, (just as that of the maniac of Gadara, see Note * p. 71,) owing to his being from some cause the most noted. St. Matthew having seen two blind men, speaks of two.—As to the second point, there is a real discrepancy : not, however, in the least affecting the credibility of the miracle, or the faithfulness of St. Luke ; and easily arising from the nature of his sources of information. His narrative of the approach of Jesus to Jerusalem, (ch. xviii. 15—43, continued in ch. xix. 29—38,) is obviously derived from the same general source as that in Mark x. 13—34, continued in x. 46—xi. 10. Into that narrative, Mark (in common with Matthew) introduces the application of the mother and sons of Zebedee, ch. x. 35—45 ; and St. Luke, his record respecting Zacchæus, which was obviously a separate document, derived, we may reasonably suppose, from Zacchæus himself, or some one of his family. Let us suppose that the record which Luke had of the approach to Jerusalem, expressed the history in the words which he has himself given in ver. 35 : these (see the Note on the verse) leave the reader at liberty to refer the words 'as he drew nigh', to Jerusalem (understood) ; just as in ch. xix. 29, ὡς ἡγγισεν, ἐν Βηθσαῳγῃ καὶ Βηθανίᾳ, πρὸς τὸ ὅπου τὸ καλουμένον ἐλαιῶν, the original may well be rendered, and probably does mean, 'as he drew nigh Jerusalem, at (or near) Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the Mount of Olives.' In this case, ἐν Ἱερικῷ could mean 'at (or near) Jericho;' and nothing could be determined, from the record alone, as to the locality of the miracle. The more copious information possessed by Mark enabled him to determine this; and he (as well as Matthew) has fixed it to the departure from Jericho—where, it may be observed, it is most probable that the blind men begging would take their station, as the concourse was towards Jerusalem for the Passover. In the ambiguity of the original record, which would naturally, in the train of events, lead any one to think of the approach to Jericho, St. Luke has so taken it. Except for the other records, we also should have so taken it, independently of what follows: and, indeed, except for St. Luke's inserting the record respecting Zacchæus, (which begins with our Lord's entering and passing through Jericho,) after the cure of Bartimæus, we might, with the other Gospels before us, have conjectured that St. Luke meant nothing more than that the miracle was wrought at Jericho, as our Lord was drawing nigh to Jerusalem.

In this view of the matter, the whole of the discrepancy resolves itself into the verbal ambiguity of the original record, the train of events leading to a natural, but, as it proves, erroneous interpretation of it.

Calvin (Harm. p. 265,) says that Osiander imagines there were four blind men; and that one was cured as Christ was entering Jericho, and another, and then two more, as he was going out: but he justly reprobates the supposition. His own supposition is, that the application of the blind man (with that of his companion) was made to our Lord as he was entering Jericho, but the cure actually wrought by him on his leaving the city. Close attention to the records of the first two Evangelists forbids the supposition that they thought so.—Macknight (in addition to two other explanations) adduces some reasons for supposing that Jericho consisted of an old and a new town; and that the first two Evangelists speak of our Lord's coming out from one, and St. Luke of his entering the other. But the supposition is destitute of the necessary evidence.—Mr. Greenwell, (Diss. xii.) following a "mode of reconciliation" "not more recommended (he says) by its antiquity than by its simplicity," supposes that there were "two miracles, each at different times, and on a different individual;" St. Luke recording one wrought on entering Jericho, St. Mark another on leaving it, and St. Matthew both of them together. But could St. Matthew, who was accompanying our Lord, have so recorded them, and yet placed both at his entering Jericho? and is it probable that the circumstances of each miracle, if separate, could have so corresponded as we find them in Mark and Luke?

By those who have been accustomed to consider the effects of the ambiguities of language, and to observe the diversities in evidence even when given by faithful and well informed witnesses, and especially the diversities produced by these causes in the narratives drawn up from such testimony, the discrepancy which exists in relation to the circumstances of the miracle, cannot reasonably be thought to throw any impeachment on St. Luke's fidelity and diligence of research. In another case, (the cure of the Centurion's servant,) his fuller and more precise information enables us to correct one particular in St. Matthew's brief record, (see p. 66,) without in any way impeaching the faithfulness of the Apostle: here the advantages possessed by an eye witness, and by another who would continually hear the circumstances of the last journey retraced by eye witnesses, enable us to correct one particular in St. Luke's narrative, without in any way impeaching his fidelity or his diligence of research. This is the simplest way of viewing the matter; and "truth is simple."

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART VIII.

FROM OUR LORD'S ARRIVAL AT BETHANY, TILL THE DAY ON WHICH HE ATE THE PASSOVER.

SECT. I.

Day of Christ's Arrival at Bethany: the Supper at Simon's House.*

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE	JOHN XI.
¹ Now when Jesus was at Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, ⁷ a	³ AND when he was at Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as		⁵⁵ Now the passover of the Jews was nigh: and many went up to Jerusalem out of the country before the passover, to purify themselves. ⁵⁶ They sought therefore for Jesus, and said among themselves, as they stood in the temple, "What think ye? that he will not come to the feast?" ⁵⁷ Now both the Chief Priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that, if any man should know where he was, he should declare it, that they might take him. CH. XII. Jesus therefore six days before the passover came to Bethany,

* The order of St. John is here followed; and οὐν, therefore, in ch. xii. 2, (except for his frequent employment of the word as little more than a connective,) would be decisive in favour of it. Matthew and Mark obviously introduce the transaction in connexion with the purposes of the Sanhedrim and the treachery of Judas; and it is not difficult, therefore, to see why they might postpone it: but St. John's narrative gives no room for the supposition that he anticipated the time. The calm-judging Newcome, however, and others, follow the order of Matthew and Mark.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE	JOHN XII.
woman came unto him having an alabaster box of balsam, exceedingly costly, and poured it on his head, as he was at table. ⁸ But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, "Wherefore is this waste? ⁹ For this balsam might have been sold for much, and given to the poor." ¹⁰ But Jesus knowing this, said unto them, "Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath done a good deed for me. ¹¹ For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always. ¹² For in that she hath poured this balsam upon my body, she hath done it for my burial. ¹³ Verily I say unto you, Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, this also which she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her."	he was at table, a woman came having an alabaster box of balsam of spikenard, pure and very precious; and she brake the alabaster box, and poured it on his head. ⁴ But there were some that had indignation within themselves, and said, "Wherefore was this waste of the balsam made? ⁵ for this balsam might have been sold for above three hundred denarii, and given to the poor." And they expressed displeasure against her. ⁶ But Jesus said, "Let her alone; why trouble ye her? she hath done a good deed for me. ⁷ For ye have the poor always with you; and whensoever ye will ye can do them good: but me ye have not always. ⁸ She hath done what she could: she hath anointed my body beforehand for burial. ⁹ Verily I say unto you, Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, this also which she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her."		where Lazarus was that had been dead, whom he raised from the dead. ² They made therefore a supper for him there; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that were at table with him. ³ Mary therefore took a pound of balsam of spikenard, pure and very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the balsam. ⁴ One of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, son of Simon,* he who was about to betray him, saith therefore, ⁵ "Why was not this balsam sold for three hundred denarii, and given to the poor?" ⁶ But he said this, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the purse, and carried what was put therein. ⁷ Jesus therefore said, "Let her alone: for the day of my burial she hath kept this. ⁸ For the poor ye have always with you; but me ye have not always." ⁹ A great multitude of the Jews knew therefore that he was there: and they came not on account of Jesus only, but that they might also see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead.

* Or, Judas, son of Simon, a man of Karioth.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XII.
			¹⁰ Now the Chief Priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death; ¹¹ because on account of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

SECT. II.

THE FIRST DAY IN THE TEMPLE: Part I. Christ's Public Entry into Jerusalem: Miracles in the Temple.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE XIX.	JOHN XII.
AND when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and came to Bethphage, at the mount of Olives, then Jesus sent two disciples, ² saying unto them, "Go ye into the village over against you, and straightway ye will find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them , and bring them unto me. ³ And if any one say aught unto you, ye shall say, 'The Lord* hath need of them'; and straightway he will send† them ." ' (Now [all] was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, ⁵ 'Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an ass, even a colt the foal of an ass.')	AND when they draw nigh to Jerusalem, at Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount of Olives, he sendeth two of his disciples, ² and saith unto them, "Go ye into the village over against you: and straightway on entering into it, ye will find a colt tied, whereon no man hath sat; loose him, and bring him hither . ³ And if any one say unto you, 'Why do ye this?' say ye, 'The Lord* hath need of him'; and straightway he will send† him hither ." ⁴ And they went their way, and found the colt tied at the door without, in a place where two ways met; and they loose it. ⁵ And some of them that stood there said unto them, "What do ye, loosing	²⁹ AND it came to pass, as he drew nigh, at Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, ³⁰ saying "Go ye into the village over against you ; in which, as ye enter, ye will find a colt tied, whereon no man hath ever sat: loose him, and bring him hither . ³¹ And if any one ask you, 'Why do ye loose him ?' ye shall say thus unto him, 'Because the Lord* hath need of him.' ³² And they that were sent went their way, and found even as he had said unto them. ³³ And as they were loosing the colt, the owners thereof said unto them, "Why loose ye the colt?" ³⁴ And they said, "The Lord* hath	¹² ON the next day a great multitude who had come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, ¹³ took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, "Hosanna: Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord! the King of Israel"! ¹⁴ Now Jesus, having procured a young ass, sat thereon; according as it is written, ¹⁵ 'Fear not, daughter of Sion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting upon an ass's colt.' ¹⁶ (Now his disciples understood not these things at first: but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things for him.) ¹⁷ The mul-

* Or, the Master. In ver. 33, οἱ κυριοι is rendered owners.
† Griesb. reads αποστέλλει, in the present tense for the future. † και πολλον υιον υποζυγιου.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE XIX.	JOHN XII.
disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them, ⁷ and brought the ass, and the colt, and put on them their garments; and he sat upon them. ⁸ And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way; and others cut down branches from the trees, and strewed them in the way. ⁹ And the multitudes that went before, and those that followed, cried, saying, "Hosanna to the son of David! Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!"	the colt?" ⁶ And they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded: and they let them go. ⁷ And they brought the colt to Jesus, and they cast their garments on him; and he sat upon him. ⁸ And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strewed them in the way. ⁹ And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, "Hosanna! Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord! ¹⁰ Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that now cometh! Hosanna in the highest!"	need of him." ³⁵ And they brought him to Jesus: and they threw their garments upon the colt, and they set Jesus on him. ³⁶ And as he went, they spread their garments in the way. ³⁷ And as he was now drawing nigh, at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works which they had seen; ³⁸ saying, "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord! Peace in heaven, and glory in the highest!" ³⁹ And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, "Teacher, rebuke thy disciples." ⁴⁰ And he answered and said unto them, "I tell you that, if these should be silent, the stones would immediately cry out." ⁴¹ And as he drew nigh, and beheld the city, he wept over it, ⁴² saying, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things relating unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes. ⁴³ For the days will come upon thee, when thine enemies	titude therefore that was with him bare testimony that he called Lazarus out of the tomb, and raised him from the dead. ¹⁸ For this cause also the multitude met him, because they heard that he had done this miracle. ¹⁹ The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, "Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold the world hath gone away after him."

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE XIX.	JOHN
¹⁰ And when he entered into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, "Who is this?" ¹¹ And the multitude said, "This is Jesus, the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee." * ¹⁴ And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them. ¹⁵ But when the Chief Priests and the Scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, "Hosanna to the son of David!" they were moved with indignation, ¹⁶ and said unto him, "Hear-est thou what these say?" And Jesus saith unto them, "Yes; have ye never read, 'Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings	¹¹ And [Jesus] entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple:	will cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, ⁴⁴ and lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and will not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation."

* Here St. Matthew introduces the second cleansing of the Temple. Apparently hastening to the important transactions of the last day in the Temple, of which he has transmitted peculiarly full records, he has given the previous transactions with so much brevity, and with so little of his usual distinctness, that it could not have been ascertained from his Gospel alone that this last was the third day. On the other hand, St. Mark, who was a resident in Jerusalem, and likely to be peculiarly attentive to the details of that period, as far as they could be known to him, is very distinct in his records of it, and clearly specifies three days; assigning to each its peculiar circumstances. On this account, the present arrangement here follows that of St. Mark; in which it agrees with Newcome's and Greswell's, &c.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE	JOHN
thou hast perfected praise? ' ' "
¹⁷ And he left them, and went forth out of the city into Bethany, and lodged there.	and when he had looked round about upon all things, the eventide being now come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.		John 12; 36.

SECT. III.

THE FIRST DAY IN THE TEMPLE: Part II. The Voice in the Temple. General Observations of the Evangelist. Declaration of Christ respecting the Authority of his Word.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XII.
			²⁰ Now there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast. ²¹ These therefore came to Philip, (he that was from Bethsaida of Galilee,) and besought him, saying, "Sir, we desire to see Jesus." ²² Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and, again, Andrew and Philip tell Jesus. ²³ But Jesus answered them, saying, "The hour hath come, that the Son of man should be glorified. ²⁴ Verily, verily, I say unto you, Unless a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. ²⁵ He that loveth his life will lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world will keep it unto everlasting life. ²⁶ If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will the Father honour. ²⁷ Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour? but for this cause I came unto this hour. ²⁸ Father, glorify thy name." There came therefore a voice from heaven, "I have both glorified it and will glorify it again." ²⁹ The multitude therefore, that stood by and heard, said that it thundered: others said, "An angel spake to him." ³⁰ Jesus answered and said, "This voice came not for my sake, but for your sakes. ³¹ Now is the judgment of [this] world: now will the ruler of this world be cast out. ³² And when I have been lifted up from the earth, I shall draw all men unto me." ³³ (This he said, signifying by what death he was about to die.) ³⁴ The multitude answered him, "We have heard out of the law that the Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou [that] the Son of man must be lifted up? who is this Son of man?" ³⁵ Jesus said therefore unto them, "Yet a

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XII.
Matt. 21; 17.	Mark 11; 11.		little while the light is with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you : and he that walketh in darkness, knoweth not whither he goeth. ³⁶ While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be sons of light.”
			These things spake Jesus, and departed and hid himself from them.
		Is. 53; 1.	³⁷ But though he had done so many miracles before them, they believed not in him : ³⁸ that the word of Isaiah the prophet might be fulfilled,* which he spake, ‘ Lord, who hath believed our report ? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed ? ’
		Is. 6; 10.	³⁹ Therefore they could not believe, because Isaiah said again, ⁴⁰ ‘ He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart ; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them.’† ⁴¹ These things Isaiah said, when he saw his glory, and spake concerning him.
			⁴² Nevertheless even from among the Rulers many believed in him : but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him , lest they should be put out of the synagogue : ⁴³ for they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God.
			⁴⁴ Yet Jesus cried and said,‡ “ He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me : ⁴⁵ and he that seeth me seeth him that sent me. ⁴⁶ I have come as a light into the world, that every one who believeth on me may not abide in darkness. ⁴⁷ And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not ; for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. ⁴⁸ He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him ; the word which I have spoken, that shall judge him in the last day. ⁴⁹ For I have not spoken of myself ; but the Father who sent me, he gave me a a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak. ⁵⁰ And I know that his commandment is everlasting life : whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so to speak.”

• Or, so that the word of Isaiah the prophet was fulfilled.

* Or, (as Archbp. Newcome renders it,) so that they see not with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and turn, that I should heal them.

‡ Mr. Greswell and other Harmonists place the following all-important declaration on the last day in the Temple. There is nothing which absolutely decides its true position : and it is deemed best to leave it in its connexion, familiar as this is to the mind. Indeed there is no improbability in the supposition that our Lord had previously uttered it, in the Temple, on this first day ; and this arrangement appears better to suit the calm dignity of the declaration itself, compared with the characteristics of the last day.

SECT. IV.

THE SECOND DAY IN THE TEMPLE.—The Miracle on the Barren Fig-tree: the Temple cleared.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE XIX.	JOHN
¹⁸ Now in the morning as he was returning to the city, he was hungry. ¹⁹ And when he saw a * fig-tree near the way, he went to it, and found nothing thereon but leaves only; and he saith unto it, "Let no fruit grow on thee hereafter for ever." And immediately the fig-tree withered away.† ¹² And Jesus entered into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold doves, ¹³ and saith unto them,	¹² And on the morrow, when they had come forth from Bethany, he was hungry: ¹³ and seeing a fig-tree afar off, having leaves, he went to it, if perchance he might find any thing thereon; (and when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves;) for it was not yet the time of figs.† ¹⁴ and he answered and said unto it, "Let no one eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever." And his disciples heard it. ¹⁵ And they come to Jerusalem: and he entered into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold doves: ¹⁶ and would not suffer any one to carry a vessel through the temple. ¹⁷ And he taught, saying unto them,	⁴⁵ And he entered into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold [therein and bought]; ⁴⁶ saying unto them,

* Or, a single fig-tree, συκην μίαν.

† From the compressed narrative given by St. Matthew, it would not have been known that the observation of the Disciples which he next records was made on the following morning, when Jesus was again going from Bethany to the Temple; but on this, St. Mark is quite explicit. See the next Section.

‡ Or, the season of gathering figs.—The meaning is the same. As the fig-season had not arrived, there was reason to expect that figs would be found on the tree, though not yet ripe. The fruit of the fig-tree is produced not from the smaller shoots, as in most trees, but from the trunk and large branches, and it would be necessary to come close to it in order to see whether there were fruit on it. For a similar parenthesis to the above, in this Gospel, see ch. xvi. 3, 4.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE XIX.	JOHN
"It is written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer;' but ye have made it a den of robbers."	"Is it not written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations' ? but ye have made it a den of robbers." 18 And the Scribes and Chief Priests heard it ; and they sought how they might destroy him : for they feared him, because all the multitude were astonished at his doctrine. 19 And when evening came, he went forth out of the city.	"It is written, 'My house is a house of prayer : ' but ye have made it a den of robbers." 47 And he taught daily in the temple. But the Chief Priests and the Scribes and the Chiefs of the people * sought to destroy him ; 48 and could not find what they might do : for all the people were eagerly attentive to hear him.†	Is. 56 ; 7. Jer. 7 ; 11.

SECT. V.

THE LAST DAY IN THE TEMPLE.— § 1. On the Way to Jerusalem, the Disciples observe the Withered Fig-Tree : Christ's Declarations thereon.— § 2. In the Temple, the Sanhedrim demand his Authority.— § 3. Parable of the Two Sons.— § 4. The Vineyard let out to Husbandmen.— § 5. The Marriage-Feast.— § 6. On Tribute to Cæsar.— § 7. Respecting the Resurrection.— § 8. The Great Commandment.— § 9. Our Lord questions the Pharisees.— § 10. His Approbation of the Poor Widow.— § 11. His Final Discourse, denouncing the Scribes and Pharisees.— § 12. On leaving the Temple, he foretells its Utter Destruction.

MATT. XXI. § 1.	MARK XI. § 1.	LUKE	JOHN
20 AND when the disciples saw it,† they wondered, saying, "How soon ‡ is the fig-tree	20 AND in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig-tree withered away from the roots. 21 And Peter calling to remembrance saith unto him, " Rabbi, behold, the fig-tree which thou

* Οἱ πρῶτοι, equivalent to οἱ πρεσβύτεροι in Matt. xxi. 23. † Lit. hung upon him listening.

‡ See Sect. IV. § Παράκλημα, as in ver. 19.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XI.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
withered away !” ²¹ But Jesus answered and said unto them, “ Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do what hath been done to the fig-tree, but even if ye shall say unto this mountain, ‘ Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea ;’ it shall be done. ²² And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.	cursedst * is withered away.” ²² And Jesus answering saith unto them, “ Have faith in God. ²³ For verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall say unto this mountain, ‘ Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea ;’ and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that what he saith cometh to pass ; he shall have whatsoever he saith. ²⁴ Wherefore I say unto you, Whatsoever things ye ask, when praying, believe that ye are receiving them , and ye shall have them . ²⁵ And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have any complaint against any one ; that your Father also who is in heaven may forgive you your offences. ²⁶ But if ye do not forgive, neither will your Father who is in heaven forgive your offences.
§ 2. ²³ And when he was come into the temple, the Chief Priests and the Elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, and said, “ By what authority doest thou these things ? and who gave thee this authority ?” ²⁴ But Jesus answered and said unto	§ 2. ²⁷ And they come again to Jerusalem : and as he was walking in the temple, there come to him the Chief Priests, and the Scribes, and the Elders, ²⁸ and say unto him, “ By what authority doest thou these things ? and who gave thee this authority to do these things ?” ²⁹ But Jesus answered and said unto	§ 2. AND it came to pass, that on one of those days, as he was teaching the people in the temple, and declaring his glad tidings, the Chief Priests and the Scribes came up with the Elders, ² and spake unto him, saying, “ Tell us, by what authority doest thou these things ? or who is he that gave thee this authority ?” ³ But

* Or, didst devote to destruction. The original is from καταραομαι. From our associations with the word curse, the common rendering is apt to convey an erroneous impression. We know, however, what our Lord actually said when he “ cursed ” the fig-tree ; and must explain the expression of Peter by it.

MATT. XXI.

them, "I also will ask you one thing; which if ye tell me, I also will tell you by what authority I do these things: ²⁵ Whence was the baptism of John? from heaven, or from men?" And they reasoned with themselves, saying, "If we should say, 'From heaven,' he will say unto us, 'Why therefore did ye not believe him?'" ²⁶ but if we should say, 'Of men,' we fear the multitude; for all hold John as a prophet." ²⁷ And they answered Jesus, and said, "We do not know." And he said unto them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

§ 3.

²⁸ "But what think ye? A man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, 'Son, go, work to-day in [my] vineyard.' ²⁹ And he answered and said, 'I will not:' but he afterward changed his mind, and went. ³⁰ And he came to the other, and said likewise. And he answered and said, 'I go, sir:' yet he went not. ³¹ Which of these two did the will of his father?" They say unto him, "The first." Jesus saith unto them, "Verily I say unto you, The publicans and the harlots go before you them, "I also will ask of you one thing; and do ye answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things: ³⁰ Was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men? answer me." ³¹ And they reasoned among themselves, saying, "If we should say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why therefore did ye not believe him?'" ³² but [if] we should say, 'Of men,'"—they feared the people; for all men held, as to John, that he was a prophet indeed. ³³ And they answered and say unto Jesus, "We do not know." And Jesus answered, and saith unto them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things."

MARK XI.

LUKE XX.

he answered and said unto them, "I also will ask you one thing; and tell me: ⁴ Was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men?" ⁵ And they reasoned together among themselves, saying, "If we should say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why therefore did ye not believe him?'" ⁶ but if we should say, 'From men,' all the people will stone us; for they are persuaded that John was a prophet." ⁷ And they answered, that they did not know whence it was. ⁸ And Jesus said unto them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things."

JOHN

MATT. XXI.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
into the kingdom of God. 32 For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: but the publicans and the harlots believed him: and ye, when ye had seen it , changed not your minds afterward, so as to believe him.
§ 4. 33 “Hear ye another parable: There was a housholder,* who planted a vineyard, and set a hedge round it, and dug a winepress in it, and built a tower; and he let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country. 34 Now when the season of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants,† to the husbandmen, to receive the fruits of it. 35 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another. 36 Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise. 37 But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, ‘They will reverence my son.’ 38 But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, ‘This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.’ 39 And	§ 4. And he began to say unto them in parables: “A man planted a vineyard, and set a hedge about it , and dug a winepress, and built a tower; and he let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country. 2 And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a servant,† that he might receive of the husbandmen from the fruit of the vineyard. 3 And they took him , and beat him , and sent him away empty. 4 And again he sent unto them another servant; and him they [stoned, and] wounded him in the head, and sent him away shamefully treated. 5 And he sent another; and him they killed: and many others; beating some, and killing others. 6 Still, therefore, having one son, his beloved, he sent him also unto them last, saying, ‘They	§ 4. 9 And he began to speak to the people this parable: “A man planted a vineyard, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country for a long time. 10 And at the season he sent a servant† to the husbandmen, that they might give him from the fruit of the vineyard: but the husbandmen beat him, and sent him away empty. 11 And further he sent another servant: and they beat him also, and entreated him shamefully, and sent him away empty. 12 And further he sent a third: but they wounded him also, and cast him out. 13 But the lord of the vineyard said, ‘What shall I do? I will send my beloved son: perhaps [when they see him] they will reverence him.’ 14 But when the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, ‘This is

* Here the common translation neglects ανθρωπος. See Note * p. 175.

† Or, slaves or slave. And so throughout.

MATT. XXI.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
they took him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him. ⁴⁰ When therefore the lord of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?" ⁴¹ They say unto him, "He will wretchedly destroy those wretched men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, who will render him the fruits in their seasons." ⁴² Jesus saith unto them, "Have ye never read in the scriptures, 'The stone which the builders rejected, this hath become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing,* and it is wonderful in our eyes'?" ⁴³ Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God will be taken from you, and will be given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. ⁴⁴ And he that shall fall on this stone will be broken by it: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will crush him to pieces." ⁴⁵ And when the Chief Priests and the Pharisees had heard his parables, they knew that he spake concerning them. ⁴⁶ Yet when they sought to take him, they feared the multitudes, because they held him as a prophet. § 5. CH. XXII. And Jesus answered and spake unto	will reverence my son.' ⁷ But those husbandmen said among themselves, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.' ⁸ And they took him, and killed him, and cast him forth out of the vineyard. ⁹ What therefore will the lord of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others. ¹⁰ Have ye not read this scripture; 'The stone which the builders rejected, this hath become the head of the corner: ¹¹ this was the Lord's doing,* and it is wonderful in our eyes?' " ¹² And they sought to take him, (yet feared the multitude :) for they knew that he spake the parable against them: and they left him, and went away.	the heir: come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.' ¹⁵ And they cast him forth out of the vineyard, and killed him. What therefore will the lord of the vineyard do unto them? ¹⁶ He will come and destroy these husbandmen, and will give the vineyard to others." And when they heard it, they said, "Far be this from us!" † ¹⁷ And he looked at ‡ them, and said, "What therefore is this that is written, 'The stone which the builders rejected, this hath become the head of the corner!' ¹⁸ Every one that shall fall upon that stone will be broken by it: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will crush him to pieces." ¹⁹ And the same hour the Chief Priests and the Scribes sought to lay hands on him; (yet they feared the people :) for they knew that he spake this parable against them.	Ps. 118; 22.

* Lit. this was from the Lord. † Lit. Let it not be so, μη γένοιτο. ‡ εμβλεψας.

MATT. XXII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
them again in parables, saying, ² “ The kingdom of heaven is like a king, who made a marriage-feast for his son, ³ and sent forth his servants to invite* them that had been invited to the marriage: and they would not come. ⁴ Again he sent forth other servants, saying, ‘Tell them who have been invited, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: my oxen and fatlings have been killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage-feast.’ ⁵ But they cared not for it , and went away, one to his farm, another to his merchandize: ⁶ and the remnant took his servants, and treated them insolently, and slew them . ⁷ But the king, [having heard thereof ,] was angry: and he sent his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city. ⁸ Then he saith to his servants, ‘The marriage-feast is ready, but they who were invited were not worthy. ⁹ Go ye therefore into the public places,† and as many as ye shall find, invite to the marriage-feast.’ ¹⁰ And those servants went forth into the streets, and

* The verb is καλεω in both places. In ancient times the invitation was twice given; the second time when the feast was ready. See Kuinoel.

† Επι τας διεξόδους των ὁδῶν. The most probable meaning of these words is, those parts of a city in which the streets or roads terminate. See Kuinoel and Schlensner.

MATT. XXII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good : and the marriage-feast was filled with guests. ¹¹ But when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man who had not put on a marriage-garment: ¹² and he saith unto him, ‘ Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a marriage-garment?’ And he was speechless. ¹³ Then said the king to the attendants, ‘ Bind him hand and foot, and [take him away, and] cast him into the outer darkness ; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ ¹⁴ For many are called, but few chosen.” § 6. ¹⁵ Then the Pharisees went and took counsel how they might ensnare him in discourse. ¹⁶ And they send to him their own disciples with the Herodians, saying, “ Teacher, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, and carest not for any one : for thou regardest not the person of men. ¹⁷ Tell us therefore what thou thinkest : Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not ? ” ¹⁸ But Jesus knew their wickedness, and said, “ Why do ye try me, ye hypocrites ? ¹⁹ shew me the tribute money.” And they	§ 6. ¹³ And they send unto him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, that they might catch him in discourse. ¹⁴ And when they came, they say unto him, “ Teacher, we know that thou art true, and carest not for any one : for thou regardest not the person of men, but teachest the way of God in truth : Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not ? ¹⁵ Should we give, or should we not give ? ” But he perceived their hypocrisy, and said unto them, “ Why do ye try me ? bring me a denarius, that I may see it.”	§ 6. ²⁰ And they watched him, and sent spies, feigning themselves to be righteous men, that they might lay hold of his discourse, in order to deliver him up unto the power and authority of the governor. ²¹ And they questioned him, saying, “ Teacher, we know that thou speakest and teachest rightly, and dost not respect the person of any, but teachest the way of God in truth : ²² Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not ? ” ²³ But he understood their craftiness, and said unto them, “ [Why do ye try me ?] ²⁴ shew me a denarius.

MATT. XXII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
brought unto him a denarius. ²⁰ And he saith unto them, "Whose is this image and inscription?" ²¹ They say unto him, "Cæsar's." Then saith he unto them, "Render therefore unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and unto God the things which are God's." ²² And when they heard these words, they wondered; and they left him, and went away. § 7. ²³ In that day there came to him Sadducees, who say that there is no resurrection: and they questioned him, ²⁴ saying, "Teacher, Moses said, 'If any one die, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up offspring unto his brother.' ²⁵ Now there were with us seven brethren: and the first, after having married, died; and, having no offspring, left his wife to his brother: ²⁶ in like manner both the second, and the third, to the seven: ²⁷ and last of all the woman also died. ²⁸ In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife will she be of the seven? for they all had her." ²⁹ But Jesus answered and said unto	¹⁶ And they brought one. And he saith unto them, "Whose is this image and inscription?" And they said unto him, "Cæsar's." ¹⁷ And Jesus answering said unto them, "Render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and unto God the things which are God's." And they wondered at him. § 7. ¹⁸ And there come unto him Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection: and they questioned him, saying, ¹⁹ "Teacher, Moses wrote for us, if the brother of any one die, and leave a wife, and leave no children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up offspring unto his brother. ²⁰ There were seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and dying left no offspring: ²¹ and the second took her, and died; neither left he any offspring: and the third in like manner: ²² and the seven took her, and left no offspring: last of all the woman also died. ²³ In the resurrection, therefore, [when they shall rise again,] whose wife shall she be of them? for the seven had her as a wife." ²⁴ And Jesus answering said unto them, "Do ye	Whose image and inscription hath it?" They answered and said, "Cæsar's." ²⁵ And he said unto them, "Render therefore unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and unto God the things which are God's." ²⁶ And they could not lay hold of his words before the people: and they wondered at his answer, and kept silence. § 7. ²⁷ Now certain of the Sadducees, who deny that there is a resurrection, came to him, and questioned him, ²⁸ saying, "Teacher, Moses wrote for us, if the brother of any one die, having a wife, and he die childless, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up offspring unto his brother. ²⁹ There were therefore seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died childless: ³⁰ and the second took the woman, and he died childless: ³¹ and the third took her: and in like manner also all the seven: and they left no children, and died: ³² and last of all the woman died also. ³³ In the resurrection therefore, whose wife of them doth she become? for the seven had her as a wife?" ³⁴ And Jesus answering

MATT. XXII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
them, "Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God. ³⁰ For in the resurrection, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. ³¹ But concerning the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, ³² 'I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?' God is not God of the dead, but of the living."	not on this account err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God? ²⁵ For when they rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels that are in heaven. ²⁶ But concerning the dead, that they are raised, have ye not read in the book of Moses, how in the bush God spake unto him, saying, 'I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?' ²⁷ God is not God of the dead, but of the living: ye therefore err greatly."	said unto them, "The sons of this world * marry, and are given in marriage: ³⁵ but those accounted worthy to obtain that world,* and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage: ³⁶ nor indeed can they die any more; for they are like the angels; and they are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection. ³⁷ But that the dead are raised, even Moses showed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord, 'the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.' ³⁸ Now he is not God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him."	Ex. 3; 6.
³³ And when the multitudes heard this, they were astonished at his doctrine.
§ 8.	§ 8.	§ 8.
³⁴ But when the Pharisees heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together for the same purpose. ³⁵ And one of them, a lawyer, asked him a question, trying him, and saying, ³⁶ "Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law?" ³⁷ Jesus said unto him, "'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart,	²⁸ And one of the Scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him this question, "Which is the first commandment of all?" ²⁹ And Jesus answered him, "The first commandment of all is, 'Hear, O Israel, The Lord our God is one Lord:† ³⁰ and thou shalt love the Lord thy God	³⁹ Certain of the Scribes answered and said, "Teacher, thou hast said well."	Deut. 6; 4, 5.

* Or, life, αἰών. See Note, p. 129.

† Or, The Lord, our God, the Lord is one.

MATT. XXII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind :’ 38 this is the first and great commandment. 39 And the second is like it, ‘Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.’ 40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.”	with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength :’ this is the first commandment. 31 And the second is like it, namely this, ‘Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.’ ‘There is no other commandment greater than these.” 32 And the Scribe said unto him, “ Well, Teacher, thou hast spoken in truth: for there is one; and there is none other but he :* 33 and to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love one’s neighbour as oneself, is more than all whole burnt-offerings and sacrifices.” 34 And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, “ Thou art not far from the kingdom of God.” And no one durst question him any more.
§ 9. 41 While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus questioned them, 42 saying, “ What think ye concerning the Christ? whose son is he? ” They say unto him, “ The son of David.” 43 He saith unto them, “ Why therefore doth David by the Spirit call him Lord, saying,	§ 9. 35 And Jesus answered and said, as he was teaching in the temple, “ Why say the Scribes that the Christ is the Son of David? 36 For David himself said by the Holy Spirit, ‘ The Lord said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy	40 And they no more durst question him on any thing. § 9. 41 And he said unto them, “ Why say they that the Christ is the Son of David? 42 Yet David himself saith in the book of Psalms, ‘ The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 43 till I make thine enemies thy footstool.’ 44 David therefore call.

* Or, Well, Teacher, thou hast said with truth that there is one God, (or that he is one;) and there is no other except him.

MATT. XXII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
16 ‘The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool!’ 45 If David therefore call him Lord, how is he his son?” 46 And no one was able to answer him a word, nor did any one dare from that day* to question him any more.	footstool.’ 37 Therefore David himself calleth him Lord; and whence is he his son?” And the great multitude heard him gladly. § 10. 41 And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the multitude cast money into the treasury. And many rich men cast in much. 42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she cast in two mites, (which make a farthing.) 43 And he called unto him his disciples, and said unto them, “Verily I say unto you, This poor widow hath cast in more than all who have cast into the treasury: 44 for they all have cast in from their abundance, but she from her poverty hath cast in all that she had, even all her living.” § 11. 38 And he said unto them in his teaching,	eth him Lord, and how is he his son?” § 10. CH. XXI. And he looked up, and saw the rich casting their gifts into the treasury. 2 And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites. 3 And he said, “Of a truth I say unto you, This poor widow hath cast in more than they all: 4 for all these have cast in from their abundance unto the offerings of God: but she from her poverty hath cast in all the living that she had.” § 11. CH. XX. 45 Now while all the people heard, he said unto his disciples,

* Or, from that time—since the next discourse of our Lord (Matt. xxiii.) was obviously delivered just before he finally left the Temple; (probably, like those preceding, in the Outer Court—say in Solomon’s Portico.) For the same reason, the record respecting the Widow is here placed before that discourse.

MATT. XXIII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
according to their works : for they say, and do not. ⁴ For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders ; but they themselves are not willing to move them with one of their fingers. ⁵ But all their works they do in order to be seen by men. And they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders* of their garments, ⁶ and love the chief place at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, ⁷ and salutations in the market-places, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi. ⁸ But be not ye called Rabbi : for one is your Leader ; † and all ye are brethren. ⁹ And call not any one your Father upon the earth : for one is your Father, who is in heaven. ¹⁰ Nor be ye called Leaders : for one is your Leader, even the Christ. ¹¹ But the greatest among you shall be your servant. ‡ ¹² And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be humbled ; and whosoever shall humble himself shall be exalted. ¹⁴ “ But woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! [for ye devour	“ Beware of the Scribes, who desire to walk in long robes, and love salutations in the market-places, ³⁹ and the chief seats in the synagogues, and the chief places at feasts :	⁴⁶ “ Take heed of the Scribes, who desire to walk in long robes, and love salutations in the market-places, and the chief seats in the synagogues, and the chief places at feasts ;

* Or, fringes. See Numb. xv. 38, 39.

† Or, Guide, or, Teacher, καθηγητης. In ver. 16, ὁδηγοι is properly rendered guide ; or that word might be employed here.

‡ Or, attendant, διακονος.

MATT. XXIII.	MARK XII.	LUKE XX.	JOHN
widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: therefore ye shall receive the greater condemnation. ¹³ Woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites!] for ye shut the kingdom of heaven against* men: for ye enter not yourselves ; nor do ye suffer them that are entering to enter. ¹⁴ Woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! [for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he hath become so, ye make him twofold more a son of hell than yourselves. ¹⁵ Woe for you, blind guides! who say, 'Whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is bound by his oath.' ¹⁶ Foolish and blind! for which is greater? the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold? ¹⁷ And 'Whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gift that is upon it, he is bound by his oath.' ¹⁸ Foolish and blind! for which is greater? the gift, or the altar that sanctifieth the gift? ¹⁹ He therefore that sweareth by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon. ²⁰ And he that	⁴⁰ who devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: these will receive a greater condemnation."	⁴⁷ who devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: these will receive a greater condemnation."

* Or, before, εμπροσθεν. The clause appears to denote much the same as our expression, "he shut the door in their face."

MATT. XXIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
sweareth by the temple, sweareth by it, and by him that dwelleth therein. ²² And he that swear-eth by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon. ²³ Woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and omit the weightier matters of the law—justice, mercy, and faithfulness: but these things ye ought to have done, and not to leave the other undone. ²⁴ Blind guides! who strain out a gnat, and swallow a camel. ²⁵ Woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but within they are full of plunder and injustice. ²⁶ Blind Pharisee! cleanse first that which is within the cup [and the dish,] that the outside also of them may be clean. ²⁷ Woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outwardly, but within are full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. ²⁸ Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men; but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity. ²⁹ Woe for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because ye build

MATT. XXIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
the tombs of the prophets, and adorn the sepulchres of the righteous, ³⁰ and say, 'If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets.' ³¹ Wherefore ye bear testimony unto yourselves, that ye are sons of them that killed the prophets. ³² And fill ye up the measure of your fathers. ³³ Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the condemnation of hell? ³⁴ Wherefore, behold, I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye will kill and crucify; and some of them ye will scourge in your synagogues, and persecute from city to city: ³⁵ that upon you may come * all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zachariah son of Barachiah, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar. ³⁶ Verily I say unto you, All these things shall come upon this generation. ³⁷ "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that have been sent unto thee! how often would I have gathered thy children together unto me, as a hen gathereth her chickens		Ch. xi. 47, 48. See p. 121. Ch. xi. 49—51. See p. 122. Ch. xiii. 34, 35. See p. 182.

* Or, so that upon you will come.

MATT. XXIII.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN under her wings, and ye would not ! ³⁸ Behold, your house is left by you desolate. ³⁹ For I say unto you, Ye will not see me henceforth, until ye shall say, ‘ Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.’ ”
§ 12.	§ 12.	§ 12.
CH. XXIV. And Jesus went forth, and was departing from the temple: and his disciples came to him to shew him the buildings of the temple. ² But Jesus said unto them, “ See ye [not] all these things ? verily I say unto you, There will not be left here one stone upon another, that will not be thrown down.”	And as he was departing out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him, “ Teacher, behold ! what stones and what buildings ! ” ² And Jesus answered and said unto him, “ Seest thou these great buildings ? there will not be left one stone upon another, that will not be thrown down.”	⁵ And as some spake concerning the temple, that it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts, he said, ⁶ “ These things which ye behold—the days will come, in which there will not be left one stone upon another, that will not be thrown down.”

SECT. VI.

DISCOURSES ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES: Part I. Prophecy respecting the Destruction of Jerusalem: Exhortations to Watchfulness.

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
³ AND as he was sitting upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, “ Tell us, when will these things be ? and what will be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world ? ” * ⁴ And Jesus answered and said unto them, “ Take heed lest any one deceive you. ⁵ For many will come in my name, saying, ‘ I am the Christ ; ’ and will	³ AND as he was sitting upon the mount of Olives over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately, ⁴ “ Tell us, when shall these things be ? and what will be the sign when all these things are about to be fulfilled ? ” ⁵ But Jesus answering them began to say, “ Take heed lest any one deceive you : ⁶ for many will	⁷ AND they asked him, saying, “ Teacher, when therefore will these things be ? and what will be the sign when these things are about to come to pass ? ” ⁸ But he said, “ Take heed that ye be not deceived : for many will come in my name, saying, ‘ I am he ; ’ and the time draweth near : go ye not therefore after them. ⁹ But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions,

* Or, of the termination of this age (i. e. dispensation), της συντελειας του αιωνος.

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
deceive many. ⁶ But ye will hear of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled; for all things must come to pass; but the end is not yet. ⁷ For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there will be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places: ⁸ but all these things are the beginning of sorrows. ⁹ “Then will they deliver you up to tribulation, and will kill you; and ye will be hated by all nations for my name’s sake. ¹⁰ And then will many be caused to fall away; and they will deliver up one another, and hate one another. ¹¹ And many false prophets will arise, and will deceive many. ¹² And because iniquity shall be multiplied, the love of many will wax cold. ¹³ But he that endureth unto the end, the same will be preserved. † ¹⁴ And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world for a testimony unto all the nations; and then will the end come.	come in my name, saying, “I am he ;” and will deceive many. ⁷ But when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for these things must come to pass; but the end is not yet. ⁸ For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there will be earthquakes in divers places, and there will be famines and tumults: these things are the beginnings of sorrows. ⁹ “But take heed to yourselves: for they will deliver you up to councils; and ye will be beaten in synagogues; and ye will be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony unto them. ¹⁰ And the gospel must first be published among all nations. ¹¹ But when they shall bring you, and deliver you up, take no anxious thought beforehand what ye shall speak, [nor meditate]: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour, that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, but the Holy Spirit. ¹² But brother will deliver up brother to death; and father, his son; and children will rise up against their parents, and will cause them to be	be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not straightway.” ¹⁰ Then said he unto them, “Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: ¹¹ and there will be great earthquakes in divers places, and famines, and pestilences; and there will be fearful sights and great signs from heaven. ¹² “But before all these things, they will lay their hands upon you, and persecute you, delivering you up to synagogues and prisons, after ye have been brought before kings and governors for my name’s sake. ¹³ And this will befall you for a testimony. ¹⁴ Settle it therefore in your hearts not to premeditate what defence ye shall make. ¹⁵ For I will give you a mouth and wisdom, which not all your adversaries shall be able to gainsay or resist. ¹⁶ But ye will be delivered up both by parents, and brethren, and kindred, and friends; and some of you they will cause to be put to death. ¹⁷ And ye will be hated by all men for my name’s sake. ¹⁸ Yet a hair of

* ωδύρων, peculiarly the pangs of labour.
† σωθήσεται.

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
15 "When therefore ye shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in a holy place," (let him that readeth consider,) 16 "then let those that are in Judea flee to the mountains: 17 let not him that is on the housetop come down to take things out of his house: 18 and let not him that is in the field return back to take his garments. 19 But woe for them that are with child, and for them that give suck, in those days! 20 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, nor on the sabbath: 21 for then will be great tribulation, such as hath not been since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever will be. 22 And unless those days were shortened, no flesh could be preserved: but for the sake of the elect,* those days will be shortened.	put to death. 13 And ye will be hated by all men for my name's sake: but he that endureth unto the end, the same will be preserved.† 14 "But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, standing where it ought not," (let him that readeth understand,) "then let those that are in Judea flee to the mountains: 15 and let not him that is on the housetop come down into the house, nor enter therein, to take any thing out of his house: 16 and let not him that is in the field turn back again to take his garment. 17 But woe for them that are with child, and to them that give suck, in those days! 18 And pray ye that [your flight] be not in the winter. 19 For those days will be tribulation, such as hath not been from the beginning of the creation which God created, until this time, and will never be. 20 And unless the Lord shortened those days, no flesh could be preserved:† but for the sake of the elect,* whom he hath elected, he hath shortened the days.	your head shall not perish. 19 By your endurance ye will maintain your lives.‡ 20 "And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed by armies, then know that its desolation draweth near. 21 Then let those that are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let those that are in the midst of it depart out; and let not those that are in the country-places enter therein. 22 Because these are days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled. 23 But woe for them that are with child, and to them that give suck, in those days! for there will be great distress in the land, and wrath on this people. 24 And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem will be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles shall be fulfilled.§

* Or, the chosen, τους εκλεκτους. So in Mark xiii. 20, οὗς ἐξελεξατο, whom he hath chosen. The verb and adnoun, in Hellenistic usage, had the force of selected for privileges and approved for excellence: see Schleusner.

† σωθησεται.

‡ κτησασθε τας ψυχας υμων, the imperative having the force of the future.

§ This remarkable verse is peculiar to St. Luke's Gospel. So also is ver. 28.

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
²³ “ Then if any one shall say unto you, ‘ Lo here is the Christ,’ or, ‘ Here; ’ believe it not: ²⁴ for there will arise false Christs, and false prophets, and they will shew great signs and wonders; so as to deceive, if possible, even the elect.* ²⁵ Behold, I have foretold you all things. ²⁶ If therefore they say unto you, ‘ Behold, he is in the desert; ’ go not forth: ‘ Behold, he is in the secret chambers; ’ do not believe. ²⁷ For as the lightning cometh forth from the east, and shineth even unto the west; so will the coming of the Son of man [also] be. ²⁸ For wheresoever the carcase is, there will the eagles be gathered together.	²¹ “ And then if any one shall say to you, ‘ Lo, here is the Christ,’ or, ‘ Lo, there; ’ believe it not: ²² for there will arise false Christs and false prophets; and they will shew signs and wonders, to seduce, if possible, even the elect.* ²³ But take ye heed: behold, I have foretold you all things.
²⁹ “ But straightway after the tribulation of those days, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light, and the stars will fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken. ³⁰ And then will appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then will all the tribes of the land mourn, and they will see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. ³¹ And he will send his angels with a	²⁴ “ But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light, ²⁵ and the stars of heaven will fall, and the powers that are in the heavens will be shaken. ²⁶ And then will they see the Son of man coming in clouds with great power and glory. ²⁷ And then he will send his	²³ “ And there will be signs in the sun, and moon, and stars; and upon the earth anxiety of nations, with perplexity at the roaring of the sea and the waves; ²⁵ men’s hearts failing them † from fear and expectation of the evils coming on the earth; for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. ²⁷ And then will they see the Son of man coming on a cloud with power and great glory. ²⁸ But when these things ²⁷ And begin to come to pass, raise yourselves up, and

* See Note * in preceding page.

† Lit. men fainting away, ἀποψυχοντων ανθρωπων.

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
great sound of a trumpet, and they will gather together his elect * from the four winds, from one extremity of heaven to the other. †	angels, and will gather together his elect * from the four winds, from the extremity of earth to the extremity of heaven.	lift up your heads ; for your redemption ‡ draw-eth nigh.”
32 “ But learn a parable from the fig-tree ; When its branch is yet tender, and the leaves shoot forth, ye know that summer is nigh : 33 so likewise, when ye see all these things, know ye that he is nigh, even at the doors. 34 Verily I say unto you, This generation will not pass away, till all these things come to pass. 35 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words cannot pass away.	28 “ But learn a parable from the fig-tree ; When its branch is yet tender, and the leaves shoot forth, ye know that the summer is nigh : 29 so likewise, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that he is nigh, even at the doors. 30 Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass away, till all these things come to pass. 31 Heaven and earth will pass away : but my words cannot pass away.	29 And he spake a parable to them ; “ Behold the fig-tree, and all the trees : 30 when they now put forth leaves, seeing this, ye know of yourselves that the summer is now nigh. 31 So likewise, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh. 32 Verily I say unto you, This generation will not pass away, till all things come to pass. 33 Heaven and earth will pass away : but my words cannot pass away.
36 “ But concerning that day and hour knoweth no one, not even the angels of heaven, but [my] Father only. 37 But as the days of Noah, so will also be the coming of the Son of man. 38 For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, 39 and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away ; so will also be the coming of the Son of man.	32 “ But concerning that day or hour knoweth no one, neither the angels who are in heaven, nor the Son, but the Father.

* See Note • p. 216.

† απ' ακρων ουρανων εως ακρων αυτων. In Mark the expression is, απ' ακρου γης εως ακρου ουρανου.

‡ Or, deliverance, απολυτρωσις,

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
⁴⁰ Then two will be in the field; the one is taken, and the other is left. ⁴¹ Two women will be grinding at the mill; one is taken, and the other is left.
⁴² “ Watch therefore : for ye know not at what hour your Lord cometh.	³³ “ Take ye heed, watch, and pray : for ye know not when the time is.	³⁴ “ But take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be weighed down with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and that day come upon you unawares. ³⁵ For as a snare it will come on all that dwell on the face of the whole land. ³⁶ “ Watch ye therefore, praying always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that are about to come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.
⁴³ Now ye know this, that if the master of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.* ⁴⁴ Therefore be ye also ready : for at an hour when ye think not, the Son of man cometh.		CH. XII. ³⁹ “ Now ye know this, that if the master of the house had known at what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.* ⁴⁰ Be ye therefore also ready : for at an hour when ye think not, the Son of man cometh.”
	³⁴ The Son of man is as a man going into a far country, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every one his work, and charged the porter to watch.

* See Note ; p. 178. The passages from Luke xii. are repeated here to shew the correspondence.

MATT. XXIV.	MARK XIII.	LUKE [XII.]	JOHN
⁴⁵ Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom his lord* hath made ruler† over his household, to give them meat in due season? ⁴⁶ Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. ⁴⁷ Verily I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all his possessions. ⁴⁸ But and if that evil servant say in his heart, ‘My lord delayeth his coming;’ ⁴⁹ and begin to beat his fellow-servants, and eat and drink with the drunken; ⁵⁰ the lord of that servant will come in a day in which he looketh not for him, and at an hour of which he is not aware, ⁵¹ and will cut him in sunder,‡ and will appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”	³⁵ Watch ye therefore: (for ye know not when the master§ of the house cometh; at evening, or at midnight, or at cock-crowing, or at morning :) ³⁶ lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. ³⁷ And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.”	⁴² But the Lord said, “Who is then the faithful and wise steward, whom his lord* will make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of food in due season? ⁴³ Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. ⁴⁴ Truly I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all his possessions. ⁴⁵ But if that servant say in his heart, ‘My lord delayeth his coming;’ and shall begin to beat the men-servants and the maid-servants, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken; ⁴⁶ the lord of that servant will come in a day in which he looketh not for him, and at an hour of which he is not aware, and will cut him in sunder,‡ and will appoint him his portion with the unfaithful.”

* See Note * p. 179.

† Or, hath set, κατεστήσεν. The same verb occurs in the 47th verse, and in ch. xxv. 21, 23; as also in Luke xii. 14, 42, 44; but in no other parts of the Gospels.

‡ See Note † p. 179.

§ ὁ κυριος.

SECT. VII.

DISCOURSES ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES : Part II. The Ten Virgins :
the Talents : the Last Judgment.

MATT. XXV.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
“ THEN will the kingdom of heaven be like unto ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom. ² And five of them were wise,* and five were foolish. ³ Those that were foolish took their lamps and took no oil with them : ⁴ but the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps. ⁵ Now while the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept. ⁶ But at midnight there was a cry made, ‘ Behold the bridegroom cometh ; go ye forth to meet him.’ ⁷ Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps. ⁸ And the foolish said unto the wise, ‘ Give us of your oil ; for our lamps are going out.’ ⁹ But the wise answered, saying, ‘ Not so ; lest there be not enough for us and you : go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.’ ¹⁰ And while they were going to buy, the bridegroom came ; and the virgins that were ready went in with him to the marriage-feast ; and the door was shut. ¹¹ And afterward the other virgins also come, saying, ‘ Lord, Lord, open to us.’ ¹² But he answered and said, ‘ Verily I say unto you, I know you not.’—¹³ Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour. ¹⁴ “ For the Son of man is as a man traveling into a far country,† who called his own servants,‡ and delivered unto them his possessions. ¹⁵ And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one ; to every man according to his ability ; and straightway took his journey. ¹⁶ Then he that received the five talents went and traded with them, and made other five talents. ¹⁷ And likewise he that received the two, he also gained other two. ¹⁸ But he that received the one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord’s money. ¹⁹ After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth

* Or, prudent, φρονιμοι. And so throughout the parable.

† Or, going afar off, αποδημων : so in ver. 15, απεδημησεν, went afar off. These renderings would maintain the desirable uniformity.

: Throughout this parable, the original for servant is δουλος ; and for lord, κυριος. Newcome renders this master, or (ver. 20, 22, 24.) Sir.

MATT. XXV.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
with them. ²⁰ And he that received the five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, ‘ Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained five other talents beside them.’ ²¹ His lord said unto him, ‘ Well done, good and faithful servant! thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.’ ²² And he also that received the two talents came and said, ‘ Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beside them.’ ²³ His lord said unto him, ‘ Well done, good and faithful servant!’ thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.’ ²⁴ And he also who received the one talent came and said, ‘ Lord, I knew thee, that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not scattered; ²⁵ and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast thine own.’ ²⁶ But his lord answered and said unto him, ‘ Thou wicked and slothful servant! thou knewest that I reap where I have not sown, and gathered where I have not scattered? ²⁷ thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers,* and then at my coming I should have received mine own with interest. ²⁸ Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. ²⁹ For unto every one that hath † shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not † shall be taken away even that which he hath. ³⁰ And cast out the unprofitable servant into the outer darkness: there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ ³¹ “ But when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the angels with him, then will he sit upon the throne of his glory: ³² and before him will be gathered all nations: and he will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats: ³³ and he will set the sheep on his right hand, and the goats on the left. ³⁴ Then will the King say unto them on his right hand, ‘ Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:’

* Or, the bankers, τοῖς τραπεζίταις, as in Luke xix. 23, ἐπὶ τὴν τραπεζάν, to the bank.
See Note † p. 186.

† Or, hath acquired more—hath not acquired more—(i. e. than was given him.)

MATT. XXV.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
35 for I was hungry, and ye gave me to eat : I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink : I was a stranger, and ye took me in : * 36 naked, and ye clothed me : I was sick, and ye visited me : I was in prison, and ye came unto me.' 37 Then will the righteous answer him, saying, ' Lord, when saw we thee hungry, and fed thee ? or thirsty, and gave thee drink ? 38 when saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in ? or naked, and clothed thee ? 39 and when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee ? ' 40 And the King will answer and say unto them, ' Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me.' 41 Then will he say also unto them on the left hand, ' Depart from me, ye cursed, into the everlasting fire,† prepared for the devil and his angels : 42 for I was hungry, and ye gave me not to eat : I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink : 43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in : naked, and ye clothed me not : sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.' 44 Then will they also answer, saying, ' Lord, when saw we thee hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee ? ' 45 Then will he answer them, saying, ' Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.' 46 And these will go away into everlasting punishment,‡ but the righteous into everlasting life."

SECT. VIII.

The Sanhedrim consult how to put Jesus to Death : Judas offers to deliver him up to them.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
AND it came to pass, when Jesus ended all these words, he said unto his disciples, * " Ye know that after two days is the passover, and the Son of man is delivered up to be crucified."

* Or, received me as your guest, συνηγαγετε με. And so in the corresponding parts : but the common rendering suits these best.

† εις το πυρ το αιωνιον. ‡ κολασιν αιωνιον—ζωην αιωνιον.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXI.	JOHN
³ Then assembled together the Chief Priests, and the Scribes, and the Elders of the people, at the palace of the High Priest, who was called Caiphas; ⁴ and they consulted that they might take Jesus by craft, and put him to death. ⁵ But they said, "Not during the feast, lest there should be a tumult among the people." † ¹⁴ Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the Chief Priests, ¹⁵ and said, "What are ye willing to give me, and I will deliver him up unto you?" And they paid ‡ him thirty pieces of silver. ¹⁶ And from that time he sought opportunity to deliver him up.	AFTER two days* was the passover, and the feast of unleavened bread: and the Chief Priests and the Scribes sought how they might take him by craft, and put him to death. ² But they said, "Not during the feast, lest there should be a tumult of the people." † ¹⁰ And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the Chief Priests, to deliver him up unto them. ¹¹ And when they heard it, they were glad, and promised to give him money. And he sought how he might opportunely deliver him up.	(³⁷ Now in the day time he had been teaching in the temple; and at night he had gone out and passed the night at the mount that is called the mount of Olives. ³⁸ And all the people came to him in the temple early in the morning, to hear him.) CH. XXII. But the feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover. ² And the Chief Priests and Scribes sought how they might destroy him; for they feared the people. ³ Then Satan entered into Judas surnamed Iscariot, who was of the number of the twelve. ⁴ And he went and communed with the Chief Priests and the Prefects of the temple, how he might deliver him up unto them. ⁵ And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money. ⁶ And he promised; and he sought opportunity to deliver him up unto them apart from the multitude.

* Or, within two days, μετα δυο ημερας. See Schleusner, § 4. In Matt. xxvii. 63, μετα τρεις ημερας, (comp. ver. 64, 'until the third day',) obviously means, 'within three days.' This force of μετα, with the accusative, is Hellenistic and unusual; but it entirely accords with the general import, and with the probable derivation of μετα.—N. B. This Note applies also to Matt. xxvi. 2, in page 223.

† Between the 5th and 14th verses in Matthew, and the 2d and 10th in Mark, are introduced the circumstances at the house of Simon the Leper, placed by St. John on an earlier day. See Note, p. 191. In the two first Gospels, the record of them may be regarded as a parenthesis; and they appear inserted here to explain the reason of Judas's conduct.

‡ Or, weighed out to him, εστησαν.

The following Part is occupied with the transactions of ONE DAY, beginning with the sunset of the evening on which our Saviour ate the passover, and ending with the sunset after his burial. As we know (see John xix. 31.) that he was crucified on the day before the Jewish sabbath—which began on Friday at sunset—there is no doubt that he ate the passover on the Thursday evening. Yet it is clear (see John xviii. 28. compared with Matt. xxvii. 1.) that the Chief Priests and Elders had not eaten the passover when they delivered him up to Pontius Pilate on the morning of Friday. It is further clear from Josephus (see Bell. Jud. I. VI. c. ix. § 3.) that, at least as the general custom, the lambs for the passover were killed between three and five, in the afternoon, on the 14th of Nisan; and (Ant. I. III. c. x.) that they were eaten that evening, viz. in the beginning of the 15th. The Chief Priests and Elders, therefore, must have eaten the passover on the evening of Friday, the day on which our Lord was crucified.

It is further clear, from the records of St. Mark and St. Luke, (see Part IX. Sect. I.) that they regarded the day on which our Lord ate the passover, as the very day on which the paschal lamb was to be killed.

The Law enjoined (Exod. xii. 6.) that the lamb should be killed on the 14th day of the first month, IN THE EVENING: “literally, (says Mr. Wellbeloved on the passage,) between the twilights, i. e. most probably, between sunset and darkness.” On this point there has been, however, diversity of interpretation; some reckoning from three till sunset, and others from noon to sunset. “Of these three modes of reckoning, (Mr. W. continues,) the first suits best the celebration of the first passover”; but it is obvious that in the time of Josephus the second was the one adopted.

The account of Josephus of course respected the system of the Pharisees, to which sect he belonged; and before his time, this may have become almost universal. But those of the Jews who neglected the traditions of the Pharisees, and followed the literal interpretation of the scriptures, might be expected to kill the lamb after sunset on the 14th of the first month; i. e. at the commencement of that day, instead of the close of it, as the Pharisees did. Jennings (Jewish Antiquities, Vol. II. p. 182.) states that the Karaites did not kill the lamb till after sunset, between that and the end of twilight: Kuinoel also states, (on Matt. xxvi. 17.) that the Sadducees interpreted the direction for the time of killing the lamb to denote between six and seven in the evening.

As the lamb was to be slain on the 14th of the month, and eaten on the same night, those who killed it after sunset must have eaten it on the evening before those who killed it in the afternoon of the 14th: the former ate it in the evening of the 14th; the latter, on the evening of the 15th.

In A. D. 30, which was, most probably, the year of the Crucifixion, the full-moon at Jerusalem occurred about half-past ten P. M. on Thursday, the 6th of April; and the 14th of Nisan comprehended the twenty-four hours from the sunset of that Thursday. According to the preceding views, the Scripturalists would kill the lamb after sunset on the Thursday, and eat the passover that evening: the Traditionalists would kill the lamb in the afternoon of Friday, and eat it on Friday evening, after the Sabbath had begun.

The Feast of Unleavened Bread lasted seven days after the day on which the passover was killed: but as on that day the Jews removed all leaven from their houses, and ate only unleavened bread, the Feast of Unleavened Bread (as appears from Josephus) was sometimes reckoned eight days; and the day on which the passover was slain was, on that reckoning, the first day of Unleavened Bread. This then began at sunset on the Thursday.

This solution of the apparent discrepancy in the expressions of the Evangelists, respecting the Last Passover, appears quite satisfactory. It was suggested by the before-mentioned statement of Jennings; and it is actually given and approved by Kuinoel.

Dates of the Occurrences in Part IX.

According to the Jewish modes of calculation, any time between the sunset on Saturday and the sunset on Sunday, i. e. the 9th of Nisan, would answer the designation 'six days before the Passover' in John xii. 1. (Part VIII. Sect. i.) If our Lord passed the night at the house of Zacchæus (see Note † p. 185,) then he probably arrived at Bethany in the forenoon of Sunday. Upon this calculation the following distribution is made of the events included in the 'Six Days.'

Nisan	April
9	ending at Sunset on	2. Sunday. Our Lord arrives at Bethany: the Supper at the house of Simon.
10		3. Monday. Public Entry into Jerusalem: * Voice in the Temple.
11		4. Tuesday. Miracle on the Barren Fig-tree: The Temple cleared.
12		5. Wednesday. The Last Day in the Temple: Prophecy on the Mount of Olives.
13		6. Thursday. Christ at Bethany: in the Evening goes to Jerusalem.
14		7. Friday. The Crucifixion.

Events of the 14th of Nisan: i. e. from Sunset on Thursday to Sunset on Friday.

SUNSET.	The Sadducees begin to slay the lamb for their Passover.
9—11. P. M.	Christ in the Paschal Chamber.
MIDNIGHT.	The Agony in the Garden of Gethsemane.
1. A. M.	Christ betrayed by Judas: then taken to the house of Annas, and afterwards to the palace of Caiaphas, where he was kept, till sunrise, before the High Priest and his partisans in the Sanhedrim, who were seeking for witnesses against him; and by them pronounced worthy of death.
3. —	The (second) Cockcrowing.
SUNRISE.	Assembling of the Sanhedrim in their Hall in the Temple: they condemn Christ.
7. A. M.	Our Lord is taken before Pilate, who sends him to Herod, by whom he is sent back to Pilate.
9. —	Condemnation of Christ by Pontius Pilate.
9½. —	Christ crucified.
NOON.	The darkness begins which spread over the whole land for three hours.
3. P. M.	Our Saviour expires, at the hour of Evening Sacrifice, when the Pharisees and their followers were beginning to slay the lamb for their Passover. The Veil of the Temple rent from top to bottom.
4. —	Christ taken down from the Cross, hastily embalmed, and then interred.
SUNSET.	Beginning of the Sabbath.

* Mr. Greswell also (Diss. Vol. III. p. 19.) refers to the Monday our Lord's "procession to the temple:" the common opinion, he properly observes, "rests on no better authority than that of prescription."

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART IX.

THE LAST DAY OF THE SAVIOUR'S MORTAL LIFE.

SECT. I.

Peter and John commissioned to prepare for the Paschal Supper.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
¹⁷ Now on the first day of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying [unto him,] "Where wilt thou that we make ready for thee to eat the passover?" ¹⁸ And he said, "Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Teacher saith, My time is near; I keep the passover at thy house with my disciples." ¹⁹ And the disciples did as Jesus commanded them: and they made ready the passover.	¹² AND on the first day of unleavened bread, when they killed the passover, his disciples said unto him, "Where wilt thou that we go and make ready that thou mayest eat the passover?" ¹³ And he sendeth two of his disciples, and saith unto them, "Go ye into the city, and there will meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water: follow him. ¹⁴ And whosoever he shall enter in, say ye to the master of the house, The Teacher saith, Where is the guest-chamber, in which I may eat the passover with my disciples? ¹⁵ And he will shew you a large upper room furnished and ready: there make ready for us." ¹⁶ And his	⁷ Now the day of unleavened bread came, when it was necessary for the passover to be killed. ⁸ And he sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and make ready for us the passover, that we may eat it." ⁹ And they said unto him, "Where wilt thou that we make ready?" ¹⁰ And he said unto them, "Behold, when ye have entered into the city, a man will meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth in. ¹¹ And ye shall say to the master of the house, The Teacher saith unto thee, Where is the guest-chamber, in which I may eat the passover with my disciples? ¹² And he

MATT.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
	disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found as he said unto them : and they made ready the passover.	will shew you a large upper room furnished : theremake ready.” ¹³ And they went away, and found as he said unto them : and they made ready the passover.

SECT. II.

Circumstances at the Paschal Table before the Institution of the Lord's Supper.*

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
²⁰ Now when evening came, he placed himself at table with the twelve.	¹⁷ AND when evening came, he goeth with the twelve.	¹⁴ AND when the hour came, he placed himself at table,† and the twelve apostles with him. ¹⁵ And he said unto them, “ With desire I have desired‡ to eat this passover with you before I suffer : ¹⁶ for I say unto you, I shall not any more eat of it, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.” §

• The order of those occurrences which are recorded, appears to have been as follows :—1. Introductory observations of our Lord. 2. Observations in relation to the contention of the Apostles respecting precedence. 3. Jesus washes their feet, and discourses thereon. 4. He announces the treachery of Judas; after which this Apostle withdraws. 5. Declarations to the Apostles, including the first announcement of Peter's denial of him.—Then followed the institution of the Lord's Supper, as given in the following Section.

† Here the verb is ανεπεσε : in Matthew it is ανεκειτο. The first refers to the act of reclining, the latter to the state of recumbency. The engraving of the Last Supper from Poussin, (one of the Sept Sacremens,) represents our Lord and the Apostles in the recumbent posture; thus truly picturing the reality. (See Note † p. 67.) Another of the Sept Sacremens gives the scene in the house of Simon the Pharisee, (Part V. Sect. ii.) in the same correct manner.

‡ Or, (without the idiom,) I have earnestly desired, επιθυμια επεθυμησα.

§ Here St. Luke introduces the institution of the Lord's Supper; first, however, giving by itself a portion of the part respecting the cup. This seems clear on comparing the other accounts. St. Luke appears to have had, in the materials for his narrative of these circumstances, detached statements of different parts; the connexion of them is best determined by the Gospels of Matthew and Mark, with the aid of St. John's.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XIII.
		²⁴ Now there was even a strife among them, which of them seemed to be greatest. ²⁵ And he said unto them, “The kings of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them; and they that exercise authority over them are called benefactors. ²⁶ But ye shall not act thus: but let the elder among you be as the younger; and him that leadeth as he that serveth. ²⁷ For whether is greater, he that is at table, or he that serveth? is not he that is at table? but I am among you as he that serveth. ²⁸ Now ye are they who have continued with me in my trials. ²⁹ And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; ³⁰ that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom: and ye shall sit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.”	Now before the feast of the passover,* Jesus knowing that his hour had come, that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own that were in the world, he

* See the statements respecting the time of eating the passover in p. 225.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIII.
			loved them unto the end. ² And supper having come, (the devil having already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, son of Simon, to betray him;) ³ [Jesus] knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he came forth from God, and was going to God; ⁴ riseth from supper, and layeth aside his garments; and he took a towel, and girded himself. ⁵ After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the feet of the disciples, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. ⁶ He cometh therefore to Simon Peter: [and] that apostle saith unto him, "Lord, dost thou wash my feet?" ⁷ Jesus answered and said unto him, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou wilt know afterwards." ⁸ Peter saith unto him, "Thou shalt never wash my feet." Jesus answered him, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." ⁹ Simon Peter saith unto him, "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head." ¹⁰ Jesus saith unto him, " He that hath bathed needeth not to wash except his feet, but is wholly clean : and ye are clean, but not all." ¹¹ (For he knew who was delivering him up : therefore said he, " Ye are not all clean.") ¹² When therefore he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and again placed himself at table, he said unto them, " Know ye why I have done this for you ? ¹³ Ye call me Teacher and Lord : * and ye say well ; for so I am. ¹⁴ If I therefore, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. ¹⁵ For I have given you an example, that ye also should do as I have done to you. ¹⁶ Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord ; neither he that is sent † greater than he that sent him. ¹⁷ If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them. ¹⁸ " I speak not concerning you all : I know whom I have chosen : but (that

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIII.

• Or, Master, ὁ κυριος : and so in other parts of this passage.

† αποστολος, the messenger, the apostle.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XIII.
		Ps. 41 ; 9.	the scripture may be fulfilled,) ‘ He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.’ ¹⁹ Now I tell you before it cometh to pass, that, when it cometh to pass, ye may believe that I am he . ²⁰ Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send, receiveth me ; and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me.”
²¹ And while they were eating, he said, “ Verily I say unto you, One of you will deliver me up.” ²² And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, “ Lord, is it I ? ” ²³ And he answered and said, “ He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same will deliver me up.	¹⁸ And while they were at table, and were eating, Jesus said, “ Verily I say unto you, One of you that eateth with me will deliver me up.” ¹⁹ And they began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, “ Is it I ? ” and another said, “ Is it I ? ” ²⁰ And he answered and said unto them, “ It is one of the twelve, he that dippeth with me in the dish. ” ²¹ The Son of man indeed goeth, as is written concerning him : but woe for that man by whom the Son of man is delivered up ! good were it for that man if he had not been born.” *	²¹ “ But, behold, the hand of him that delivereth me up is with me on the table. ” ²² And the Son of man indeed goeth, according to what hath been determined : but woe for that man by whom he is delivered up ! ” ²³ And they began to inquire among themselves, which of them it could be that was about to do this thing.	²¹ When Jesus had said these things, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, “ Verily, verily, I say unto you, One of you will deliver me up.” ²² The disciples [therefore] looked at one another, doubting concerning whom he spake. ²³ Now there was leaning† on the bosom of Jesus one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved. ²⁴ Simon Peter therefore beckoneth to him, to inquire who it might be concerning whom he spake. ²⁵ And he, leaning‡ on the bosom of Jesus, saith unto him, “ Lord, who is it ? ” ²⁶ Jesus answered, “ It is he,

* Lit. it had been good for him if that man had not been born.

† Or, reclining, ανακειμενος.

‡ Or, reclining, επιπεσων. See Note † p. 228.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIII.
26 Then Judas, he that delivered him up, answered and said, "Rabbi, is it I?" He said unto him, "Thou hast said."			to whom I shall give a sop,† when I have dipped it." And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, son of Simon. 27 And after the sop, then Satan entered into him. Jesus therefore saith unto him, "What thou doest, do quickly." 28 Now no one of those who were at table knew for what intent he spake this unto him. 29 For some thought, (because Judas had the bag,) that Jesus had said unto him, "Buy those things which we have need of for the feast;" or, that he should give something to the poor. 30 He therefore, having received the sop, straightway went out. Now it was night. 31 When he went out,‡ Jesus said, "Now is the Son of man glorified,§ and God is glorified by him. 32 If God is glorified by him, God also will glorify him by himself, and will straightway glorify

* Μητι γινω εμι: so ver. 22. In Mark, without εμι.

† Or, piece of bread, ψωμιον.

‡ At the beginning of ver. 31, Orlesbach omits ουν, therefore; and this allows, if the arrangement of occurrences render it desirable, to connect the first clause with the preceding verse, thus—'Now it was night when he went out.'

§ εδοξασθη: in each of the three instances, Kalnoel says, the preterite is thus used, prophetically, to denote what is about speedily and most certainly to come to pass.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XIII.
			him. ³³ My chil- dren, yet a little while I am with you. Ye will seek me : and as I said unto the Jews, ‘ Whither I go, ye cannot come ;’ so now I say to you. ³⁴ A new command- ment I give unto you, That ye love one another ; as I have loved you, that ye also love another. ³⁵ By this will all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.” ³⁶ Simon Peter saith unto him, “ Lord, whither goest thou ? ” Jesus an- swered him, “ Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now ; but thou wilt follow [me] hereafter.” ³⁷ Peter saith unto him, “ Lord, why cannot I follow thee [now] ? I will lay down my life for thy sake.” ³⁸ Jesus answered [him,] “ Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake ? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock will not crow, * till thou hast denied me thrice.”
		³¹ And the Lord said, “ Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath sought for you, that he may sift you as

* This refers to the second cock-crowing, peculiarly so denominated : about the commencement of the morning watch. See Mark xiii. 35.—See also Note * p. 245.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
		wheat: ³² but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not utterly: and when thou hast returned, strengthen thy brethren." ³³ But he said unto him, "Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both to prison, and to death." ³⁴ And he said, "I say unto thee, Peter, the cock will not crow this day,* before thou hast thrice denied that thou knowest me."† ³⁵ And he said unto them, "When I sent you without purse, and bag, and sandals, lacked ye any thing?" And they said, "Nothing." ³⁶ He said therefore unto them, "But now, let him that hath a purse, take it, and likewise his bag: and let him that hath no sword, sell his garment, and buy one. ³⁷ For I say unto you, that this which is written must yet be accomplished in me, 'And he was reckoned among the transgressors: ' for the things concerning	Is. 53; 12.

* See Note in the preceding page.

• It appears quite clear that the warning recorded by Luke, and that by John, occurred in the paschal chamber; and that the warning recorded by Matthew and Mark was given on the way to Gethsemane: but it is by no means clear at what exact period that recorded by Luke was given, and whether or not it is identical with that recorded by St. John. It is placed where, on the whole, it seems most likely to have occurred. In this case there were three separate warnings.—See Greswell.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXII. me have an end.” * 38 And they said, “ Lord, behold, here are two swords.” And he said unto them, “It is enough.”	JOHN
-------	------	--	------

SECT. III.

The Lord’s Supper instituted.

MATT. XXVI. 26 Now as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to the disciples, and said, “Take, eat: this is my body.” 27 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, “Drink ye all of it; 28 for this is my blood of the new covenant, which is shed for many for the remission of sins. 29 But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it with you anew † in my Father’s kingdom.”	MARK XIV. 22 AND as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, “Take: this is my body.” 23 And he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it. 24 And he said unto them, “This is my blood of the [new] covenant, which is shed for many. 25 Verily I say unto you, I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it anew † in the kingdom of God.”	LUKE XXII. 19 AND he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, “This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me.” 20 In like manner also the cup, after having supped, saying, “This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which is shed for you.” ‡ 17 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, “Take this, and divide it among yourselves: 18 for I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall have come.”	JOHN — I COR. XI. 23—25. THE Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was delivered up, took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and said, “This is my body which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me.” In like manner also the cup, after having supped, saying, “This cup is the new covenant in my blood: this do, as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.” —
--	--	---	---

* Or, the prophecies concerning me are now having their accomplishment.

† Or, in another way, (κατα) καινον. See Kuinoel.

‡ The two following verses appear to be an independent record, but to belong to the institution of the Lord’s Supper.

SECT. IV.

Consolatory Discourse to the Apostles, while yet at the Paschal Table.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIV.
			“LET not your heart be troubled : believe in God believe also in me. ² In my Father’s house are many mansions : and if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. ³ And if I go and prepare* a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself ; that where I am, there ye may be also. ⁴ And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.” ⁵ Thomas saith unto him, “ Lord, we know not whither thou goest ; and how can we know the way ? ” ⁶ Jesus saith unto him, “ I am the way, and the truth, and the life : no one cometh unto the Father, but through me. ⁷ If ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also : and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.” ⁸ Philip saith unto him, “ Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.” ⁹ Jesus saith unto him, “ Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip ? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father ; and how sayest thou, Shew us the Father ? ¹⁰ Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and that the Father is in me ? The words which I speak unto you I speak not of myself ; and the Father that dwelleth † in me, he doeth the works. ¹¹ Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me : but if not, believe me for the sake of the works themselves. ¹² Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also : and greater works than these shall he do ; because I go unto [my] Father, ¹³ and whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that I will do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. ¹⁴ If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it. ¹⁵ “ If ye love me, keep my commandments : ¹⁶ and I will pray ‡ the Father, and he will give you another Advocate, § that he may abide with you for ever ; ¹⁷ even the Spirit of truth ; which the world

* Or, And when I have gone and prepared.

† Or, abideth, μενει, as in ver. 16.

‡ Ερωταω, ask, beseech, is thus employed here, and in ch. xvi. 26, xvii. 9, 15, 20.

§ Or, Helper, or, Comforter. Παρακλητος (used only by St. John, here and in ch. xv. 26. xvi. 7. 1 Ep. ii. 1,) peculiarly denotes a person called to one’s aid—to give counsel, to manage one’s cause, &c. Advocate seems, on the whole, the preferable rendering. The common rendering, Comforter, is not altogether without authority, and it suits the occasional import of παρακαλεομαι : but analogy and usage are against it.

Or, for life, εις τον αιωνα. So Wetstein and Bp. Pearce : see Archbp. Newcome’s Note.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIV.
			cannot receive, because it seeth it not, neither knoweth it: but ye know it; for it abideth with you, and will be in you. ¹⁸ I will not leave you orphans: * I am coming to you. ¹⁹ Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; † but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also. ²⁰ In that day ye will know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you. ²¹ He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me will be loved by my Father; and I will love him, and will manifest myself unto him.” ²² Judas (not Iscariot,) saith unto him, “ Lord, and how is it that thou art about to manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?” ²³ Jesus answered and said unto him, “ If any one love me, he will keep my word: and my Father will love him; and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. ²⁴ He that loveth me not, keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father’s, who sent me. ²⁵ “ These things have I spoken unto you, while abiding with you. ²⁶ But the Advocate, ‡ even the Holy Spirit which the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and will bring to your remembrance all things which I have said unto you. ²⁷ “ Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. ²⁸ Ye have heard that I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I am going unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I. ²⁹ And now I have told you before it cometh to pass, that, when it cometh to pass, ye may believe. ³⁰ Hereafter I shall not talk much with you: for the ruler of the world cometh, and hath nothing in me. ³¹ But that the world may know that I love the Father, even as the Father gave me commandment, so I do. § Arise, let us go hence.”

* Or, destitute, ορφανους.

† Or, (with a different punctuation,) I will not leave you orphans: I am coming to you for a little while longer; yet the world seeth me no more; &c.

‡ See Note § in preceding page.

§ Or, (connecting this with the preceding verse,) But he cometh that the world may know that I love the Father; and that as the Father gave me commandment, so I do.

SECT. V.

Our Lord's Discourses on rising from the Paschal Table, before leaving the Chamber in which he ate the Passover.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XV.
			“ I AM the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman. ² Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh it away : and every branch that beareth fruit, he cleanseth* it, that it may bear more fruit. ³ Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you. ⁴ Abide in me, and I will abide in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, unless it abide in the vine ; so neither can ye, unless ye abide in me. ⁵ I am the vine, ye are the branches : He that abideth in me, and I in him, he beareth much fruit : for without me† ye can do nothing. ⁶ If any one abide not in me, he is cast forth as the severed branch, and is withered ; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned. ⁷ If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask‡ whatsoever ye will, and it shall be done unto you. ⁸ Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit ; and ye will thus be my disciples. ⁹ As the Father hath loved me, I also have loved you : abide ye in my love. ¹⁰ If ye keep my commandments, ye will abide in my love ; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. ¹¹ These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy in you may abide, and that your joy may be made full. ¹² This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. ¹³ Greater love hath no one than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. ¹⁴ Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever things I command you. ¹⁵ Henceforth I call you not servants,§ for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth : but I have called you friends ; for all things which I have heard from my Father I have made known unto you. ¹⁶ Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and appointed you, that ye should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit should remain : that whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he may give it you.

* καθαίρει, corresponding with καθαροί, clean, in the next verse.

† Or, severed from me, χωρίς εμου. So Newcome, Kuinoel, &c.

‡ αιτησειςτε.

§ δουλους—ὁ δουλος—ὁ κυριος.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XV.
			¹⁷ “ These things I command you, that ye may love one another. ¹⁸ If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you. ¹⁹ If ye were of the world, the world would love its own : but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you. ²⁰ Remember the word that I spake unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also. ²¹ But all these things will they do unto you for my name’s sake, because they know not him that sent me. ²² If I had not come and spoken unto them, they would not have had sin : but now they have no excuse for their sin. ²³ He that hateth me hateth my Father also. ²⁴ If I had not done among them the works which no other hath done, they would not have had sin : but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father. ²⁵ But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, ‘ They hated me without a cause.’ ²⁶ “ But when the Advocate cometh, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify concerning me. ²⁷ And ye also shall bear testimony, because ye have been with me from the beginning. CH. XVI. “ These things I have spoken unto you, that ye should not be caused to fall. ² They will put you out of the synagogue : yea, the hour cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he offereth God service. ³ And these things will they do, because they have not known the Father, nor me. ⁴ But these things have I told you, that when the hour cometh, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at first, because I was with you ; ⁵ but now I am going unto him that sent me. And none of you now asketh me, Whither goest thou ? ⁶ but because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart. ⁷ “ Nevertheless I tell you the truth ; It is expedient for you that I go away : for if I go not away, the Advocate will not come unto you ; but if I depart, I will send him unto you. ⁸ And when he is come, he will reprove the world concerning sin, and concerning righteousness, and concerning judgment : ⁹ concerning sin, because they believe not on me ; ¹⁰ and concerning righteousness, because I go to [my] Father, and ye see me no more ; ¹¹ and concerning judgment, because the

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XVI.
			ruler of this world is judged. ¹² I have still many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. ¹³ But when he, the Spirit of truth, cometh, he will guide you into all the truth: for he will not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that he will speak: and he will shew you things to come. ¹⁴ He will glorify me: for he will receive of mine, and will shew it unto you. ¹⁵ All things whatsoever the Father hath are mine: therefore I said, He receiveth of mine, and will shew it unto you. ¹⁶ A little while, and ye will not behold me: and again, a little while, and ye will see me, because I go to the Father.”
			¹⁷ Some of his disciples said therefore among themselves, “What is this that he saith unto us, ‘A little while, and ye will not behold me: and again a little while, and ye will see me:’ and, ‘Because I go to the Father?’” ¹⁸ They said therefore, “What is this that he saith, ‘A little while?’ We cannot tell what he saith.” ¹⁹ Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, “Do ye inquire among yourselves concerning this, that I said, ‘A little while, and ye will not behold me: and again, a little while, and ye will see me?’” ²⁰ Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye will weep and lament, but the world will rejoice: and ye will be sorrowful, but your sorrow will be turned into joy. ²¹ A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow because her hour is come: but when she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world. ²² And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I shall see you again, and your heart will rejoice, and your joy no one taketh from you. ²³ And in that day ye shall request nothing from me.* Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. ²⁴ Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be made full.
			²⁵ “These things I have spoken unto you in dark sayings: † the hour cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in dark sayings, † but I shall shew

* Griesbach connects this first clause of ver. 23 with ver. 22, thus—“and your joy no one taketh from you; and in that day ye will not ask me any thing.”—apparently taking the verb ερωτησετε, ye will ask, in the sense of inquire or question, as Kuinoel and others do. The verb rendered ask in the remainder of ver. 23, and 24, is αιτew.—N. B. The punctuation in ver. 4—6 is from Kuinoel.

† Or, obscurely, εν παροιμιας.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XVI.
			you plainly of the Father. ²⁶ At that day ye shall ask in my name : and I say not unto you, that I will pray* the Father for you : ²⁷ for the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God. ²⁸ I came forth from the Father, and have come into the world : again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.” ²⁹ His disciples said unto him, “ Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no dark saying. ³⁰ Now we know that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask† thee : by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.” ³¹ Jesus answered them, “ Do ye now believe ? ³² Behold, the hour cometh, yea, hath [now] come, that ye will be scattered, every man to his own home , and will leave me alone : and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me. ³³ These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye have tribulation : but be of good courage ; I have overcome the world.”

SECT. VI.

The Prayer of Christ before leaving the Paschal Chamber.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XVII.
			THESE words spake Jesus ; and he lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said “ Father ! the hour hath come ; glorify thy Son, that thy Son [also] may glorify thee : ² as ‡ thou hast given him authority over all flesh, that he may give everlasting life to all whom thou hast given him. § ³ And this is everlasting life, that they may know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent. ⁴ I have glorified thee on the earth : I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do : ⁵ and now, O Father, glorify thou me, with thine own self, with the glory which I had, with thee, before the world was. ⁶ “ I have manifested thy name unto the men whom thou gavest me out of the world : they were thine, and thou gavest them to me ; and they have kept thy word. ⁷ Now they know that all things

* Or, beseech, ερωτησω.

† ερωτα.

‡ Or, since, καθως.

§ The construction of the original is Hebraistic, ἵνα παν ὁ δεδωκας αὐτῷ δωσῇ αὐτοῖς ζωὴν αἰώνιον.

|| Or, “ and him whom thou hast sent,” even Jesus Christ. “ I have glorified thee, &c.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XVII.
			whatsoever thou hast given me are from thee : ⁸ for the words which thou gavest me I have given unto them ; and they have received them , and have surely known that I came forth from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me. ⁹ I pray* for them : I pray * not for the world, but for those whom thou hast given me ; for they are thine. ¹⁰ And all mine are thine, and thine are mine ; and I am glorified in them. ¹¹ And I am no longer in the world ; yet these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father ! keep them in thy name which† thou hast given me, that they may be one,‡ as we are one. ¹² While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name : those that thou gavest me I have preserved ; and no one of them is lost, but the son of perdition ; that the scripture might be fulfilled.§ ¹³ But now I come to thee ; and these things I speak in the world, that they may have my joy fulfilled in themselves. ¹⁴ I have given them thy word ; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. ¹⁵ I pray* not that thou wouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil in it . ¹⁶ They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. ¹⁷ Sanctify them through [thy] truth : thy word is truth. ¹⁸ As thou hast sent me into the world, I also have sent them into the world. ¹⁹ And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also may be sanctified through thy truth. ²⁰ “ Neither do I pray * for these alone, but for them also that believe on me through their word ; ²¹ that all may be one ; as thou, O Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be [one] in us : that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. ²² And the glory which thou hast given me I have given them ; that they may be one, as we are one ; ²³ (I in them, and thou in me :) that they may be made perfect in one ; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me. ²⁴ Father ! it is my desire that

* Or, beseech, ἐρωτῶ. † Griesbach reads ψ̄ for οὗς.

‡ The original, throughout, for one, is ἐν, the neuter numeral. There is no complete representation of it in our language, without a periphrasis.

§ Or, so that the scripture is fulfilled.

|| Or, I am desirous, θελω. The rendering in the text is that of Wynne. Following the order of the original, the first part of the verse may well be rendered, ‘ Father ! as to those whom thou hast given me, it is my desire that where I am they also may be with me : that ’ &c.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XVII.
			they also whom thou hast given me, may be with me where I am : that they may behold my glory, which thou gavest me, because thou lovedst me, before the foundation of the world. ²⁵ Righteous Father! although* the world hath not known thee, yet I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me. ²⁶ And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it : that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them."

SECT. VII.

Christ goes to Gethsemane : On the Way he again warns Peter.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XVIII.
³⁰ AND when they had sung an hymn, they went forth to the mount of Olives. ³¹ Then saith Jesus unto them, " All ye will fall away from me† in this night : for it is written, ' I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered abroad. ' ³² But after I have arisen,‡ I will go before you into Galilee." ³³ But Peter answered and said unto him, " If all shall fall away from thee, I will never fall away." ³⁴ Jesus said unto him, " Verily,	²⁶ AND when they had sung an hymn, they went forth to the mount of Olives. ²⁷ And Jesus saith unto them, " All ye will fall away [from me this night]: for it is written, ' I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.' ²⁸ But after I have arisen, I will go before you into Galilee." ²⁹ But Peter said unto him, " Although all shall fall away, yet will not I." ³⁰ And Jesus saith unto him, " Verily I say unto thee,	³⁹ AND he went forth, and departed, according to his custom, to the mount of Olives ; and his disciples also followed him. Zech. 13 ; 7.	WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, § he went forth with his disciples over the brook Kedron, where was a garden, into which he entered, and his disciples.

* καὶ.

† Lit. shall be caused to fall by me, σκανδαλισθησεσθε εν εμοι.—And so in ver. 33, and in the corresponding verses in Mark. The rendering in the text does not quite express the force of the original ; yet for the connexion no closer presents itself. The reader may prefer abandon or desert : but this would be farther from a literal rendering.—The passages in which σκανδαλιζω occurs, are specified in Note • p. 90.

‡ Or, have been raised, εγερθηναι.

§ See Sect. VI.

MATT XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE	JOHN
I say unto thee, In this night, before the cock crow,* thou shalt deny me thrice.” ³⁵ Peter said unto him, “ Though I must even die with thee, I will in no wise deny thee.” In like manner also said all the disciples.	To-day, even in this night, before the cock crow twice,* thou wilt deny me thrice.” ³¹ But he spake [still] the more vehemently, “ If I must die with thee, I will in no wise deny thee.” And in like manner also said they all.

Our Lord's Agony in Gethsemane.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
³⁶ THEN cometh Jesus with them to a place called Gethsemane; and he saith unto the disciples, "Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder." ³⁷ And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy. ³⁸ Then saith he unto them, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me." ³⁹ And he went forward a little, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, "O my Father, if it be possible,† let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt."	³² AND they came to a place the name of which is Gethsemane: and he saith to his disciples, "Sit ye here, while I pray." ³³ And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be sore amazed, and to be very heavy. ³⁴ And he saith unto them, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death: tarry ye here, and watch." ³⁵ And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him. ³⁶ And he said, "Abba!" Father, "all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: yet not what I will, but what thou wilt."	⁴⁰ AND when he was at the place, he said unto them, "Pray that ye enter not into temptation." ⁴¹ And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, ⁴² saying, "Father! if thou art willing to take away this cup from me—nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done."

* Rather, since it is possible, εἰ δυνατόν ἐστί.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
⁴⁰ And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, "What, could ye not watch with me one hour? ⁴¹ Watch ye and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." ⁴² He went away again a second time, and prayed, saying, "O my Father, if this [cup] cannot pass away [from me,] unless I drink it, thy will be done." ⁴³ And he came and findeth them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy. ⁴⁴ And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words. ⁴⁵ Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, "Do ye still sleep and take your rest? behold the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is delivered up into the hands of sinners. ⁴⁶ Rise, let us go: behold, he is at hand that delivereth me up."	³⁷ And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, "Simon, sleepest thou? couldest not thou watch one hour? ³⁸ Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is ready, but the flesh is weak." ³⁹ And he went away again, and prayed, saying the same words. ⁴⁰ And when he returned, he found them sleeping [again,] (for their eyes were heavy;) and they knew not what to answer him. ⁴¹ And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them, "Do ye still sleep and take your rest? it is enough; the hour hath come; behold, the Son of man is delivered up into the hands of sinners. ⁴² Rise, let us go: behold, he that delivereth me up is at hand."	⁴³ (And there appeared unto him an angel from heaven, strengthening him.) ⁴⁴ And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.* ⁴⁵ And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them asleep from sorrow, ⁴⁶ and said unto them, "Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation."

* The record in ver. 43 and 44, is peculiar to St. Luke's Gospel. Newcome places it at the close of the third prayer: Creswell, after the first. This seems most probable.

*Jesus is betrayed by Judas to the Officers of the Chief Priests and Rulers.

• The order of the occurrences recorded in this Section appears to have been as follows: Having come into the garden with the officers &c., Judas hastily went forwards from them to his Master, and kissed him; on which Jesus made the reply recorded in part by Matthew, and in part by Luke. Struck with the reproach in the latter, Judas appears to have hastened back to the officers who were advancing. It was the period of full moon; yet in the obscurity of midnight, the confusion of the circumstances, and the dazzling of their own lanterns, and among the trees of the olive-ground, his party might not have seen distinctly which person he had kissed, or even discerned at all the appointed signal. Nor might John have witnessed this signal, or even (from being behind) have seen Judas come to Christ: but he saw his Master go onwards from the spot where he was, and proceed towards the advanced part of the officers, with whom Judas was now standing; and he (perhaps alone) witnessed, and has recorded, that extraordinary occurrence which proves that Jesus might even then have escaped from his enemies—that (as John has recorded his words, ch. x. 18.) he laid down his life of himself. After this, (which would occupy only a few minutes,—while Matthew, and those Apostles whose information reached Mark and Luke, might not be in sight,) the band came up and seized him, which all the Apostles witnessed.—The agitating and hurried nature of the occurrences is impressed, in the characters of reality, on the different records. We need only to realize them to our conceptions, to perceive how all might take place, and yet be only partially seen by different witnesses.

ἡ ὅτι, λαμπρῶς, λαμπάδων.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XVIII.
			⁴ Jesus therefore, knowing all things that were coming upon him, went forth, and said unto them, "Whom seek ye?" ⁵ They answered him, "Jesus of Nazareth." * Jesus saith unto them, "I am he ." (Now Judas also, who delivered him up, stood with them.) ⁶ When therefore he said unto them, 'I am he ,' they went backward, and fell on the ground. ⁷ Again therefore he asked them, "Whom seek ye?" And they said, "Jesus of Nazareth." * ⁸ Jesus answered, "I have told you that I am he : if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way." (⁹ That the word might be fulfilled, which he spake, "Of those whom thou gavest me I have lost no one.") ¹⁰ Simon Peter therefore having a sword drew it, and smote the servant of the High Priest, and cut off his right ear: (now the servant's name was Malchus.) ¹¹ Jesus therefore said unto Peter, "Put up the sword into the sheath: the cup which the Father hath given
Then they came up, and laid hands on Jesus, and took him. ⁵¹ And, behold, one of them who were with Jesus stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and smote the servant of the High Priest, and struck off his ear. ⁵² Then saith Jesus unto him, "Put up thy sword again into	⁴⁶ And they laid their hands on him, and took him. ⁴⁷ But one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the High Priest, and struck off his ear.	⁴⁹ Now when they who were about him saw what was about to take place, they said unto him, "Lord, shall we smite with the sword?" ⁵⁰ And one of them smote the servant of the High Priest, and struck off his right ear. ⁵¹ And Jesus answered and said, "Suffer ye thus far." And he

* τον Ναζωραιον. This adjective and Ναζαρηνος appear to have been used indiscriminately.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XVIII.
its place : for all that take the sword shall perish by the sword. " Thinkest thou that I cannot now intreat my Father, and he will give me more than twelve legions of angels? " But how then can the scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be?" " In that hour said Jesus to the multitudes, " Have ye come forth, as against a robber, with swords and clubs to seize me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye took me not: " but all this hath been done, that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled."		touched his ear, and healed him.	me, shall I not drink it." " The band therefore, and the commander,† and the officers of the Jews, took Jesus and bound him.
	" And Jesus answered and said unto them, " Have ye come forth, as against a robber, with swords and clubs to seize me? " I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not: but this is done that the scriptures may be fulfilled."	" And Jesus said unto the Chief Priests, and Prefects of the temple, and Elders, who were come against him, " Have ye come forth, as against a robber, with swords and clubs? " When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched not forth your hands against me: but this is your hour, and the power† of darkness."
Then all the disciples forsook him, and fled.	" And they all forsook him, and fled.
	" And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body ; and [the young men] lay hold * on him; " and he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

* κρατουσιν. The same verb is rendered take in ver. 44, 46, 49, and in Matt. ver. 48, 50, and 55; in which cases a uniform rendering has been maintained.

† η εξουσια.

‡ ο χιλιάρχος. It must have been the commander of the Temple guard, not a Roman tribune;—unless indeed that guard consisted of Roman soldiers. See Part X. Sect. i.

SECT. X.

*Jesus is taken first to the House of Annas, and afterwards to the Palace of Caiaphas: Occurrences while our Lord was kept there, before the High Priest and his Faction. In the early part of these Proceedings, Peter denies his Lord.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XVIII.
⁵⁷ Now they that had taken Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the High Priest, where the Scribes and the Elders assembled together. † ⁵⁸ But Peter followed him afar off even to the palace ‡ of the High Priest; and went in, and sat with the officers, to see the end.	⁵³ AND they led Jesus away to the High Priest: and all the Chief Priests, and the Elders, and the Scribes, come together to him. † ⁵⁴ And Peter followed him afar off, even into the palace ‡ of the High Priest: and he was sitting with the officers, warming himself at the fire.	⁵⁴ Now having taken him, they led him away, and brought [him] to the house of the High Priest. And Peter followed afar off. ⁵⁵ And when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the court, and had sat down together, Peter sat down among them.	¹³ AND they led him away to Annas first; for he was father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the High Priest that same year. ¹⁴ (Now Caiaphas was he, who gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should perish for the people.) ¹⁵ And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple: now that disciple was known unto the High Priest; and he went in with Jesus into the palace ‡ of the High Priest. ¹⁶ But Peter stood at the door without: the other disciple, therefore, who was known unto the High Priest, went

* See Note at the end of this Part, respecting the circumstances of Peter's Denials.

† The account in ver. 53 of Mark, (which is less strongly stated by Matthew,) may be considered as a summary of the proceedings of the night. When our Lord was first brought before Caiaphas, it is probable that few of the Sanhedrim were at the High Priest's Palace; and the particulars which we derive from St. John, respect the commencement of the examination. By degrees a considerable number of the Sanhedrim, (we may reasonably suppose of the High Priest's faction,) collected together; and (if the information received by the first two Evangelists, do not relate, in part at least, to the formal proceeding in the Hall of the Sanhedrim, Sect. xi., recorded by St. Luke, and referred to by the former,) our Lord not only underwent a preparatory trial before the High Priest and his partisans, but, before them, as well as before the Sanhedrim, uttered the majestic declaration which St. Luke records less fully. Some hours appear to have been occupied in obtaining witnesses to condemn our Lord; and it would be daylight before things were prepared for a regular decision of the Sanhedrim, in their Hall, which was in the Temple: indeed it was only in the day-time that the Sanhedrim could try capital causes. (See Lightfoot.)

‡ In some parts of this Section, αὐλή is used to denote the open court of the palace, round which were the various halls and chambers. So in Mark, ver. 66.

MATT.	MARK.	LUKE	JOHN XVIII.
		(See p. 253.)	out and spake unto her that kept the door, and brought in Peter. ¹⁷ (The damsel that kept the door saith therefore unto Peter, "Art not thou also one of this man's disciples?" He saith, "I am not.") ¹⁸ Now the servants and officers were standing there, having made a fire of coals; because it was cold: and they warmed themselves: and Peter was standing with them, and warming himself. ¹⁹ The High Priest therefore asked Jesus concerning his disciples, and concerning his doctrine. ²⁰ Jesus answered him, "I spake openly to the world: I always taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither all the Jews resort; and in secret have I said nothing. ²¹ Why dost thou ask me? ask them that heard me, what I said unto them: behold, these know what I said." ²² And when he had thus spoken, one of the officers who stood by struck Jesus with the palm of his hand, saying, "Answerest thou the High Priest thus?" ²³ Jesus answered him, "If I have spoken evil, bear

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE	JOHN XVIII.
⁵⁹ Now the Chief Priests, [and the Elders,] and the whole Council, sought false witness against Jesus, that they might put him to death; ⁶⁰ yet they found none, though many false witnesses came. At the last came two witnesses, ⁶¹ and said, "This man said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it within three days.'" ⁶² And the High Priest arose, and said unto him, "Answerest thou nothing? what do these witness against thee?" ⁶³ But Jesus kept silence. And the High Priest answered and said unto him, "I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou art the Christ, the Son of God." ⁶⁴ Jesus saith unto him, "Thou	⁵⁵ Now the Chief Priests and the whole Council sought for witness against Jesus in order to put him to death; yet they found none. ⁵⁶ For many bare false witness against him; yet their witness was not sufficient. ⁵⁷ And there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying, ⁵⁸ "We heard him say, 'I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands:'" ⁵⁹ yet not even thus was their witness sufficient. ⁶⁰ And the High Priest stood up in the midst, and questioned Jesus, saying, "Answerest thou nothing? what do these witness against thee?" ⁶¹ But he kept silence, and answered nothing. Again the High Priest asked him, and saith unto him, "Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?" ⁶² And Jesus said, "I am: and ye will see the		witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?" ²⁴ (Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the High Priest.)

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XVIII.
hast said: moreover I say unto you, Henceforth ye will see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming on the clouds of heaven." ⁶³ Then the High Priest rent his garments, saying, "He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy. ⁶⁶ What seemeth fit to you?" They answered and said, "He is guilty of death." * ⁶⁷ Then they spat in his face, and buffeted him; and some struck him with the palms of their hands, ⁶⁸ saying, "Prophecy unto us, thou Christ, who is he that smote thee?"	Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming among the clouds of heaven." ⁶³ Then the High Priest rent his clothes, and saith, "What further need have we of witnesses? ⁶⁴ Ye have heard the blasphemy: what appeareth fit to you?" And they all condemned him to be guilty of death." * ⁶⁵ And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him; and to say unto him, "Prophecy:" and the officers struck him with the palms of their hands.	⁶³ (And the men that held Jesus mocked him, and smote him. ⁶⁴ And when they had covered him, they struck his face, and asked him, saying, "Prophecy, who is he that smote thee?" ⁶⁵ And many other things they blasphemously spake against him.)
⁶⁹ Now Peter was sitting without in the court: and a maid-servant came unto him, saying, "And thou wast with Jesus of Galilee." ⁷⁰ But he denied it before them all, saying, "I know not what thou sayest."	⁶⁶ And as Peter was in the court below, there cometh one of the maid-servants of the High Priest: ⁶⁷ and seeing Peter warming himself, she looked upon him, and said, "And thou wast with Jesus of Nazareth." ⁶⁸ But he denied it, saying, "I know not, nor do I understand what thou sayest." And he went forth into the porch; and a cock crew. ⁶⁹ And the maid-	⁶⁶ But a certain maid-servant, seeing him sitting by the fire, and earnestly looking upon him, said, "And this man was with him." ⁶⁷ But he denied [him,] saying, "Woman, I know him not."
⁷¹ And when he had gone out into the porch, another maid-servant saw	⁷¹ And when he had gone out into the porch, another maid-servant saw	⁶⁸ And after a short time another person saw him, and said, "And	(From p. 251.) ¹⁷ The damsel that kept the door saith therefore unto Peter, "Art not thou also

* Or, He is obnoxious (or liable) to death, ενοχος θανάτου.

MATT. XXVI.	MARK XIV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN XVIII.
him, and she saith unto them that were there, “ And this man was with Jesus of Nazareth.” ⁷² And again he denied with an oath ; “ I know not the man.” ⁷³ And after a little while, they that stood by came, and said to Peter, “ Surely thou also art one of them ; and indeed thy speech maketh thee manifest.” ⁷⁴ Then he began to curse himself , and to swear, saying , “ I know not the man.” And straightway a cock crew. ⁷⁵ And Peter remembered the word of Jesus, who said unto him, ‘ Before the cock crow, thou wilt deny me thrice.’ And he went out, and wept bitterly.	servant saw him again, and began to say to them that stood by, “ This man is one of them.” ⁷⁰ But he denied it again. And after a little while, they that stood by again said to Peter, “ Surely thou art one of them : and indeed thou art a Galilean, [and thy speech resembles theirs.”] ⁷¹ But he began to curse himself , and to swear, saying , “ I know not this man whom ye speak of.” ⁷² And a second time a cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word which Jesus said unto him, ‘ Before the cock crow twice, thou wilt deny me thrice.’ And he rushed out,* and wept.	thou art one of them.” But Peter said, “ Man, I am not.” ⁵⁹ And about the space of one hour after, some other confidently affirmed, saying, “ Of a truth this man also was with him : and indeed he is a Galilean.” ⁶⁰ But Peter said, “ Man, I know not what thou sayest.” And immediately, while he was still speaking, the cock crew. ⁶¹ And the Lord turned and looked upon Peter. And Peter recollected† the word of the Lord, how he had said unto him, ‘ Before the cock crow, thou wilt deny me thrice.’ ⁶² And he went forth, and wept bitterly.	one of this man’s disciples ? ” He saith “ I am not.” ²⁵ Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said therefore unto him, “ Art not thou also one of his disciples ? ” He denied it , and said, “ I am not.” ²⁶ One of the servants of the High Priest, (being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off,) saith to him , “ Did not I see thee in the garden with him ? ” ²⁷ Again therefore Peter denied ; and straightway a cock crew.

SECT. XI.

Christ condemned by the Sanhedrim.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
Now when the morning came, all the Chief Priests and the Elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death.	AND straightway in the morning the Chief Priests held a consultation with the Elders and Scribes and the whole Council,	⁶⁰ AND as soon as it was day, the Elders of the people were gathered together, and the Chief Priests and the Scribes ; and they led him up †

* Καὶ ἐπιβαλὼν ἐκλαίει. † Matt. ἐμνησθῇ : Mark, ἀνεμνησθῇ : Luke, ὑπεμνησθῇ.

† ἀνηγαγον : This word accords well with the supposition that our Lord was conducted from the High Priest’s Palace to the Hall of the Sanhedrim, which was in one of the buildings in the Inner Court of the Temple. The Prætorium, where Pilate resided, was adjoining the north-west corner of the Outer Court.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXII.	JOHN
		into their Council,* saying, ⁶⁷ “If thou art the Christ, tell us.” But he said unto them, “If I should tell you, ye would not believe: ⁶⁸ and if I also should put a question to you,† ye would not answer me, nor let me go. ⁶⁹ Henceforth will the Son of man be sitting on the right hand of the power of God.” ⁷⁰ And they all said, “Thou art therefore the Son of God?” And he said unto them, “Ye say that I am.”‡ ⁷¹ And they said, “What further need have we of witness? for we ourselves have heard from his own mouth.”
² And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate, the Governor.	and they bound Jesus, and took him away, and delivered him to Pilate	CH. XXIII. And the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.

SECT. XII.
(The Remorse of Judas.)

MATT. XXVII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
³ (THEN Judas, who delivered him up, when he saw that he was condemned, was full of remorse, § and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the Chief Priests and Elders, ⁴ saying, “I have sinned, having betrayed innocent blood.” But they said, “What is that to us? see thou to that.” ⁵ And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed,

* το συνέδριον.

† εαν δε και ερωτησω.

‡ Or, ye say true, for I am, ὑμεις λεγετε, οτι εγω ειμι. This is Wakefield’s rendering.

§ μεταμεληθεις. Repentance is expressed by μετανοια, and repent, by μετανοεω: μεταμελομαι seems more to refer to the feelings, indicating penitence, regret, remorse.

He appears to have followed to the Hall of the Sanhedrim; and when he saw their final determination, to have gone at once to the Chief Priests, before they left the Temple.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
and went and hanged himself.* 6 And the Chief Priests took the pieces of silver, and said, "It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, because they are the price of blood." 7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, as a burial-place for strangers. 8 Wherefore that field was called The Field of Blood, unto this day. 9 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, 'And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the sons of Israel did value; 10 and gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.')	Zech. 11; 13.

SECT. XIII.

Transactions at the Prætorium, and at the Palace of Herod : Christ condemned to Crucifixion by Pontius Pilate.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XVIII.
			28 THEY lead Jesus [therefore] from Caiaphas unto the Prætorium : now it was early in the morning. And they themselves went not into the Prætorium, that they might not be defiled ; but that they might eat the passover. 29 Pilate therefore went forth unto them, and said, "What accusation bring ye against this man?" 30 They answered and said unto him, "If he were not a malefactor, we should not have delivered him up unto thee." 31 Pilate

* St. Luke (Acts i. 18,) recording the words of Peter, says, 'This man therefore purchased a field with the reward of iniquity ; and falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.'—This describes the issue : Matthew's narrative, the act of Judas himself. (See Kuinoel.) It is obvious, however, from the beginning of the verse, that St. Peter did not, at that early period, know the whole of the circumstances as recorded, thirty years after, by St. Matthew.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XVIII.
			therefore said unto them, "Take ye him, and judge him according to your law." The Jews therefore said unto him, "It is not lawful for us to put any man to death." ³² (That the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled,† which he spake, signifying by what death he was about to die.)
		Matt. 20; 19.
		² AND they began to accuse him, saying, "We found this man perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar, saying, that he himself is Christ a King.*
¹¹ AND Jesus stood before the Governor: and the Governor asked him, saying, "Thou art the King of the Jews?"	² AND Pilate asked him, saying, "Thou art the King of the Jews?"	³ And Pilate asked him, saying, "Thou art the King of the Jews?"	³³ Pilate therefore entered into the Prætorium again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, "Thou art the King of the Jews?" ³⁴ Jesus answered [him,] "Sayest thou this of thyself, or have others told thee concerning me?" ³⁵ Pilate answered, "Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the Chief Priests have delivered thee up unto me: what hast thou done?" ³⁶ Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom had been of this world, my servants would have fought

* Or, the anointed king, χριστον βασιλεα

† Or, so that the words of Jesus were fulfilled.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XVIII.
And Jesus said unto him, "Thou sayest truly ."*	And he answering said unto him, "Thou sayest truly ."*	And he answered him and said, "Thou sayest truly ."*	that I might not be delivered up to the Jews: but now my kingdom is not from hence." 37 Pilate therefore said unto him, "Art thou a king then?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest truly ,* for I am a king. For this cause was I born, and for this cause I came in to the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice." 38 Pilate saith unto him, "What is truth?" And when he had said this, he went forth again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, "I find no fault in him." †
12 And when he was accused by the Chief Priests and the Elders, he answered nothing. 13 Then saith Pilate unto him, "Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?" 14 And he answered him to no one thing; so that the Governor wondered greatly.	3 And the Chief Priests accused him of many things: but he answered nothing. 4 And Pilate asked him again, saying, "Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they witness against thee." 5 But Jesus no longer answered anything; so that Pilate wondered.	4 And Pilate said to the Chief Priests and to the multitudes, "I find no fault in this man." 6 But they were more urgent, saying, "He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, having begun from Galilee to this place." 6 But when Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilean. 7 And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto Herod's jurisdiction, † he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem in those days.

* Or, "It is as thou sayest," συ λεγεις.

† εξουσιας.

; St. John's account is continued in p. 260. If he received his information from the Roman Centurion, he would learn what passed within the Prætorium; but little as to what passed without, till the closing part.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.
		⁸ Now when Herod saw Jesus, he was very glad : for he had for a long time been desirous to see him, because he had heard [many things] concerning him ; and he hoped to see some miracle done by him. ⁹ Then he questioned him in many words ; but he answered him nothing. ¹⁰ And the Chief Priests and Scribes stood and vehemently accused him. ¹¹ And Herod with his soldiers set him at nought, and mocked him, having arrayed him in gorgeous apparel ; and sent him back to Pilate. ¹² And on that day Pilate and Herod became friends together : for before they had been at enmity between themselves.
¹⁵ Now at this feast the Governor was accustomed to release unto the multitude one prisoner, whom they would. ¹⁶ And they had then a noted prisoner, called Barabbas. ¹⁷ When therefore they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, " Whom will ye that I release unto you ? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ ? " ¹⁸ (For he	⁶ Now at this feast he released unto them one prisoner, whomsoever they demanded. ⁷ (And there was a man named Barabbas, lying bound with his fellow-insurgents who had committed murder in the insurrection.) ⁸ And the multitude crying aloud began to demand from him what he always did for them. ⁹ But Pilate answered them, saying, " Will	¹³ And when Pilate had called together the Chief Priests and the Rulers and the people, ¹⁴ he said unto them, " Ye have brought unto me this man, as one that perverteth the people : and, behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man touching those things whereof ye accuse him : ¹⁵ no, nor yet Herod : for I sent

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XVIII.
knew that for envy they had delivered him up. ¹⁰ And while he was sitting on the judgment-seat, his wife had sent unto him, saying, "Have thou nothing to do with that righteous man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him." ²⁰ But the Chief Priests and Elders persuaded the multitudes that they should demand Barabbas, and destroy Jesus. ²¹ And the Governor answered and said unto them, "Which of the two will ye that I release unto you?" And they said, "Barabbas." ²² Pilate saith unto them, "What therefore shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" They all say [unto him,] "Let him be crucified." ²³ But the Governor said, "But what evil hath he done?"* But they cried out exceedingly, saying, "Let him be crucified." ²⁴ And when Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude,	ye that I release unto you the King of the Jews?" ¹⁰ (For he knew that for envy the Chief Priests had delivered him up.) ¹¹ But the Chief Priests stirred up the multitude that he might rather release Barabbas unto them. ¹² And Pilate answered and said again unto them, "What therefore will ye that I should do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?" ¹³ And they cried out again, "Crucify him." ¹⁴ But Pilate said unto them, "But what evil hath he done?"* And they cried out exceedingly, "Crucify him."	you to him; and, behold, nothing worthy of death hath been done by him. ¹⁶ I will therefore chastise him and release him." ¹⁷ [For he was obliged to release one prisoner unto them at this feast.] ¹⁸ But they cried out, the whole multitude together, saying, "Away with this man,† and release unto us Barabbas:" ¹⁹ (who for a certain insurrection made in the city, and for murder, had been cast into prison.) ²⁰ Again therefore Pilate spake to them,‡ being desirous to release Jesus. ²¹ But they cried aloud, saying, "Crucify, crucify him." ²² And he said unto them a third time, "But what evil hath this man done?* I have found no cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and release him." ²³ And they were urgent with loud cries, demanding that he should be crucified. And their cries and the cries of the Chief Priests prevailed.	³⁹ But ye have a custom that I should release one prisoner unto you at the passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you the King of the Jews? ⁴⁰ They all therefore cried out again, saying, "Not this man, but Barabbas." Now Barabbas was a robber.

* Τι γὰρ κακὸν ἐποίησεν;

† Αἶρε τοῦτον.

‡ προσεφώνησε.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this righteous man: see ye to it." ²⁵ And all the people answered and said, "His blood be on us, and on our children!" ²⁶ Then he released Barabbas unto them: and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him up to be crucified. ²⁷ Then the soldiers of the Governor took Jesus into the Prætorium, and gathered unto him the whole band. ²⁸ And they stripped him, and put round him a scarlet robe.† ²⁹ And they platted a crown of thorns and put it upon his head; and put a reed in his right hand; and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" ³⁰ And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.	¹⁵ And Pilate, willing to satisfy the multitude, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered up Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified. ¹⁶ And the soldiers led him away into the court, that is, the Prætorium; and they call together the whole band. ¹⁷ And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head, ¹⁸ and began to salute him, "Hail, King of the Jews!" ¹⁹ And they smote him on the head with a reed, and spat upon him, and bowing their knees worshiped him. ‡	²⁴ And Pilate gave judgment that their demand should be done. ²⁵ And he released him that for sedition and murder had been cast into prison, whom they demanded; but he delivered up Jesus to their will.*	Then Pilate therefore took Jesus, and scourged him. ² And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head; and they threw round him a purple mantle, ³ and said, "Hail, King of the Jews!" and they smote him with the palms of their hands. ⁴ Pilate went forth again, and saith unto them, "Behold, I bring him out to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him." ⁵ Jesus therefore came forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple mantle. And Pilate saith unto them, "Behold the man!" ⁶ When therefore the

* The first three Evangelists give no record of the last futile efforts of the Roman Governor to save Jesus. Luke briefly gives the final result: the other two record the scourging; and from this pass on to the last act of Pilate; stating afterwards, as a separate fact, what preceded the formal condemnation.—The succession of events was probably as follows. Pilate, after washing his hands, yields to the Jews, releases Barabbas to them, and, in their presence, has Jesus scourged for crucifixion: Jesus is then taken within the Fortress, and mocked by the Roman Soldiers: Pilate brings him forth to the Jews; and afterwards has another conference with him within the Prætorium: He then again brings him forth, formally condemns him, and delivers him up to be crucified.

† χλαμυδα. It was probably the military cloak worn by generals.

‡ Or, did him homage.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIX.
		Deut. 18; 20 ?	Chief Priests and the officers saw him, they cried out, saying, “Crucify, crucify him.” Pilate saith unto them, “Take ye him, and crucify him: for I do not find any fault in him.” ⁷ The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.” ⁸ When therefore Pilate heard that saying, he was still more afraid; ⁹ and he went again into the Prætorium, and saith unto Jesus, “Whence art thou?” But Jesus gave him no answer. ¹⁰ Pilate [therefore] saith unto him, “Speakest thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have power* to crucify thee, and have power* to release thee?” ¹¹ Jesus answered, “Thou hadst no power* at all against me, unless it had been given thee from above: on this account† he that delivered me up unto thee hath greater sin.” ¹² After this Pilate continued seeking‡ to release him: but the Jews cried out,

• Or, authority, εξουσιαν.

† Or, as to this, δια τουτο.

‡ Εκ τουτου εζητει.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE	JOHN XIX. saying, "If thou release this man , thou art not Cæsar's friend: every one who maketh himself a king, speaketh against Cæsar."
			¹³ When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down on the judgment-seat, in a place called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha. ¹⁴ (Now it was the preparation-day for the passover, and about the sixth* hour.) And he saith unto the Jews, "Behold your King!" ¹⁵ But they cried out, "Away with him , away with him , crucify him." Pilate saith unto them, "Shall I crucify your King?" The Chief Priests answered, "We have no king but Cæsar."
			¹⁶ Then he delivered him up therefore unto them to be crucified.
³¹ And when they had mocked him, they took off the robe from him, and put on him his own garments; and they led him away to crucify him .	²⁰ And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put on him his own garments; and they lead him forth to crucify him.		And they took Jesus, and led him away.

* The original reading probably was, τρίτη, the third. The numeral for six was easily confounded with that for three: yet ἑκτη is a very ancient reading.

SECT. XIV.

The Crucifixion.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
32 AND as they were coming out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name : him they compelled * to bear his cross.	21 AND they compel * one Simon, a Cyrenian, who was passing by, coming from the country, (the father of Alexander and Rufus,) to bear his cross.	26 AND as they were leading him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the country ; and on him they laid the cross, to carry it after Jesus. 27 And there followed him a great number of the people, and of women who both smote themselves and bewailed him. 28 But Jesus turning unto them said, “ Daughters of Jerusalem ! weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children. 29 For, behold, days are coming, in which they will say, ‘ Blessed are the barren, and the wombs which never bare, and the breasts which never gave suck.’ 30 Then will they begin to say to the mountains, ‘ Fall on us ;’ and to the hills, ‘ Cover us.’ 31 For if they do these things against the green tree, what must be done against the dry ? ” †	17 AND he bearing his cross,

* The force of the original verb, αγγαρεύω, corresponds with that of our verb press, in reference to public authority. In the New Testament it occurs only in these places, and in Matt. v. 41.

† Or, For if they do these things in the green tree, what must happen in the dry. On this rendering, ‘ the green tree ’ and ‘ the dry ’ refer to the then existing and the subsequent condition of the Jewish state : so Bp. Pearce. The rendering in the text makes the words refer to personal character : so Kuinoel.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
³³ And when they came unto the place called Golgotha, (which is called, The place of skulls,*) ³⁴ they gave him to drink, vinegar† mingled with gall: and when he had tasted, he would not drink. ³⁷ And they set up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS. ³⁸ Then were two robbers crucified with him, one on the right hand, and the other on the left.	²² And they bring him unto the place called Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, The place of skulls.  ²³ And they gave him to drink, wine mingled with myrrh: ‡ but he did not take it. ²⁶ And the superscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS. ²⁷ And with him they crucify two robbers; the one on his right hand, and the other on his left. ²⁸ [And the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, ‘And he was numbered with the transgressors’]	³² Now two others also, who were malefactors, were led away to be put to death with him. ³³ And when they came to the place, which is called Calvary,§ there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left. ³⁴ But Jesus said, “Father! forgive them; for they know not what they do.” ³⁸ Now a superscription also was written over him in Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew letters, ‘THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.’ Is. 53; 12.	went forth to the place called The place of skulls, which is called in Hebrew, Golgotha; ¹⁸ where they crucified him, and two other with him, on each side one, and Jesus in the midst. ¹⁹ Now Pilate also wrote a title, and put it upon the cross. And this was written, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS. ²⁰ Many of the Jews therefore read this title; for the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city: and it was written in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin. ²¹ The Chief Priests of the Jews said therefore to Pilate, “Write not, ‘The King of the Jews;’ but that he said, ‘I am King of the Jews.’” ²² Pilate answered, “What I

* Lat. of a skull, κρανίου τοπος.

† Griesbach marks οινον, wine, as a very probable reading; Lachmann receives it into the text. The liquor appears to have been the sour wine (Fr. vinaigre) of the Roman soldiers; and the mixture was a stupefying potion: χολη, gall, is used generically to denote any bitter substance, like wormwood, or myrrh.

‡ εσμυρονισμενον οινον.

§ Κρανιον.

|| εντευθεν και εντευθεν.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
³⁵ And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots. ³⁶ And sitting down, they watched him there.	²⁴ And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots upon them, what every man should take. ²⁵ (Now it was the third hour, when† they crucified him.)	³⁴ And they parted his garments, and cast lots for them.	have written, I have written." ²³ The soldiers therefore, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, (and they made four parts, to every soldier a part,) and his vest: now the vest was without seam, woven from the top throughout. ²⁴ They said therefore to one another, " Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be : " that the scripture might be fulfilled,‡ which saith, 'They parted my garments among them, and for my raiment they cast lots.' These things therefore the soldiers did.
³⁹ And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, ⁴⁰ and saying, "Thou that destroyest the temple and in three days buildest it ! save thyself : if thou art the Son of God, come down from the cross." ⁴¹ And in like manner also the Chief Priests mocking him, with the Scribes and Elders, said, ⁴² " He saved others ; himself he cannot save. * If he is the King of Israel, let him now come	²⁹ And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying, " Ah, thou that destroyest the temple and in three days buildest it ! ³⁰ save thyself, and come down from the cross." ³¹ In like manner also the Chief Priests mocking him among themselves with the Scribes, said, " He saved others ; himself he cannot save. * ³² Let the Christ, the King of Israel, come down now from the	Ps. 22 ; 18. ³³ And the people stood beholding. But the rulers also with them scoffed at him, saying, " He saved others ; let him save himself, if he is the Christ, the chosen of God." ³⁶ And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him, and offering him vinegar, ³⁷ and saying, " If thou art the King of the Jews, save thyself."

* Or, Can he not save himself?

† καί.

‡ Or, so that the scripture was fulfilled.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
down from the cross, and we will believe him. ⁴³ He trusted in God ; let him now deliver him, if he delighted in him : for he said, ‘ I am the Son of God.’ ” ⁴⁴ The robbers also, who were crucified with him, reviled him in the same manner.	cross, that we may see and believe.” And they that were crucified with him reviled him.	³⁹ And one * of the malefactors that were hanged on the cross railed on him, saying, “ If thou art the Christ, save thyself and us.” ⁴⁰ But the other answering rebuked him, saying, “ Dost not thou fear God, since thou art in the same condemnation ? ⁴¹ And we indeed justly ; for we are receiving the due reward of what we have done ; but this man hath done nothing amiss.” ⁴² And he said unto Jesus, “ Lord, remember me when thou comest in thy kingdom.” ⁴³ And Jesus said unto him, “ Verily I say unto thee, To-day thou wilt be with me in paradise.” †	²⁵ Now there stood by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother’s sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. ²⁶ When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple whom

* St. Luke’s definite information corrects the inference which had been formed by those persons who gave information to the two former Evangelists.—One only of the malefactors reviled our Lord.

† Or, in the abode of the righteous dead, εν τη παραδεισφ.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour. 46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, “ Eli, Eli, lama sabac-thani ? ” that is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me ? 47 But some of them that stood there, when they heard this, said, “ This man calleth Elijah.” 48 And straightway one of them ran, and took a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed and gave him to drink. 49 But the rest said, “ Let him alone : let us see if Elijah is coming to save him.” 50 And Jesus, hav- ing cried again with a loud voice, ex- pired. *	33 Now when the sixth hour came, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. 34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, “ Eloi, Eloi, lama sabac-thani ? ” which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me ? 35 And some of them that stood by, when they heard it, said “ Behold, he calleth Elijah.” 36 And one ran and filled a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, “ Let him alone : let us see if Elijah is coming to take him down.” 37 And Jesus ut- tered a loud cry, and expired.	44 Now it was about the sixth hour, and there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour. 45 And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst. Ps. 22 ; 1. 46 And when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, “ Fa- ther, into thy hands I commend my spirit : ” and having said these words, he expired.	he loved, standing by her, he saith unto his mother, “ Woman, behold thy son ! ” 27 Then he saith to the disciple, “ Be- hold thy mother ! ” And from that hour the disciple took her to his own home. 28 After this, Jesus, knowing that all things had now been finished in order that the scripture might be fulfilled, † saith, “ I thirst.” 29 A vessel therefore was set full of vinegar : and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth. 30 When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, “ It is finished : ” and he bowed his head, and expired.

* αφηκε το πνευμα, sent forth the last breath. Mark and Luke have εξεπνευσε : John, παρεδωκε το πνευμα.—All have the same import. See Kuinoel.

† This rendering accords with the pointing of Griesbach.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN
⁵¹ And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth was shaken, and the rocks were rent; ⁵² and the tombs were opened; and many bodies of saints who had fallen asleep were raised; ⁵³ and they came forth out of the tombs after his resurrection, and entered into the holy city,* and were seen openly by many. ⁵⁴ Now when the centurion, and they that were with him watching Jesus, saw the earthquake and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, "Truly, this man was the Son of God." ⁵⁵ And many women were there beholding afar off, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him: ⁵⁶ among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of	³⁸ And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom. ³⁹ And when the centurion, who stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and expired, he said, "Truly this man was the Son of God." ⁴⁰ And there were also women beholding from afar off: among whom was both Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the younger† and Joses, and Salome; ⁴¹ (who also, when he	† ⁴⁷ Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, "Certainly this was a righteous man." § ⁴⁸ And all the multitudes that had come together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote [their] breasts, and returned. ⁴⁹ And all his acquaintance stood afar off; and

* Or, and came forth out of the tombs, and after his resurrection entered into the holy city.—Perhaps St. Matthew intended the clause 'after his resurrection' to refer to the whole—to the raising of the 'holy persons,' as well as to their coming forth and entering into Jerusalem: but if their resurrection took place at the time of our Lord's death, he was still the 'first fruits' of a resurrection to an immortal life.—See Dr. Benson's Life of Christ, p. 685.

† του μικρου.

‡ Luke records the rending of the veil, in ver. 45, as if preceding the period of our Lord's death.

§ More closely, "Certainly this man was righteous.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN.
James and Joses, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.	was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered unto him;) and many other women who came up with him to Jerusalem.	the women that had followed him together from Galilee, stood beholding these things.

SECT. XV.

The Side of Jesus pierced with a Spear.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XIX.
			³¹ THE Jews therefore, because it was the preparation-day, in order that the bodies might not remain upon the cross on the sabbath, (for the day of that sabbath was a great day,) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away. ³² The soldiers came therefore, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other that was crucified with him. ³³ But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was already dead, they brake not his legs: ³⁴ but one of the soldiers with his spear pierced his side, and straightway there came forth blood and water. ³⁵ And he that saw it hath borne testimony, (and his testimony is true, and he knoweth that he saith true,) that ye also might believe. ³⁶ For these things were done, that the scripture should be fulfilled, ‘A bone of it shall not be broken.’ ³⁷ And again, another scripture saith, ‘They shall look on him whom they pierced.’
		Ex. 12; 46. Zech. 12; 10

SECT. XVI.

The Burial of Jesus.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
⁵⁷ Now when it was evening, there came a rich man of Arimathea, whose name was Joseph, who also was himself a disciple of Jesus.	⁴² AND when it was now evening, because it was the preparation-day, (that is, the day before the sabbath,) ⁴³ there came Joseph of Arimathea,	⁵⁰ AND, behold, there was a man, by name Joseph, who was a councillor,* a good and righteous man, ⁵¹ (this man had not consented	³⁸ [Now] after these things, Joseph of Arimathea, (who was a disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews,) besought Pilate that he might

* Or, member of the Sanhedrim, βουλευτης.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK XV.	LUKE XXIII.	JOHN XIX.
⁵⁸ This man went to Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be given to him. ⁵⁹ And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in clean fine linen, ⁶⁰ and laid it in his own new sepulchre, which he had hewn out in the rock : and he rolled a great stone to the entrance of the sepulchre, and departed. ⁶¹ Now Mary Magdalene was there, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.	an honourable councillor, † who also himself was waiting for the kingdom of God, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. ⁴⁴ But Pilate wondered that he was already dead : and calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead. ⁴⁵ And when he knew the fact from the centurion, he granted the body to Joseph. ⁴⁶ And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen ; and he laid him in a sepulchre which had been hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the entrance of the sepulchre. ⁴⁷ And Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses beheld where he was laid.	to their counsel and deed,) from Arimathea, a city of the Jews, who also himself was waiting for the kingdom of God : ⁵² this man went unto Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. ⁵³ And he took it down, and wrapped it in fine linen, and laid it in a sepulchre hewn in stone, wherein no one had ever yet been laid. ⁵⁴ And that day was the preparation-day, and the sabbath drew on. ‡ ⁵⁵ And the women also, who had come with him from Galilee, followed after, and observed the sepulchre, and how his body was laid. ⁵⁶ And they returned, and prepared spices and balsams ; and they rested on the sabbath according to the commandment.	take away the body of Jesus : and Pilate gave him leave. He came therefore, and took away the body of Jesus. ³⁹ And there came also Nicodemus, (he that at the first came to Jesus by night,) bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, in weight about a hundred pounds. § ⁴⁰ They took therefore the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen bands with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to prepare for burial. ⁴¹ Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden : and in the garden a new sepulchre, § wherein no one had ever yet been laid. ⁴² There laid they Jesus therefore because of the preparation-day of the Jews ; because the sepulchre was near.

* In Matt. xxvii. 61, 64, 66, and xxviii. 1, ταφος is employed ; but in all other instances (except Luke xxviii. 53) μνημειον, which has hitherto been rendered tomb. From the associations with the word sepulchre in relation to the tomb of Jesus, both of the Greek words are rendered by it.

† Or, a man of great estimation, a member of the Sanhedrim.

‡ Lit. dawned, επεφωσκε. This word strictly refers to the dawning light of morning ; so Matt. xxviii. 1 : but it appears (see Kninoel) that the Jews lighted up lamps at the approach of the sabbath ; and the use of the word may have been caused by that circumstance.

§ St. John alone mentions Nicodemus, and the situation of the sepulchre.

NOTE ON SECT. X.

On the Denials of Peter. (Pp. 253, 4.)

EACH Evangelist appears to have had in view to record three instances in which Peter denied Christ; but it is clear that they had not all the same idea of the details. This might be expected from the circumstances of the time and place; from the absence of all witnesses except the officers and servants of the High-Priest; from the period that would elapse before the facts would be retraced, as a matter of history; from the inability of any one, except the Apostle himself, to state, in regular succession, all the occurrences that took place; and from the difficulty which he must have felt to retrace them in order and detail, occurring as they did in the midst of terror and agitation, and followed as they were by overwhelming remorse, and shame, and anguish.

From the connexion of the Evangelist Mark with the Apostle, as well as from the characteristics of his record, it is probable that this is the most accordant with Peter's own impression of the leading circumstances. Mark alone records the first crowing of the cock, which, as recalling the warning, so much aggravates the evil of Peter's fall; and he speaks of the maid-servant (ἡ παιδισκη) who occasioned his second denial, as if she were the same (μια των παιδισκων) that first accosted him.—St. Matthew's account consists, it may be conjectured, of what he learnt from his fellow Apostle, while they still sojourned together; together, probably, with some information from persons concerned in the transaction: he gives it less in detail, (according to his custom in recording events;) but he states that the second denial was accompanied with an oath; and he speaks of the damsel who occasioned it as another (αλλη), thus distinguishing her from that one who occasioned the first denial. In other respects these two Evangelists so fully agree, that the chief source of their record must have been the same.—St. Luke gives the first denial briefly, but in accordance with the account of the preceding Gospels. What he records as the second, was occasioned by the assertion of a man; but this may have instantly followed upon the occurrence recorded by the other Evangelists; and may have been communicated by the person himself: it is to be regarded as a part of the second denial. In the third, Luke agrees, in substance, with the other two; but he specifies the interval that elapsed between it and the second; and he adds a most interesting circumstance, which must have been derived from some observant witness of the proceedings before the High Priest. The hall of audience, as appears from Mark, ver. 66, was raised above the court, (or open area,) in which the officers had made the fire, and where Peter was; and from Luke, ver. 61, it obviously looked into that court: at the furthest end of the hall would be the tribunal of the High Priest; and Jesus, while standing before him, would have his back turned towards the court. The sacred historian, after recording the third denial, states that 'immediately the cock crew,' and adds, with his usual impressive simplicity, 'And the Lord turned and looked on Peter.' If Peter observed this look, one can scarcely account for the fact's not being noticed by St. Mark; it surely could never have been forgotten by him: but it was very natural for the recording witness of it to connect it with Peter's immediately rushing out from the court; and at any rate, it shows that, while continually required to attend to the proceedings respecting himself, the Lord was not forgetful of his poor Apostle.—The Apostle John, (whom some suppose to have been 'the disciple' mentioned in ver. 15,) alone records what passed when our Lord was first brought into the hall of the High Priest ; and he interweaves with his record of it, what he knew respecting Peter. He also records three denials ; but it is probable that what he mentions first, corresponds with the second of Matthew and Mark ; and the two other denials which he specifies, correspond, in time, with their third denial. It is interesting to observe that this Apostle, who seems desirous to record enough to show the fulfilment of our Lord's prophecy, confines himself to the simple fact, and does not mention, if he knew, the dreadful and aggravating circumstances of it.

On the whole, the train of circumstances seems to be as follows. Peter was brought into the outer porch of the palace by another disciple, who spoke for him to the damsel that kept the door : this would make him known to her, and perhaps to some other maid-servants with her. He then went into the court where the officers and servants kindled a fire to warm themselves : there he appears to have principally been for the next hour, sometimes sitting, sometimes standing ; and there he would have a partial view of the hall of audience, imperfectly lighted by the torches and lamps of the attendants ; and he would witness a constant hurrying backwards and forwards, of members of the Sanhedrim, of officers and messengers, of persons coming as witnesses, &c. Every thing external was obscurity, haste, and agitation ; and the circumstances in the garden of Gethsemane, from the time when the enemies of Christ entered with the treacherous Apostle—preceded, as they had been, by the heavy sleep of a wearied spirit, and followed, as they were, by a hasty flight, and then an anxious curiosity to see the issue,—all had aided to prepare for the accomplishment of the thrice-given prediction. One of the maid-servants, who, we may suppose, had seen him introduced as a stranger, and had observed his hurried manner and perturbed countenance, accosted him while sitting at the fire : this led to his first denial ; and he hastily went to the entrance-court (or porch) of the palace, as if to go away. He now had the first signal for watchfulness and caution ; for while he was in the porch, a cock crew. Here, it seems, he was again charged by a maid-servant, (now, clearly, the one that kept the door,) with having been with Jesus ; but he denied it, with an oath : and one of the bystanders immediately asserting the same thing, he denied it to him also. He then went again to the fire in the court ; and after some time, (Luke says 'about an hour,' Matthew and Mark say 'a little while,'—in such circumstances it is not easy to measure time with exactness,) he was again charged with being one of the followers of Jesus. This led to his last denial or series of denials. Combining the accounts of the four Evangelists, we may state the concluding scene of Peter's fall as follows. As he was standing by the fire, one of the persons present said to him, 'Art not thou also one of this man's disciples ?' he replied, 'I am not.' Another, who happened to be kinsman of the man whose ear Peter had smote off in Gethsemane, said, 'Did I not see thee in the garden with him ?' he denied this also. The bystanders, however, now felt convinced, by his Galilean dialect, that he was one of the followers of Jesus ; and one (in particular) confidently affirmed it on this ground. The result is impressively stated by each of the first three Evangelists ; and, very briefly, by the last.

Matthew and Mark have recorded the denials of Peter after having stated the occurrences respecting Christ which took place in the High Priest's palace ; and this, though it neglects the order of time, is the most convenient method, and is here followed. This arrangement requires the transposition of ver. 63—65 in Luke ; which portion clearly belongs to those occurrences.

RECORDS OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

PART X.

FROM THE BURIAL OF OUR LORD IN THE TOMB OF JOSEPH TO HIS ASCENSION INTO HEAVEN.

SECT. I.

On the Day after the Crucifixion, the Chief Priests and Pharisees seal the Sepulchre and set a Guard of Roman Soldiers over it, by the Authority of the Governor.

MATT. XXVII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
⁶² Now on the morrow, (that is the day after the preparation-day,) the Chief Priests and the Pharisees came together unto Pilate, ⁶³ saying “ Sir,* we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, ‘ After three days † I rise again.’ ⁶⁴ Command therefore that the sepulchre ‡ be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come and steal him away, and say unto the people, ‘ He hath been raised from the dead : ’ and the last deception will be worse than the first.” ⁶⁵ Pilate said unto them, “ Ye have a guard : § go your way, make it secure as ye know how.” ⁶⁶ So they went, and made the sepulchre ‡ secure with the guard, having sealed the stone.

* Κυριε. † Or, within three days, μετα τρεις ἡμέρας. See Note * p. 224. ‡ τον ταφον.
§ Or, take a guard, εχετε κουστωδιαν. The usual guard consisted of four quaternions of soldiers, each set of four to watch for three hours. If such guard had been appointed to the Jewish Rulers for the Crucifixion, and were still under their direction ; or, if (see Pearce) there were a body of Roman soldiers then stationed at the entrance of the Temple, and were under the control of the Chief Priests ; the indication rendering it preferable.—There appears to be no ground on which to decide certainly.

SECT. II.

The Morning of the Resurrection.

To ascertain the order of the occurrences, with any probability, requires to compare carefully the several accounts of the Evangelists : these must have been principally derived from those women to whom the first disclosures of the Resurrection were made.

The narrative of MATTHEW is obviously derived from the account of some or other of the Roman guard, in connexion with what he heard from ‘the other Mary’; and her relation he has recorded—such is the internal evidence—as she first gave it to him on her return to Bethany from the sepulchre. MARK’s narrative appears to have been chiefly derived from Salome; but he very distinctly records the fact, that the first appearance of Christ was to Mary Magdalene. JOHN has given what he knew personally or from Mary Magdalene; and to this he confines his narrative. LUKE’s account may have been principally derived from Joanna or one of her companions; but he adds some general statements from other sources.—This view of the sources of the four narratives, is, in essence, what Griesbach has taken; and, from him, Kuinoel.

The descent of the angel who rolled away the stone and then sat upon it, may have occurred in the last watch, not very long before sunrise. The Roman soldiers appear to have rushed in terror from their station, on the sudden appearance of the Angel; and, without leaving the garden, to have been out of sight of the women as they were approaching the sepulchre. No mortal eye witnessed the glorious moment when the Son of God came forth from the tomb—the first-fruits of the resurrection to an immortal life; and the narratives of the Evangelists merely respect the disclosures of the great event.—Their close adherence to what alone was known, is very striking.

Bethany was about two miles and a half from the garden of Joseph; and it may be admitted that most of the Apostles were residing there, and that Mary Magdalene and ‘the other Mary,’ with one or two more, came thence to visit the sepulchre, setting out even while it was dark. Peter and John were obviously residing at no great distance from the sepulchre, (say four or five furlongs, in the direction of Mount Zion;) and Salome, the mother of John, may have resided with him, and set out from that part of the city, with a companion or two, to meet the party from Bethany at the entrance to the garden at sunrise. As they approached the sepulchre, on looking up, they saw that the stone had been rolled from the entrance; and Magdalene, at once inferring that the body had been taken away, ran to tell Peter and John. The other women proceed, and are informed by the Angel who had rolled away the stone that the Lord had arisen. Some appear to have seen the heavenly messenger without the sepulchre, before the others had come up; but all entered it, and received a message to the Apostles ‘and Peter.’ The women immediately left the garden: those from Bethany proceeded towards the Mount of Olives; and the others towards Mount Zion, but without meeting Peter and John, who, however, must have left their abode on the report of Mary Magdalene, before Salome returned to it by a different route.

The wife of Herod’s steward we may suppose to have resided in or near Herod’s palace, which was on Mount Bezetha, in the north of the city, about half a mile from the sepulchre. It is probable that Joanna and her companions entered the garden very shortly after the other party had left it. Their stay in it was short. After coming out from the sepulchre, they saw two Angels, received from one of them the glad tidings, and at once left the place.

The whole of what has been stated, from the entrance of the first party to the leaving of the second, would not occupy more than twenty-five or thirty minutes; and does not require so much. Peter and John next arrived at the sepulchre, followed by Mary Magdalene. The Apostles soon left the spot; but Mary remained; and not much more than half an hour after sun-rise, this grateful woman, after having received a suitable preparation of mind for the unexpected joy, first saw her risen Lord. The interview might end about a quarter before seven.

‘The other Mary’ and her companions from Bethany, would at that time be hastening over the Mount of Olives; and after our Saviour had parted from Mary Magdalene at the sepulchre, he approached them, and gave them also a message to his ‘brethren’.—These women might at this time be about two miles from the sepulchre; but it is obvious, from Luke xxiv. 31, and John xx. 19, that, in these calculations of time, we are not required to take into account any thing but the movements of the women: as respects our Lord himself, all, on that day, bears the character of supernatural; and in the above statement, the approach of our Lord to the women who were hastening to Bethany, is supposed to have taken place immediately after his appearance to Mary Madgalene at the sepulchre.

During the later part of the day ‘the Lord appeared unto Simon,’ as well as to the two disciples on the way to Emmaus; and in the evening he presented himself to the Apostles, who (except Thomas) had assembled together—we may presume in consequence of the joyful tidings of the morning, and in the chamber where they ate the passover with their Lord three evenings before. Thus closed the glorious day—the birth-day of our ‘lively hope’ of ‘an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away.’

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN XX.
	AND when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought sweet spices, that they might go and anoint him.
Now after the sabbath,* as it dawned toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary† to see the sepulchre.	² And very early in the morning of the first day of the week, they come to the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.		Now on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene goeth early in the morning, while it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre;

* Οψε δε σαββατων.

† That is Mary the mother of James and Joses; see ver. 56 and 61 of the preceding chapter, in pp. 270, 271. Μαρια ἡ Μαγδαληνη might well be rendered ‘Mary the Magdalene,’ wherever the name occurs.

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN XX.
² And, behold, there had been a great earthquake : * for an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came to the sepulchre, and rolled away the stone from the entrance, and sat upon it. ³ And his countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow : ⁴ and for fear of him the keepers trembled, and became as dead men.	³ And they said among themselves, " Who shall roll away the stone for us from the entrance of the sepulchre ? " ⁴ (and when they looked up, they beheld that the stone had been rolled away :) for it was very great.		and she seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre. ² She runneth therefore and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, " They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him." †

* σεισμος εγενετο μεγας. The next clause (beginning with γαρ, for,) assigns a reason for what precedes ; and best accords with the rendering of σεισμος to denote alarm or agitation : Wakefield renders it disturbance. Also in ver. 4, it is said that the guards εσεισθησαν.

† St. John's account is confined to what related to Mary Magdalene, with himself and Peter ; though the words of Mary, ' we know not,' imply that there were others with her. By its distinct relation, the less defined account of Matthew, and the general statement of Luke (ver. 10, 11,) must be explained ; and it is very easy to perceive how both of the latter might have originated in the accounts of the different women on the morning of the Resurrection.—See the Observations at the commencement of this Section.

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN
5 But the angel answered and said unto the women,* “Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus who was crucified. 6 He is not here: for he hath risen,† as he said. Come see the place where the Lord lay.	5 And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white robe; and they were affrighted. 6 But he saith unto them, “Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified: he hath arisen;† he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. 7 But go your way; tell his disciples, and Peter, that he goeth before
7 And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he hath arisen † from the dead; and,

* The faithful Translator of Matthew’s Gospel, (if not the Evangelist himself,) must have considered the Angel as first addressing the women without the sepulchre, and then conducting them within: see εκαθηντο, was sitting, ver. 2; υμεις, ye, ver. 5; and δευτε, come, ver. 6. Mark’s record distinctly represents the whole communication of which he speaks, as made within the sepulchre.—We may suppose that ‘the other Mary,’ with one or two others, came up before Salome, and the woman (or women) with her, had come within sight of the stone; and that the former set received the first communication from the Angel without the sepulchre: and, further, that when Salome, &c. entered the sepulchre, an Angel, (either the same, or the other of the two mentioned by Luke,) was ‘sitting’ by the spot where the body of Jesus had lain, and told them what had been told the others; adding, to all together, what is recorded in Matthew, ver. 7, and Mark, ver. 7. In this supposition there appears no improbability; and it has the advantage of exactly combining both records. On the other hand, St. Matthew’s account does not minutely coalesce with St. John’s, (see Note on ver. 1;) and considering the extreme eagerness of mind which must have attended the first narrations of the several women, very minute accordance in the details is not to be expected.—Those, who have been engaged in examining the narratives of transactions at once agitating and unexpected, will (if the former view be less satisfactory to their minds,) be ready to admit that the account given in Matthew might easily arise from the more definite account in Mark, taken in connexion with the information which Matthew alone had received from the soldiers, as to the descent of the Angel, &c. The arrangement in the text is made on the former supposition, as most suited to St. Matthew’s record.

† Or, he hath been raised up, εγερθη.

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN
lo, he goeth before you into Galilee ; there ye will see him : lo, I have told you.” ⁸ And they went forth quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy ; and ran to carry the tidings to his disciples.	you into Galilee : there ye will see him, as he said unto you.” ⁸ And they went forth and fled from the sepulchre ; for they trembled and were amazed : and they said nothing to any one ; * for they were afraid.	Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning,† they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared ; and certain persons‡ were with them. ² But they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre ; ³ and when they entered in, they found not the body of the Lord Jesus.§ ⁴ And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed concerning this, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments : ⁵ and, as they were afraid, and bowed down the face to the

* This of course refers to St. Mark’s informants : they either said nothing till they had heard of the appearance of our Lord himself ; or, they said nothing to any one on the way.

† ορθρου βαθεος. This expression seems most suitable to the period before sun-rise ; and the visit to the sepulchre recorded by St. Luke being independent of that recorded by Matthew and Mark, we might place it before the other, if the circumstances connected with Mary Magdalene, recorded by St. John, rendered this more probable. Luke alone mentions Joanna, the wife of Herod’s steward ; and it is most probable that she and her companions would come from the northern part of the city : see the Observations at the beginning of this Part, p. 274.—For the antecedent of ‘ they,’ see p. 271.

‡ τινες. As these are distinct from the women, it is probable that they were men—perhaps Chuza himself and one or more of his friends. They might have come to roll away the stone.

§ They appear to have come out from the sepulchre before the Angels accosted them.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN XX.
		earth, they said unto them, “ Why seek ye him that is living among the dead ? 6 He is not here, but hath arisen : * remem-ber how he spake un-to you while he was yet in Galilee, 7 say-ing, ‘ The Son of man must be delivered in-to the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again.’ ” 8 And they remembered his words ; 9 and having returned from the sepulchre, they car-ried all these tidings unto the eleven and to all the rest. 10 (Now Mary Magdalene and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them, were they that told these things unto the apostles.) † 11 And their words seemed to them as an idle tale, and they did not be-lieve them. 12 But Peter arose and ran unto the se-pulchre ; and, stoop-ing down to look	† † 3 Peter therefore went forth, and the other disciple ; and they were coming to the

* Or, hath been raised up, ἐγερθη.

† This verse is a general statement of the first sources of information to the Apostles, and may be regarded as a parenthesis. The following verse appears to refer to that preceding the parenthesis. The party whose report St. Luke records, gave their information to such of the Eleven and the other disciples as they met with. His narrative does not indicate any acquaintance with the circumstances given by Matthew in ver. 2-4, and 8-10 ; nor with the details in John 11-18. Such an historian could not have omitted the latter, especially, had he known them. He states what explains the record of the journey to Emmaüs ; and says little more. Kninoel justly regards these verses, 10-12, as consisting of detached pieces of information, not arranged in the order of occurrence.

‡ Continued from p. 278.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN XX.
		within,* he seeth the linen bands lying by themselves; and he went back to his own home, wondering at what had come to pass.	sepulchre. ⁴ Now they were both running together; and the other disciple ran quicker than Peter, and came first to the sepulchre; ⁵ and stooping down to look within,* he seeth the linen bands lying; yet he went not within. ⁶ Simon Peter therefore cometh following him; and he went into the sepulchre; and he beholdeth the linen bands lying, ⁷ and the napkin, which was upon his head, not lying with the linen bands, but wrapped up in a place by itself. ⁸ Then went in therefore that other disciple also who came first to the sepulchre, and he saw and believed: † ⁹ (for as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.) ¹⁰ The disciples therefore went away again unto their own home. ¹¹ But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping. While she wept therefore, she stooped down to look into the sepul-

* Παρακυντω expresses the act of stooping in order to examine. The sepulchre was hewn out in the rock; but the entrance to it was not sufficiently high to enable a person to look in without stooping. This is obvious from the records.

† Newcome has ‘believed not,’ on the authority of the Cambridge MS.: but the addition of the negative seems to have been a conjectural emendation of the transcriber; and it is quite unnecessary. The beloved disciple ‘saw and believed’ that the body was actually gone; but this was all; ‘for as yet they knew not the scripture that he must rise again from the dead.’

MATT.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN XX.
	9 Now having arisen early on the first day of the week he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast forth seven demons.		chre ; ¹² and she beholdeth two angels in white garments sitting, one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. ¹³ And they say unto her, “Woman, why art thou weeping?” She saith unto them, “Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.” ¹⁴ When she had said these words, she turned backward, and beholdeth Jesus standing by; yet knew not that it was Jesus. ¹⁵ Jesus saith unto her, “Woman, why art thou weeping? whom seekest thou?” She, supposing that it was the gardener, saith unto him, “Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.” ¹⁶ Jesus saith unto her, “Mary!” She turned towards him, and saith unto him, “Rabboni!” (which signifieth Teacher.) ¹⁷ Jesus saith unto her, “Touch me not;*

* Μη μου απτου. Archbp. Newcome renders the words, ‘Embrace me not.’ It is probable that Mary had thrown herself at his feet, (as the other women soon afterwards did,) and was clinging to them with eager rapture. ‘Cling to me not,’ appears to be the force of the words; ‘I am still a resident on earth, I have not yet ascended to my Father.’—Kninoel objects to this interpretation: but see also Schlensner. Bp. Pearce renders the following words, ουπω γαρ αναβεβηκα, ‘I do not yet ascend;’ but the ordinary meaning seems preferable.

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN XX.
9 [Now as they were going to carry the tidings to his disciples,] * behold, Jesus met them, saying, “ All hail ! ” † And they came to him and laid hold of his feet, and worshipped him. ‡ 10 Then Jesus saith unto them, “ Be not afraid : go your way : carry the tidings to my brethren, that they may go into Galilee, and there they will see me.” §	10 And she went and carried the tidings to them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. 11 Yet they, when they heard that he was alive and had been seen by her, believed not.		for I have not yet ascended to my Father : but go to my brethren, and say unto them, ‘ I ascend unto my Father and your Father and my God and your God.’ ” 18 Mary Magdalene cometh and bringeth the tidings to the disciples, that she had seen the Lord, and that he had said these things unto her.

* These words are omitted by Lachmann ; and are marked by Griesbach with the indication of probable omission. (Being followed by καὶ ἰδοὺ, the verse would begin, without them, ‘ And behold,’ &c.) If they were omitted, the connexion (see especially ver. 11) would still imply that this appearance of our Lord to the women who had been at the sepulchre, occurred as they were returning from it to carry the joyful tidings to the disciples. Griesbach, however, in his Commentarius Criticus, decides against the rejection of the clause ; and he considers the omission of it as having arisen from its supposed inconsistency with the appearing of Christ first to Mary Magdalene. Mr. Greswell supposes the appearance to the women recorded by Matthew, to have occurred above a week after the Resurrection ; in most other respects his arrangement accords with that here given, which was framed without the knowledge of his views.

† χαίrete, Hail ye !

‡ Or, did him reverential homage.

§ After recording one personal manifestation of the risen Jesus, this Evangelist hastens to the remarkable one in Galilee, of which he alone has given the record. From the words in ver. 10, we might be led to suppose that our Lord first purposed not to see the Apostles till they were there ; but that, in the course of the day, he saw reason to release them from all fear and uncertainty, by appearing to them also without delay.

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN
¹¹ Now as they were going, behold, some of the guard went into the city, and carried the tidings unto the Chief Priests of all that had come to pass. ¹² And they, having assembled with the Elders and taken counsel, gave a large sum of money to the soldiers, ¹³ saying, “ Say ye, ‘ His disciples came by night and stole him, while we were asleep ; ’ ¹⁴ and if this should be heard by the Governor, we will persuade him, and make you secure.” ¹⁵ And they took the money, and did as they were instructed : and this report has been spread abroad among the Jews until this day. *

• The succeeding portion is in p. 293. See Observations in p. 288.

The following scheme may contribute to elucidate the succession of visits to the sepulchre :

VISITS TO THE SEPULCHRE.

First Party.	Occurrences at the Tomb.	Subsequent Course.
Mary Magdalene	Sees the stone removed :	Goes to Peter and John.
‘ The other Mary ’ with companions from Bethany	{ Are accosted by an Angel without the Tomb, and then go within :	{ Return towards Bethany, and see Jesus when near it.
Salome and companions from Jerusalem	{ Are accosted by an Angel within the Tomb :	{ Return to their abode—say on Mount Zion.
Second Party.
Joanna and her companions	{ Are accosted by two Angels after coming from the Tomb :	{ Return to near Herod’s Palace in Bezetha.
Third Party.
Peter and John	{ Enter the sepulchre, and see no one :	{ Return to their abode, and perhaps afterwards to Bethany.
Mary Magdalene	{ Sees two Angels, and afterwards the Lord himself :	{ Returns to Bethany.

Perhaps also some other disciples may have afterwards come to the Tomb : see Note † p. 287.

SECT. III.

In the Afternoon of the Day of Resurrection, Jesus shows himself to Two of his Disciples on the Way to Emmaüs : and afterwards to Peter.

MATT.	MARK XVI.	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN
	12 AFTER these things he appcared in another form unto two of them, as they were walking, while going into the country.	13 AND behold two of them were going on that same day to a village, distant sixty furlongs from Jerusalem, the name of which was Emmaüs. 14 And they were conversing together concerning all these things which had happened.* 15 And it came to pass, that, while they were conversing and reasoning, Jesus himself drew near, and went on with them : 16 but their eyes were holden so as not to know him. 17 And he said unto them, “What are these things on which ye are conferring with one another, as ye walk, and are of sad countenance ? ” 18 And the one whose name was Cleopas answering said unto him, “Dost thou only sojourn in Jerusalem, and yet not know the things which have come to pass in it in these days ? ” 19 And he said unto them, “What things ? ” And they said unto him, “Those concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet† mighty in deed and word before God and all the people : 20 and how the Chief Priests and our Rulers delivered him up to condemnation to death, and crucified him. 21 But we trusted that it

* It is obvious from what afterwards follows, (ver. 22-24,) that these two disciples, (who, as appears from the 33d verse, were not Apostles,) knew nothing of our Lord's having been seen by Mary Magdalene, or by the other women. All that they had heard, before they set off from the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, was the first information, (which had reached them, probably, through intermediate channels,) derived from some of those who accompanied Joanna, or from Salome. The latter appears most probable, as the disciples speak also of the visit of Peter and John to the sepulchre, who may reasonably be supposed to have resided with Salome.

† ανηρ προφητης

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN
		was he who is about to redeem Israel. And beside all this, * to-day is the third day since these things were done. ²² Moreover also certain women from among us made us astonished, who were early at the sepulchre ; ²³ and not having found his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels,† who say that he is alive. ²⁴ And certain of those who were with us went away to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said:‡ but him they saw not.” ²⁵ And he said unto them, “ O dull of understanding, and slow of heart to believe in all things which the prophets have spoken ! ²⁶ Was it not necessary for the Christ to suffer these things, and to enter into his glory ! ” ²⁷ And beginning from Moses and from all the prophets, he interpreted unto them the things written concerning himself in all the scriptures. ²⁸ And they drew nigh unto

* Or, But indeed, with all these things, it is now the third day, &c.—The disciple who thus addressed his Lord without recognizing him, appears to have meant, “ Although he was so mighty, and our hopes were so strong, we have no longer room for hope.” In that case the beginning of the next verse should be rendered. ‘ And yet, certain women also,’ &c.—The rendering in the text, which is that of the common translation, appears to have been founded on the opinion that the speaker had called to mind the prediction of Christ, that he should rise again the third day; and had thence formed some hope that all was not over. This Kuinoel states to have been the opinion of Lightfoot, among others; but he prefers the former view. Indeed, though perplexed with what they had heard from the women, it does not appear that these disciples—the speaker at least—had derived, even from their account, any proper expectation as to the reality. With such expectation, it may also be asked, could they have left Jerusalem that day ?

† Either this refers to the account of some of Joanna’s party; or the first party of women had seen two Angels—one within the sepulchre, the other without. The information received from the Angels by the women who were sojourning in Jerusalem, would rapidly spread among the female disciples who were in the city: they could move about without fear; and which of them would confine such intelligence to herself ?

‡ That is, that the body was gone. This is usually referred to what Peter and John had observed when they went to the sepulchre in consequence of Mary Magdalene’s report; and the statement might easily grow out of that circumstance. If we explain it more closely, we must suppose that after the women had seen the Angels, some of the disciples went to the sepulchre. This is in no way improbable.

MATT.	MARK XVI.	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN
		the village whither they were going: and he showed the purpose of going on further. ²⁹ But they constrained him, saying, “Abide with us; for it is toward evening, and the day declineth:” and he went in to abide with them. ³⁰ And it came to pass, as he was at table with them, he took bread, and blessed, and having broken, gave unto them. ³¹ And their eyes were opened, and they knew him: and he disappeared from them. ³² And they said to one another, “Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us on the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?”
	¹³ And they went back and carried the tidings unto the rest: neither did they believe them.*	³³ And they rose up that same hour, and returned to Jerusalem. And they found the eleven gathered together, and those that were with them, ³⁴ saying, “The Lord hath arisen† indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.” ³⁵ And they related the occurrences on the way, and how he was known by them in the breaking of bread.

* This cannot refer to the Eleven and the persons collected with them; but to those of whom alone Mark had heard—the friends probably of the two disciples, residing in Jerusalem.

† Or, been raised, ηγερεθη.

Matthew not only does not record the circumstances in this Section, but takes no notice of the two manifestations of Christ to the Apostles in Jerusalem before that in Galilee, which he alone records. His Gospel might be peculiarly designed for the believers in the region where he himself would be most known. And further it does not seem improbable that after he had heard from ‘the other Mary’ that they would see the Lord in Galilee, he himself at once set out for his own home. The mention of ‘the Eleven’ by Mark, (ver. 14,) does not appear a serious objection to this conjecture: St. Paul speaks of Christ’s having appeared to the Twelve, though Judas was no more; and Mark, though Thomas was absent, speaks of the Eleven, for the Apostles generally.

SECT. IV.

In the Evening of the Day of Resurrection our Lord presents himself to the Apostles, Thomas being absent.

MATT.	MARK XVI.	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN XX.
	14 AFTERWARD* he appeared unto the eleven themselves, as they were at table, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they had not believed them who had seen him after he had been raised. †	36 AND as they ‡ were saying these things, he himself stood in the midst of them; and he saith unto them, “Peace be unto you!” 37 But they, being terrified and affrighted, supposed that they saw a spirit. 38 And he said unto them, “Why are ye troubled? and why do doubting thoughts arise in your hearts? 39 Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have.” 40 And having thus spoken, he showed them his hands and his feet. 41 And while they yet believed not through joy, and wondered, he said unto them, “Have ye here any thing to eat?” 42 And they gave him part of a broiled fish, and part of a ho-	19 WHEN therefore it was evening on that day, the first day of the week, and the doors of the place where the disciples were assembled having been shut for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst; and he saith unto them, “Peace be unto you!” § 20 And when he had said this, he showed unto them his hands and his side. The disciples therefore were glad when they saw the Lord.

* Or, finally, ὑστερον. He first (ver. 9) appeared to Mary Magdalene; afterwards (ver. 12) to the two disciples on the way to Emmaüs; and finally (ver. 14) to the Eleven. These words of course solely refer to St. Mark's own narration.

† The succeeding portion (ver. 15-18) seems to correspond with the record of St. Matthew respecting our Lord's appearance to the Apostles on the Mountain in Galilee. See p. 293.

‡ The antecedent of 'they' must be (ver. 33) 'the Eleven and they that were with them,' together with the two disciples. It would have appeared from Mark xvi. 14, that only the Eleven were at table when our Lord presented himself to them: from John we know that Thomas was not among these.

§ The distinct narrative of St. John accords with that of Luke, though each relates particulars not given by the other. The two disciples, on their return to Jerusalem, having communicated their intelligence to several of their fellow-disciples, who (Mark xvi. 13) did not credit them, at last found the Apostles and others collected together, but with cautious provisions to avoid the Jews. While they were making their respective communications, the doors being closed, Jesus appeared among them.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN XX.
		neycomb. ⁴³ And he took some , and ate before them. *	²¹ Jesus said therefore to them again, "Peace be unto you ! as the Father hath sent me, I also send you." ²² And when he had said this, he breathed on them , and saith unto them, "Receive ye the Holy Spirit : ²³ whose-soever sins ye forgive, they are forgiven unto them ; and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained."

SECT. V.

The Second Manifestation to the Apostles generally, Thomas being present.
The Apostle John's Declaration of the Purpose of his Gospel.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XX.
			²⁴ BUT Thomas, one of the twelve, he that was called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. ²⁵ The other disciples said therefore unto him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said unto them, "Unless I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into his side, I shall not believe." ²⁶ And after eight days† his disciples were again within, and Thomas with them. Jesus cometh, after the doors had been shut ; and he stood in the midst, and said, "Peace be unto you !" ²⁷ Then he saith to Thomas, "Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands ; and reach hither thy hand, and put it into my side : and be not unbelieving, but believing." ²⁸ Thomas answered and said unto him, "My

* The subsequent portion (ver. 44-49) appears to belong to the end of the ' forty days ' during which, as appears from St. Luke's own more detailed account (Acts i. 3,) our Lord continued having intercourse among the Apostles. From the Gospel alone, it might have appeared that the ascension took place on the same day with the resurrection.

† Or, within eight days, μεθ' ἡμερας οκτω. See Note * p. 224. It appears to mean ' on the eighth day ', that is, on the first day of the next week.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XX.
			Lord and my God ! ” * 20 Jesus saith unto him, “ Thomas, because thou hast seen me, hast thou believed ! blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.” 20 Now many other signs, † therefore, Jesus wrought in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book : 21 but these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God ; and that believing ye may have life through his name.

SECT. VI.

Jesus meets Peter and John and Five other Apostles at the Lake of Galilee

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XXI.
			AFTER these things Jesus showed himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias ; and he showed himself thus. 2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas who was called Didymus, and Nathanael, who was from Cana of Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples. 3 Simon Peter saith unto them, “ I am going to fish : ” they say unto him, “ We also are going with thee.” They went forth, and straightway entered into the ship ; and in that night they caught nothing. 4 But when early morning had now come, Jesus stood on the shore : yet the disciples knew not that it was Jesus. 5 Jesus saith therefore unto them, “ Children, ‡ have ye any thing to eat ? ” They answered him, “ No.” 6 And he said unto them, “ Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye will find.” They cast it therefore, and they were no longer able to draw it for the great number of fishes. 7 That disciple whom Jesus loved saith therefore unto Peter, “ It is the Lord.” When therefore Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girded on his upper garment, (for he was naked,) §

* Or, “ My Lord ! ” and, “ My God ! ” But see the observations of Kuinoel.

† Or, many other proofs, therefore, Jesus gave. So Kuinoel, who refers the word σημεια, signs, to the various proofs which Jesus afforded to the Apostles that he had really been raised from the dead.—If, as is most probable, the xxist chapter is to be regarded as supplementary, and the Apostle first purposed to end his record here, these two verses are to be regarded as respecting the whole Gospel ; and the declaration is so spoken of in the title of the Section.

‡ Παῖδια : see Note * p. 123.

§ The meaning of the parenthesis would probably be expressed thus, ‘ for he had on his vest only.’

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XXI.
			and cast himself into the sea. ⁸ And the other disciples came in the vessel,* (for they were not far from land, but about two hundred cubits,) dragging the net full of fishes. ⁹ When therefore they had come out upon the land, they see a fire of coals lying, and a fish lying on it , and bread. ¹⁰ Jesus saith unto them, “Bring of the fishes which ye have now caught.” ¹¹ Simon Peter went aboard, and drew the net to the land full of great fishes, a hundred and fifty-three: and though there were so many, the net was not broken. ¹² Jesus saith unto them, “Come and breakfast.”† But none of the disciples durst ask him,‡ “Who art thou?” knowing that it was the Lord. ¹³ Jesus cometh, and taketh the bread, and giveth them; and in like manner the fish. ¹⁴ (This was now the third time that Jesus showed himself to his disciples, after he had arisen§ from the dead.)
			¹⁵ When therefore they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, “Simon, son of Jonah, lovest thou me more than these do ?” He saith unto him, “Yea, Lord! thou knowest that I love thee.” He saith unto him, “Feed my lambs.” ¹⁶ He saith to him again a second time, “Simon, son of Jonah, lovest thou me?” He saith unto him, “Yea, Lord! thou knowest that I love thee.” He saith unto him, “Tend my sheep.” ¹⁷ He saith unto him the third time, “Simon, son of Jonah, lovest thou me?” Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, ‘Lovest thou me?’ and said unto him, “Lord! thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee.” Jesus saith unto him, “Feed my sheep. ¹⁸ Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.” ¹⁹ Now he said this, signifying by what death he should glorify God. And having said this, he saith unto him, “Follow me.”—— ²⁰ Now Peter turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; (who also leaned on his breast at the last

* τῷ πλοιαριῷ.

† Or, take a meal, ἀριστήσατε. Ἀριστον first denoted the earliest meal; it was afterwards extended to the dinner; and in the Alexandrian dialect it was used for supper, or any other meal.

‡ Or, thought of asking him, ἐτολμα. See Schleusner. § ἐγερούεις.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE	JOHN XXI.
			supper, and said, ‘ Lord, who is he that delivereth thee up ? ’) ²¹ Seeing him, Peter saith unto Jesus, “ Lord, and what shall this man do ? ” ²² Jesus saith unto him, “ If I will that he remain until I come, what is that to thee ? follow thou me.” ²³ This report therefore went forth among the brethren, ‘ That disciple dieth not.’ Yet Jesus said not unto him, ‘ He dieth not : ’ but, ‘ If I will that he remain until I come, what is that to thee ? ’ ²⁴ This is the disciple who testifieth concerning these things, and who wrote these things : and we know that his testimony is true. ²⁵ Now there are also many other things which Jesus did, which, if they should be written one by one, I think that not even the world itself would contain the books thus written.*

SECT. VII.

Christ meets the Apostles at the appointed Mountain in Galilee.†

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN
¹⁶ Now the eleven disciples departed into Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had commanded them to go . ¹⁷ And when they saw him, they worshiped him : † but some doubted. § ¹⁸ And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, “ All power

* The authenticity of this whole chapter has been warmly questioned ; but there is abundant reason to attribute it to the Apostle. (See the argument well stated by Kninoel.) The 24th verse, however, if not the last two verses, must be regarded as the addition of some one of known authority in the Ephesian church—perhaps the person who copied the Gospel for its first publication.

† It is not improbable that this was the time when, as St. Paul states, 1 Cor. xv. 6, our Lord ‘ was seen by above five hundred Brethren at once.’ As Matthew obviously had in view merely to record the fulfilment of the promiae of Christ, (ver. 7, 10,) with his declaration concerning the power now given to him, and his authoritative commission to the Apostles, this Evangelist’s usual succinct mode of narration renders his silence as to the presence of others no obstacle to the supposition ; and, indeed, unless the Apostles had been commanded to assemble by themselves, it is scarcely conceivable that any of the Brethren who knew the appointed time and place, would lose the opportunity this meeting afforded them of seeing their risen Lord. On this supposition, the οἱ δὲ ἐδίστασαν, but some doubted, in the 17th verse, may refer to some of those who had not yet seen him. After the proofs which (as we know from St. John’s Gospel) the Apostles had enjoyed of the resurrection of Christ, doubt could not exist in their minds ; and if the words must refer to them, the verb should be taken in reference to the past, ‘ some had doubted.’

‡ Or, did him reverential homage.

§ Or, some had doubted. See Note † above.

MATT. XXVIII.	MARK XVI.	LUKE	JOHN
is given unto me in heaven and on earth. 19 Go ye and teach * all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit: 20 teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you. And lo, I am with you always, unto the end of the world.†	15 AND he said unto them, “ Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature: 16 he that believeth and is baptized will be saved; but he that believeth not will be condemned. 17 And these signs shall accompany them that believe: In my name, they shall cast out demons, they shall speak with new tongues, 18 they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any thing deadly it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.”

SECT. VIII.

Discourses of Christ to his Apostles, † followed by his Ascension into Heaven.

MATT.	MARK	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN
		44 Now he said unto them, “ These are the words which I spake unto you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which have been written in the law of Moses, and the prophets, and the psalms, concerning me.” 45 Then he opened their mind, that they might understand the scriptures: 46 and he said unto them, “ Thus it hath been written, and thus it was necessary that the Christ should suffer, and rise from the dead on the third day, 47 and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning from Jerusalem. 48 And ye are witnesses of these things. 49 And, behold,

• Or, make disciples of, μαθητευσατε.

† Or, unto the end of the age, έως της συντελειας του αιωνος.

‡ ‘ After that, he was seen by James, then by all the Apostles.’ 1 Cor. xv. 7. See Sect. vii. Note +.

MATT.	MARK XVI.	LUKE XXIV.	JOHN
		I send upon you the promise of my Father : but tarry ye in the city until ye are endued with power from on high.”
		⁵⁰ And he led them out as far as to Bethany:† and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them. ⁵¹ And it came to pass, while he was blessing them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. ⁵² And they worshiped him,‡ and returned to Jerusalem with great joy: ⁵³ and they were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God.
	¹⁹ The Lord, therefore, after he had spoken unto them, was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God: ²³ but they went forth, and preached every where; the Lord working with them , and confirming the word with signs accompanying it.*

The more detailed Account of the Ascension of Christ, given by Luke in Acts i. 1 – 14.

THE former narration I made, O Theophilus, concerning all things which Jesus began both to do and to teach, § ² until the day when, after having, through the Holy Spirit, given charge to the Apostles whom he had chosen, he was taken up into heaven: ³ to whom also, after he suffered, he showed himself alive, by many infallible proofs; presenting himself to be seen by them during forty days, and declaring things concerning the kingdom of God.

⁴ And having assembled them together, he charged them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to await the promise of the Father, “which,” he said, “ye have heard from me:” ⁵ for John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit,

* The last portion of Mark’s Gospel, ver 9-20, is regarded by some as of doubtful authority: Griesbach expresses himself very strongly to this effect; but Kuinoel ably defends it. The external evidence against it is very slight: the supposed inconsistencies between it and the other Gospels are the chief ground of argument. Considering the nature of the circumstances to be recorded, and the number of persons whose opinions, and of others whose information, would altogether form the basis of the narratives, there is less appearance of discrepancy than might reasonably have been expected. On cautiously examining the whole, as we might examine the testimony of any other faithful and well-informed witnesses, even the appearance almost entirely vanishes; and we readily discern how the whole would arise from the reality, viewed under different aspects.

† Bethany lay on the eastern side of the Mount of Olives, about two miles from the city: but tradition fixes upon a spot on the western side, near one of the summits, as the place of our Lord’s ascension. We, however, know nothing more than what Luke has said; and this is decided as to its being in the immediate neighbourhood of Bethany. What he says in Acts i. 12, merely respects the site of the Mount of Olives, not of the spot where Christ ascended. The Sabbath-day’s journey is said to have been 2000 cubits; Josephus somewhere speaks of the hill as six furlongs from the city, and elsewhere as five.

‡ Or, did him reverential homage.

§ Or, both did and taught.

not many days hence.” ⁶ They therefore, having come together, asked him, saying, “Lord! art thou at this time restoring the kingdom to Israel?” ⁷ But he said unto them, “It is not yours to know times or seasons, which the Father hath placed in his own disposal: ⁸ but ye shall receive power when the Holy Spirit cometh upon you; and ye shall be witnesses to me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa and Samaria and to the extremity of the earth.” * ⁹ And having said these things, while they were beholding him, he was taken up from the earth; and a cloud beneath removed † him from their eyes. ¹⁰ And as they were steadfastly looking towards heaven, while he was departing, lo! two men stood near them in white raiment, who also said, ¹¹ “Men of Galilee! why stand ye looking up towards heaven? This same Jesus, who is taken up from you to heaven will come again in the same manner as ye have seen him going to heaven.” ¹² Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mountain called the Mount of Olives, which is near Jerusalem, at the distance of a sabbath-day’s journey. ¹³ And when they had entered the city, they went up into the upper-chamber; ‡ and there abode Peter and James, and John and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alphæus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James. ¹⁴ These all with one consent continued in prayer, together with the women of Galilee and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

* Or, of the land, εως εσχατου της γης.

† νεφελη ὑπελαβεν αυτον. So Wakefield.

‡ το ὑπερφρον. It is a reasonable conjecture that this was the chamber where our Lord ate the Passover; where also the Apostles appear to have assembled on the evening of the resurrection. If so, it was in the house of a disciple.

A P P E N D I X .

(A)

CHRONOLOGY OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

INTRODUCTORY OBSERVATIONS.

THE only date by which we can decide in what year our Lord's Baptism occurred, is that assigned by St. Luke to the commencement of the Preaching of the Baptist in the Desert of Judæa, viz. ' the 15th year of the government of Tiberius Cæsar '. The Emperor Augustus died Aug. 19, A. D. 14. Reckoning from this event, the 15th year of Tiberius began Aug. 19, A. D. 28 ; and I suppose that the Baptist began his work immediately after the succeeding Feast of Tabernacles. (See the bottom of p. cxvii).

On this reckoning, the Baptism of Christ must have occurred between the Tabernacles of A. D. 28 and the Passover of A. D. 29. There was a tradition among the ancients, that it took place on the 6th of January ; and the recorded facts require us to place it not later than the early part of February : I suppose it to have occurred on the 20th of January.

In the year 29, the paschal full-moon was either on the 18th of March, about two hours before midnight, or on the 17th of April, an hour and half before noon. If the Jews added their occasional thirteenth lunar month, Ve-Adar, before the Passover of A. D. 29, then the Festival occurred at the later date ; but if not, at the former. It was the general principle, to have the 14th of Nisan occur at the vernal equinox, or the nearest full-moon after it ; but as the object of this was, that the first-fruits of the earth might be offered on the 16th of Nisan, there is reason to believe that they did not intercalate Ve-Adar unless the paschal full-moon would otherwise occur more than three days before the equinox ; and in the plain of Jericho, barley was usually ripe before that time. Mr. Greswell (vol. I. p. 266) assigns the 18th of March as the earliest paschal limit; and with Dr. Priestley I suppose the 14th of Nisan, A. D. 29, to have begun at sunset on the 18th of March. In this case (p. 225) the Caraites and Sadducees would kill the paschal lamb after sunset that day, and the Pharisees before sunset on the 19th; so that the first-fruits would be offered on the 21st. Since this was so near the equinox, and since the postponement of the Passover for a month would have made the Tabernacles occur very late in the autumn—at a time less suitable for the object of it—I deem it probable, independently of other considerations, that the Passover in the year 29 occurred at the earlier date.

As respects the commencement of our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee, this earlier date is important. If it could be proved, or even rendered most probable, that the Passover occurred that year so late as the 17th of April, still it would not, indeed, render it necessary to relinquish the week succeeding the Tabernacles as the time when the Public Preaching in Galilee began; and of course it would not alter the interval between the Tabernacles and the Dedication: nevertheless it would postpone the series of instructions and mighty works which occurred in that interval, to a period inconvenient for the later portion of it. It is with great satisfaction, therefore, that I feel at liberty, not only without any violation of probability, but even with antecedent probability, to place the First Passover on the 19th of March.

All the dates of the Jewish year depended upon that of the Passover; and the determination of the Passover in the year 29, fixes them till the Passover in the year 30. The paschal full-moon of this latter year occurred on Thursday the 6th of April, an hour and half before midnight; and the 14th of Nisan extended, therefore, from sunset on the Thursday to sunset on the Friday, chiefly corresponding with the 7th of April.

The only objection to our taking the beginning of A. D. 29 for the time of our Lord's Baptism, arises from his age at that period as stated by St. Luke, who says (ch. iii. 23) that, when thus beginning his work, he was 'about thirty years old', ὥσει ετών τριακοντα. Thirty years carried back from that time, brings us to the beginning of B. C. 2.* Now Herod certainly died, as Lardner has shown, before the Passover in B. C. 2, and probably before that

* I agree with the Translator of Heeren's Manual, that it is now time to compute uniformly, forward and backward, from the Christian Æra. That this is not commenced at the real time of our Saviour's Birth, is admitted, as certain, by all chronologers; but it is probable that the exact time of this will never be known; and if all chronologers agree (as is now done) to consider the first year of the Christian Æra, as corresponding with the year 4714 of the artificial mode of calculation termed the Julian Period, and with the year 754 of Rome, or the Julian Year 46, (reckoning from Cæsar's reformation of the calendar, which took effect on the 1st of January, A. U. 709), then no error or perplexity can arise from the exclusive adoption of this æra, and much may be saved. As most critics, however, who write on the chronology of the New Testament, employ other in B. C. 3 or even 4: indeed he thinks that the arguments are the strongest for B. C. 4. (See Credibility, Part I.) But if our Lord were born only some months before the death of Herod, as the Narrative of his Birth which precedes St. Matthew's Records of his Ministry necessarily implies, he must have been some months above thirty-one years of age at his Baptism, even if Herod lived till the Spring of B. C. 3; and if Herod died in the Spring of B. C. 4, then he must have been above thirty-two.*

As St. Luke's Introductory Narrative in no way requires us to suppose that our Lord was born in the days of Herod, but merely (ch. i. 5) that the annunciation of the birth of John took place in his reign, his statement dates, either alone, or with those of our æra, the following table of corresponding dates will often be found useful:—

	A. U. C.	Julian Period.	Julian Year.
B. C. 4	750	4710	42
3	751	4711	43
2	752	4712	44
1	753	4713	45
A. D. 1	754	4714	46
<hr/>
A. D. 27	780	4740	72
28	781	4741	73
29	782	4742	74
30	783	4743	75
31	784	4744	76
32	785	4745	77
33	786	4746	78

* Lardner rests greatly on the remarkable eclipse which occurred on the night when the Jewish Rabbis were burnt at Jericho by the order of Herod; this, if in B. C. 4, was on the 13th of March. Benson and Greswell take the same date for the death of the Rabbis, but they place the death of Herod in the following year, justly regarding the interval between the eclipse and the Passover, (which of course occurred at the full-moon following), as too short a time for the events that happened before the Passover which succeeded that event. In Playfair's Chronology, a total eclipse is said to have occurred at Jericho in Jan. 11, A. C. 3: if this had been the case, it would have perfectly suited the circumstances; but from the calculations made at my request by Mr. Bunt of Bristol, (to whom also I am indebted for the calculation of the paschal moon in A. D. 29 and 30,) it appears that there certainly was no eclipse at the time stated in Playfair.—I cannot deny myself the pleasure of here mentioning Mr. Bunt's admirable Planisphere of the Planetary System, which seems much less known than it deserves to be, (perhaps from its having been entitled a Planetarium), in which, on a sheet of moderate size, either paper or card-board, are delineated, with singular precision, the orbits of all the Planets—the four new ones excepted—in their true form and relative position, showing of course their apsides and their nodes, and also their annual motions; so that—with the aid of a little explanatory book which accompanies the sheet—the places of the Planets, at any period, may be readily ascertained with great accuracy.

respecting the age of our Lord at his Baptism, presents no difficulty against the simple interpretation of 'the 15th year of the government of Tiberius', as referring to the time when Tiberius became Emperor. And in reference to the Narrative of the Birth of Christ which begins our Canon—since the account which it gives of the subsequent circumstances can scarcely be made to unite with that given by Luke ; * since it contains peculiar difficulties, to say the least, in the application of expressions in the Old Testament ; and since it is not without probability that the Hebrew Gospel began with the Preaching of John ;—I cannot lay the same stress upon that Narrative, as I should if I were certain that it was written by the Apostle Matthew.

On the other side it must be admitted, that there is no evidence whatever to show that the Greek Gospel of Matthew was ever without the Narrative of the Birth of Christ ; that the Narrative could scarcely have been written, (or at least connected with the Gospel of Matthew), after the Gospel of Luke became generally known ; and that it appears improbable that the extraordinary and interesting narration in ch. ii. should have originated without some foundation in fact, which it could not have had if Herod died before our Lord was born.

Mr. Benson calculates that the death of Herod took place in February, B. C. 3. If this were the case, and I see no decisive reason against the supposition, then if our Lord were born in the preceding year, B. C. 4, in which Mr. Greswell places the event—say in the autumn—he was thirty years of age in the autumn of A. D. 27, and consequently above thirty-one at the time when I suppose his Baptism to have taken place. As St. Luke does not say in what year of Augustus Jesus was born, nor even whether it were before the death of Herod, I presume that he had not ascertained the exact year, and had merely learnt, generally, that our Lord was 'about thirty years old' at his Baptism ; if he were not much more than thirty-one, such a latitude of expression, where the exact truth would be scarcely ascertainable, is not an unreasonable supposition.

If we are to take St. Luke's words very closely, and suppose him to mean, definitely, that Jesus was between thirty and thirty-one years of age, then we must admit one of two things : either, first, that he was not born before the death of Herod, in which case we must relinquish the authority of the Narrative preceding St. Matthew's Records of Christ's Ministry ; or, secondly, that 'the 15th year of the government of Tiberius' is not to be reckoned from the time when Tiberius became Emperor by the death of Augustus, but from that period when Augustus associated him with himself in the tribunitial power. *

* Prebendary Townsend supposes that after Joseph had returned to Nazareth (Luke ii. 39), he came back to Bethlehem, purposing to settle there, when the events in Matt. ii. occurred. This lessens the difficulty ; still, Luke's ignorance of those events would be unaccountable.

The former of these two suppositions has already been sufficiently considered ; for the latter, I know only one argument of any material weight, viz. that from the time when Tiberius was thus associated with Augustus, he had the same power with him in the provinces. It is indisputable that no instance occurs, in the Roman historians, in which any year of Tiberius's government is reckoned from the time when he was associated with Augustus ; and it is not even ascertainable at what exact time this association took place. Nor is there any distinct trace that such a mode of reckoning was ever adopted in the provinces, sufficiently, at least, to make it so recognized an æra, that a writer so accurate as St. Luke should choose to employ it, instead of the ordinary, or, rather, the universal mode of reckoning, especially when writing for one who was himself probably a Roman Governor. This supposition is, in my judgment, attended with incalculably greater improbability than that Luke used the indefinite expression 'about thirty years' with sufficient latitude to include upwards of thirty-one. And when to this I add, that not only Dionysius Exiguus, who at the beginning of the sixth century fixed the Christian Æra, but also all the early Fathers, whether they referred the death of Christ to the fifteenth or to the sixteenth year of Tiberius, (see Diss. I. p. xiii), obviously reckoned the fifteenth year of Tiberius from the death of Augustus,—I cannot but regard the supposition which has been thus briefly considered, although maintained by Lardner, Kuinoel, Benson, and many others, as having no solid foundation.

I have not referred to the Decree of Augustus mentioned by Luke, ch. ii. 1, as presenting a difficulty in addition to those already mentioned, against the authority of the first Introductory Narrative of the Birth of Christ : this difficulty, however, appears to me a weighty one ; though confessedly, of less importance than it is made by those who consider the Decree as actually carried into full effect when our Lord was born.

From Luke's Introductory Narrative, we find that the birth of Christ took place at Bethlehem owing to a Decree, issued by Augustus, to enrol the Jewish nation, with a view to make Palestine a Roman Province. This is recorded in the 1st verse of chap. ii. The enrolment, as appears from the 2d verse, was not actually made, till Cyrenius was Governor of Syria : but the Decree rendered it necessary for every Jew to go to the city of his fathers ; and Joseph went, with Mary, to Bethlehem, because that was the city of David, whose descendant he was. Though the enrolment did not then take place—at least was not carried into full effect—the threat being from some cause suspended, yet, if it really occurred in the reign of Herod, we might reasonably expect to find some notice of the Decree, with its actual effect, in the history of Josephus, since this is full and detailed before the death of Herod ; and his silence respecting it adds to the difficulties attending the authenticity of the first Introductory Narrative. It is also true that there is no allusion to such a Decree, in Josephus's account of the events succeeding the death of Herod : but the historian, having no longer the aid of Nicolas of Damascus, is very brief in that account ; and his silence, therefore, is less difficult to be explained. Besides this, he actually presents a train of circumstances which would fully explain the issuing of the Decree referred to, and which far better accords with it than any known events do that preceded the death of Herod. It is as follows :—

* It may be requisite to observe here, that the word ἡγεμονία, used by Luke in ch. iii. 1, is of general applicability, like our own word government. Mr. Benson thinks that it best suits the hypothesis which he adopts, that St. Luke dated from the tribunitial government of Tiberius ; but there seems to be no adequate reason for that opinion ; at any rate this word decides nothing. Josephus (see Schleusner) calls the Roman Emperors ἡγεμονεῖς, governors.

On the death of Herod, Archelaus went to Rome, to obtain the Emperor's confirmation of his Father's appointment of him to the sovereignty of Judæa and Samaria ; but before he set out, a disturbance among the Jews led him to call out his soldiers, who killed two thousand of them. Some of his relations went at the same time to Rome, who were unfavourable to the division in Herod's will, and wished, if possible, to have Judæa made a Roman Province. At the first hearing of the case, Augustus determined nothing ; though he treated Archelaus with kindness, and appeared inclined to decide in his favour. While matters remained in this suspense, fifty Ambassadors came from Judæa, by the consent of Varus the Syrian President, to solicit that their country might be made a Roman Province ; and soon after, news came from Varus, of great disturbances in Judæa, and of a revolt so serious, that at the termination of it, he put two thousand to death by crucifixion. Another hearing took place before the Emperor ; and the Ambassadors pleaded their cause against Archelaus : but Augustus dissolved the assembly without having decided the question. Not long after, however, he determined to give Archelaus the sovereignty of Judæa and Samaria, with the title of Ethnarch instead of King.

So far we have the clear testimony of Josephus.—Now the data afforded by St. Luke alone, would bring us to this very period, viz. some time in the second year before the Christian Æra ; and if we might leave out of consideration the Narrative of Christ's Birth prefixed to St. Matthew's Records of his Ministry, we might with much probability conclude, that Augustus, influenced by the strong representations of the Jews, issued a Decree that all the Land of Palestine should be enrolled, as the first step towards the execution of their request; but that Archelaus made such promises as induced the Emperor to suspend the execution of it almost as soon as this was commenced, and to allow Archelaus to rule over Judæa and Samaria. As the immediate effect of the Decree was only temporary, and the Jews in general then wished for a change in their condition, there was neither time nor disposition for those commotions which arose when the census was actually made, after the banishment of Archelaus; and the circumstances which really took place, might easily be lost sight of in subsequent occurrences.

Whether or not the reader accord in these views respecting the first Introductory Narrative, he will not be surprised that they influence me so far against its authenticity, that I cannot lay any stress on its statements in opposition to any just inferences from the Gospel by St. Luke. As respects the Chronology of our Lord's Ministry, however, any decision on this subject is unnecessary; since it has been shown that, allowing a not-unreasonable latitude to the expression 'about thirty years old', the Birth of Christ might have occurred before the death of Herod, and yet his Baptism have taken place in the fifteenth year of Tiberius's reign. But having found it requisite to place the two Introductory Narratives in comparison with each other, and not perceiving how they are to be reconciled in relation to the events succeeding the Birth of Christ, I have also deemed it requisite to state my uncertainty as to the authenticity of the former of the two, and the grounds of it. I have no doubt whatever as to the authenticity of the latter.

CALENDAR OF OUR LORD'S MINISTRY.

1. Table of the Jewish Months, and the first days of the Leading Festivals.

A. D. 28			A. D. 29
Tisri	began	Sept. 10	Elul	began	Aug. 29
Tabernacles	(Tisri 15)	24	Tisri	—	30
Marchesvan	—	Oct. 10	Tabernacles	— (Tisri 15)	Sept. 13
Chisleu	—	Nov. 8	Marchesvan	—	20
Dedication	— (Chisleu 25)	Dec. 8	Chisleu	—	Oct. 20
Tibbeth	—	5	Dedication	— (Chisleu 25)	Nov. 21
A. D. 30			A. D. 30
Shebbeth	—	Jan. 6	Tibbeth	—	27
Adar	—	Feb. 5	Shebbeth	—	Dec. 26
Nisan	—	Mar. 6	A. D. 30
Pasover	— (Nisan 14)	10	Adar	—	Jan. 25
Jyar	—	Apr. 5	Veadar	—	Feb. 23
Nivan	—	May 4	Nisan	—	Mar. 25
Pentecost	(Nivan 6)	8	Pasover	— (Nisan 14)	Apr. 7
Tammuz	—	June 3	Jyar	—	23
Ab	—	July 2	Nivan	—	May 23
			Pentecost	(Sivan 6)	27

2. *Probable Dates of the Leading Facts in our Lord's Ministry.

A.D. 29.

N. B. The Jewish Sabbaths are marked f.Jan. 20. BAPTISM OF JESUS, after which he retires to the Desert.Feb. 28. The Priests and Levites come to John.Mar. 1. Christ returns to the Baptist at Bethabara.

— 2. John, Andrew, and Peter, follow Jesus.

— 3. Philip and Nathanael become Disciples of Jesus.

— 7. FIRST MIRACLE at Cana.

— 8. Our Lord goes to Capernaum.†

— 19. The FIRST PASSEVER begins: during the Festival, our Lord drives the Traders from the Temple, and converses with Nicodemus.

— 27. Christ exercises his Ministry in the Country of Judæa.

Apr. 22. Conference with the Samaritan Woman.

— 27. Jesus at Cana heals the Youth at Capernaum.

May 8. The PENTECOST begins.— 14. f The Cure of the Infirm Man at Bethesda.— 15. Christ departs for Galilee, where he remains till the Feast of Tabernacles.
See Diss. iv. p. cxxvii—cxxix.— 21. f The Walk through the Corn-fields. See p. cxviii—cxxiv.— 28. f Christ rejected at Nazareth.‡ See p. cxxviii.Sept. 13. The FEAST OF TABERNACLES begins. A little before this, probably, the Baptist was imprisoned by Herød Antipas. See p. cxxviii.

— 16. Our Lord reaches Jerusalem.

— 19. 'The last day, the great day, of the Feast'.

— 20. Our Lord gives sight to the Blind Man. § He then goes to Galilee.

— 23. CHRIST BEGINS HIS PUBLIC PREACHING. Call of Peter, &c.

— 24. f Cure of the Dæmoniac in the Synagogue at Capernaum.

— 25. FIRST PROGRESS through Galilee.

Oct. 16. Our Lord delivers the Sermon on the Mount, heals the Leper, &c.

— 17. The Widow's Son at Nain raised from the dead.

— 20. The Tempest stilled in crossing the Lake, and the Dæmoniacs restored to sanity on the eastern shore.

— 21. Cure of the Paralytic, and Call of Matthew.

— 23. The Day of Matthew's Feast (The 22d was a sabbath.)

— 24. Christ selects the Twelve, and begins his SECOND PROGRESS through Galilee.

Nov. 20. MISSION OF THE TWELVE into Galilee.

— 21. The Disciples of John come to Jesus. The Visit to Simon the Pharisee.

— 22. MISSION OF THE SEVENTY into the Peræa.

* The reader will find various illustrations and explanations of this Calendar, in the Preliminary Dissertations, especially in the Fourth. In some cases, the day of the Jewish sabbath decides a single date, on which several others may depend.

† If any consideration render it desirable to allow more time for the events before the Passover, the Baptism of Jesus may be placed earlier. In the Plain of South Jordan, it becomes hot in the latter part of January; and I presume the Baptist would recommence his Ministry, as soon as the season permitted.

‡ This appears to be the true place for this event: but if any deem it more probable that it occurred on the sabbath after the Tabernacles, they may place it there, though this arrangement will diminish, by one week, the interval between the commencement of the First Progress and the Dedication.

§ The regular sabbath fell on the 17th; but by the Law, this 'eighth day' was appointed to be a sabbath. See Lev. xxiii. 36 and 39.

A. D. 29.

Nov. 25. The visit to Martha and Mary at Bethany.

— 26. f Conference with the Jews, near the close of the FEAST OF DEDICATION.— 27. Jesus withdraws into the Peræa, where he remains till the later part of the following January; and where, probably, many of the Seventy return to him, as also some of the Twelve.

A. D. 30. Jan. 20. The RESURRECTION OF LAZARUS at Bethany.

— 22. The Sanhedrim resolve to kill Jesus, and he withdraws to Ephraim in Samaria, till the Death of the Baptist.

Feb. 20. Jesus leaves Ephraim to return to Galilee; perhaps knowing of the death of John.

— 25. f Cure of the Man with the Withered Hand.*

— 26. Cure of the Dumb Dæmoniac. The Day of Parables.

— 28. Last Visit at Nazareth.

Mar. 3. The rest of the Apostles rejoin our Lord, say at Capernaum.

— 5. MIRACLE OF THE FIVE THOUSAND, near Bethsaida Philippi.

— 6. Discourse, the day following, in the Synagogue at Capernaum.

— 7. Departure for the Region of Tyre and Sidon.

— 9. Cure of the Syrophenician Woman's Daughter.

— 11. Our Lord again near Bethsaida Philippi.

— 14. Miracle of the Four Thousand.

— 15. Cure of the Blind Man at Bethsaida of Galilee.

— 17. Avowal of Peter, near Cæsarea Philippi.

— 25. f The TRANSFIGURATION, in the northern part of Galilee.

— 27. The Temple Tribute paid at Capernaum.

— 28. Christ refused reception by the Samaritans.

— 29. Christ enters the Peræa, after passing near Scythopolis.

— 31. Crosses the Jordan in the afternoon, and passes the sabbath near Jericho.

Apr. 1 Jesus visits Zacchæus at Jericho.

Nisan

April

The Week of the Crucifixion

9	ending at Sunset on	2. Sunday.	Our Lord arrives at Bethany: the Supper at the house of Simon.
10		3. Monday.	Public Entry into Jerusalem: Voice in the Temple.
11		4. Tuesday.	Miracle on the Barren Fig-tree: The Temple cleared.
12		5. Wednesday.	The Last Day in the Temple: Prophecy on the Mount of Olives.
13		6. Thursday.	Christ at Bethany: in the evening he goes to Jerusalem.†
14		7. Friday.	The Crucifixion. In the evening the Pharisees eat the Passover.
15		8. Saturday.	The Sabbath. The Sepulchre sealed and a Guard set.
16		9. Sunday.	Before Sunrise our Saviour left the Tomb; and not long after, was seen by Mary Magdalene. (See p. 276.)

Apr. 16. Second Visit to the Apostles, Thomas being present.

— 30. Christ appears to the Apostles and perhaps at the same time to the Five Hundred Brethren, on a Mountain in Galilee. (The exact time of this event is quite conjectural.)

May 18. The ASCENSION OF CHRIST near Bethany.

— 27. The PENTECOST. The communication of the Holy Spirit to the Apostles.

* If the subsequent occurrences appear too much crowded, this miracle may be placed on the preceding sabbath.—I have, however, myself repeatedly calculated the succeeding dates, independently of the Calendar in the 6th Edition of my Introduction to the Geography of the New Testament, which is adopted in the Boston Harmony; and I find no reason for change in the essential dates;—the others follow of course

† In p. 226 is given a scheme of the "Events of the 14th of Nisan: i. e. from Sunset on Thursday to Sunset on Friday."

(B)

TABULAR VIEW OF THE CONTENTS OF THE GOSPELS

From the Baptism of our Lord to his Arrival at Bethany six days before the Passover.

N. B. The Sections to which Italic Capitals are prefixed, are found only in St. John's Gospel. The Sections with Italic (and afterwards Greek) Letters, are in St. Luke's Gnomology. (See App. C). The numbers under each Gospel, show the order in which the Section occurs in it; and the degree of transposition caused in it: the passages themselves may be seen in the Harmony.

	Matt.	Mark	Luke	Harm. Page
1. The BAPTISM OF JESUS.....	1	1	1	17
2. The Temptation.....	2	2	2	18
A The Testimony of the Baptist to a Deputation from the Sanhedrim. The First Disciples of Jesus.....	19
B FIRST MIRACLE at Cana.....	21
C FIRST PASSEVER, Conference with Nicodemus.....	23
D Jesus makes Disciples in Judæa: John's Last Testimony.	25
E Conference with the Samaritan Woman.....	26
F Second Miracle at Cana.....	28
G Occurrences at the Pentecost.....	29
3. Walk through the Corn-fields.....	26	12	12	32
4. Christ rejected at Nazareth.....	3	33
5. The Miraculous Draught of Fishes.....	7	34
6. The Disciples instructed in Prayer.....	9	35
I Occurrences connected with the FEAST OF TABERNACLES	39
7. CHRIST BEGINS HIS PUBLIC PREACHING IN GALILEE...	3	3	..	40
8. Call of Peter, Andrew, James, and John.....	4	4	..	50
9. Demoniac cured in the Synagogue at Capernaum.....	..	5	14	50
10. Cure of the Mother of Peter's Wife, and many others....	9	6	5	51
11. FIRST PROGRESS through Galilee.....	5	7	6	52
12. Sermon on the Mount.....	6	..	15	53
13. Cure of the Leper.....	7	8	8	65
14. Cure of the Centurion's Servant.....	8	..	16	66
15. The Widow's Son at Nain raised to life.....	17	68
16. Rebuke of hesitating Disciples.....	10	..	37	69
17. The Tempest calmed.....	11	21	23	70
18. Cure of the Gadarene Demoniacs.....	12	22	24	71
19. Cure of the Paralytic at Capernaum.....	13	9	9	73
20. Call of Matthew.....	14	10	10	75
21. Matthew's Feast.....	15	11	11	76
22. Cure of the Disordered Woman.....	16	23	25	77
23. The Daughter of Jairo raised.....	17	24	26	79
24. Restoration of Sight to Two Blind Men.....	18	80

	Matt.	Mark	Luke	Harm. Page
25. Cure of the Dumb Demoniac	19	80
26. Selection of the Twelve	15	14	81
27. The SECOND PROGRESS through Galilee	20	..	20	82
28. The MISSION OF THE APOSTLES	21	26	27	83
29. Message of the Baptist	22	..	18	89
30. Jesus at the House of Simon the Pharisee	19	91
31. The MISSION OF THE SEVENTY, with their Return	a.c	92
32. Christ Upbraids the Cities of Galilee	23	..	b	93
33. Christ's Thanksgiving to the Father	24	..	d	94
34. The Invitation to the Weary and Heavy-laden	25	95
35. Parable of the Good Samaritan	e	95
36. Visit to Martha and Mary at Bethany	f	96
" Christ at the FEAST OF DEDICATION: subsequent Sojourn in Peræa	96
37. Occurrences at the house of a Ruler who was a Pharisee	y	98
38. Discourse on counting the Cost	z	99
39. Parables encouraging the Penitent—the Lost Sheep, &c.	a—γ	100
40. Parable of the Unjust Steward, and Observations	δ	102
41. Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus the Beggar	ε	103
" Resurrection of Lazarus the Brother of Martha and Mary	104
" The Sanhedrim resolve to put Jesus to Death: he retires to Ephraim with the Disciples who were with him	106
42. Cure of the Man with the Withered Hand	27	13	13	107
43. Jesus withdraws to the Lake	28	14	..	108
44. Cure of the Blind and Dumb Demoniac: Discourse on Blasphemy against the Spirit	29	16	h	110
45. A Woman pronounces the Mother of Jesus blessed	i	120
46. Discourse when the Pharisees demanded a Sign	30	..	k	112
47. Parable of the Unclean Spirits	31	119
48. Observations when his Mother and Brethren come to him.	32	17	22	120
49. At the Pharisee's Table, Christ reproves the Scribes, &c.	l	121
50. Parable of the Sower and Explanation of it	33	18	21	121
51. ————— Tares	34	126
52. ————— Springing and Growth of Corn	19	..	127
53. ————— Mustard Seed	35	20	..	127
54. ————— Leaven	36	128
55. Explanation of the Parable of the Tares	37	128
56. Parables of the Hidden Treasure, Pearls, and Fish	38	129
57. Christ again visits Nazareth	39	25	..	130
58. Herod hears of Jesus	40	27	28	133
59. The Death of John the Baptist	41	28	..	133
60. The RETURN OF THE APOSTLES	29	29	135
61. The Miracle of the FIVE THOUSAND (John vi.)	42	30	30	135
" The Multitude purpose to make Jesus a King	137
62. Jesus walks on the Sea to the Apostles (John vi.)	43	31	..	138
63. Peter goes out to him (John vi.)	44	139
64. Jesus in the Land of Gennesareth	45	32	..	140

	Matt.	Mark	Luke	Harm.	Page
H Discourse in the Synagogue at Capernaum (John vi.)...		141
65. Declarations to the Scribes from Jerusalem, and to the People	46	33	..		143
66. The Daughter of the Syrophœnician Woman cured	47	34	..		146
67. Miracles near the Lake of Galilee	48	35	..		147
68. The Deaf Man cured	36	..		147
69. The Miracle of the Four Thousand	49	37	..		148
70. A Sign again demanded, and the Disciples warned.....	50	38	..		149
71. The Blind Man restored at Bethsaida.....	..	39	..		150
72. Peter's Declaration near Cæsarea Philippi: Christ then predicts his Approaching Sufferings	51	40	31		150
73. The TRANSFIGURATION	52	41	32		153
74. Observations respecting John the Baptist	53	42	..		155
75. Cure of the young Deaf and Dumb Demoniac	54	43	33		155
76. Prediction of Approaching Sufferings.....	55	44	34		158
77. Payment of the Temple Tribute	56		158
78. Observations on Humility and Mutual Consideration ...	57	45	35		159
79. ————— Causes of Sin	58	46	ζ		160
80. ————— Divine Mercy	59		161
81. ————— Mutual Forgiveness	60	..	η		162
82. ————— Apostolical Authority	61		162
83. ————— Faith and Humble Duty	θ		162
84. Parable of the Unmerciful Servant.....	62		163
85. Jesus refused Reception in Samaria.....	36		167
86. Cure of the Ten Lepers.....	38		168
87. Christ teaches in Peræa: Declaration respecting Divorces	63	47	..		169
88. Observations when asked respecting the Kingdom of God	39		170
89. Parable of the Unjust Judge	40		170
90. ————— Pharisee and Publican	41		171
91. Children brought to Jesus.....	64	48	42		172
92. Application of the young Ruler, and Christ's Declarations	65	49	43		172
93. Parable of the Labourers in the Vineyard.....	66		175
94. Admonitions and Encouragements to the Disciples.....	m		176
95. Warnings against Covetousness; Parable of the Rich Man	n		177
96. Admonitions respecting Anxiety	o		177
97. Preparation for the Coming of the Lord	p		178
98. Consequences of Christ's Mission; Individual Judgment urged	q		197
99. Calamities not always Judgments.....	r		180
100. Parable of the Barren Fig-tree	s		180
101. The Infirm Woman healed on the Sabbath	t		180
102. Parables of the Mustard-seed and the Leaven, repeated	u.v		181
103. Answer to the Inquiry, "Are there few that shall be saved?"	v		181
104. Observations respecting the malicious purposes of Herod.	x		182
105. Our Lord on entering Judæa, again predicts his Sufferings	67	50	44		183
106. Application of the Sons of Zebedee.....	68	51	..		183
107. Christ at the house of Zacchæus: Parable of the Ten Pounds	46		85
108. Two Blind Men restored to Sight near Jericho	69	..	45		187

ANALYSIS OF THE PART OF ST. LUKE'S GOSPEL WHICH RESPECTS
THE MINISTRY OF CHRIST IN GALILEE. See PREL. DISS. p. lii.

It is in Part B alone, that St. Luke's arrangement of events exclusively agrees with St. Mark's ; and it seems almost certain that the two Evangelists were in possession of some common documents. The subdivision of this Part of Luke's Gospel, by the aid of St. Mark's, affords some insight into the causes of the general arrangement which the former Evangelist has adopted. I may be permitted, however, to request the reader to review the observations in p. lii, as also those in p. lxiii, before he comes to a conclusion against what is here submitted to him.

Div. i. LUKE iv. 16—30. Record of our Lord's visit to Nazareth, probably before the Imprisonment of John. This is peculiar to Luke's Gospel.

Div. ii. LUKE iv. 31—vi. 19, corresponds with MARK i. 21—iii. 20, (to which Mark prefixes the beginning of Christ's Preaching and the Call of Peter, &c) The Cure of the Demoniac in the Synagogue : Cure of Peter's Wife's Mother, &c., followed by a Progress through Galilee : (Luke here introduces the Draught of Fishes) : the Leper : the Paralytic : the Call of Levi : the Discourse at Levi's Feast : the Walk in the Corn-fields, and the Withered Hand : the Selection of the Apostles.—All these occurrences have a local connection — with Capernaum or its neighbourhood ; but this is less specified by Luke than by Mark. See p. xlv.

Div. iii. LUKE vi. 20—vii. 50. Christ's Discourse (on the Mount) : the Centurion's Servant : the Widow's Son : the Message from the Baptist : the Visit to Simon the Pharisee.—These must have formed one record ; and Mark has no part of it. The occurrences are in the order of time, as ascertained by St. Matthew's Gospel.

Div. iv. LUKE viii. 1—3. A short independent document, respecting a Progress of our Lord through Galilee, attended by the Twelve, and by several women who had been cured by his miraculous power, and who now ministered to him of their substance.

Div. v. LUKE viii. 4—21. The Parable of the Sower, followed by Observations which are found also in Mark, and by the Application of our Lord's Mother and Brethren. MARK iii. 20—iv. 34, contains the Discourse respecting Blasphemy against the Spirit, (found in Luke's Gnomology § h), followed by the Application of our Lord's Mother ; then the Parables of the Sower, the growth of Seed, and the Mustard-seed. Here Mark agrees with Matthew ; and Luke has a different arrangement of those two events which alone he records.

Div. vi. LUKE viii. 22—56, corresponding with MARK iv. 35—v. 43. This remarkable portion consists in both, of a series of events which followed each other in close succession, and the arrangement of which agrees with that of Matthew. It begins with our Lord's crossing the Lake, and stilling the Storm: it then records the Cure of the Gadarene Demoniacs; the application of Jäirus; the Cure of the Disordered Woman; and the raising of the Daughter of Jäirus. We know from St. Matthew's Gospel (see p. lx), that the application of Jäirus was made while our Lord was at his house; and it is obvious that the person who originally recorded this portion could not have himself been present at the Feast, and that he simply gave an account of facts which alone had come under his own observation, relating them in the order in which he witnessed them.

Div. vii. LUKE ix. 1—50 corresponds with MARK vi. 7—ix. 50. It contains (1) the Mission, and the Return, of the Apostles; with the Miracle of the Five Thousand: (2) the Confession of Peter; the Transfiguration; the Cure of the Epileptic; and the Rebuke of the ambitious Disciples, with the connected circumstances. The succession of events accords with that in Matthew and Mark; but the record is much more limited in its scope.

The vith portion so clearly implies the existence of one document which was common to Mark and Luke, and the nature of the case renders the existence of other documents so probable, that we may reasonably assume, as an hypothesis, that St. Luke had obtained, by his faithful research, several documents, corresponding to the foregoing portions, which he translated into Greek if they were in the language of Palestine, and which he employed as his judgment directed, connecting with them whatever additional information he was enabled to obtain by his diligent inquiries in Galilee.

Now it is observable that in those of the separate records which contain several events, there is a close accordance in the order of occurrence with that in St. Matthew's Gospel. If they were made either by eye-witnesses, or from the narration of eye-witnesses, this was a natural result; and the fact lessens considerably the diversity which at first sight appears very great, between the succession of events in Matthew on the one hand, and that in Mark and Luke on the other. Considering each Gospel as a whole, the succession of events between the Imprisonment and the Death of the Baptist, differs very greatly; but in the separate portions, and in the arrangement of those portions, the difference is very small.

It is probable that St. Luke generally retained the succession of events in each separate record, as he found it: let us examine by what considerations he may have been influenced in arranging the records themselves so as to form the Part of his Gospel before us.

The beautiful record in Div. i., he would, of course, place first; for though it indicates the previous exertion of miraculous power at Capernaum, (of which we have a record by St. John alone), yet as it forms a perfect introduction to our Lord's announcement of his glad tidings, and at the same time affords a general specimen of his mode of preaching in Galilee, no position could be more suitable for it.

As to Div. ii, since the commencing narrative clearly preceded a progress through Galilee, unless the Evangelist had seen fit to distribute the narratives of which this record is composed, he would, of course, place the whole at the commencement of our Lord's Public Ministry in Galilee. This he has done.

The records in Div. iii, obviously form a distinct whole; and whether St. Luke received them as one document, or himself framed one from them, the position bears the clearest marks of having been intended to form one section of the Gospel. If the second Division were inserted as a whole, this Division could be placed no where else than it is; though some parts of it, as is the case with some of Div. ii, followed, in actual occurrence, events which thus precede in position.

The position of Div. iv and of Div. v, accords with the arrangement in St. Matthew's Gospel; and it requires no remark.

Why the sixth Division is placed where it is, I am not able to satisfy myself. Since (p. lx) it contains facts which occurred at Matthew's Feast, of which a record is given in Div. ii, and since the whole series obviously consists of occurrences that followed each other in close succession, I have no doubt that it is not in its chronological position. Nevertheless, since it has the same position in St. Mark's Gospel, in relation to the preceding Division, some connection must have been established between these two before they came into the hands of the Evangelists, or there must have been some link of association which at present I cannot trace. Adhering to St. Matthew's succession of events, I cannot hesitate in the belief, that the occurrences in Div. vi preceded those in Div. v: and indeed, as some of the former must have occurred on the day of Matthew's Feast, these could not have followed the Selection of the Apostles which is recorded even in Div. ii. On the whole, therefore, I presume that Div. vi had been connected with Div. v before Mark and Luke received the former. If so connected, St. Luke, when he compiled this Part of his Gospel, would of course place it after Div. iv, and before Div. vii; since Div. iv records a progress when the Twelve were with him, and Div. vii records their Mission.

The records in Div. vii. have the place which chronologically belongs to them; the short record of the Mission of the Apostles (ch. ix. 1—6) being obviously prefixed, owing to its connection with those records which follow.

The foregoing Analysis is offered to the reader, with the views expressed in the Note in p. lx; but I lay no stress whatever upon it as respects my Synoptical Arrangement. It seems to me to throw some light on the structure of the ‘former Narrative’ of this admirable historian; and it shows that there is less discrepancy than at first sight appears, between his arrangement of events and that of St. Matthew: but whether the investigations in this Appendix are satisfactory, or the contrary, the argument pursued in the vth and vith Sections of the Fourth Dissertation remains unaffected; and sufficient reason, I conceive, has there been shown, for abiding in a chronological arrangement, by the succession of events in St. Matthew’s Gospel.

(D)

ANALYSIS OF ST. LUKE'S GNOMOLOGY. See PREL. DISS. p. lii—lvi.

	I.	LUKE
a.	Record of the Mission of the Seventybeginning	x. 1
b.	Christ Upbraids the Cities of Galilee, MATT. xi. 20—24	— 13
c.	Notice of the Return of the Seventy	— 17
d.	Christ’s Thanksgiving to the Father, MATT. xi. 25—27	— 21
e.	Parable of the Good Samaritan	— 25
f.	Visit to Martha and Mary at Bethany.....	— 38
g.	The Disciples instructed in Prayer.....	xi. 1
h.	Cure of the Dumb Demoniac, and Discourse thereon, MATT. xii. 22—30	— 14
i.	A Woman pronounces the Mother of Jesus blessed	— 27
k.	Discourse when the Pharisees demanded a sign, MATT. xii. 38—45....	— 29
l.	Christ at the Pharisee’s Table.....	— 37
	II.
m.	Admonitions and Encouragements to the Disciples, (comp. Matt. x. 17—33) xii.	1
n.	Warning against Covetousness; Parable of the Rich Man.....	— 13
o.	Admonitions respecting Anxiety, (comp. Matt. vi. 25--33)	— 22
p.	Preparation for the Coming of the Lord.....	— 35
q.	Consequences of Christ’s Mission; Individual Judgment urged	— 49
r.	Calamities not always Judgments	xiii. 1
s.	Parable of the Barren Fig-tree	— 6
t.	The Infirm Woman healed on the Sabbath.....	— 10
u.	Parable of the Mustard seed, (comp. Matt. xiii. 31, 32)	— 18
v.	————— Leaven, (comp. Matt. xiii. 33)	— 20
w.	Answer to the Inquiry, “Are there few that shall be saved?”	— 22
x.	Observations respecting the malicious purposes of Herod	— 31
	III.
y.	Occurrences at the house of a Ruler who was a Pharisee	xiv. 1
z.	Discourse on Counting the Cost	— 25
a.	Parable of the Lost Sheep, (comp. Matt. xviii. 10—14)	xv. 1
β.	————— Lost Piece of Silver	— 8
γ.	————— Prodigal Son.....	— 11
δ.	————— Unjust Steward and Observations.....	xvi. 1
ε.	————— Rich Man and Lazarus	— 19
	—————
ζ.	Observations on Causes of Sin, MATT. xviii. 6, 7	xvii. 1
η.	————— Mutual Forgiveness, MATT. xviii. 15.....	— 3
θ.	————— Faith and Humble Duty	— 5

Such are the contents of this remarkable portion of St. Luke's Gospel. The Evangelist has placed it (p. liii) in a position peculiarly suited to it, when considered as a "Miscellaneous Collection of Discourses and other Occurrences;" all of which must have preceded our Lord's arrival at Jerusalem; some of which St. Luke knew belonged to the Last Journey; most, if not all, of which, he had probably learnt, succeeded the Mission of the Twelve; and most, if not all of which, he derived, directly or indirectly, from the testimony of some or other of the Seventy.

The ixth chapter, which I have represented as a distinct record, has for its subject the Mission of the Twelve, their Return, and the Occurrences that followed till our Lord finally left Galilee. The Records of the Seventy properly came after this chapter; and some one has not unaptly termed this portion, the Gospel of the Seventy. Some few sections in it occur also in St. Matthew's Gospel; but, taken generally, they are peculiar to St. Luke. Even when there are corresponding parts in the Gospel of Matthew, there is usually something which decides that they are not identical in respect to time and place.

I think the Gnomology may be divided into three leading Divisions, as above, (with a short Supplement in ζ—θ); and the reason will appear as we proceed.

I. The Division from § a to § l inclusive, consists of events which chiefly occurred, I imagine, in Galilee; and parts of it are included in Matthew's Gospel. The Apostolical Evangelist makes no allusion to the Mission of the Seventy, § a and § c; but he records the words of Christ in § b and § d, which St. Luke's narrative connects with it. This was before our Lord went to the Feast of Dedication. From the nature of the Gnomology, we are not able to say confidently that the events in the next two sections immediately succeeded the Mission of the Seventy; but as the train of events places our Lord's journey to Jerusalem at this period, I regard the visit to Bethany, § f, as then taking place; and I see no reason why § e should not have occurred previously, viz. before our Lord left Galilee. The occurrences in h and k, (and, in connection with them, those in i and l), the Gospel of Matthew teaches us to place before the complete gathering of the Twelve to their Master,—i. e. after our Lord's return from Ephraim to Galilee subsequently to the Death of John. With the exception of § c, therefore, which the system of Luke led to place in close connection with § a, all these are in the order of occurrence.

As to § g, containing a Prayer given by our Lord to some Disciples when they requested him to teach them to pray, as John had taught his disciples, I feel more uncertainty than I did when I placed it in Part II, whether it were really given before the Sermon on the Mount,—arising from its introduction in a division of the Gnomology, the other sections of which prove to be placed in the order of occurrence. Our Lord may have delivered these instructions to some of those Peræan disciples who had not heard the Sermon on the Mount, either after his return to Galilee from Ephraim, or previously, while he was in the Peræa, before the raising of Lazarus. If the reader prefer this position, he may place it between the vth and vith Sections of Part V; but he must then be prepared to admit, either that our Lord himself gave a less complete prayer as a model for his disciples than he had before done in the Sermon on the Mount; or, that the person who first wrote it down, made an imperfect record of it. Nevertheless, considering all the uncertainty attending it, I should not, in a Monotessaron, separate it so much from its connection with Luke, as the placing of it before our Lord's Public Preaching in Galilee necessarily does.

II. The next Division, m—x, contains two sections, w and x, which clearly respect the Last Journey; and there are others, p, r, and s, which best suit that period: indeed the general character of the whole well accords with the circumstances in which our Lord was traveling through the Peræa. Nevertheless there is one record, in § t, which less suits that period; and several others so closely correspond with passages in St. Matthew, as above noticed, that, if deemed preferable, they may be arranged with those passages. This is peculiarly the case with § m, which even verbally agrees with the record in Matthew of our Lord's instructions to the Apostles; and if regarded as identical with that record, (which, however, Luke himself could not have known), we must place § n after it, viz. at the end of Part IV. The next portion, § o, corresponds in great part with a portion of the Sermon on the Mount; yet ver. 38 best suits the time when the actual body of the Disciples had been reduced by defections and other causes. The next, § p, corresponds with a part of the Discourse on the Mount of Olives, two days before the Passover; but it also perfectly suits the journeying through the Peræa, and such observations might well be made in both cases. And (without extending these details) we may say that the whole of the Second Division may suitably, though not certainly, be referred to the Last Journey.

III. As to the last Division, if the reader deem it best, on account of its position in the Gospel, to transfer it from Part V. (where in this Arrangement it now forms Sect. vi.) to Part VII., so as to follow in point of time what it follows in actual position, this may be done: but since § x so well suits the final and earnest journey through the Peræa, and so well terminates the narrative of it; and since § y so much better suits a period of comparative quiet and leisure; I prefer the position which I have given to this Division, referring it to our Lord's abode in the Peræa—between the Feast of Dedication and the Resurrection of Lazarus—during which, though commonly at Bethabara, he probably visited those towns and villages which were chiefly inhabited by Jews, and to which he had sent the Seventy to make preparation for his coming. Why St. Luke might have placed this important and unique Division after the preceding, it is not difficult to perceive. The Second Division respects the Last Journey, and records occurrences when our Lord was going from the Peræa into Judæa. Suppose St. Luke to have ascertained that the document which included $\gamma - \epsilon$, records occurrences in the Peræa before our Lord went from it into Judæa,—the last referring to the evidence afforded by ‘one rising from the dead’—then, since he was not acquainted with the Resurrection of Lazarus, (as appears clear not only from his silence, but also from the narration in ch. x. 38—42), nor, as far as we know, with any other journey from the Peræa into Judæa but that preceding the Passover, he would naturally give it that position in the Gnomology in which we actually find it.

The whole of this Third Division of the Gnomology is peculiar to Luke, unless we must except the Parable of the Lost Sheep; but if this be compared with Matt. xviii. 10—14, the circumstances, and also the words of Christ, so far differ, that the position in which it stands is by far the more probable.

The short supplementary Division which includes $\zeta - \vartheta$, I conjecture that St. Luke received from some one who knew that Christ made the observations recorded in it, in the Last Journey—which really began at the Mount of Transfiguration; and the Evangelist has accordingly inserted it at the close of the Gnomology. St. Matthew’s account places it in an earlier part of the Journey, before our Lord left Galilee.

(E)

OBSERVATIONS RESPECTING THE GREEK TEXT AND THE TRANSLATION OF THE FOREGOING HARMONY, INCLUDING SOME CORRECTIONS AND EMENDATIONS; TOGETHER WITH ADDITIONAL REMARKS ON THE POSITION OF CERTAIN SECTIONS IN THE HARMONY.

WE have arrived at a period of textual criticism, in which it is no longer necessary to discuss the merits of the Received Text of the Greek Testament, with which Beza’s Text, from which the Common Version was made, most commonly agrees. All competent Critics must be fully aware, that, in a variety of instances, and some of no slight importance, the Received Text does not agree with what, on the best evidence which the case will allow, we have reason to believe to be true reading of the Original as it came from the hands of the Apostles and Evangelists. And every one who has an enlightened respect for the Scriptures, when sufficiently released from the trammels of custom to discern the simplest pointings of duty on the subject, must desire that every thing should be removed from the Sacred Volume, which cannot be truly regarded as coming from the pen of the authorized Teachers of the Gospel. How the learned bodies at Oxford and Cambridge can continue to issue forth numberless copies of the New Testament, even in the original language, without correction by a more faithful Text, or even a caution to the unlearned reader that, in certain passages of no slight importance, the text ought to be corrected, I know not;—unless it be that their attention has not been sufficiently called to the subject; or, that their fear of change conquers the conviction as to the requirements of the love of truth.

There is no longer the excuse which there once was, for this lamentable want of faithfulness to those requirements; since, in the Text constructed by Griesbaeh, competent critics, of all doctrinal opinions, are satisfied that we have a much greater approximation to the original Scriptures than the Received Text presents; and till it is shown by new evidence, which we are not likely to obtain to any extent, or by better canons of criticism, or by the better application of his own, that his decision is in any case unsatisfactory, it is wise to adhere to it. There is no room to doubt that, taken generally, the application of his canons, or the establishment of other modes of investigation, will rather lead us further than he has gone from the Received Text, not nearer to it. At any rate, no one can now be required to defend the employment of Griesbach's Text, instead of Beza's, in the translation of the New Testament, or in the rendering of any part of it: in the writings of Bishop Marsh, the reasonableness, I would say the necessity, of this preference is established.

For the purpose of that correction which seems to me a matter of duty, not of choice, it would not be necessary, as regards the Common Version, to make and authorize a thoroughly-revised translation of the New Testament:—this would at present, I believe, be impracticable; and more preparation must be made by individual critics, before a translation, revised by the authorities of the church, could be generally acceptable. But that the Common Version may be very usefully adapted to Griesbach's Text, Professor PALFREY* has shown, by a neat and useful edition of The New Testament in the Common Version conformed to Griesbach's Standard Greek Text, first published in Boston in 1828, and several times reprinted, in America and, I believe, in England. In this edition, the text is not broken into verses, the numerals being on the side; and Griesbach's paragraphs and punctuation are followed. If those who direct the English University presses would reprint it for the use of those whose minds are enlightened on the subject, and would make it generally known and easily accessible, they would render a very acceptable service to the religious public, and would do something towards atoning for the evil of publishing, as Scripture, that which, with their means of knowledge, they must know is not Scripture. Their responsibilities are great, and are not to be put in the scale with pecuniary profit to the press, or with 'the praise of men' for themselves.

As to the Common Version, though we may well rejoice in its general faithfulness, and cannot but be attached to its venerable simplicity, there can be no doubt, in the minds of those who have paid much attention to the subject, that it is capable of great and important improvement, in correctness, in perspicuity, and (without loss to that simplicity) in adaptation to the present usages of our language; and every contribution to that improvement should be received with candour and encouragement. That those eminently-valuable contributions which are to be found in the Revision by Archbishop Newcome, and also in, what I have often found of unexpected value, the version (dated 1764) of the Rev. Richard Wynne, Rector of St. Alphage, London, are so little known and employed, while innumerable Commentaries are being brought before the public—is at first sight very astonishing. A faithful perspicuous translation of the New Testament, with the ordinary aids of good division and punctuation, and of marks of quotation, &c., would supersede a large proportion of those Commentaries.

* Spoken of in the Note subjoined to the Table of the Contents at the beginning of this volume.

I have mentioned, in the Preface, the circumstance which led me to revise the Common Version for this work. If I had foreseen the extent to which this would lead me, I must have suspended the printing, till I had prepared a revised translation on the system spoken of in the Preface, as required by the purposes of a Harmony. When I reached the Part where several Gospels occur together, I found greater reason to wish that I had done so; and there will, I doubt not, be discovered more instances than I have observed, in which the system has not been successfully maintained. In some cases, indeed, I was obliged to satisfy myself with maintaining it only in relation to the Section itself,—owing to the different manner of using the same word by different Evangelists.

For the purposes of a Harmony, more of uniformity in rendering is necessary than it would be desirable to attempt, for general purposes, even in the Gospels. The same word is used with different shades of import by the same Author; and of course with greater diversity when used by several Authors. But in a general translation, the same word, when used in the same sense, should be uniformly rendered by the same English equivalent, when such can be found; and selection should be made, for different corresponding words in the original, of different equivalents.

I now proceed to those additional remarks which I think desirable to offer to the reader—including whatever I have discovered that requires to be corrected—taking them in the order in which they occur in the Harmony, and prefixing numbers to each paragraph, that, if found convenient, a reference may be made to this Appendix.

OBSERVATIONS, CORRECTIONS, AND EMENDATIONS.

1. The reference in the Note, p. 1, is answered by Prel. Diss. II. Sect. vi, where (p. lxi) a rendering of Luke's General Introduction is given.

2. The 'enrolment' mentioned in Luke ii. 1, p. 7, is considered in App. A.—In the same page, on Matt. i. 22, 'God with us'. I would add among the Notes—Or, God is with us.—this being the probable import of 'Emmanuel'.

3. In p. 8, I observe two cases where, as in the Common Version, καί (obviously Hellenistic) occurs without a rendering; viz. ch. ii. 15 and 21. If rendered at all, then may be an equivalent.—In the next page 'an' has been left before 'husband': but such things, if they occur, it is not necessary to notice further.

4. In the INTRODUCTION, there are many little variations from the Common Version; but much is there left which, in a later part of my work, I should have altered, or have given for it a various rendering in the Notes.—The last word of it (p. 12) should be 'men'.

5. I have left the Proem of St. John's Gospel unaltered. My own views of its import I have given in other works: the latest, in the Gospel Advocate for 1834.

6. In p. 15, in Matthew and in Luke, the literal rendering is 'generations (or broods) of vipers'—γεννηματα.

7. For 'his brother Philip's wife', in p. 17, read 'his brother's wife'—Φιλιππου being omitted by Griesbach. For a like reason, in col. 3, p. 19, omit 'Get thee behind me, Satan: for'.—In such cases, the error has chiefly arisen from the employment of Newcome's Greek Harmony, or Greswell's, in preparing for the press, and in correcting the proofs. The latter uniformly, the former generally, follows Beza's Text.

8. In p. 20, John i. 38, I have left 'Master' as the rendering of διδασκαλος, which I have generally, if not uniformly, rendered Teacher.—The reader may prefer the former; and it is easy to substitute Master for Teacher wherever it occurs.—Following the Common Version, in ch. ii. 9, (p. 22), I have left 'ruler of the feast' and 'governor of the feast' as the rendering of the same word αρχιτρικλινος, which corresponds to our word chairman or president. There is no reason whatever for the diversity of rendering: 'president of the feast' I prefer, with Wynne.

9. In p. 21, occurs the first instance of a word in brackets, viz. '[Henceforth]'—to show that the original is marked by Griesbach as of very doubtful authority. The same denotement occurs in various other places, and always with the same import. Since it has not been uniformly adopted where Griesbach so marks the original, it should not have been employed so often as it has been, which has been owing to the influence of my ordinary practice in such cases. Indeed, unless various readings deemed by Griesbach of equal or superior value to those in his Text, are to be noticed, the very probable omissions should not. Accordingly, Dr. Palfrey passes them by, giving merely the representation of Griesbach's Text. The reader will, it is hoped, excuse the superfluous brackets, wherever he perceives that the omission of what is included in them would make no change on the import.

10. In John ii. 22, p. 23, the reader will please to erase 'unto them', the Greek of which is omitted by Griesbach. He also omits 'Jesus' in ch. i. 43, for which should have been 'Jesus' or 'he'. The former case is of some importance; the latter is only noticed on a general principle.

11. Following the C. V., I have passed by δε in John iv. 31, p. 28. The verse should have begun '[Now]'.—In the same page and the next, the brackets are of moment.

12. On Sect. vii, p. 32, as it respects the arrangement of this Harmony, see Diss. IV., p. cxviii—cxxiv. The Author has not been neglectful of Dr. Palfrey's Observations on the subject, in the Preface to the Boston Harmony; but he has nothing to add to what is stated in the Fourth Dissertation.—In Matt xii. 3, 'himself', if retained, should have been in Italics; as also 'even' in ver. 8. Griesbach omits αυτος, and και. In both cases, the influence of the other Gospels on the transcribers of Matthew's is observable, and they are good specimens of this cause of various readings.

13. Respecting the position of Sect. viii. p. 33, see Note ‡ p. (viii).

14. There is great room for doubt as to the proper position of Sect ix (p. 34)—"The Miraculous Draught of Fishes." I am not satisfied with the present. No reason occurs to me why it should have been placed in the midst of a series of events (App. C) which are in the order of occurrence, if it took place before any of them. In a Monotessaron I would now place it, as heretofore I have done, as occurring in our Lord's First Progress. By this means the connection in Luke's Gospel would be maintained: nevertheless, it must then come after the Call recorded by Matthew and Mark. See p. cxxix.

15. On the position of Sect. x, p. 35, see App. D. In the 4th verse (p. 36), the reader is particularly requested to erase the words 'but deliver us from evil.' The prayer in this Gospel ended, according to Griesbach, with the word 'temptation.' (See par. 17).—The statements in the next page, (in which, nine lines from the bottom, for in read is), are much superseded by the fuller investigations in the Preliminary Dissertations: they may, however, be regarded as a summary of them.

16. In Note § p. 39, not (in the 2d line) should have been yet. In the Text, I would add there after 'disciples'; and in ver. 6, for 'Then Jesus' read 'Jesus therefore'. The original is ουν—(here however probably to be omitted)—which I have purposed always to render therefore, to distinguish from τότε, then.—On the passage itself, see Prel. Diss. p. cxxx.

17. LACHMANN wholly omits the passage (p. 42) respecting the Woman brought before Jesus.—I was not aware of the remarkable character of his Edition of the Greek Testament, till I had printed a large part of my Harmony, when my attention was called to it by the Friend mentioned in p. xii. It forms one of the Greek series, published by Black, Young, and Young; and is a very cheap volume. Not having the power to consult the work in which he has fully stated the grounds and system of his Edition, I can only say that it presents much that it is very valuable to the critical student, and that the punctuation often deserves his close consideration. The prayer in Luke is as in the R.T., except that he places ‘as in heaven so also upon earth’ in brackets.—He also retains in brackets the clause at the end of John viii. 59, which Griesbach omits.—Generally speaking, he omits more than Griesbach does. He gives at the end of the text the passages of the R.T. omitted in it, and some other various readings; and he states that he has never followed his own judgment, but has been directed by the evidence of the most ancient churches of the East; and that where this is unsettled, he has followed the reading authorized by the agreement of the Italians and Africans.

18. In John viii. 39, (p. 44), Griesbach omits αν, and reads εστε for ητε. Lachmann retains αν, and Palfrey renders the clause as in the Harmony, i. e. as in the Common Version.

19. In p. 56, Sect. iv., a passage is given, for the sake of comparison, which occurs regularly in p. 180. In the latter, the word is rendered ‘obtain reconciliation’ which in the former is rendered (with the C.V.) ‘be delivered’. In this and two or three other such cases, the reader may generally prefer the later rendering. A case occurs in p. 61 where ‘shall’ is found, but ‘will’ in p. 178. I have endeavoured throughout to give that auxiliary which appeared the more suited to the connection; the original, of course, decides nothing.—In such parallel passages, not corresponding in point of time, a rule is put before and after; and when the chapter-numeral appears at the head of the column, it is put in brackets. Thus in p. 61, “Luke [xii.] vi.” denotes that the passage at the top of the column is not the regular passage of the Section, but ch. vi, part of which appears below. In the 3d col. of p. 63, there should be no rule, as the preceding passage belongs to the Section.—After Luke vi. 28, p. 57, Griesbach omits ‘and’, and the omission adds to the emphasis. In the Note at the end of the Section, for 43, 45—49, read 43—49. See Prel. Diss. p. xlviii. In Matt. vii. 13, στενυης should have been rendered narrow as in ver. 14, where straitened is given as the rendering of πεινιμμενη.

20. In the 3d col. p. 65, the last line but two, the verse-numeral ¹⁶ should precede ‘but he’. In col. 1, p. 67, at the top, for ‘speak the word’, read ‘speak by word’. Griesbach has λογω for λογον.

21. In Note * p. 70, Cadara is spoken of as eight or ten miles from the Lake. Josephus places it less than eight from Tiberias; and modern travelers make it much nearer the Lake than here stated.—In the 2d col. ‘little ships’ occurs, which is the rendering of πλοιαρια, the common reading; Griesbach has πλοια. It might have been best, to have taken bark as the constant rendering of πλοιον, and boat, of πλοιαριον. In p. 71, col. 2, for ‘he answered, saying’ read ‘he saith’, to follow Griesbach’s text.

22. In the 2d and 3d columns of p. 72, the Greek verb παρακαλεω, rendered entreat in the 1st, is rendered besought. This of course is contrary to my system. To make a distinction between the corresponding use of ερωταω and παρακαλεω, one may be rendered beseech and the other entreat. In Mark, ver. 14, Griesbach reads them instead of the spine.

23. In Luke v. 17 (p. 74), on ‘the sick’ should have been the Note—Lit. them. In Mark, ver. 5, Griesbach omits thee: in ver. 9 and ver. 11, he omits and. This makes the expression more emphatic.

24. In p. 76, col. 3, I have left sat down; my system required, placed themselves at table, as in col. 1 and 2. I have thought of no better mode of rendering the original words, which include the posture at table. See Note, p. 67. In Matthew and Mark, Griesbach omits to repentance; and in Mark, ver. 10, has the Pharisees, not of the Pharisees. In ver. 20, Griesbach has, in that day, and omits And in the next verse. In the Note, ἐπιθῆς should be ἐπιθῆς. In the same Section, p. 79, Mark v. 42, Griesbach omits lying.

25. In p. 81 occurs, I believe, the first instance of betray as the rendering of παράδομι. In a later part, I have rendered it delivered up, as many others have done, and, as appears, according to the intentions of the Evangelist.—In the same Section, Matt. ix. 35, Griesbach omits among the people.

26. Sect xi, p. 83, presents the following things requiring observation. In Luke ix. 1, Griesbach has the Twelve, instead of his twelve disciples; and in ver. 3, staff for staves. In Mark vi. 11, Griesbach omits all from Verily. Lachmann retains it in brackets. The passage is found in Matthew. In the Note in p. 87, for Boltinius read Boltenius.

27. On the rendering of Luke vii. 47 in p. 92, see Prel. Diss. p. cxxxiii.—In the next page, ch. x. 4, by some inadvertence of my own, the words ‘nor shoes:’ have been left in the text; the reader will oblige me by crasing them.

28. In John x. 40, p. 97, read ‘where John was first baptizing’. As to the situation of the place, see Prel. Diss. p. xcvi.

29. In Luke xiv. 3, 4, p. 98, θεραπεύω is rendered cure, and ιαομαι, heal. This variation may serve as a specimen of many.—In Luke xvi. 15, p. 103, Griesbach omits ἐστίν: read, therefore, ‘is an abomination’.

30. In p. 106, ver. 30, read ‘Take ye away the stone’: in ver. 41, for the sake of long association, read ‘But Jesus lifted up his eyes’. At the beginning of ver. 44, read ‘He that’, since Griesbach omits καὶ. He also omits ‘Jesus’ in ver. 45.

31. On Sect. viii. p. 107, see Preliminary Dissertations, p. cxx, &c. In Luke vi. 10, Griesbach reads ‘him’ instead of ‘the man’.—The next sheet begins with p. 119, &c. instead of 113, &c.; and at the top of p. 120, ‘worse’ has been omitted before ‘than’.—Griesbach inserts ‘and thy sisters’ after ‘brethren’ Mark iii. 32, with the lowest mark of probability. As this makes the authority correspond to that for words to which he prefixes =, since these are retained, the former should probably be inserted; but it is not done by Dr. Palfrey, through following Griesbach’s manual Edition of 1805, where it appears in the margin, with a mark of probability.

32. Griesbach omits ‘of heaven’ in Mark iv. 4, (p. 123), and ‘unto them’ in ver. 9.—I have, as others, rendered πετεῖνα birds, as the C.V. sometimes does; I would now render it uniformly fowls, supplying of heaven where this does not occur. In the same Section, p. 125, the idiomatic construction of the original has been left in Mark iv. 15: the import may be thus represented, ‘Now those by the way side, are they in whom the word is sown, &c.’ On consulting Kuinoel, I find that he gives the same explanation: “ὅπου, ubi i. in quibus, in quorum animis, ut Syrus interpres cepit.”—In ver. 18, Griesbach (see Corrigenda) begins thus, ‘And others are they’, &c., and omits ‘this’ before ‘world.’

33. For ‘would betray him’, in John vi. 64, p. 142, read, ‘was to deliver him up’, ὁ παραδωσων αυτον. In ver. 71, the original is ημελλεν αυτον παραδιδοναι, ‘was about to deliver him up’. See par. 25.

34. In Matt. xv. 32, and Mark viii. 2, p. 148, occurs a singular reading, adopted by Griesbach, viz. ἡμέραι τρεῖς, for ἡμέρας τρεῖς. The rendering of the common reading has been left,—with the perfect of the following verb for the present, which our idiom requires: Griesbach's may be thus represented, 'because it is now three days that they are remaining with me'.—Agreeably to the topographical views stated in the Preliminary Dissertations, p. cxxxvi, Matt. xv. 39 should be placed at the end of Sect. vi; and in the title of Sect. vii, for Magdala, read Dalmanutha.

35. In Mark viii. 34, p. 152, Griesbach reads 'to follow' instead of 'to come'; and he omits 'the same' in ver. 35: also, in Mark ix. 3, p. 154, he omits 'so', and in ver. 7, 'saying'. In Matt. xvii. 5, he reads 'a cloud of brightness', instead of 'a bright cloud'.

36. In Mark ix. 26, p. 157, Griesbach omits 'him'. The clause may well be rendered, 'and convulsed him greatly'.

37. 'Then', in Luke xvii. 1, p. 160, follows the Common Version. The portion has, I think, no connection in time with ch. xvii, and appears to begin a supplementary document: see App. D. The clause should, therefore, stand thus, 'Now he said unto the disciples'. In the 3d col. of p. 161, opposite Matt. xviii. 10—14, it would be well to insert, (as in p. 213), a reference to ch. xv. 1—7, p. 100; and so in the 1st col. of p. 100, a reference to ch. xviii. 10—14, p. 161. These passages correspond in subject but not, I think, in time. See App. D, p. (xix).

38. Begin Part VII. (p. 167) 'Now it came to pass, when the days were fulfilled in which he was to be received up'. It deserves to be noticed, that from St. Luke's Gospel alone, it could not be known that our Lord did not ascend into heaven in the evening after his Resurrection, which on my computation was only thirteen days after 'he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem'.

39. On p. 170, it may be desirable to apprise the general reader, that Luke xvii. 36 is wholly omitted by Griesbach, as also by Lachmann.

40. On Sect. vi. (Luke xii. xiii), see App. D. (p. xvii).—In relation to ch. xiii. 1, see John xi. 55, and observe Luke xxiii. 12.—Opposite ch. xiii. 34, 35, (p. 182), in the 1st column, may well be put a reference to the parallel place, ch. xxiii. 37, 38, p. 213. In the running title of that page, to should be erased.

41. Griesbach inserts 'thy' before 'left' in Matt. xx. 21 (p. 184), and altogether omits 'my' before 'left' in Mark x. 40.

42. On the position of the Supper at Bethany, I observe, in addition to what is said in the Note, p. 191, that from Matthew's narrative, ch. xxi. 1, it would not have been known that our Lord even stopped at Bethany in his way to Jerusalem, which we know he did. Hastening to the public acts of the week, the Evangelist appears to have passed by the Supper at Bethany; and he adverted to it only in connection with the effect which the circumstances had produced on Judas's mind, at the time when this Apostle made his offer to the High Priest and his partisans. Mark's agreement with Matthew in this arrangement was most probably owing to Mark's being in possession of a record which had been derived from the same source as Matthew's. The great correspondence between Mark and Matthew, after the Return of the Apostles, renders it probable that a record (perhaps from St. Matthew's pen) of that period of our Lord's Ministry was in possession of St. Mark, who employed it in writing his Greek Gospel, (as Matthew himself did in writing his Hebrew Gospel), making, of course, those additions which his own knowledge, as an inhabitant of Jerusalem and a companion of the Apostle Peter, might be expected to supply. See Prel. Diss. p. xlii—xlvii.

43. In Mark xii. 27, p. 207, Griesbach omits Θεός before ζωντῶν. On his text, the rendering in Mark should be 'He is not the God of the dead but of the living'. Lachmann also omits ὁ before the Θεός retained.

44. In Mark xii. 36, p. 208, Griesbach has λεγει saith. In the Note in p. 210, guide should be guides.

45. When the Note * in p. 228 was passing through the press, I did not deem it so probable as I afterwards did (p. 235), that, in the paschal chamber, there were two distinct warnings given to Peter. In the above-mentioned Note, the reader may erase 'first' before 'announcement'.

46. In Mark xv. 18, p. 261, Gr. reads ὁ βασιλευς instead of βασιλευ, furnishing an instance of the employment of the nominative, with the article, as a vocative. Another instance occurs in John xx. 28. In the verse following this (p. 291), Gr. omits 'Thomas'.

47. In relation to the little variations from Griesbach's Text which have now been noticed, I wish to state, that, perceiving I had not, from the cause mentioned in No. 7, as well as other circumstances, adhered to it so closely as I had intended, I proposed to insert a Table of Griesbach's Departures, in the Gospels, from the Received Text; but through regard to my own time, and to the reader's convenience, I concluded upon a specific reference to every variation which I could discover. This I have now executed.

I have not discovered any thing else to add or to correct in the HARMONY. On the PRELIMINARY DISSERTATIONS I have only the following remarks to offer.

48. To the Authors adopting the Tripaschal Hypothesis, (see p. x), I have to add the Rev. GEORGE TOWNSEND, M. A., Prebendary of Durham, whose opinion relating to the coherency of the introductory records I have already stated in p. (iv).—To those who have adopted the Bipaschal, are to be added the Rev. Dr. PALFREY, and the Rev. HENRY WARE, Jun. both of Cambridge University, U. S., as stated in p. viii, at the end of the Table of Contents: also my esteemed Friend, the Rev. W. FIELD of Warwick, who, however, follows Dr. Priestley's arrangement. See the Christ. Ref. for 1835.

49. In p. xxxix, about the middle, read—Nor does the Parable of the Barren Fig-tree present any.

50. The Tabular View referred to in the Note p. xliv, extends only to our Lord's Arrival at Bethany.—In p. liii, l. 7, insert the closing parenthesis after p. 168.

51. In p. lxxi, a reference is made to Mr. Carne's Letters, which would lead the reader to expect more quotations from him than actually appear. That I have given no more, is owing to the many passages I have extracted from Lamartine.—In p. lxix Esdracron is misprinted.

52. In p. lxxxviii, a reference should have been made to the accounts of travelers that the Lake of Galilee, like all others that are surrounded by mountains, is exposed to the effect of hurricanes, which, sweeping from the mountains, instantaneously raise a boisterous sea. The fact was among my memoranda, but escaped me at the right place. A reference to it will be found in p. cii.

53. The first page of sig. n, should have been xcvii not xcvi.—The expression of doubt in the Note p. cix, respecting the extent of the platform on which the Temple was built, was needless: it certainly extended to the south of the outer wall.—Mr. Charles P'ripp, Architect of Bristol, having kindly undertaken to draw for me Elevations of the Temple according to my views derived from Josephus, was led to point out, that the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, p. cxi, was as broad in the opening as it was high, there being two folding doors, each having the breadth mentioned.—The measurement which I have given was computed by me many years ago, taking the cubit at 18 inches; as it certainly was as much as 21, the reader may add one-sixth to all the measures.—The note in the next page, p. cxii, was made with an uncorrected copy of the Plan before me: the contraction is represented in the Plan given in this volume.